IT PAYS WELL TO BUY GOOD!

You have heard of the smartness of the old lady's sons. She shut them up in a room together, and they both made their fortunes trading jack-knives. You remember the joke and you get the idea.

On the edge of the Fall Season's Trade, we part to say a something to you about business—your business of buying what you need—and now is as good a time as any.

This season we come before you as Direct Importers. Is there anything in that for us? Is there anything in that for you?

Read on a little further and we'll tell you.

Our buyer, when in England, found Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers, both holding great lots of almost everything in our trade; holding—not for better prices—but for buyers. Buyers were scarce. There was stagnation.

Now our buyer bought freely, judiciously, and bought well. He bought good.

We were not burdened with goods. We had the requisite outlet in our large trade to handle a directly imported stock. Our buyer bought to undersell the retail market here and make a profit.

Our sales are going to be more—not less—than last year, for we adapt our buying and selling to the times we are in.

We offer you a stock bought to sell. This we know, and it's for you to prove it.

We shall not try here to enumerate the lines of goods in which we can offer you exceptional good value. You'll hear of them presently. We'll finish our business talk by saying:—

Our Stores are full of Goods—our own importations—and our prices are what our view of the opportunity makes them. We won't ask you to buy the things of fashion. It's a time for getting almost all the substantial staple things to wear, and to keep home with.

It's a time for you to make your money by your spending of it.

It's a time for caution, but the caution is to be shown in choosing where and what you buy, and the bargains you make.

And surely when by our trade policy the bottom is reached in goods, and we offer to you the top of the purchasing power of money, you'll neglect your own interests if you fail to buy from us.

A MATCH FOR THE MEDAL.

Orillia v. Peterborough.

On Thursday last a large concourse—about 800—accompanied the Orillia Lacrosse club to Peterborough, where the club entered to play for the Championship medal of Central Ontario. The party arrived about noon and as did the rain, but the weather cleared, and at three o'clock the clubs marched to the Ashburnham grounds headed by the Fire Brigade band. No sooner had they arrived than the rain began to literally pour, and continued to do so for half an hour. The rain ceasing, it was arranged that play should begin at half-past four. At that time the teams mustered in centre field as follows:

J. Joyal	Goal	H. Taylor
P. Myles	Point	G. H. Armstrong
M. Tierney	Cover Point	R. H. Gunn
J. Howden	Defence Field	W. Edmondson
M. Halpin	do	C. Mick
A. Yelland	do	A. E. Lawrence
J. J. Sheehy	Centre field	E. C. Moore
W. J. Scott	Attack Field	G. Tedhope
R. S. Kelly	do	R. Henderson
J. Henderson	do	R. H. Jupp
C. Rutherford	2nd Home	W. A. Garrett
W. Rudkins	1st Home	J. R. Tedhope
J. Coughlin	Field Captain	W. Ralstin
A. McNeil	Umpire	W. Sherman

W. H. Moorey, Ingersoll, Referee.

FIRST GAME—PETERBOROUGH.

Sheehy and Moore faced at 4:20. Of course Sheehy drew the ball and put it down towards Orillia's goal, but Lawrence of the Orillias securing it, was cleverly checked by Kelly, and the play became too lively to individualize. It was alternately at either end of the field, but the Peterborough team put in good work, and sent the ball down to the other end where Joe Henderson showed some fine play, and Orillias flags were closely pressed. There were lively struggles in centre field and the ball worked up to the Peterborough goal where a sharp "scrimmage" took place, but Myles rescued the rubber, and it was in a moment menacing the Orillia poles. At length Kelly secured the ball and passed it to Henderson. The latter entrusted it to Sheehy's tender mercy. He passed the sphere to Scots who sent it through, thus winning the first game for the home team in 22 minutes of actual play. This game was very sharply contested, and the teams appeared pretty evenly matched, but the good team play of the home boys turned the balance in their favour.

SECOND GAME—PETERBOROUGH.

Shortly after five o'clock play was resumed, Sheehy again won the draw and Kelly was ready to receive the ball from him, and down on the Orillia flags it went, and a close call for game was made. After varying play a face, (by the way, faces were frequent this game), resulted in the ball getting into the field, and the fiercest struggle of the afternoon took place. But the home boys had warmed up to their work, and they put in some superfine team playing, Sheehy, Halpin, Kelly and Yelland working together like clock work, and the Orillia position was repeatedly threatened but well defended. Joyal also did good work in goal, and in fact the whole team played excellently in this game. After the game had been going nearly half an hour there was a face, and Rutherford was ready for the rubber; he made from centre field a beautiful shot straight on goal. Rudkins to help the shot, took the ball on his stick and sent it through, thus winning the second game after thirty minutes play, a considerable portion of which time however was made up of delays caused by frequent facing.

SHOWING THE WHITE FEATHER.

The Orillia team failed to come to time for the third game, alleging several childish, pretexts in excuse—the crowd encroached on the field, the crowd sympathised with the Peterborough players, etc., etc. If they had secured two games it is probable that these objections would not have been raised. They could not have been very anxious or they had very little hope of securing the medal, else they would not have showed the white feather. The truth is they were outplayed on every point. The play was of course vigorous and several severe wounds were the result. The Orillia players were chiefly to blame for the hurts they received. They illustrated in their play, the line of Pope, "For fools rush in where angels fear to tread," by jumping right into a Peterborough player when using his stick. In this manner, two at least of the four men hurt, worth mentioning, were injured—Tudhope and Garret. Jupp was hurt by an accidental collision with a Peterborough player in which both stood equal chances of injury; and Henderson's hurt was received in sharp checking in a "scrimmage."

The unsportsmanlike and untruthful letter in the Mail from the Orillia club, and the disgracefully false report in an Orillia paper, are unworthy of anything but contempt. More square lies to the square inch of printer's ink never appeared. The Orillia paper asserts that Orillia claimed one game, which is false, as both umpires and referees will say. Orillia did'nt get a game and did not claim one till the next day in a local paper. The small crowd in one corner of the field, composed as much of Orillia people as anything else, did not actively interfere with the game. The Peterborough players received several bad hurts, but they are too manly to whine over them. The team as a team never whimpered over the rough usuage they got at Orillia, though some of them have not yet entirely recovered from it. Wounds and bruises are incidental to lacrosse playing, and the team that can't take a threshing at the game without so much whining and straight lying, had better retire from the sport.

Midland Regatta.

On Tuesday and Wednesday Sept. 2nd and 3rd, the village of Midland holds its third annual regatta. The programme prepared includes sailing, rowing, sculling and canoeing races for prizes amounting to $1,000. An efficient committee has charge of the regatta and have provided excellent accommodation for spectators viewing the whole course during the progress of the races. The prizes for first-class yachts will be four—$60, $40, $25, and $10. For second-class yachts, four prizes, $50, $25, $10, $5. The rowing; for senior four-oared, 1½ miles straight, $50 and $20. Junior four-oared, $40 and $15. Double scull lapstreak, $30 and $15. Single scull, shell, $50 and $25. Single lapstreak, $40 and $20. Single lapstreak, local, $20 and $10. In all the rowing events, cups, equivalent in value to the sums named, will be the prizes. There will be prizes offered also for canoe races. Railway arrangements will be complete. Return fare from Peterborough will be only $1.00, boats carried free; tickets good for three days. Further information may be had from Mr. F. Holland, manager of Western Bank, treasurer, or from Wm. Steers, secretary.

Mr. W. K. Lazier, Bailiff, &c., Belleville, writes: "I find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil the best medicine I have used in my stable. I have used it for bruises, scratches, wind puffs and cuts, and in every case it gave the best satisfaction. We use it as a household remedy for colds, burns, &c., and it is a perfect panacea. It will remove warts by paring them down and applying it occasionally."

OTONABEE.

On Monday Mr. Johnston Cooney, river road, Otonabee, left his horses attached to a self-binding reaper, a moment, to get a fresh supply of cord. The flies started the horses and they ran away. A brother of Mr. Cooney got in front of the team to stop them; they turned suddenly, and upset the machine and damaged it from $20 to $30.

MARK ST. METHODIST CHURCH.

REOPENING SERVICES.

SUNDAY.

The reopening services in connection with the Mark Street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, were held on Sunday and Monday evening last. On Sunday Rev. Dr. Carman, Superintendent, preached eloquent and vigorous sermons at the morning and evening services, and Rev. J. Tovell an excellent and practical sermon in the afternoon. Large congregations were present at all the services.

MONDAY EVENING.

The tea was held in the Town Hall and was largely attended. The tables were a credit to the ladies of the congregation. After refreshments adjournment was made to the church, where Geo. A. Cox, Esq., occupied the chair.

Rev. Mr. Butcher opened with prayer, and the chairman congratulated the congregation on the great improvements made. But he thought their were enough Methodists in the future city of Peterborough to erect a church worthy of St. Mark's ward. He would prefer giving a large sum towards a new church, and parsonage, to giving a small one for repairs. He suggested converting the present church into a school room, and building a new church.

Rev. Mr. Manning was present to show brotherly love and sympathy; he foretold a bright future for this church. He thought that in the future, Mark street church would be so built up as to make a strife at the Conference, to secure its pastorate. He hoped it would not drain the other churches in town. He prayed that the churches would join hand in hand to work for the uplifting of the church and the salvation of souls.

Rev. Mr. Tovell referred jocularly to the peculiar nature of tea-meeting speeches, and highly praised the eloquent, convincing and pointed speech of the chairman. He hoped his prediction of a new church and parsonage would be fulfilled in the near future.

Rev. Dr. Carman made a business speech dealing with the duty of giving. Giving to church improvements was benevolence, while giving towards a minister's salary was only the payment of an honest debt. Referring to the chairman's speech, he said some were called not to preach, but others furthered God's work in other ways. He closed his address by hoping that on his next visit he would see a handsome church and parsonage built here.

Mr. Cox pointed out something peculiar—"only $125 to be raised at a Methodist tea meeting!" The cost of repairs he said had been $300; collection and tea, netted $102, and about $75 otherwise guaranted, left the balance of $125. He offered, if the church would raise $125, to give a like sum to the new parsonage, and if the pastor would call a meeting of the trustees, he would suggest a plan to build a parsonage that would cost, little more than rent, and it would be ready for residence before the snow fell. A call for SUBSCRIPTIONS resulted as follows:

D. W. Dumble $20, J. Stevenson $15, J. W. Flavelle, Thos. Johnston, W. J. Phillips, Mr. Throop, R. Hanbidge, J. F. Holden, Dr. Kincaid, John Wood, J. Smith, J. Wasson, Wm. Dawson, J. W. Tennison, J. Hanbidge, Miss Jennie Butcher, B. Shortley, and J. R. Stratton, $5 each—$80—Joseph Sarsy, W. Faint, H. Armstrong, John Craig, Wm. Hunter, John Agnew, John Mason, R. Sheridan, James Beavis, James Armstrong, Mrs. W. J. Mason and a friend, $2 each—$24—Wm. Smith and two friends each $1—$3. The Baptist church having bought the Murray Street Church, turned over a chandelier to the Mark Street Church, valued at $41.

A composite choir furnished excellent music during the evening.

Rev. Mr. McAmmond, pastor, thanked the ladies and others contributing to the marked success of the reopening services, very modestly, however, refraining from referring to his own energetic exertions.

HAVELOCK.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

There is a great amount of reports in the fly-sheets of Norwood and Hastings and other places about the place in Belmont called the hamlet of Havelock.

Now, if the writers about this place Havelock had any sense they would write no more about it, for neither of those places started in full bloom in a moment, but were composed of miserable little log huts, and the inhabitants were obliged to be very saving to live, as a half-penny's worth of tea and a penny's worth of sugar were very large purchases, and I think that Havelock is far ahead of them in that way. The village people of Norwood are very extravagant in excursions now, and I think the railway will sweep them out of existence before long, for one man caught hold of the express coach to hold it another moment; but, alas! it came very near taking him to his long home. Poor fellow! he feels sorry the Norwood people can not control the Railway Company to do just as they want them—not to reduce the fare from Havelock to Peterborough on market days, but, thanks to the company, they have done it, and Norwood's days are few and numbered.

There is going to be a grist mill and carding mill and a Presbyterian church erected here shortly. And I say now to all intending settlers to come and see and buy before you get one or two glasses of knock-him-stiff whisky at Hemlock Hotel.

This hotel here is a great annoyance, for there are a great many drunken men lying around night and day, Saturday and Sunday, all alike to the proprietor (it is a disgrace to name), who has such a conscience to keep it in that way. Hurrah to Norwood for the oysters.

YOUNG'S POINT.

A grand picnic will be held at the grove, Young's Point, under the auspices of St. Mary's R.C. Church, on Thursday Sept. 18th, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. Excellent arrangements are being made for a good day's sport. Prizes will be awarded for sports, games, boat races etc. The picnics in connection with this church have always been successful, and we have no doubt that this one will surpass all others. Remember the day and don't fail to be present.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City

Peterborough Markets.

[Revised by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, August 27th, 1884

There is nothing doing in grain worth naming. Any fall wheat offering has sold at 80c., but as markets are declining, 70c. to 75c. will likely be the price. Some new spring wheat has brought 90c. New barley will open about 55c. to 55c. Nothing doing in peas or rye. Oats are bringing about 37c. to 38c., few offering.

On the market, fresh butter is less plentiful, and selling in prints from 17c. to 19c.; in lots, 14c. to 15c., in fair supply. Chickens selling 40c. to 50c. Fresh lamb, 7c. to 9c., fair demand. Potatoes are plentiful and have been selling from 60c. to 70c. per bag. Apples, 75c. to $1.25 per bag or retail 20c. to 25c. per peck. Other commodities unchanged.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"My brother spoke of an acquaintance he had in London, who was coming to the Rington races."

Philip spoke in measured cold tones, calmly, as though discussing the most everyday subject; at least, so it seemed to Proctor.

"You have ridden far," he said. "You had better remain here. I must go to Rington."

"No, no, Sir. John," exclaimed the other. "I will go back with you. I can leave my horse here. We shall catch the quarter to eight easily."

Philip clasped the hand the elder man had instinctively laid on his; and for the first time the low voice quivered a little.

"Thank you, Archie. I shall not forget your kindness," he said; then added, turning to the door, "I must tell Erica; I shall not be a moment."

"What an extraordinary man that is!" ejaculated Archie Proctor as the door closed. "He is either really cold or has the most wonderful self-control over himself; so passionate as I fancied he was he never showed the slightest anger for the man who has done this. I can't make him out."

Erica, who was up and dressed, though yet in her dressing-room, had seen Archie Proctor cross the lawn and had wondered what business could possibly bring him at this time of the morning, but as she knew he had been consulting Philip on some literary venture of his own, she concluded that he had wished to see her husband before going back to town by the early train.

She started forward, however, as Philip opened the door and advanced into the room, but stopped suddenly, every vestige of color leaving her face, as she observed the change one short hour had made.

"Philip," she said, under her breath, "you look ghastly—what is it?"

He took both her hands in his then, and told her briefly and calmly of the awful tragedy enacted last night.

"You are brave-spirited," he said, "and I had no time to break this to you gently, poor child. I must go at once to Rington and see about everything. I must leave you, Erica, now, and shall not be home again for a few days. I will let you know more certainly in an hour or two."

The girl had listened quietly, a rigid, strong horror growing in the large eyes that never left his face; an icy numbness seemed to creep round her heart, an icy stream to chill her veins; above, beyond the horror of the deed done in the dead of night, lay the vague, undefined horror as one name sprang like lightning involuntarily through her brain.

Yet why? He had promised her to give up Walter St. John. She had absolutely no reason to think they had been together, and still the two names rang in her ears, and dizzily she put up one hand to her brow.

"Who—who," she faltered, "is this—this man?"

"I know nothing," answered Philip; "I can only conjecture. I cannot say more now, there is no time." He paused a second, and added low and quiveringly: "Forgive me, my poor child, if my words, my manner seem cold to you; there is no time for feeling now, there is only time to act."

Did some dread whisper reach her then that for the last time he kissed her brow, her lips, with that sorrowful tenderness, that she clung to him for a moment with such wild despair in the white face she lifted to his? Did some such whisper reach him too, that he held her again close to his heart, and whispered, something pleading, something wistful in the tremulous tones:

"God keep you, Erica, my darling, my wife!"

And then she was alone; alone with that horror settling down, a black cloud over her life, those last words ringing in her ears.

CHAPTER VIII.

IN HONOR AND DISHONOR, NOT COUNTING THE COST.

It was not till the afternoon that a messenger brought a few lines from Philip to Erica St. John, and as she read them her heart seemed to stand still.

"The coroner's inquest was held this morning," Philip wrote, "and on the evidence given, a verdict of wilful murder was returned against Stephen Martin, the man who was last seen with Walter, and with whom he was last seen at the Crown Hotel; he was seen with him also on the race-course. I have no time, Erica, to write more now; I must go to London at once; there is so much to be done. When I return it will be from Wilton-le-Thorpe, where all the St. Johns are buried. I cannot be home for four or five days, if then. I will write to you again. Write to me at Morley's Hotel till after to-morrow, then at Wilton-le-Thorpe."

The letter dropped from her hands, and she stood for a moment without movement, her fingers clasped together tightly, the brows contracted. She could scarcely gather herself together to think; it had all come so suddenly upon her—that awful haunting fear that had overshadowed even the horror of the wrong done, and the grief for Philip's bitter loss.

She strove clearly to think what ground she had for the suspicion she could not cast off; there was absolutely none but the fact that Arnold Murray had been at the Crown, had been on the course, and had been, in London, one of Walter's companions. She did not know that he had assumed another name. It was not unlikely; she wondered now she had never asked him.

"And yet, and yet——" she murmured again and again with white lips. "Oh, why does this anguish of fear take hold of me? Why does not Philip say more? If I could only know something! And this suspense is agony. Arnold is passionate and hot-tempered, and so was Walter. They might have quarreled, and—what am I saying?" She pressed her hands together, and began pacing restlessly up and down. "Why do I connect them so in my thoughts? And if it were that, what should I do? No, no, I cannot think of that now."

She lived through the rest of that day. Janet coming in, besought her to take something to eat or drink. She feared her mistress would be ill and was really anxious for her. But Erica put away the tea and wine and food the housekeeper brought and said she could not eat, and Janet went away sorrowfully, and shook her head as she returned to her own regions.

"Mistress hasn't been herself for a long time," she said to herself.

Night came on at last, and Erica breathed a sigh of relief when she heard the distant sound of closing doors.

The servants' apartments were all on the other side of the house. The windows looked out on the village below, while the south gate faced the sea.

Would Arnold come? If—if what she dared not put into words were true, he would not come, surely?

She stops suddenly and leans forward, scarcely breathing in her intense listening.

Surely there was a sound as of a step creeping stealthily over the grass. It was a gusty night, the wind was high and moaned through the trees in the garden and swept the fallen leaves before it, driving them against the window pane—perhaps it was that she had heard.

She went to the window and lifted the curtain. Through filmy grey clouds a faint moon was struggling to shed its rays, and by its dim light she saw the trees swayed and rocked in the night wind, saw the dead leaves whisked into the air in a column; but something was moving in the shadow of those funereal-looking firs, coming on towards the window; it was no fancy.

The girl paused one brief second, and then softly undid the fastenings of the casement and opened it.

"Who goes there?" she said, in a low, distinct voice, and almost before the sound had died away a man's form came out into the light, and with one swift stride he had reached the window, and the girl would have laid her hand on his to draw him in but he warned her away with a gesture that made her shrink back, and he sprang into the room, shutting the window after him.

There was an instant's deathly silence; in it you might have heard her low quivering breath coming as if each respiration was forced from the throbbing of her heart.

She stood looking at him with dilated eyes and white drawn lips, her hands pressed over her breast, her form shrinking, and ghastly horror in her face—the shadow of that look which never again left the depths of the dark eyes.

She strove to speak, but her dry lips moved only, no words came from them, and then in her agony she stretched out her hands to him, and he fell back with a strong shudder, and turned away his face from the piercing questioning of her eyes.

"Tell me," she gasped under her breath, a despairing supplication in her voice, "tell me it is not true. Oh, God! it is not true. There is not blood between us!"

He made her no answer, but sank down into a chair near and hid his face, trembling from head to foot. Ever weak, he had not even now the kind of reckless courage that can fight off the horror of disgrace and death.

"Erica, don't fail me now," he muttered, with white trembling lips. "Remember your oath. There's no one but you. If you cast me off, I shall go and give myself up; there'll be nothing else."

It was true then. It had been no fancy, that black cloud hanging over her, enveloping her now in its folds; the fear that haunted her was now changed to awful certainty. She had thought that any certainty would be better than suspense. Well, it had come now, and she scarce knew which was the fiercer agony.

Yet, at least, with knowledge came the necessity of and power for action. There was something her spirit could rise to meet; and bewildered, dazed almost by that knowledge as she was, she did not succumb under it, though there flashed before her, as clearly as if every step had been illumined by electric light, the inevitable issue, the one course she must follow—the one laid on her, she deemed, if she were to be faithful to her trust.

"I have been hiding since last night," Arnold said, sitting up and speaking rapidly, and his eyes flickered uncertainly, and never looked straight at the slender, gentle form before him. As she stood, moving a little to and fro, it seemed to her that with every movement her life must have ceased to be. "I've been up at Nat's cottage, Erica. He was near; he saw all——"

"He saw all?" she repeated, dizzily.

"Yes, yes." He spoke excitedly now, and twisted his fingers together very restlessly. "Erica, swear you will never breathe a word to Philip St. John. He would have no mercy, even for your sake. He would hunt me down. Oh, Erica,"—he covered his face and the drops stood on his brow—"I cannot, I cannot face that, to be dragged down to a felon's death. I did not mean to do that at first; and then he loaded me with curses. He had lost on that cursed horse Fenton, as I have, and I hated him for his brother's sake——"

"What had he or his brother done to you?" Erica said, speaking in measured tones, with no change of face, only the lips moving.

"I hated him," said Arnold, fiercely, "because he was ever flinging his brother's name at me, and I hated his brother because he stood between you and me. All the same," he added, sinking back again, and speaking with a kind of sullen dejection, "I wouldn't have hurt him; we had both been drinking champagne, and our blood was as hot as fire, and so—and so——"

He stopped, shuddering again in every limb.

"I didn't think he was dead at first," he went on after a moment. "Oh, shall I ever get that face out of my thoughts?"

"But when you struck the blow, you meant to kill him," said the girl's low tones.

He sprang up and walked away to the window and back again before he answered her. A savage gleam in his eyes.

"Don't drive me like that, girl; perhaps I did. What then? Hadn't he accused me and reproached me? I'm not a poltroon to stand anything a man may like to say. Why do you look so at me?"

She made a step forward, and laid her hand upon his arm, and he started back with a half cry, as its icy chill struck through him.

"Don't touch me," he said, whisperingly; "your hand is pure; mine——"

"Is a murderer's hand," she said, bitterly. "Yes, I know it; can it pollute me more to touch you, than to know that the same blood flows in our veins? Listen, Arnold, and answer me truly, or, as Heaven is my witness, I will not stir hand or foot to save you from justice. When you wrote that line to me yesterday, when you said, 'He will be away,' did you meditate wrong against Walter? Was your thought that Philip would be sent for, because of his brother's death? The truth, remember."

"I swear to you," he said, eagerly, and she knew this time that he spoke truth, "I had not an idea to harm him."

"Was it you that brought him to Rington?"

"I asked him to go with me three weeks ago," Arnold answered, and in the ready mixture of lies, and what Erica knew by Walter's letters to be truth, how could she separate the wheat from the chaff? "Had he refused, or cited his brother again——" with a sneer. "But he came after all, worse luck for him and me."

"Aye, aye, Heaven knows it," the girl said, covering her face with such awful bitter anguish in movement and tone as held even Arnold silent. "Oh, is this burden laid on me too? Does this fatal vow exact that I should shield my brother's slayer, deceive still, live a lie to him? And oh!" she bowed her head down, falling on her knees beside the table, "he loves me; must I betray his love, or betray one I have sworn to protect?"

In that fierce conflict Erica seemed indeed to have forgotten Arnold's presence till he touched her lightly on the shoulder, and then she lifted a white rigid face to his and rose to her feet, and in the burning dark eyes lay a fixed resolve. Cost what it might that vow lay on her still, so in her blindness she deemed it.

"Why do you shake and tremble so?" she said, and he fell back, gazing at her, for she looked so strangely quiet and dreamlike. "You will not be fit to take such care as you must."

"I am half dazed with it all. You don't know what it is to be hunted as a felon," he muttered. "I am unnerved; I start at every sound, and fear my own shadow."

"And betray yourself," she answered. "No, that will not do." She paused a moment in thought, and for a brief second a sort of spasm of anguish passed over her features. "And so Poynter knows of—of this?" she said.

"Yes; he will keep quiet—I bribed him—and he'll do anything for you."

"Will he? But not without your money too," said the girl, with a smile of strange bitterness.

Would her prayer be more than a threat to Ralph Poynter back if there were no other motive. How could she tell?

"Where is he?"

"He is out on the road; he came down with me. He said he might be wanted."

"He is wanted—I must think."

He leant back in the chair, watching her half-curiously, and yet in a sort of apathetic way. He seemed quite incapable himself of making any effort on his own behalf; never quick or resolute to act in any emergency, he more than ever now threw himself absolutely on Erica's stronger spirit, and felt himself lost without her.

And while she walked up and down, she resolved in that busy brain a plan of escape which might elude vigilance. There was no train going anywhere from Grayle until the next morning; and, moreover, it would not be safe to go from this little country station; but it would be almost impossible to trace Arnold if they put off in Nat's boat, and by that means reached a more distant station. For Erica, casting all scruple, all thought of consequences to the winds, resolved to see Arnold safe as far as she could. He might get off in some vessel that would take him abroad. It scarcely entered her mind that she would be compromising herself, and if by any means the affair became known, placing her name—her husband's name—in jeopardy. She had been so little in the world, and had always looked on Arnold so completely as a brother, that she did not realise all that she risked. Philip would not be home for four or five days, and she would have returned by that time.

She stopped at last and spoke.

"I am going to leave you for a moment," she said, and she marked how he started and glanced around nervously. "No one will come, the servants are all in bed. I shall go with you to London, Arnold, and never leave you till you are safe—as safe as thought can make you. We will speak of that presently. I have money——"

"Erica, stay." He roused himself, and laid a hand on her shoulder, and the crimson rushed over her brow as he spoke, looking down on that beautiful, stern face. "Do you know what you are doing, Erica?" he said, touched to some compunction for her sake. He would fain spare her fair name if he could, and yet, even with that better thought, flashed simultaneously a sinister joy. Would not this be sweet revenge, indeed? Would Philip, so stern—so implacable, she had said—ever forgive a step that sullied his name.

She shrank a little and her eyes drooped, but she moved away and only said:

"I know, Arnold, he will never know; let me go, I cannot speak of it. I must lay down all for my oath's sake."

"Only for that, Erica?" he said, bending quickly forward as she was going, and she met his look steadfastly, and answered in the cold, measured way she had spoken almost throughout this interview.

"My oath is registered in heaven; my mother claimed it, and right or wrong, a vow made to the dying is to me binding even unto death; but you have no claim on my justice, or forbearance. Are you answered?"

She turned and quitted the room, and he stood without moving for a few moments, and then muttered to himself with a sneer:

"That miracle of honor, Philip St. John, will find a spot on his spotless shield. He will never know; I think he will. Ah, that is a goodly revenge; she might have done this for my sake, but for him—curse him!"

But his amiable reflections were put to flight by the entrance of his young cousin, draped now in a long black cloak, and wearing a bonnet with a thick veil, now thrown back.

"Come," she said, briefly, and without a word he followed her down the damp garden, keeping in the shadow of the trees. Light as were their steps, the watch-dog in the stable-yard heard some sound, and bayed, but Erica called his name softly, and he knew her voice and was quiet at once.

So she went out of that house, out at the garden gate, and shivered strongly in the night wind as she glanced back at the darkened windows.

Ah, will no one save her—warn her? Nat tries to; in his rough way he takes her two little hands in his great brown ones as they stand on the beach by the boat. And he is puzzled, and does not know what to think quite.

Yet surely Miss Erica can do no wrong?

"Miss Erica, dear," he says, "I'm a rough sort o' customer, and ye muan't be angry like; are ye sure ye mind what ye're doin'?"

She looked steadily out to sea and drew in her breath with a quick gasp.

"I know he must be saved; it is too late——"

"Have ye thought of the master, missy?" the man said slowly.

"Hush!" she answered him under her breath; "I dare not think—I must only act. Is the boat ready?" She spoke now with a feverish impatience, and he was fain to let her go and make ready the boat.

How often in this very boat she had gone out with Philip in the sunshine and brightness of day, on soft moonlight nights, in the dreamy twilight; now in darkness and mist, hand in hand with his enemy. How vividly, as under the steady stroke they pulled the boat and made way through the rough cold waters, she recalled that bright day when she had shrank, chilled and oppressed by those stern words of his.

CHAPTER IX.

DESERTED—DESOLATE.

"Did you hear Wolf baying last night, Mrs. Robertson?" said the housemaid the next morning as the old housekeeper came downstairs to breakfast.

"Yes, I did," she answered, rather crossly, for she had been disturbed, and disliked to be cheated out of her ten hours; "and I got up and looked out at the staircase window, and I thought I saw something moving in the garden, but he was quiet, so I didn't trouble myself further. Is the mistress down yet?"

"She ain't in the library," answered Bridget, bustling about the kitchen; "I'll go and see, shall I?"

"No, I'll go," and Janet rose up and went upstairs. It was not fitting that this pert young housemaid should wait on her mistress now, so she rustled upstairs and knocked at Erica's dressing-room door, but as no answer was returned, she ventured in.

"Poor darling!" she said, with a sigh; "she's just worn out and asleep, I dare say."

She softly opened the bedroom door and looked in, but stood transfixed at the sight of the empty room, the bed evidently unused; everything looking exactly as the housemaid had left it the evening before.

"She has never been to bed!" ejaculated the housekeeper, turning to descend to the sitting-room. "Poor lassie, she'll just be fairly worn out body and mind."

But no mistress was in any of the rooms, and, seriously disturbed in mind, the housekeeper cast about whether grief had not unhinged Erica's intellect, and she had gone out into the night, or thrown herself into the sea, or——"

CHOLERA —IS— COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and the natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS:—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the Pain-Killer, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed, recovered.

Believe me, dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours.

BEHIND A PORTIERE.

Away from a crowd of dancers
Wander a loving pair,
And seat themselves for a quiet chat
Behind a portiere.

The youth loves the maid, 'tis plain to be seen,
And she—had he eyes he would know
That she's long been patiently waiting the chance
Her heart on him to bestow.

To-night, as 'tis quiet and no one near,
He tells, bending low o'er her chair,
Of his love, and impatiently waits her reply
Behind the portiere.

* * * * * * *

As they wander forth from the silken folds
And join in the mazy whirl,
Life looks to her twice as bright as it did.
I know, for—I was the girl!

Keen Observation.

A man is never so much impressed with his wife's power of discernment as when he goes home drunk and attempts to play sober. As a rule, the man has only taken one drink. He doesn't understand why one drink should make him drunk, but after a while he does acknowledge that he did take two drinks, but the last one was so small that he had forgotten it.

The other night when Mr. Harvey Blades, a well-known official of Arkansas, went home, he had reached that close observing stage of intoxication when a man stops and minutely examines the most unimportant objects and makes wise comments. In this state of drunkenness, a man takes notice of every household article. Every chair demands a certain amount of attention. After sitting down with studied gravity, Mr. Harvey Blades noticed a feather lying on the floor. He debated for a while whether or not it would be an illustration of sobriety to remove it, and remembering that he had often seen his wife pick feathers from the carpet after having jammed the pillows in making the bed, he arose, took up the feather, examined it a moment, raised a window and threw it out. This performance did not entirely satisfy him, for in his mind there lurked a suspicion that his wife might fancy him to be drunk. In looking around for another test he discovered the water bucket. He knew that to bring fresh water, beyond a doubt, would settle the question of his sobriety, so he took up the bucket and went out to the well. Feeling around and not finding the "moss-covered bucket," but deciding that it must be at the bottom of the well, he began to turn the windlass. For fifteen minutes he turned the crank. "Deepest well I ever saw," he mused, and continued to grind. After awhile his wife came out and said:

"Harvey, what in the name of common sense are you doing?"

"Try'n to draw bucket water. Deepest well every saw. Grindin' for hour, bucket not up yet."

"Why, don't you know that we had the well cleaned ont, and that the bucket has been taken off? Come on away. You are as drunk as a fool."

"Keenes' observation I ever saw," said the gentleman to himself. "Never saw thing like it."—Arkansaw Traveler.

Building a Bird's Nest.

Yesterday the Prince found a last year's bird's nest. There was nothing in it. And there wasn't much outside of it. I took it to pieces to show the boy how the bird might have improved the nest building had she possessed the wisdom and skill of the immortal human intellect. My sermon on the supremacy of the human intellect was very impressive. The Prince appeared to be profoundly interested. His interest deepened when I began to reconstruct the nest on scientific and intellectual principles. It continued to increase. It fairly boomed as my difficulties developed and multiplied. But I got the nest together at last and laid it on a log and looked at it. The Prince only said:

"Hoh! what a nest!"

He was correct. The most destitute, homeless tramp of a bird that ever hunted worms would have died without posterity rather than lay an egg in such a nest as I had made. It was awful. An old shoe was beautiful and graceful compared with my nest. A passing crow looked down and saw it and with a great "caw" of derision carried the news to the buzzards. And the boy wanted to know why the birds could make nests so much better and prettier than we could? And I didn't know, unless it was because Col. Ingersoll taught them. I do not believe myself that he did teach them, but a great many people do.—R. J. Burdette.

Nora Perry perpetrates the following in the Manhattan for May:

Come out, then, in the early glow
Of early Springtime's buds and blow,
Come out and hear the grasses grow.

For heaven's sake, Nora, let up. It would have made sunny-tempered Job swear to read it Sunday night and then go out on the street. Something like the following is not so good poetry, but a plagued sight nearer the truth:

Come out, then, in the early snow,
And hear the big bull-lizard blow;
Come out and freeze form head to toe.

Merited Praise.

The universal praise bestowed upon Kidney-Wort as an invaluable remedy for all disorders of the Kidneys, Liver and bowels, is well merited. Its virtues are universally known and its cures are reported on all sides. Many obstinate cases have succumbed to it after they had been given up by the doctors and a thorough treatment will never fail to cure. Sold by all druggists. See Advertisement.

By a recent invention, the stalks and stems of tobacco, that have been a useless burden on the grower, are made into a substitute for wood pulp in paper making.

Farmers' Folly.

Some farmers adhere, even against the full light of fact and discovery, to the old fashioned folly of coloring butter with carrots, annatto, and inferior substances, notwithstanding the splendid record made by the Improved Butter Color, prepared by Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. At scores of the best agricultural Fairs it has received the highest award over all competitors.

An exchange says that a Toronto milkman was recently drowned. It is supposed that the well sweep broke, and he was carried down into the well with the bucket.

Beecher remarks that you often see a man with a little, bullet head, having a vigorous stomach to drive his body and brain, accomplish more than the big-headed man who makes a small quantity of blood, and that poor and thin. To enable mind and body to endure protracted mental and physical exertion there must be perfect digestion and assimilation of food, and the formation of pure blood to vitalize the organs and tissues. Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya perfects nutrition, and furnishes material for bone, muscle and nerve, to supply the waste of vital force going on from over work, dissipation, bad habits, and all prostration diseases.

Few are the remedies whose beneficial qualities and real merits have made them so popular with the public, and increased from year to year their consumption, which, whilst possessing the most valuable remedial properties, are yet so simple in their compound, and so easy to take, as The Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman of Toronto. This article is prepared from the pure Salphate of Quinine, combined with fine Sherry Wine, and choice aromatics, which relieves the Quinine of its bitter taste, and does not impair in the least degree the efficacy of its action upon the patient; while small doses, frequently repeated, strengthen the pulse, increase muscular force, and invigorate the tone of the nervous system, and thus, by the general vigor which it imparts, creates an appetite, which gives to the stomach tone and energy, and fortifies the system against all infectious diseases. Shortened Lives.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and Liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters. I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case, otherwise I would have been now in my grave T. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A WORKINGMAN.

SHE HAD AN IDEA.

"My dear, we will have cream for breakfast after this," said Mrs. Littlewit, as she poured out the coffee for the head of the house.

"No, we won't," growled out the partner of her joys and sorrows. "I pay six cents a quart for chalk and water now, and I won't have any such extravagance."

"But, my love," expostulated Mrs. L., "they are going to make it by machinery, and it won't cost so much. I saw it in the paper that they are going to establish a creamatory in Guelph," and the little lady leaned back in her chair and blinked triumphantly at her lord.

An End to bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years, my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by Taylor & Macdonald.

HE PREFERRED IT.

"I see you've got this confounded rye bread again," hissed Plunkett at the breakfast table

"Yes dearie," smoothly replied the lady. "I got it because you love it."

"Me love it, madam? Ugh, the very smell of it makes me sick. Who was so wise as to know that I loved rye bread?"

"Nobody," stammered Mrs. Plunkett, "except I heard you tell Fitzgoodle a few days ago that you preferred rye to malt, and I didn't know in what you preferred it unless it was bread."

When he went to work, Plunkett kicked himself out of the door.

Nothing Hurts out Corns

Like tight boots. Corns are very small affairs, but apply to them a pair of tight boots and all other concerns of life sink into insignificance. Tight boots and Putnam's Corn Extractor (the great and only sure cure for corns) may go together, and comfort will be their partner; but don't fail to use Putnam's Corn Extractor. Frauds, cheap, poisonous and dangerous substitutes are in the market. Beware of them. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Polson & Co., Kingston, propr's.

A CANDID CRITICISM.

Old Simpkins is what might be called a comical old cuss. A literary friend invited him to take a glass of wine in a restaurant.

"Have you read my last two poems?" asked the literay friend.

"Yes, I have read them," replied old Simpkins with a sigh.

"Well tell me now, candidly, how do you like them?"

"Candidly?"

"Oh, certainly."

"The first of those two poems is absolutely worthless, and the second one is not quite up to the standard of the first one.

A Startling Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Huron, Dak., writes that his wife had been troubled with acute Bronchitis for many years, and that all remedies tried gave no permanent relief, until he procured a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds, which had a magical effect, and produced a permanent cure. It is guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Lungs, or Bronchial Tubes. Trial Bottles Free at Taylor & Macdonald's Drug Store. Large Size $1 00.

A MILL OWNER.

"No, young man, I shall not give my daughter to any one unable to support her. Why, you are not worth a fraction of a cent.

"You certainly labor under a mistake. I own ten mills."

"Ten mills,'

"Yes."

"Pardon me. Take her my boy, take her."

N. B.—After the wedding the old man was reminded that ten mills make a cent.

Sure Pop.

Poloson's NERVILINE, the great pain cure, is sure pop every time. No need to spend a large sum to get prompt relief from every kind of pain, for 10 cents will purchase a trial bottle. Go to any drug store for it. Large bottles only 25 cents at all druggists. Nerviline the pain king, cures cramps, headache, neuralgia. An aching tooth, filled with batting saturated with Nerviline, will cease aching within five minutes. Try Nerviline for all kinds of pain. Ten and 25 cents a bottle.

The popular slang words chic and pechutt have fallen into disuse in Paris, and the new Anamese word tott has taken their place. To say that a thing is tott is equivalent to saying that it is so perfect in its way as to be beyond the reach of criticism. Benighted Americans used to express about the same idea, by the fleshly word "bully."

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pinworms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for 1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Grand Dominion and 35th Provincial, at Ottawa, from Sept. 22nd to Sept. 27th.

A Conspicuous Contrast

The city council of Toronto doubtless think they have made a good bargain with the Toronto Electric Light Company for lamps at 62 cents per light. But by way of contrast, citizens of Peterborough can congratulate themselves on the liberality of the Peterborough Electric Light Campany, which gives a better electric light at less than half the rate, namely, 30 cents for a single light, or 25 cents where more than one light is taken. And yet our company has a monopoly, while Toronto enjoys the benefits of competition or the doubtful benefits of combination.

The Hail Storm.

The severe hail, rain and wind storm which swept over the town on Saturday did a good deal of damage. Window glass was broken in town and flowers badly cut and broken. The hail stones were of large size and very numerous. The storm seems to have arisen in Smith, for its effects were not felt a mile or two west of the town nor three miles north. The storm took a south westerly direction, passing cornerwise through the whole of Otonabee with a track varying from one to three miles in width. In passing out of Otonabee at Rice Lake the storm touched a corner of Asphodel, and invaded Percy township in the next county. The track of the storm was marked with great damage to what spring wheat was out. Oats and peas were greatly injured, turnip tops were cut to ribbons, and fruit, between the wind and hail, was very greatly damaged.

The Union Excursion.

The union excursion of the Foresters (Court Little John) and the Ancient Order of United Workmen took place on Thursday to Tweed and Stoco Lake. The City Band pioneered the excursionists to the O. & Q. Railway station about eight o'clock, where about three or four hundred took the train. The run to Tweed was made in good time, the party reaching that village, about fifty miles from Peterborough, at eleven o'clock. Stoco Lake is a beautiful sheet of water, and a spur of land projecting into it forms a charming picnic ground. Here some of the party picnicked, and others sought dinner at the village, which was by some not easily obtained, Tweed being rather short of accommodation for a large party of visitors. The City Band orchestra furnished music for dancing at the Park, but the rain coming, greatly interfered with and at length put a stop to this amusement. The party reached home safely about half past eight, having passed a very enjoyable outing, barring the rain. The committee, Messrs. Rutherford, Lithgow, Gallelly, Croly and Holmes, did everything possible for the enjoyment of excursionists.

JAcob Loockman, Buffalo, N.Y., says he has been using Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for Rheumatism; he had such a lame back he could not do anything, but one bottle has, to use his own expression, "cured him up." He thinks it is the best thing in the market.

Streetsville Excursion.

An excursion under the auspices of Streetsville Mechanic's Institute, visited Peterborough on Thursday. The excursionists comfortably filled five or six O. & Q. coaches, and were accompanied by the Streetsville band. The visitors were greatly impressed and pleased with the town.

St Paul's Church Picnic.

The annual excursion and picnic at Norwood of St. Paul's Presbyterian Sunday School, held last week, was a most successful and enjoyable outing. The hospitality of the Norwood people is worthy of all praise, and special thanks are due Mr. Roxburgh for courtesies extended.

Money.

Mr. John A Bennett, of Otonabee, is prepared to make loans on real estate and to purchase mortgages. If you want variety, cheapness and durability in the above goods buy at China Hall.

New Business.

In a few days Messrs. Hugh Ross & Co. will open a new Tailoring and Gents' Furnishing Establishment in the shop next door north of Mr. Leek's fur store, George street. The premises have been handsomely furnished and equipped for the business, and lighted with electric light. The shelves will contain an entirely new and immense stock of cloths, tweeds, broadcloths and other tailoring goods, and a complete stock of gents' furnishings. Mr. Ross, while previously employed in town, worked up an excellent reputation as a cutter, and we have no doubt that the public will find the new establishment equipped and stocked in a manner to give the greatest satisfaction. Look out for the opening day.

"Murder Most Fowl."

On Thursday night, or rather Friday morning about three o'clock, there was a terrible slaughter of innocents of the poultry tribe in the vicinity of McDonald street, between Aylmer and Bethune. A dog or dogs entered the poultry yards and killed over a hundred fowls. Mr. Wolstenholm, of the Ashery, had 39 valuable fowls destroyed. Mr. R. B. Lundy, 40 fancy fowl of considerable value; Mr. Irwin Marks, 12 Plymouth Rocks, full-bred; Mr. A. McFarlane, about a dozen fancy fowl, purchased from Mr. J. E. Murray previous to his leaving town, some of them were prize winners at the last Poultry Exhibition; and Mr. Morey, some half dozen good fowls. In all over a hundred head of poultry were slaughtered, worth nearly $100, by some brute of a cur which, ten to one has'nt paid a cent of taxes since his ill-starred birth.

Turnbull has just received a large shipment of corsets, in all the latest and most improved makes.

A Truculent Pea-Harvester.

On Saturday at the Police Court, Mr. John Dundas of Springville, charged a former farm servant of his, Robert Alliston, with assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm. It appears that Col Dundas set the accused to cutting peas. The former visited the field and found prisoner cutting them the wrong way. He told him how he (Mr. Dundas) wanted the work done, when Alliston said he would cut the peas his own way or not at all. An altercation ensued, and Alliston raised the scythe to strike his master, who closed to avoid the blow, and received a severe cut on the top of his head. The prisoner who was tried by J. Stevenson Esq., and T. Menzies Esq., locum tenentes of Mr. D. W. Dumble, P. M., who is holidaying on the back lakes, was committed for trial. He was defended by Mr. C. W. Sawers, and admitted to bail.

Decoration.

A large audience greeted Mr. T. A. Haultain, M.A., on the occasion of his lecture last Monday evening on "Decoration," in aid of "Dr. Barnardo's Home" here. The delivery of the speaker was graceful and pleasing, while his language was extremely elegant and appropriate. The subject was treated in so bright and rational a manner that all who heard him were delighted with the delicacy and beauty of his thoughts and sentiments. As the speaker said, in reply to a vote of thanks, it is a matter of regret that young men who have had the advantage of a liberal education do not try to afford intellectual pleasure to others by lecturing, on behalf of charitable objects, upon subjects congenial to their tastes, and upon which they have spent much time and study. We congratulate Mr. Haultain on the pronounced success of his first effort, and presage high honor to him in a wider field on account of his merit and ability.

Twenty-five Trained Elephants in Forepaugh's Great Show, which is to exhibit here on Monday, Sept. 15. There will be presented the extraordinary spectacle of twenty-five elephants all performing in the arena at the same time. The Philadelphia News, alluding to this feature of Mr. Forepaugh's, says:

"This mighty herd of mastodons file into the grand amphitheatre like moving mountains; obedient to the commands of their trainer, they rear their ponderous bodies into colossal pyramids, almost touching the dome of the lofty canvas, filling with awe, admiration and wonder the mind of the spectator, and forcibly illustrating the Almighty's decree that 'unto man is given dominion over every living thing that moves upon the earth.' Never has there been presented to the public, in the period of the world's history, not even when Rome was in the zenith of her power and glory, and thousands of wild beasts were slaughtered to make a single holiday, not then, nor at any subsequent period, has there been exhibited twenty performing elephants, disciplined and trained to execute such a series of truly astonishing acts as this great herd of mastodons daily perform, under the direction of Adam Forepaugh, jr.

A Good Offer Declined.

The Driving Park Association offered, we are assured, free of charge, to the directors of the West Riding Society, their grounds for holding a stock show on, this fall. The offer was declined. This generous offer and its rejection suggest a comparison as to which organization has the interest of the town and county most at heart.

Base Ball.

A sharply contested game of base ball took place on Friday afternoon between nines of the Silver Stars and the Maple Leaf base ball club of Bethany. The home team were the winners as will be seen by the following score by innings.

Illuminated Mortar.

Mr. J. D. Tully, with his usual enterprise, has added another brilliant feature to his fine drug store. It is an illuminated mortar placed in front of his door. The opaque body of the mortar is set with several rings of parti-colored glass prisms, with numerous facets, and the effect at night, with the gas light shining through the colored rings of crystals, is very attractive. Mr. Tully, on a recent visit, brought the mortar from New York.

Boating Club Concert.

The Peterborough Boating Club will hold a grand vocal and instrumental concert on Wednesday evening, Sept. 3rd. The following contributors to the programme guarantee the high order of the entertainment:—Miss Lenora Clench, the noted violiniste; Mr. Warrington, baritone, Toronto; Miss Howden, Millbrook; Miss Cottingham and Mr. Porteous, Peterborough. Tickets 25 and 50 cents, at McClelland's store, Smart & Son's, or of the committee.

Lacrosse.

The return match with the "Mets" of Ottawa will be played on or close to Sept. 8th, and the Checkers of Beaverton will play a week later—both matches will be played on the Ashburnham Grounds. A team will be sent from Peterborough to play the Mets at Ottawa during the week of the Dominion Exhibition, and arrangements are being made for a grand lacrosse excursion to Ottawa. It is probable that the celebrated Caughnawaga Indians will be brought here to play a match before the season is over.

Brewery Cup Contest.

A sudden and unexpected demand on our space compels us to condense our report of the Lacrosse Tournament on Tuesday for the Calcutt Brewery cup, between the junior Peterboroughs and the Cobourg team, in which the latter won three out of four games. The visitors were evidently in good practice, (as much cannot be said of the juniors) and won the first game in four minutes. The second game was more obstinately contested, but fell to Cobourg after thirteen minutes play. Previous to the third game the juniors' field captain, Mr. Sheehy, exercised officially, a little, under the circumstances, warrantable vigorous expostulation. It had a good effect, for the juniors won this game in good style. The fourth game and the heat were taken by Cobourg in three minutes. The game altogether was a very pleasant one. The visitors were gentlemanly, and being met in the same spirit nothing went wrong. The Cobourgers impounded the Brewery Cup, left security for it, and carried it off in triumph. They won the heat fairly, and are welcome to the trophy—for a little while, anyway.

Smith's Market

THE BOLD BURGLAR.

His Triple Trial-Trip Thursday Morning.

On Thursday morning, in the "wee sma' hours," the enterprising burglar made three distinct attempts to make a haul, succeeding in one case, only too well. They succeeded in robbing Mr. John Wilson, of the Royal Oak Hotel, of $110.40, but they visited M. Halpen and D. Belleghem in vain.

The modus operandi seems to have been as follows:—Entering the blacksmith shop of Messrs. Porter Bros., carriage builders, they stole tools similar to those used in the post-office robbery—a sledge hammer, two chisels and a brace. Entrance was forced to Halpin's Hotel, and the safe, which stands in the north-west corner of the bar-room, received their attention, the burglars, however, guarding against surprise by taking the inside wooden shutters from the window opening on the alley, and raising the sash. They also removed a revolver from its usual drawer behind the bar to another, so that, if surprised, time would be lost in finding the weapon. They then drilled a hole, with a half-inch drill, into the combination lock of the safe, and, inserting an explosive, blew the lock off and opened the safe. But they were badly "sold"; the safe was empty, Mr. Halpin having in his sleeping room some $700, which, he says, some strangers in the bar the day before saw paid to him. The hotel porter was sleeping in the bar parlour, but he, being deaf, failed to hear the noise made by the robbers. They next, it appears, paid a visit to

D. BELLEGHEM'S DWELLING.

They entered through the kitchen window, which was unfastened, and evidently made cool preparations for cracking his safe, which is in his furniture warerooms adjoining. Their tools were left convenient. The burglars' plans were likely changed after they entered the kitchen, for they saw, lying on the kitchen table, a screw-driver, which Mr. Belleghem had used at 10.30 the night before in trimming a small coffin. They evidently thought the screw-driver was just the tool they wanted

TO WORK WILSON'S HOTEL.

Ascending the temporary stairs at the back of the occupied portion of the hotel (an addition is being built to it), they unscrewed the catch of the temporary door, which opens outward, and entered the hall on the second floor. The boldness of the burglars is remarkable. A light sat on the floor of the hall, opposite the bed-room door. The room is narrow, a space of less than two feet being between the bed and the wall. Yet the burglar, in the full blaze of the lamp, entered the bed-room, and, passing along the narrow space, necessarily almost touching the occupants of the bed, took Mr. Wilson's coat from the head post of the bed. His pants had the pockets turned inside out, but the money was in the coat. This the burglar removed, and took $108 from the inside pocket, and $2.40 in silver from an outside pocket.

The burglar, having finished this little job, returned to Belleghem's, where he had left his tools in readiness to crack his safe. He had evidently left the front door open to make a free run. At this time Mrs. Belleghem, intending to take an early train, arose to look at the clock in the dining-room, off the bed-room. After noticing that the clock indicated 3.10, she turned and noticed a smallish, thin man, with whiskers, dressed in dark clothing, stretching forward his hand to turn up or down, or take up the lamp which stood on the dining-room table. She at once raised the alarm, and the intruder decamped by the front door and gate, slamming both behind him. Mr. Belleghem was awake at the moment and he at once gave chase. He pursued the rascal towards Aylmer street, shouting "burglar!" At Aylmer street the burglar turned down towards Paterson's Tannery, and Mr. Belleghem, recollecting for the first time that he was unarmed and in danger, returned home. In the morning Mr. Belleghem found the burglar's kit of tools in a small area between the kitchen and the warerooms, near a window, under which stood his safe, containing $100. In the bed-room, on the dressing stand, lay his wife's gold watch and chain, and he had $33 in his pocket.

The same night the residence Mr. J. E. Belcher, architect, was disturbed, but the prowler was alarmed before he had a chance to secure any plunder.

It is probable that these burglars are the same gang that "worked" Belleville the night before, when the residence of the bursar of Albert College was entered and $350 stolen. Two unsuccessful attempts were made the same night, one on the residence of Mr. H. Corby and one on the post-office. A night watchman or two would be a handy thing to have about town. The unprotected condition of Peterborough is merely offering a premium to midnight mechanics.

Another large shipment of Goods just received at Turnbull's, comprising new designs in Dress Goods, Mantles and Ulster Cloths, Feather Trimmings, Cut Plushes, etc. If you hear of anything new in the Dry Goods line look for it at Turnbull's.

Washington, of the above firm, will visit Peterborough, Cassie House, September 3rd and 4th, where all who are afflicted with Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption can do so free of charge. The Dr. has just returned from an extended trip to the Lower Provinces and United States, where he has visited all the leading hospitals, and, having returned, will introduce any important discovery in addition to what has been used by the Company. A reduction has also been made in the price, to enable all who may be desirous of getting the treatment to do so. Spirometers, Respirators, Atomizers, Pneumotometers, &c., are used by the Dr. to convey cold medicated vapor to the seat of disease directly. Come early. Two days only. A golden opportunity is now offered of consulting an eminent and distinguished Specialist. Hundreds of testimonials can be seen at the rooms. Consultation free. 35tf is bound to keep on the fore foot in the front rank. Mr. H. LeBrun, proprietor, has secured the services, as cutter, of Mr. R. G. Kirkpatrick, one of the best of his profession in Canada. He has had a wide experience in the United States and Canada. He will enter upon his duties on September 1st. He is now in New York looking over and studying the latest styles, and it is to be expected that he will supply customers of the Golden Horseshoe with the latest, newest, nobbiest and best fitting garments. Be sure and give him a trial.

BRICK AND TILE MAKING.

A New Otonabee Industry.

Mr. J. C. Counter, consulting the wants of the community, has begun operations in his new Brick and Tile Works, on the farm of Mr. Adam Rutherford, Greystock P.O. The yards are situated a little to the east of the Keene Road, and contain excellent deposits of clay, suitable for both red brick and tile and white brick. The process of manufacture of both brick and tile, as pursued here, is altogether mechanical, the latest and most improved machinery being employed for the purpose. The brick and tile machine used is made by Leonard, of London, Ont. It is very simple in construction, and can be best described, perhaps, by stating its resemblance, in shape and action, to a huge sausage stuffer. It consists of a large cylinder lying horizontally. The tempered clay is placed in a hopper and falls upon what is called an "auger," twelve inches in diameter, revolving horizontally within the cylinder. This revolving auger, while thoroughly kneading the clay, carries it forward to a propellor, which forces the mass through a die, the face, towards the clay, being of perfectly smooth and polished brass. This die is 8½x4½ inches in size. The clay, forced through the die, is received by a table, consisting of closely placed rollers covered with canton flannel, which supports it as it is pushed forward. When a sufficient length of clay has been forced through the die, a simple contrivance, fitted with tightly strung steel wires, 2½ inches apart, cuts off from the mass of clay ten blocks of it, which represent so many bricks. These are placed on a barrow and stacked ready, after drying, to be placed in a kiln. The capacity of this machine, with six men only employed, is 15,000 brick per day of ten hours. The bricks produced have an exceedingly smooth face, for the die is of polished brass, and no sand is used to adhere to the face of the brick. The bricks being 8½x4½x2½ in size when made, and, when burnt, only shrinking an eighth of an inch all round, are of a size that will count considerably in several thousand. They are made of a good quality of white clay and are uniform in colour.

FOR BRICK,

With a change of die the same machine is adapted to the for draining. A die is used for each size, from two inches in diameter up to twelve inch pipe. For tile up to three inches, two dies are used at once. The cutting of tiles into lengths after leaving the dies is done as in brick making, only the wires are placed at intervals representing the length of a joint of tile. These tiles are well made, with an exceedingly smooth inner face, and are excellently adapted to underdraining. The capacity of the machine for tiles is 17,000 per day of the ordinary sizes. The machine is driven by a twelve-horse power portable Champion engine, and both this and the brick and tile machine were put in by Messrs. Fife & Bennett, Peterborough.

Mr. Counter's drying sheds are 68x48 feet, an area sufficient for stacking 25,000 tile or 100,000 brick. The engine shed is 16x30 feet, and all work, except digging the clay, is done under cover, so that wet weather is no hindrance to work.

The prospect of a brisk business is good. Farmers have begun to appreciate the importance of under-draining, and Mr. Counter has orders and inquiries that will keep him so busy that he is now running his works till ten o'clock, which is done every night.

Having just begun work he has no brick or tile burnt, but kilns have been started, and it will not be long before the completed products of the works will be ready for customers.

Careful attention given to mourning orders at Turnbull's. Miss Iron's taste in Millinery makes Turnbull's Show rooms a favorite resort.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

LIKE ALL STERLING REMEDIES, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure deserves a fair trial. It would be absurd to suppose that this or any other medicine of kindred nature could produce instantaneous effects. For the thorough removal of Chronic Dyspepsia, Constipation, Liver Complaint, and other ailments to which it is adapted, its use should be continued some time, even after the chief symptoms are relieved. That it then effects complete cures is a fact established by ample and respectable evidence.

In the shop of a boulevard pastry cook in Paris, a young masher questioned the freshness of a tart. The shopkeeper was touched to the quick, and remarked, severely: "I made tarts, young man, a good while before you were born." "I don't doubt it," was the reply, "and this must be one of them."

Thousands walk the earth to-day who would be sleeping in its bosom but for the timely use of Downs' Elixir. 36-4t

PETERBOROUGH SCHOOL BOARD.

Regular Monthly Meeting.

A regular meeting of the Peterborough Board of Education was held on Tuesday evening, Sept. 2nd. Members present,—Messrs. Stevenson, chairman, Cox, Dumble, Kendry, Sawers, Errett, Denne, Rutherford and Wrighton.

After routine,

were made. In reply to Mr. Sawers, the Chairman stated that the Chairman of the Property Committee had resigned.

Accounts were received as follows:—Review Printing and Publishing Company, $2.50; Mr. W. O'Connor, Entrance Examinations, $30.00.

Referred to Finance Committee to report.

REPORTS.

Mr. Dumble, in the absence of the Inspector of Public Schools, read the latter's report, which dealt with the result of the Entrance Examinations, pointing out the difficulty of the dictation paper, upon which many failed. The papers on other subjects were fairly well written by the candidates. The Inspector recommended the fixing of a fee for Entrance Examinations. This would prevent many pupils who were unfit from applying, and the fee would result in a considerable saving of expense. He called attention to the lack in the quality of the penmanship of pupils. He had visited all the Public School rooms since opening, and found them all well-filled. No complaints were, on inquiry, made. Some of the primary divisions had been re-seated, resulting in a great improvement.—Received.

COMMUNICATIONS

were received

From M. R. Kidd, headmaster of the South Ward School, resigning his situation, to take effect in the usual way.

From Josie Ellsworth, asking for appointment as teacher.—Referred to Committee on Appointments.

From Boiler Inspection Office, respecting inspection of the boiler in the Central School buildings.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE COMPLICATIONS.

Mr. Errett, Chairman of the Property Committee, said he had no written report, but would submit a verbal one. Two rooms in the Central School buildings had been seated anew and repaired. The room for the preparatory department had been seated and fitted up. The decision to remove the Collegiate Institute to the smaller building had necessitated an almost entire interchange of seats and equipment. He referred to defects in some of the chimney flues and suggested improvements. He also asserted that the Janitor had not efficiently done his duties. The cleaning of the school had been imperfectly done, and the Janitor had resisted his (Mr. Errett's) authority, and had refused to do as he had been directed to do. He would, therefore, move that Messrs. Dumble, Kendry, Stratton, Weir and the mover be a committee to investigate the charges against the Janitor, of insubordination, inefficiency and impertinence.

Mr. Sawers asked why Mr. Errett had resigned, and the latter was understood to reply, because he had called two meetings of the Property Committee and had been unable to get a quorum.

Mr. Sawers said he would not act with Mr. Errett, because the latter wanted to have his own way in everything.

Mr. Tighe was on motion heard in defence on Mr. Errett's charges, and said Mr. Errett had come about the school buildings grumbling and quarrelling. As to the charges, they were entirely false. He had not done some things that Mr. Errett had directed, because he had not had time; the change involved in removing the Collegiate Institute had caused a good deal of extra work.

Mr. Wrighton made some explanations rather justifying Mr. Tighe's actions.

Mr. Errett reiterated his statements, and the point being raised that there was no seconder to Mr. Errett's motion, Mr. Cox said he would second it.

Mr. Rutherford believed that the Janitor should be made to recognize proper authority, and he would vote for the motion.

Mr. Sawers said the reason the committee had not met was because he (Mr. Errett) wanted the committee to pass a motion authorizing Mr. Errett to sack janitors.

The Chairman pointed out that it was plain that the chairman and members of the committee would not work together, and something must be done.

Members—Let the remaining members of the committee—four—select a new chairman.

The motion was lost on the following division:

YEAS—Messrs. Errett, Cox and Rutherford—3.

NAYS.—Messrs. Sawers, Kendry, Denne, Wrighton, Millar and Dumble—6.

NOTICE OF MOTION.

Mr. Cox gave notice that he would, at the next meeting of the Board move the following resolutions:

That By-law No. 53 be amended by substituting "one month" for the words "two months," and that the words "one month" be substituted for "three months," in the ninth line.

He believed that after a teacher resigned, or had been notified to leave, that one month's teaching without interest in the work was enough.

He also gave notice of this motion:

That, whereas a saving of from $200 to $300 per annum can be effected by the employment of a lady teacher in the Primary Department of the Collegiate Institute, and whereas the employment of a lady in the Institute would supply a want that has been seriously felt in the school ever since Miss Panton's dismissal, be it therefore resolved that the Secretary be instructed to advertise for a lady teacher, and that he notify Mr. McKee of the intention of the Board in that respect, and that his services will not be required after the first of January.

The matter of Mr. Kidd's resignation was referred to the Committee on Appointments, and the Board adjourned.

The Board resolved itself into Committee on Appointments, and Mr. Kidd's resignation was accepted, to take effect immediately. As a temporary arrangement Miss Keele was appointed in his place, Miss Ellsworth to take Miss Keele's position.

LOVE, LUNACY, LAMENTATION.

A terrible double tragedy occurred on Monday morning in the public school at Markdale, South Gray. During the eleven o'clock recess Mr. Norris the head master, made a proposal of marriage to Miss Ford, the second teacher, and on receiving a refusal shot her three times, inflicting wounds from which she now lies in a critical condition. He then shot himself, dying within an hour.

MR. J. B. KING.

The St. Thomas Journal of Aug. 19th editorially refers to the charges formulated against Grand Secretary J. B. King as follows:—

Oddfellows generally were surprised and sorry to hear that certain grave charges of malfeasance in office had been formulated against the Grand Secretary of the Order, Mr. J. B. King, of Toronto. These charges were to the effect that he had accepted bribes from the printing offices. They were made by Argyle Lodge, but developments have shown that the lodge was not the instigator of the movement to bring disgrace upon Mr. J. B. King, but was only a tool in the hands of others, whose motives, if the Investigating Committee performed their work thoroughly, must have been of the basest and meanest character. The report of that committee, received by the Grand Lodge yesterday amidst the most vociferous applause, was to the effect that not one tittle of evidence had been produced in support of the charges, and Mr. King was therefore exonerated from the slightest complicity in wrong doing.

This proof of utter falsity of the accusation was, as we had said, most warmly received by the members of the Grand Lodge. It will be as welcome to the great body of Oddfellows throughout Ontario. But while the Grand Secretary stands forth before the world with clean hands, and with a character unstained by the ordeal through which it has passed, what is to be said of the men who endeavored to blacken that character and irretrievably injure a man who had been a faithful and honored officer of the Order in Ontario for eighteen years. Every fact brought to the notice of the Investigating Committee pointed to petty, personal spite of the incentive to the formulation of the charges. The men who allowed themselves to sink so low as to attempt to ruin an innocent man may go unpunished, but that their charges were groundless, inspired only by malice, envy and all uncharitableness, should be as widely published as the fact that the charges were made.

Turnbull has just received a large shipment of corsets, in all the latest and most improved makes.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were ill adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

PERSONAL.

Mr. M. Flannigan, City Clerk of Kingston, was in town on a visit this week, the guest of his son-in-law, Dr. O'Sullivan.

Mr. Charles Leonard, solicitor, Toronto, after having spent his holidays on the back lakes, is renewing old associations in Peterborough.

Mr. W. A. Dresser, formerly employed in Habiliment Hall, having received an important position in a Clayton, N. Y., clothing house, has removed thither.

Mr. C. J. Butcher, Manager of the Merchants' Bank of Halifax, Newcastle, was in town a few days this week visiting his father, Rev. J. W. Butcher.

Mr. W. H. Moorey, of Ingersoll, who, during his short stay in town, refereed several lacrosse games in a manner that showed his thorough knowledge of the game and of square fair-play, has returned home.

The Art Interchange.

The Art Interchange of August 28th is one of the best issues of that popular periodical. It contains a beautiful design in color of wild roses for decorating cup and saucer; designs of dogwood for mirror frames, toilet jar, door panel, and cup and saucer: a conventional floral design for table top in brass repousse work, two designs for fruit plates, and an exquisite engraving (12¼x9½) of a forest interior. In the useful Notes and Queries department, instruction is given in coloring photographs, transferring designs, oil colors for rose and rose-pink, how to make plaster of Paris models for use in object drawing, suggestions for portieres and screen panels, and much other desirable information. Price 15 cents. William Whitlock, Publisher, 140 Nassau street, New York.

ASKING TOO MUCH.

In the midst of the loud hum and buzz of a social gathering one day this week an impudent fellow suddenly called out:—"Now, let's all stop, catch our breaths, and go on ahead for the rest of the evening telling nothing but truthful stories and things." The company grew dumb and soon dispersed. Too much was required of them.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

A special meeting of the village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday evening, 27th Aug., 1884.

Present,—E. C. Strickland, Reeve, in the chair, and Messrs. McWilliams, Cox and Urquhart, Councillors.

An application for the village collectorship, from Mr. W. McDonald, was received.

The account of Mr. J. R. Stratton, $42.75, for printing and supplies, was ordered to be paid.

Moved by Coun. Urquhart, seconded by Coun. Cox, that the Clerk be and instructed to write to the management of the G. T. R., in regard to the tract of waste land to the east of the village, known as the "Railroad Swamp," pointing out the detriment it is to the village in its present condition, and to the danger which arises from the frequent fires, not only to the lumber piles but to the village at large, and request that such steps be taken as will remove the danger.—Carried.

A by-law to appoint a municipal collector for the village received a first, second and third reading, the blank being filled with the name of Mr. W. McDonald, the salary being $35.00.

A by-law to fix the rates and levy the taxes for 1884, received its several readings. School rate, 5 mills; county, 2 mills; village, 3 mills; total, 10 mills.

SOLD OUT.

Mr. Berubee, who has kept the Midland House for the last seven years, has sold his lease, good will and furniture to Mr. Leon Dion, of Peterborough. Mr. Berubee, who has not only been a genial, but a successful landlord, retires from hotel keeping and will go to the Province of Quebec.

EXCURSION.

A large number of our citizens availed themselves of the opportunity offered by the excursion given by the employes of the Midland branch of the G.T.R., on Saturday last, and had a pleasant day.

COMPETITION.

We are just having some keen competition in passenger rates to the back lakes. Mr. Geo. Chalmers has been driving a free 'bus from Young's Point to Lakefield and return, then half fare up to the lakes. This, we presume, will not continue long; in the meantime camping parties and pleasure seekers, who are visiting our beautiful sheets of water, can depend on making close connections with either the steamers Cruiser or Fairy, at Young's Point.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.

Mr. Thomas Lee, one of the first settlers of Bethany, on the occasion of his removal from that village to Peterborough, was made the recipient of very complimentary attentions by his late fellow citizens. He was presented with complimentary addresses, a costly gold watch chain and seal, and the Misses Lee, with a beautiful silver tea service. The following are the

ADDRESSES:

To Mr. Thomas Lee,

DEAR SIR.—Having heard with regret that you are about to leave us, we cannot let you go, without placing in your possession this gift for a future remembrance. Your conduct, at all times, merited our esteem and respect. Your honesty and fidility did win the confidence and admiration of the public in general. The virtues, morality, industry sobriety and kindness which you possess, and, which you daily exemplified, will shine as emeralds in our pathway when you are in distant lands; and successful as you have been in winning friends here, we have no hesitation in saying, that you will win multitudes in your new abode. And, now, allow us before we bid you a fond farewell to present you with this watch chain, and seal as token of love, for the manliness which you at all times exhibited, assuring you that in these is centred our genuine affection for your universal welfare, and ere conclusion

"We wish you health,
We wish you wealth,
We wish you golden store,
We wish you heaven after death."
What can we wish you more?"

Bethany, Aug. 25th, 1884.

To Mr. Thos. Lee and Family:

DEAR FRIENDS,—It is with feelings of deep regret that we learn of your departure from our village, where you have resided for such a long time in sweet harmony with all, and spent so many happy days.

When we think, Sir, of your wise counsel, abounding generosity, and the discretion which has characterised you in the performance of everything for the good of our village, and the agreeable and affable manners, the fidelity, humility and forbearance shown by your daughters at all times, we began to realise how great would be our loss.

We, therefore, desire to assure you most affectionately that we shall at all times miss you, and ask you, Miss Emma and Ada, to accept this less service as a small token of our regard for you, not on account of its value intrinsically, but as a heartfelt expression of sorrow at your departure from our midst and the loss of valuable friends.

We also express a wish that the countenances of all the members of the household may continue bright and happy; that prosperity may attend you in your new home; and that God, in his infinite wisdom, may guide and guard you under the shadow of His wing, until He shall say: "It is enough; come up higher and enjoy all things."

REPLY.

My Dear Bethany Friends:

My departure from amongst you was very unexpected, but not more so than the great honor and kindness, you have so generously conferred on myself and family, and which overwhelms me with gratitude, and almost deprives me of words to adequately express my deep sense of your kindness.

You kindly refer to my career, while amongst you. If it has been worthy of respect, the credit is as much due to yourselves as me, for I feel that no man could live so long among so many warm and faithful friends, and follow the example of their daily lives, without becoming a good and creditable citizen.

In reply to your expressions of regret at our separation, I can say, from the bottom of my heart, that I cordially reciprocate them. The regret that I feel at severing the friendly and neighborly associations of years, is deeper than words can express.

I give my warmest thanks for the splendid presents you have bestowed on me and mine, as tokens of remembrance, at the same time, however, assuring you that the unvaried and abundant kindness, the open handed hospitality we have enjoyed at your hands, are too firmly fixed in our hearts, to need the aid of material reminders to retain them there.

Wherever my lot may be cast, and whatever the new associations I may form, no home will be more fondly remembered, no relations looked back upon with more tender regard, than that home which, in the course of events, I am compelled to leave with reluctance, and those relations which I must now regretfully sever.

With best wishes for the health, wealth, and prosperity of you all, permit me to subscribe myself,

Ever your grateful friend,
THOMAS LEE.

Mr. Lee and family have taken up their residence in Peterborough, which will hereafter be their home. Mr. Lee is engaged in superintending the construction of tanks on the O. & Q. Railway, and is at present engaged at Havelock. We welcome Mr. Lee and family as citizens of Peterborough.

Tabernacle Sermons.

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

THE NEEDLE.

"Now there was at Joppa a certain disciple named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas."

There is in Joppa, a seaport town, a woman with her needle embroidering her name ineffacably into the charities of the world. I see her sitting in her village home. In the doorway and around about the building and in the room where she sits are the pale faces of the poor. She listens to their plaint she pities their woe, she makes garments for them, she adjusts the manufactured articles to suit the bent form of this invalid woman, and to the cripple that comes crawling on his hands and knees. She gives a coat to this one, she gives sandals to that one. With the gifts she mingles her prayers and tears and Christian encouragement. Then she goes out, to be greeted by those whom she blessed; and all through the street the cry comes, "Dorcas is coming." The sick look up gratefully in her face as she p her hand on the burning brow, and the lost and the abandoned start up with hope as they hear her gentle voice, as though an angle had addressed them, and as she goes out the lane, eyes half put out with sin think they see a halo of light about her brow and a trial of glory in her pathway. That night a half-paid shipwright climbs the hill and reaches home, and sees his little boy well clad, and says: "Where did these clothes come from?" and they tell him, "Dorcas has been here." In another place a woman is trimming a lamp; Dorcas brought the oil. In another place a family that had not been at table for many a week are gathered now, for Dorcas has brought them bread.

But their is a sudden pause in that woman's ministry. They say: "Where is Dorcas? Why, we have not seen her in many a day. Where is Dorcas?" And one of these poor people goes up and knocks at the door and finds the mystery solved. All through the haunts of wretchedness the news comes "Dorcas is sick?" No bulletin flashes from the palace gate, telling the stages of a king's diseases is more anxiously awaited for than the news of this sick benefactress. Alas, for Joppa! There is wailing, wailing. That voice which has uttered so many cheerful words is hushed: that hand which has made so many garments for the poor is cold and stiff; that star which had poured light into the midnight of wretchedness is dimmed by the blinding mists that go up from the river of death. In every God forsaken place in the town; wherever there is a sick child and no balm; wherever there is hunger and no bread; wherever there is guilt and on commisseration; wherever there is a broken heart and no comfort, there are despairing looks and streaming eyes and frantic gesticulations as the cry "Dorcas is dead!" They sent for the Apostle Peter. He urges his way through the crowd around the door and stands in the presence of the dead. What expostulation and grief all about him! Here stand some of the poor people who show the garments which this poor woman had made for them. Their grief cannot be appeased. The Apostle Peter wanted to perform a miracle. He will not do it amid the excited crowd, so he kindly orders that the whole room be cleared. The door is shut against the populace. The Apostle stands now with the dead. Oh, it is a serious moment, you know, when you are alone with a lifeless body. The Apostle goes down on his knees and prays, and then he comes to the lifeless form of this one ready for the sepulchre, and in the strength of Him who is the resurrection, he exclaims: "Tabitha, arise!" There is a stir in the fountains of life; the heart flutters; the nerves thrill; the cheek flushes; the eyes opens; she sits up!

We see in this subject Dorcas the dicsiple, Dorcas the benefactress, Dorcas the lamented, Dorcas resurrected.

If I had not seen the word disciple in the text I would have known this woman was a Christian. Such music as that never came from a heart which is not corded and strung by divine grace. Before I show you the needlework of this woman, I want to show you her regenerated heart, the source of a pure life and of all Christian charities. I wish that wives and mothers and daughters and sisters would imitate Dorcas in her discipalship! Before you sit with the Sabbath class, before you cross the threshold of the hospital, before you carry a pack of tracts down the street, before you enter upon the temptations and trials of the day, I charge you in the name of God and by the turmoil and tumult of the judgment day, Oh woman, that you attend to the first, last and greatest duty of your life—the seeking for God and being at peace with him. Now, by the courtesies of society you are referred to, and he were less than a man who would not oblige you with kind attentions; but when the trumpet shall sound there will be an uproar and wreck of mountains and continent, and no human arm can help you amid the rising of the dead and amid the boiling of the sea and amid the live, leaping thunders of the flying heavens, and there will be no chance for courtesies. But on that day calm and pacid will be every woman's heart who hath put her trust in Christ; calm notwithstanding all the tumult, as though the fire in the heavens were only the gildings of an autumnal sunset, as though the peals of the trumpet were only the harmony of an orchestra, as though the awful voices of the sky were but a group of friends bursting through a gateway at even-tide with laughter and shouting. Dorcas the disciple! would to God that every Mary and every Martha would this day sit down at the feet of Jesus!

Further we see Dorcas, the benefactress. History has told the story of the crown; the epic poet has sung of the sword; the pastoral poet with his verses full of redolence of clover tops and a rustle with the silk of the corn, has sung the praises of the plow, I tell you the praises of the needle. From the fig leaf robe prepared in the Garden of Eden to the last stich taken, the needle has wrough wonders of generosity, kindness and benefaction. It adorned the girdle of the high priest, it fashioned the curtains in the ancient tabernacle; it cushioned the chariots of King Solomon, it provided the robes of Queen Elizabeth, and in the high places and in the low places, by the fire of the pioneer's back-log and under the flash of the chandelier, everywhere it has clothed nakedness. it hath preached the Gospel, it hath overcome hosts of penury and want, with the war-cry of "Stitch! stitch! stitch!" The operatives have found a livelihood by it, and through it the mansions of the employer have been constructed. Amid the greatest triumphs in all ages and lands, I set down the conquests of the needle. I admit its crimes, I admit its cruelties. It has had more martyrs that the fire. It butchered more souls than the Inquisition. It has punctured the eye. It has pierced the side. It has struck weakness into the lungs. It has sent madness to the brain. It has filled the potters field. It has pitched whole armies of the suffering into crime and wretchedness and woe. But now that I speak of Dorcas and her ministries to the poor, I shall relate only the charities of the needle.

This woman was a representative of all those women who make garments for the destitute, who knit socks for the barefooted, who prepare bandages for the lacerated, who fix up boxes of clothing for Western missionaries, who go into the asylums of the suffering and destitute bearing that Gospel which is sight to the blind and hearing for the deaf, and which makes the lame man leap like a hart, and brings the dead to life immortal, health bounding in their pulses. What a contrast between the practical benevolence of this woman and a great deal of the charity of this day! This woman did not spend her time idly planning how the poor of Joppa were to be relieved: she took her needle and relieved them. She was not like those persons who sympathize with imaginary sorrows and go into the streets and laugh at the boy who has upset his basket of cold victuals, or like that charity which makes a rousing speech on the benevolent platform and goes out to kick the beggars from the step, crying: "Hush your miserable howling!" The sufferers of the world want not so much theory as practice; not so much tears as dollars; not so much kind wishes as loaves of bread; not so much smiles as shoes; not so much "God bless you" as jackets and frocks. I will put one earnest Christian man, hard working, against five thousand mere theorists on the subject of charity. There are a great many who have fine ideas about a church and architecture who never in their life helped to build a church. There are men who can give you the history of Buddhism and Mohammedanism who never sent a farthing for their evangelization. There are women who talk beautifully about the suffering of the world who never had the courage like Dorcas, to take the needle and assault it.

I am glad that there is not a page of the world's history which is not a record of female benevolence. God says to all lands and people; "Come now and hear the window's mite rattle down into the poor box." The Princess Conti sold her jewels that she might help the famine stricken. Queen Blanche, the wife of Louis VIII. of France, hearing that there were some persons unjustly incarcerated in the prisons, went out amid the rabble and took a stick and struck the door as a signal that they might all strike it, and down went the prison door and out came the prisoners. Queen Maud, the wife of Henry I., went down amid the poor and washed their sores and administered them cordials. Mrs. Retson, at Matagorda, appeared on the battle-field while the missiles of death were flying around and cared for the wounded, But why go so far back? Why go so far away? Is there a man or a woman who has forgotton the woman of the Sanitary and Christain Commissions, or the fact that before the smoke had gone up from Gettsburg and South Mountain, the women of the North met the women of the South on the battle-field, forgetting all their animosities while they bound up the wounded and closed the eyes of the slain? Have you forgotton? Dorcas the benefactress.

I come now to speak of Dorcas the lamented. When death struck down that good beautiful woman, oh, how much sorrow there was in Joppa. I suppose there were women there with large fortunes—women, perhaps, with handsomer faces; but there was no grief at their departure like this at the death of Dorcas. There were not more turmoil and upturning in the Mediterranean Sea dashing against the wharves of that seaport than there were surgings to and fro of grief in Joppa because Dorcas was dead. There are a great many who go out of life and are unmissed. There may be a very large funeral; there may be a great many carriages and a plumed hearse: there may be high-sounded eulogisms; the bell may toll at the Cemetery gate; the may be a very fine marble shaft reared over the resting place; but the whole thing may be a falsehood and a sham. The church of God has lost nothing. The world has lost nothing. It is only a nuisance abated; it is only a grumbler ceasing to find fault; it is only an idler stopped yawning; it is only a dissipated fashionable parted from his wine celler; while on the other hand no useful Christian leaves this world without being missed. The church of God cries out like the prophet: "Howl, fir tree, for the cedar has fallen!" Widowhood comes and shows the garments which the departed had made. Orphans are lifted up to look into the calm face of the sleeping benefactress. Reclaimed vagrancy comes and kisses the cold brow of her who charmed it away from sin, and all through the streets of Joppa there is mourning, mourning because Docas is dead. I suppose you have read of the fact that when Josephine was carried to her grave there were a great many men and women of pomp and pride and position that went out after her; but I am most effected by the story of history that on that day there were 10,000 of the Poor of France who followed her coffin. weeping and wailing until the air rang again, because when they lost Josephine, they lost their last earthly friend. Oh, who would not rather have such obsequies than all the tears that were ever poured in the lachrymals that have been exhumed from ancient cities? The may be no mass for the dead; there may be no costly sarcophagus; there may be no elaborate mausoleum; but in the damp cellars of city and through the lonely huts of the mountain glen there will be mourning, mourning, mourning, because Dorcas is dead. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; they rest from their labors and their works do follow them."

I speak to you of Dorcas, the resurrected. The apostle came to where she was and said, "Arise" and she sat up. In what a short compass the great writer put that. "She sat up!" Oh what a time there must have been! What when the apostle brought her out among her old friends! How the tears of joy must have started! What clapping of hands there must have been! What singing! What laughter! Sound it all through the lane! Shout it down that dark alley! Let all Joppa hear it! Dorcas is resurrected! You and I have seen the same thing many a time; not a dead body resusciated, but the deceased coming up again after death in the good accomplished. If a man labors to 80 years of age, serving God, and then dies, we are apt to think that his earthly work is done. No! His influence on earth will continue till the world ceases. Services rendered for Christ never stop. Here is a Christian woman She toils for the upbuilding of a church through many anxieties, through many self-denials with prayers and tears, and then she dies. It is 15 years since she went away. Now the Spirit of God decends upon that church; hundreds of souls stand up and confess tne faith of Christ. Has that Christian woman who went away 15 years ago nothing to do with these things? I see the flowering out of her noble heart. I hear the echo of her footsteps in all these songs over sins forgiven, in all the prosperity of the church. The good that seemed to be buried has come up again. Dorcas is resurrected.

After awhile all these womanly friends of Christ will put down their needles forever. After making garments for others, some one will make a garment for them; tne last robe we ever wear—the robe for the grave. You will have heard the last cry of pain. You will have witnessed the last orphanage. You will have come in worn out from your last round of mercy. I do not know where you will sleep, nor what your epitaph will be; but there will be a lamp burning at that tomb, and an angel of God guarding it and through all the long night no rude foot will disturb the dust. Sleep on, sleep on! Soft bed, pleasant shadows, undisturbed repose! Sleep on!

Asleep in Jesus! blessed sleep!
From which none ever wake to weep!

Then one day there will be a sky rending and a whirl of wheels and the flash of a pageant; armies marching, chains clanking, banners waving, thunders booming, and that Christian woman will arise from the dust and she will be suddenly surrounded—surrounded by the wanderers of the street whom she had reclaimed, surrounded by the wounded souls to whom she administered! Daughter of God, so strangely surrounded, what means this? It means that reward has come, that the victory has been won, that the crown is ready, that the banquet is spread. Shout it through all the crumbling earth! Sing it through all the flying heavens! Dorcas is resurrected!

In 1855, when some of the soldiers came back from the Crimean war to London, the Queen of England distributed among them beautiful medals called Crimean medals. Galleries were erected for the two houses of Parliament and the royal family to sit in. There was a great audience to witness the distribution of the medals. A colonel who had lost both of his feet in the battle of Inkerman was pulled in on a wheeled chair; others came in limping on their crutches. Then the Queen of England arose before them in the name of her government, and uttered words of commendation to the officers and men, and distributed those medals inscribed with the four great battlefields, Alma, Balaklava, Inkerman and Sebastopol. As the Queen gave these to the wounded men and wounded officers, the band of music struck up the national air and the people with streaming eyes joined in the song:

God save our noble Queen!
Long live our gracious Queen!
God save the Queen!

And then they shouted "Huzza! Huzza!" Oh, it was a proud day for those returned warriors! But a brighter, better and gladder day will come when Christ shall gather those who have toiled in his service, good soldiers of Jesus Christ. He shall rise before them and in the presence of all the glorified in heaven he will say: "Well done good and faithful servant." And then he will distribute the medals of eternal victory, not inscribed with works of righteousness which we have done, but with those four great battlefields dear to earth and dear to heaven, Bethlehem! Nazareth! Gethsemane! Calvary!

The Most Perfect Thresher. The Most Perfect Separator. The Most Perfect Cleaner ever Offered to the Public. The only True Grain Saver.

JOHN DRYDEN, M.P.P., ON THE "NEW MODEL."

(From the Ontario Reformer, December 21st, 1883.)

Our readers are, probably, all aware that Mr. Dryden, M. P. P., President of the Canadian Shorthorn Breeders' Association, occupies one of the finest farms in the Dominion of Canada, and is one of the best farmers. He cultivates something over five hundred acres of land, and there is scarcely an acre but what is in a high state of cultivation, and the whole farm is free from all weeds or plants which are injurious to crops. Not only does he own one of the finest and best tilled farms in the country, but his stock throughout, whether horses, cattle, or sheep, are of the very best breeds, and all of them fine aminals. In every Department Mr. Dryden looks out for the best, whether it is in the line of stock, machinery, or seed grains. He and his neighbor, Mr. Samuel Holman, purchased for their own use, this year, a New Model Vibrating Threshing Machine of the Hall Company, and Mr. Dryden's opinion we give below. Every one who is acquainted with him knows that he would not put his name to any statement which is not correct in every particular; therefore his opinion of the New Model is of great value to those who desire to purchase a threshing machine:—

BROOKLIN, Ontario County, Dec. 13th, 1883

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa:

GENTLEMEN,—We are highly delighted with the 10 Horse-Power and New Model Vibrator purchased from you this season. It runs smooth and easy; threshes perfectly; separates thoroughly; and the fanning mill does its work so completely that it cannot be excelled. It is just the machine for the farmers to buy because it is so easy to control. It is comparatively free from dust, there can be no waste of grain, and it is so bound to do good work under every circumstance. We heartily congratulate you on the introduction of so complete a separator, a great boon both to threshers and farmers. Very truly yours

JOHN DRYDEN, M.P.P.,
SAMUEL HOLMAN.

An Interesting Test.

From the London Advertiser.

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa, have introduced a new threshing machine called the "New Model" Vibrator. This Machine was invented by Mr. Jacob Miller, of Canton, Ohio, who has for forty years been engaged in manufacturing threshing machines. The "New Model" was first offered to the public in 1879. For 1882 more than one thousand were sold in the United States. The Hall Company have been making some very interesting tests to ascertain the real merits of the machine as a grain saver. A platform was built at the rear of the machine with a slatted bottom, so that all the grain fell upon the slats. It was arranged so that one man could stand on either side of the platform and shake the grain out of the straw, so as to allow it to fall through the slats, throwing the straw over on the ground. A hopper was placed under the platform, and under the hopper a fanning mill was placed. Then fifty bushels of grain was threshed, beginning at the rate of sixty bushels per hour, and working up to one hundred and twenty bushels per hour. After threshing fifty bushels at each of the various speeds, the grain in the fanning mill was cleaned up and weighed. It can be readily seen that in this way a test can be made which would indicate exactly the quantity of grain which would be liable to go into the straw stack. Ten teats were made only a short time ago, and the worst result was the loss of five ounces of wheat in threshing two bushels, which was equal to a waste of one bushel in nineteen hundred and twenty. This is a truely wonderful result, and is valuable because the test has been made in a thorough and systematic manner. All kinds of grain have been tested, and the result was equally satisfactory.

GENTLEMAN,—I have got the "New Model" Vibrator fairly at work and it is doing better and better work every day. It feeds easier than the other style of machine, and is a perfect cleaner, does not throw over any and is more durable than any other As you know, I have had forty years' experience in threshing machines, having bought one of the first machines that came into Canada, from the late Joseph Hall, at Rochester, and have been a continuous threaher ever since. There is no better machine made than the "New Model."

Yours truly, E. W. SHELDON.

Important Letter From an Ops Farmer.

Forty Bushels of Cleaned Barley Saved From Re-threshed Straw.

Ops, February 18th 1883.

To the Editor of the Canadian Post:

SIR,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make the following statement which I know will be of interest to all my farmer friends who read your journal. I employed a threshing machine to thresh my grain on the 26th day of January. It was manufactured by J. Abell, of Woodbridge. On February 6th I employed Messrs. Wetherup & Curtis to finish my threshing with a "New Model" Vibrating threshing machine, manufactured by the Jos. Hall Manufacturing Co., of Oshawa.

Messrs. Wetherup & Curtis re-threshed part of the straw and chaff threshed by the Woodbridge machine, and took therefrom thirty bushels of clean barley.

The "New Model" Vibrator is the most perfect thresher, seperator, and cleaner I ever saw.

Yours very respectfully,
DAVID GRAY,
2nd Con. of Ops.

Elgin County.

It has no Equal in the County of Elgin.

From the Ontario Reformer, Sept. 28th 1883.

The success of the New Model Thresher has been without precedent in the history of threshing machines. The Hall Co. received this week the following letter from Mr. Jonathan Yorke, who resides near St. Thomas, one of the oldest threshermen in Ontario. Mr. Yorke bought a New Model on trial, and this letter expresses his opinion after having tested the machine to his entire satisfaction:—

YARMOUTH CENTRE, Sept. 23rd, 1883.

Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa, Ont:

GENTLEMEN,—I have one of your New Model Vibrators and have threshed this season so far with it. The farmers I have threshed for all say it is the best threshing machine that ever came into their barn. It has no equal in the county of Elgin. I have threshed for thirty-seven years and have used most all other kinds of machines, but this lays them all out for good threshing, separating, and cleaning. The wheat is shrunk here, but it will thresh all the grain out of the heads and separate it from the straw and clean it better than any machine I ever saw. It does not scatter the grain all around the hind part of the machine, so when you get the straw threshed you are done. It does not take half an hour to clean up the floor after you have finished the mow. It does not wind in threshing peas or other grain; it stands still on the floor and no belts fly off to bother you. I would advise any man who wants to buy a threshing machine not to buy any other kind, and I am sure when he tries one he will be satisfied that he has got the boss of them all.

Yours truly, JONATHAN YORKE.

Never Saw a Threshing Machine as Nearly perfect as the "New Model."

COOKSVILLE, Dec. 30th, 1882.

To the Editor of the Express, Oakville:

DEAR SIR,—We, the undersigned farmers and old threshers, being desirous of advancing the interests of our farmer friends, take great pleasure in calling their attention to a new threshing machine which we have had the satisfaction of seeing work. It is called the "New Model" Vibrator, and was made by the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., of Oshawa. We have had much experience in threshing, separating, and cleaning grain, but we have never seen a threshing machine so nearly perfect as the "New Model." It runs very smoothly, with scarcely any vibration, every part being so carefully and evenly balanced. It threshes rapidly; in fact it can take all the straw men can give it. It feeds very easily. It separates the grain most thoroughly from the straw; in this respect it is remarkable. And, finally, it cleans the grain more perfectly than we have ever seen it done heretofore. The manufacturers claim that it will thresh two thousand bushels of wheat without wasting more than a bushel, and we believe that the machine will fulfil their claim in this respect. We believe there is no machine offered to the public in Canada which so fully meets the demand for a perfect thresher, separator, and cleaner.

A Great Step in Advance of other Machines.

TAUNTON, Dec. 12th 1883

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa:

GENTLEMEN,—We have now thoroughly tested our New Model Vibrator and Ten Horse Pitts' Power which we purchased of you during the season, and are pleased to say that it gives us unqualified satisfaction. It threshes the grain out of the straw completely and saves every kernel of it more successfully than any other machine we have ever seen or used. It cleans the grain almost fit for market. In this respect it is surprisingly ahead of all other threshers and cleaners. It is light on the horses; does not get out of order; easily managed; and, in all respects is a great step in advance of other machines. You are at liberty to refer any one to us who desires to know our opinion of the New Model. We purchased the machine almost entirely for the use of ourselves and a few neighbours, and are well pleased with our purchase.

Yours truly

The "New Model" Vibrator Thresher.

MARIPOSA, Sept. 29th 1883.

Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa:

GENTS,—The "New Model" Vibrator I bought from you through your agent, R. Walker, is the best thresher I have ever used. I have been threshing over thirty years; have had eight threshing machines before, but the "New Model" is the best I ever have handled. The farmers I threshed for fairly admire the working of the machine; to see the complete separation of the grain from the straw, cleaning it fit for market, and taking all the small grain out at the same time. I have no hesitation in saying that there is nothing can equal it.

Yours truly,
RICHARD MARKS.

ST. MARY'S, Dec. 13th, 1883.

E. O. Fell, General Agent Jos. Hall Manufacturing Co., London:

DEAR SIR,—The New Model Thresher and Oshawa Engine which we bought from your agent, Jno. Fitzimmons, is all that you claim for it. The farmers are surprised at the way she cleans the grain. No necessity for a fanning mill while she is around. We can truly and honestly endorse the statement which other threshermen have sent you. Words fail to express our surprise at the work she does, she cannot be beat. We have used a number of machines and consider the "New Model" ahead of them all, and would recommend intending purchasers to examine the "Model" before purchasing. Yours truly,
JOHN LANE,
JAMES MOORE.

"It Takes Splendidly Around Here—It Fans the Grain So Clean that it is Really Fit for Market."

MILVERTON, Feb. 12th, 1883.

Editor Stratford Beacon:

RESPECTED SIR,—Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper to inform my farmer friends as to a new threshing machine which I have lately purchased called the "New Model" Vibrator, made at the Hall Works in Oshawa. I have tested it this winter, and desire to say that it is, without doubt, the very best machine I have seen. It takes splendidly around here It fans the grain so clean that it is really fit for market. I never saw anything like it. It threshes and separates beyond my expectations. The waste of grain is reduced to the lowest possible point; in fact, does not amount to anything. It is the greatest grain saver I have ever seen; threshes rapidly, is easy on the horses, runs very steadily, all the parts being perfectly balanced, and I see nothing in it to get out of order, or to wear out. I have had a good deal of experience in threshing machines, and say, without the least hesitation, that the "New Model" Vibrator is the best thresher, separator and cleaner made in the country. The machine is well made and well finished. Thanking you for the opportunity of informing my farmer friends of the merits of this machine, I am, Sir, yours truly,
WM. COXON.

No Winding. No Choking, and no Grain Carried Over with the "New Model."

GREENBACK, Township Reach,
Oct. 26th, 1883.

To the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company:

GENTS,—In regard to the 32-inch "New Model" Separator and 10 Horse Down Pitts Power, which I purchased of you in July, I beg to say that as a thresher, separator, and saver of grain, nothing can beat it. I have been threshing for the past twelve years, and this is the best machine I have ever used. It gives great satisfaction to all my customers. I have fifty days work ahead yet, and have been threshing steadily ever since I took the machine from your shop. There has been a great deal of damp grain this year, which has made threshing hard work, but the "New Model" has given much great satisfaction that it has been a pleasure to thresh. No winding, no choking, no waste of grain, and the grain has been cleaned fit for market. There is no machine equal to the "New Model" that I know of.

Yours truly, GEORGE O'LEARY.

TO THE FARMERS AND THRESHERMEN OF CANADA.

Our New Model Vibrating Threshing Machine has now been in use in the United States four seasons and in Canada three seasons. As a perfect grain thresher, separator, and cleaner, it stands without a rival on this continent. No less than 1,200 machines were sold in the U. S. last season. We have now a very large force of men employed and can turn out three or four threshing machines per day. Also engines, horse-powers, clover threshers, &c., &c.

We invite any and all parties who may desire a threshing machine to inspect the New Model Vibrator, or send for our descriptive catalogue which will give full information. We guarantee that every machine we send out will give entire satisfaction or we will return the notes or cash which may have been given us for the same.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.

A case of assault and battery was held before John Breakenridge (presiding magistrate), Matthew Knox and W. H. Stephenson on Saturday afternoon last, at the Town Hall, Norwood. The complainant was Daniel Kelly, and the defendants David Lyon, Jas. Paget and Joseph Harrison, all of the township of Asphodel. The accused pleaded not guilty. In stating his case, the complainant said that on Thursday last he was on his way to Norwood when he was met near the railway crossing by Lyon and Paget, the former jumping into his buggy and pulling him by the beard, besides breaking the seat of his buggy and using abusive language towards him and threatening him with further illusage in Norwood. He was again attacked by Lyon at Brennan's hotel, and also by Harrison. In defence, Harrison stated that he had only retaliated for a blow received by him from Kelly with a piece of iron he had in his hand. The magistrates gave the case a very patient hearing, and found the defendants Lyon and Harrison guilty of common assault and discharged Paget. The two former were fined $2.00 each, with costs amounting to $3.00.

THE SAVED ARMY

re-commenced vigorous operations here Saturday last, and on Sunday held afternoon and evening meetings, which were attended to overcrowding the hall. The leading officer is quite a young woman, possessing a great amount of religious ardour, but very limited logical capacity to conduct the work she has undertaken. She is assisted by still younger stripe-sergeants, who would be more in their element, and certainly accomplish much more good, if they were wielding an axe or guiding a plough. However, they apparently have awakened some religious enthusiasm in the village, and have enlisted a few of our villagers in their ranks. The meetings are to be continued, as the Town Hall has been engaged indefinitely for the use of the Saved Army.

TO OTTAWA.

About sixty of our people, as well as a number from Hastings, availed themselves of the excursion to Ottawa last week, and all were delighted with the visit to the Dominion capital. One of our citizens being taken for the Bishop of this Diocese, or some other high dignitary, was particularly honored by the leading officials of Ottawa, and was most obsequiously attended while visiting the fine Parliament buildings and the many attractive sights to be seen in that beautiful city.

TO NORWOOD.

A large excursion party in connection with St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, came to Norwood on Wednesday of last week, and enjoyed a day's outing in Mr. P. M. Grover's beautiful pic-nic grounds. If the quantity of well-filled baskets indicated the number and capacity of the pic-nicers, then there was no reason to complain of the number or the dimensions of the happy party of Wednesday last; and really there was no complaining, as all, young and old, were well pleased with the grounds and the ample means at there disposal for their comfort and amusement. Norwood in time will no doubt become a popular resort for pic-nic parties from a distance.

Cleopatra in Her Barge.

BEHOLD THE FOREPAUGH PARADE.

Probably the most novel, and assuredly the most grand and imposing spectacle ever represented upon the streets of an American city is that of "Cleopatra leaving Egypt to meet Marc Antony, represented in the Great Forepaugh Show street pageant, in connection with the other sensational features. The following is the historical account of this event, and the description below given is faithfully adhered to in the Forepaugh's great pageant:

"Cleopatra embarked on board a most magnificient barge. It was the most magnificent and highly ornamented vessel that had ever been built. It was adorned with carvings and decorations of the finest workmanship, and elaborately gilded. The sails were of purple, and the oars inlaid and tipped with silver. Upon the deck of this barge Queen Cleopatra appeared under a canopy of cloth of gold. She was dressed magnificently in the costume in which "Venus, the Goddess of Beauty" was then generally represented. She was surrounded by a company of beautiful boys, who attended upon her in the form of Cupids, and fanned her with their wings, and by a group of youthful Egyptian maidens, representing the nymphs and graces. There was a band of musicians stationed upon the deck, whose music guided the oarsmen who kept time with the strokes of their oars, and, soft as the melody was, the strains were heard far and wide. The performers were provided with harps, lyres, viols, and all the other instruments customarily used in those days, to produce music of a soft and voluptuous kind. In fact the whole spectacle seemed like a vision of enchantment."

All the scenes above depicted are represented with historical accuracy in the grand pageant, which is to come off on Monday, Sept. 15th, the day Forepaugh's Great Show is to be here.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETING.

The Estimates of Peterborough for 1884.

A Favorable Financial Showing—A Decrease of One and Two-tenth Mills in the Rate—The Rate for All Purposes, Twelve and a Half Mills.

Council met, pursuant to adjournment, on Thursday evening, August 28th, 1884. Members present,—His Worship, Geo. A. Cox, Esq., in the chair, Messrs. Cahill, Davidson, Allin, Kelly, Green, Yelland, Rutherford, Menzies, Kendry and Hartley.

Mr. Davidson pointed out that all that had to be raised to meet expenditure controllable by the Council was $12,487. The rate, 12½ was a very low one, yet it might have been mills lower but for the item of $2,000 for the new Hunter street bridge, and the increased cost of the schools, which was uncontrollable and equivalent to a mill on the dollar. He showed also that the revenue for this year was increased nearly $2,000 by the settlement of the debt with Ashburnham, the credit of which was largely due to Mr. Rutherford, the chairman of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee. This amount was $750 and the balance was derived from the sale of lands in the southern part of the town. This asset coming in so opportunely had made it possible to expend $2,000 on a permagent iron bridge over the creek on Hunter street, without adding to the rate of taxation—in fact it was 1 1-5 mills lower than last year.

He also stated that he had prepared a statement of the

of the town, which was submitted as follows:

GENERAL ASSETS.

MIDLAND R. R. COMPANY:
Debentures	$66,800
Interest due and overdue	6,700
		$ 73,500
Debentures held by Commissioners on Sinking Fund Account		30,500

LIABILITIES.

Municipal Loan Fund Debentures	$72,000
School Debentures	29,500
General Town Debentures	79,000
		$180,550
To Credit of Town		$87,244

This statement, he added, showed a very satisfactory surplus, and indicated a financial condition which no other town in Ontario could boast of.

THE "SUPPLY BILL."

A by-law was introduced and read a first time, to authorize the levying of a rate etc. The council went into committee of the whole, Mr. Menzies in the chair.

Mr. Cox enquired of Mr. Davidson if the item of 10,000 for streets included the cost of the Hunter street bridge. On being answered in the affirmative, he urged that it was desirable that the item for streets should, in justice to the ratepayers, be reduced. He would enquire if the committee had considered his (Mr. Cox's) proposal to build the four bridges over the creek—on Brock, Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte streets—with money raised by debentures? He was strongly in favour of such a course, because the rate of taxation would be lowered this year, and a future generation would help to pay for permanent improvements, of which they would largely receive the benefit.

Mr. Davidson replied that the actual expenditure on streets only amounted to about $7,000. A good share of the demand was extraordinary expenditure, such as the $300 for the rebuilding of the Lock's swing. As to the $2,000 for Hunter street bridge, the committee thought that as the rate was very low, it would be advisable to take the amount out of this years assessment, and have done with it. The extraordinary assets coming in this year almost covered the cost of the bridge.

Mr. Cahill thought it would be wise to have the Simcoe street bridge, which was in a very dangerous condition, rebuilt, wherever the money came from. He was afraid that the way the town was extending, the streets were the wrong place to begin retrenchment. He agreed with the Mayor's proposal to build the four bridges by debentures, but the committee had instructed the town engineer to prepare plans for the Hunter street bridge, and it would have to be built this year by debentures or otherwise.

Mr. Cox thought the amount for building four bridges could be raised by debentures at five per cent interest; with the satisfactory state of the town finances, it would not be unwise to incur a debenture debt of say, $10,000 for the four bridges, and take $2,000 off the rate this year.

Mr. Yelland pointed out that the Dalhousie street bridge and the one over Spalding's bay wanted rebuilding.

Mr. Rutherford thought the Mayor's suggestion a good one. Municipal expenses tended to increase year after year. The street expenditure, especially, would grow, for he never saw more building going on than there was this year. He, however, favoured building the Hunter street bridge this year, and applying the Mayor's plan to the other three next year. He thought that as work had been abundant this summer, and the rate was 1 1-5 mills less than last year, the payment of the taxes could not prove burdensome to any body.

Mr. Cox pointed out that the expenditure on streets was $1,700 more than last year, with the Lock's bridge included. He again urged the building of the four bridges by debentures, and relieving the taxpayers.

Mr. Kendry—The debenture by-law would have to be submitted to the people.

Mr. Cox did not think the people would be opposed to a debenture debt, that would relieve them largely of present taxation and transfer a good share of the burden to a future generation.

Mr. Kelly thought it was better to have the rate uniform—not low one year and high the next. He agreed with the mayor's plan, but did not favour its application this year, considering the favourable position the finances this year were in, due to about $2,000 coming in unexpectedly. He was in favour of the Mayor's plan which involved giving the next generation the privilege of paying for permanent improvements.

Mr. Cox said that taking off the $2,000 this year would not raise the taxes next year. The town had escaped debt more by good luck in avoiding railway bonuses, than by good management. He further insisted on the debenture plan. The financial standing of the town was so good that our five per cent bonds would sell at a premium.

Mr. Davidson said that there was only $2,700 increase in the assessment. He had watched prices at auction sales of real estate, and property, judged by the prices brought at these sales, was assessed at only about 50 to 60 cents on the dollar.

The committee reported the second reading of the by-law, which duly passed the third reading, levying a rate of 12 5-10 mills on the dollar, for the purposes noted above, and providing that five per cent shall be added to all taxes unpaid on December. 1st.

NIGHT WATCHMEN.

Mr. Kelly, chairman, presented the report of the committee on appointments, recommending that one night watchmen be employed, and that two men be put on duty at night till such times as the Chief was relieved from street work.

Report adopted.

A motion of Mr. Yellands' for the grading of Murray street was referred to the street committee with power to act.

COLLECTOR.

On motion of Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Yelland, the collector was required to furnish proper bonds for 1884, and proceed to collect at once, the statute labour taxes for this year.

CONFIRMATORY.

Mr. Kelly moved, seconded by Mr. Allin, that the chief of police see that one of the assistant constables be placed on duty every night as night watchman, till the council meets.—Carried.

Council adjourned to the call of the mayor.

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 4, 1884.

Mowat's Latest Victory.

On Thursday last Mr. G. D. Hawley, was returned for Lennox as its representative, and as a supporter of the Mowat Administration, by the handsome majority of forty-three. This is a great victory, especially when the record of the riding is analyzed. A Tory majority of 173 was converted into a Reform majority of 43, a clear gain of 206 votes within a few months. The riding is decidedly Tory, as is shown by the record of past elections since 1871. Grange, Conservative, was elected by a majority of 269, in 1871. He was again elected in 1875 by a majority of 554. In 1879 Tory influence seemed to be on the wane for Hawley, the present member was elected by a narrow majority of 10. In the Dominion general election, Sir John, Tory, was elected by a majority of 250, and at the latest general elections for the Local House, Roe, Tory was elected by a majority of 173. Now, a Reformer being elected, certainly implies an overwhelming victory. The best ability of the Tory party including Mr. Meredith, was in the field, and even "Sarah, of the scrap book," was on the stump. The whole power of the Dominion government was against the Liberal candidate, and no means, (and that means a great deal) was left untried to secure a Tory triumph. The result shows that Reform stock is on the rise. As compared with the vacillating traitorous policy of Mr. Meredith, the firm stand taken by Mr. Mowat in defending the rights of Ontario, are beginning to be appreciated by his former opponents. Even the Tories are beginning to grow tired of Ottawa domination and dictation. Even they are becoming tired of the tactics of the "brawling brood of bribers, hatched under the eaves of the Mail building." Tory crookedness and evil-doing are meeting with just rebuke. The attempt of the Ottawa government to overthrow the provincial government, by bribing members, was, last Thursday, crushingly condemned. Sir John's name, after his repeated defeats at the hands of Mr. Mowat, is ceasing to be a name to conjure with. Hon. Mr. Mowat's splendid governmental record of a dozen years, under which the province has flourished in a manner unsurpassed by no other province or country in the world, was frankly recognized. His plucky and successful fight on the Boundary matter especially, was recognized last Thursday, and his wise economical and careful management of provincial affairs heartily endorsed. The issues were plain and simple, and the Tory party has been beaten at every point. Lennox has forever, it is hoped, shaken off the trammels of Toryism, and it will be long before she disgraces heaself by enduring the policy of the Tory party, as it is at present constituted. In both Federal and Local houses, Lennox is solid for Reform and honest government.

The Greeley Expedition.

The story of this ill-fated expedition is in many respects, if a terrible, also a deeply interesting one. It has its abiding lessons for the community generally, in the accounts it supplies of patient endurance, heroic fortitude and dauntless courage. It gives us another glimpse of the frightful expenditure of human life involved in Artic exploration, and proves what man is willing to do and dare, from ambitious motives or from the eager desire for short lived fame.

But we confess it is with feelings of the deepest abhorence, we have noticed the sickening accounts of cannibalism recently brought to light in connection with the Greeley party. What earthly good can be effected by publishing these ghastly, these horrifying details? If the unfortunate men whose hours of life were numbered when the rescuing party reached them, were so reduced that they were obliged to preserve existence in the awful manner that is stated, what justification exists for spreading these terrible tidings the length and breadth of the land ? It is simply disgusting that these accounts should be so magnified. The poor men, survivors of the expedition, were we know on the very verge of eternity. An awful death from sheer starvation met them in the face. If, perishing and dying as they were, they had done as alleged, is it proposed to punish them for the deed, which is indeed its own punishment? After having been feted and their bravery and endurance set before the world as an example, is the shield of their glory to be tarnished now by the harrowing recital of cannibalism? No law can touch these guilty only of a desire to prolong life. And if they cannot be punished, as we all know is the case, why should the relations of the ill-fated ones who perished by starvation, suffer the agony, the horrors, involved in such an awful story? We consider the publication of the charge to be extremely ill-judged—if not positively and distinctly cruel, as well to the dead as to the living.

There is only one redeeming feature in the whole affair. It may, we trust it will, check for a period any more attempts at Arctic exploration. This of course is utterly insufficient as a motive in justification for publishing the sickening tale which has gone the rounds of all the penny-a-liners in the country. We hope it may at least have the effect of deterring men from facing the dangers, the indescribable risks and horrors of polar discoveries. Whenever such calamities occur, for a while as outcry is raised to arrest any such experiments in future. This may be the case now. We only hope in this instance it may prove permanent. But memory is short and such sad impressions soon fade from the popular imagination. Besides the charm of dangerous enterprise and the restless craving for ambition are great for many minds. We would not be too sanguine even of this hoped-for result. Though Arctic explorations may cease for a short period, it will in all probability be resumed again in a very few years, with as keen and unabated interest as ever. In the consideration of this matter it should be remembered that the Greeley expedition is not to be classed with the numerous attempts unsuccessfully made to reach the North Pole. His party was sent out in 1881 with a more definite purpose and as a part of a somewhat elaborate scheme. The scientists interested in northern exploration, agreed to establish a system or circle of observations round the Pole instead of attempting to force a passage to the Pole itself. In this scheme most European nations joined, and the honor and peril of occupying the most northerly point fell to the United States.

The meagre details already secured, showing the scientific results of this station have now been published. Greeley, though he abandoned his ship, boats and stores, preserved all along the record of his observations. Yet what has been gained? He has strengthened the currently received opinion of an open polar sea; he has planted the stars and stripes a few miles further north than ever before attained—only this and nothing more!

In the face of the gallant struggles of that devoted band of twenty-five men, of whom nineteen perished, and all endured the most intense sufferings from cold and hunger, the practical mind may well ask cui bono? To what purpose is this waste? Surely the most interesting particulars of that inhospitable region are not worth the terrible cost at which they are obtained!

Editorial Notes.

Mr. A. J. Doney of the Norfolk Reformer, Simcoe, is likely to be appointed to the Registrarship of Norfolk, made vacant by the death of Mr. Walsh.

The Montreal Tories are going to dine Sir John Macdonald in November as a set off to the Mowat demonstration. The change of diet will, says the Ottawa Free Press, be agreeable to the Dominion Premier—he has had so much "crow" lately.

A private communication from Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, says that the most unblushing acts of corruption were practised during the recent election in Queen's, by the Tory candidate. A protest will be entered against Dr. Jenkins.

The Mail editor is studying the "Dictionary of Slang" and otherwise preparing for another article, to insult the farmers who will attend the Mowat Reception, similar to the "free drinks," "plug tobacco," "free bath" article on the occasion of the Liberal demonstration in Toronto in January, 1882.

The Belleville Intelligencer, in referring to the later Lennox election, says that the Tory party was lacking in the "secret means * * *." Does our contemperey mean to insinuate that the "bar'l o' money" and the Ottawa contributions were misappropriated,—devoted to private purposes instead of the purchase of political cats?

At the hearing before the Supreme Court on September 27th, of the arguments concerning the constitutionality of the Dominion License Act, the Province of Ontario will be represented by Mr. S. H. Blake, Mr. A. Irving and Mr. William Johnston, and the Dominion will be represented by Mr. Bethune. When the Tory Government want a good constitutional lawyer to argue their cases they have to come to the Reform ranks.

The Bribery Commission resumed its sittings on Monday. Several witnesses were examined, among them, Sir David Macpherson, Meredith, Carnegie, Creighton, etc. The evidence given already, fully establishes the guilt of the parties named in the commission, but the second part of the case, where the money came from, could not in the absence of Wilkinson and Simpson, be so clearly established, till their success at evading service had been overcome, and the commission adjourned till Oct. 20th.

Sir John, who always preaches more than he practices, at times professes great interest in the cause of temperance. But his temperance admirers will have a little trouble in reconciling his profession with the fact that he caused to issue an Order-in-Council, authorizing a vote to repeal the Scott Act in Halton before it was three years in force. How could Sir Leonard Tilley, the temperance pillar of the Cabinet, permit such an order to be passed.

The Tory journals claim the decision of the Privy Council in the Boundary matter as a Tory triumph, and no doubt they will be claiming the result of the Lennox election, as a triumph for Mr. Mederith. There is just as much ground in one case as the other. But they are very slow in saying anything at all about Lennox. The Mail announced the result of of the election in half a dozen lines and the Review simply copied the Mail's report. It's a bitter pill to swallow, so they seem to desire to gulp it down as quietly as possible.

The advocates of a protective tariff claimed for it, that it would raise and keep up the price of wheat. Has it done so? The farmers know best. Last year wheat was a short crop and the price was short too. This year it is a great crop and prices are down to starvation figures. If ever a political policy has lied to and bamboozled the farmers it is the so called "National Policy." The tax on wool and wheat, set forth as "protection" to the agriculturist, is the most palpable insult to the intelligence of the farmer that could be devised.

The benefit of having as Minister of Education a practical man is shown by the many improvements which Hon. Mr. Ross is able to suggest and enforce. Among other things, he has noted and strongly condemns the neglect of the study of Canadian history in our schools. No Canadian's education should be considered even nominally "finished" without a thorough knowledge of the civil, political and constitutional history of his native country. Under Hon. Mr. Ross' vigorous administration of his department it may be expected that Canadian history will be prescribed as one of the subjects for the Entrance Examinations.

Since June last there have been held ten Dominion and provincial elections in the older provinces, with the following results :—

Cumberland, (Dom.) Tory. No change.
Cumberland, (Prov.) Liberal gain.
Cape Breton, (Dom.) Tory majority reduced 1431.
Magantic (Dom.) Liberal gain.
Laval, (Prov.) Tory. No change.
Muskoka, (Prov.) Liberal gain.
Queen's P. E. I. (Dom.) Tory majority reduced 269.
Halifax, (Prov.) Liberal elected by increased majority.
West Ontario. (Dom.) Liberal by acclamation.
Lennox, (Prov.) Liberal gain.

Out of these the Reformers have gained four seats while the Tories have not made a single gain.

We take the liberty of respectfully interrupting Hon. John Carling's devotion to his brewery, to call his attention to the fact that since the mails have been transferred from the Grand Trunk to the O. & Q., the service has not at all been up to the mark. The Toronto mails, which should, and did when the Grand Trunk or Midland carried them, reach here at about noon, now hardly ever arrive till one o'clock and sometimes later. This mail brings the Toronto morning papers and the bulk of our business men's correspondence, and its delay is extremely vexatious. Hon. Mr. Carling should leave his beer tubs in charge of a subordinate for a few days and pay a little attention to the affairs of his Department and the grievances of the public.

The Mail, in noticing Sir Hector Langevin's trip west, says that "he journeys west to study the wants of the people." Well, if Sir Hector is off on an official holiday and wants a rest, he had better come to Peterborough. He can discover the wants of the people without "studying"—the new post office for instance. We may, however, expect nothing from Sir Hector or the Government till election time comes again. Then the half score of good Tories who want to sell their property can be spurred into action by the promise to each one, individually, of the post-office on his lot. In the post-office question the people are not considered; it is only the benefit of the party and party wire-pullers that is taken into account.

The New York World says: "It is the ambition of every Canadian politician to become a tuppeny-halfpenny knight." "Not so," remarks the Winnipeg Sun. "Sir John Macdonald is the only public man of the first rank who has accepted a title. Robert Baldwin, William Lyon Mackenzie, Dr. Rolph, George Brown, John Sandfield Macdonald, Darcy McGee, John Hilliard Cameron and other eminent Canadians had no ambition to put on buck-ram. Like Pitt the younger, Fox, Sheridan, Canning, Edmund Burke, O'Connell, Bright and Gladstone, they preferred to pass through life as plain men of the people. At the present day, Alexander Mackenzie, Edward Blake and Oliver Mowat, each of whom has done infinitely greater service to the state than Sir David or Sir Richard or Sir William P., are content with their own modest names, coveting no pinchbeck attachment.

The Mail talks a deal twaddle over the fact that THE EXAMINER said that Peterborough required an "increase in her manufactories and industries." We did say so and stick to it. The "great expectations" raised by the N. P. in this respect, have not been realized. Come September 17th and a protective tariff, fraudulently acquired, has been the policy of Canada for a period of six long years. Yet not a single industry has it revived here; it has not even breathed the breath of life into the "tall chimney" built by the editor of the Review, a persistent, if not consistent apologist for the N. P. The only industry it has the ghost of a chance of claiming to have originated, has failed thrice. The factories and industries in existence before the N. P. was thought of, have struggled along in spite of it. The N. P. having failed to bring us prosperity, tall chimneys and the "hum," we thought it no treason to call for more industries, and none too soon. The tariff has killed farming so that wheat is only 75 cents, and barley 50 cents per bushel; It is ruining our millers rapidly, our saw mills are taking it very easily, and therefore we call for some tough variety of manufacturing industry that can thrive in spite of the N. P.

Sir John Macdonald, the "great constitutional lawyer,"—that was—has maintained, and his Tory toadies have followed suit, that the award of the Boundary arbitrators was "not worth the paper it was written on," and that legislation to make the award binding was ultra vires of both the Federal Parliament and the Local Legislature. What do the great law lords of the Privy Council say to this confidently asserted opinion? The following clause from their judgment says:—"That legislation by the Dominion of Canada as well as by the Province of Ontario was necessary to give binding effect as against the Dominion and the Province to the award of the 3rd of August, 1878, and that as no such legislation has taken place, the award is not binding." The Privy Council not only discredited Sir John's invalid opinion, but they showed that they doubted his honesty, for they recommended that Imperial legislation be enacted to ratify the award. The man that had ignored the award of the arbitrators was capable of ignoring and, by some cunning artifice, preventing the carrying out, by legislation, of the decision of the Privy Council itself. The up-shot of the Boundary business reflects credit on neither Sir John's ability nor honesty as a statesman. It will be a long time before a Tory paper will be "cheeky" enough to claim for the Chieftain a monopoly as a great constitutional lawyer.

Mr. Carnegie, M. P. P., should come to the conclusion, that his "stamping" tours are of immense assistance to the Reform cause. During the recent campaign in Lennox, he addressed meetings at Roblin, South Fredericksburg, and Napanee. At the general elections in 1883, the Tory candidate carried these polling sub-divisions by a majority of one hundred and sixty-six. Through Mr. Carnegie's advocacy of the Tory cause last week. Blackstock received a majority of only forty-eight in the same places. It is to be hoped that Mr. Carnegie will continue the advocacy of Mr. Meredith's policy. Mr. Carnegie stumped South Renfrew, and Dr. Dowling's majority was increased from one hundred to three hundred and thirty. He visited Muskoka, and a Tory majority of two hundred was turned into a Reform majority of one hundred and twenty, and he entered Lennox on a political mission, and the Tory majority of one hundred and seventy, made place for forty-three in favour of the Ontario Government candidate.

IT PAYS WELL TO BUY GOOD!
You have heard of the smartness of the old lady's sons. She shut them up in a room together, and they both made their fortunes trading jack-knives. You remember the joke and you get the idea.
On the edge of the Fall Season's Trade, we part to say a something to you about business—your business of buying what you need—and now is as good a time as any.
This season we come before you as Direct Importers. Is there anything in that for us? Is there anything in that for you?
Read on a little further and we'll tell you.
Our buyer, when in England, found Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers, both holding great lots of almost everything in our trade; holding—not for better prices—but for buyers. Buyers were scarce. There was stagnation.
Now our buyer bought freely, judiciously, and bought well. He bought good.
We were not burdened with goods. We had the requisite outlet in our large trade to handle a directly imported stock. Our buyer bought to undersell the retail market here and make a profit.
Our sales are going to be more—not less—than last year, for we adapt our buying and selling to the times we are in.
We offer you a stock bought to sell. This we know, and it's for you to prove it.
We shall not try here to enumerate the lines of goods in which we can offer you exceptional good value. You'll hear of them presently. We'll finish our business talk by saying:—
Our Stores are full of Goods—our own importations—and our prices are what our view of the opportunity makes them. We won't ask you to buy the things of fashion. It's a time for getting almost all the substantial staple things to wear, and to keep home with.
It's a time for you to make your money by your spending of it.
It's a time for caution, but the caution is to be shown in choosing where and what you buy, and the bargains you make.
And surely when by our trade policy the bottom is reached in goods, and we offer to you the top of the purchasing power of money, you'll neglect your own interests if you fail to buy from us.

LIQUOR CASE.

On Saturday last, Mrs. Smith, hotel-keeper, Indian River, was arraigned before Squire Brackenridge for selling liquor after hours, on Saturday the 9th inst. Associated with the presiding magistrate, were Messrs W. H. Stephenson, John Brown, and Thos. Rork. License Inspector Drain prosecuted, and Mr. T. M. Grover appeared for defendant, who pleaded not guilty. Only one witness for the prosecution was called, who stated that on the evening in question, he had obtained a flask of whiskey at Mrs. Smiths', and had drunk some on the premises. The evidence was quiet conclusive, and the magistrate imposed the regular fine, $20, with costs amounting to $5.

HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL.

This annual festival in connection with the Methodist Church at Norwood, is always looked forward to with great eagerness, and each season is considered the great social event of the year. Both congregations of Norwood and Dummer, co-operate harmoniously and zealously for its success, and consequently every occasion of the kind has always been socially, financially, a great success; but this year's festival has far exceeded all former ones in its magnificience, attendance, and its results. The religious series on Sunday last, attracted such large congregations, as that the capacity of the seating accommodation of the large church, and the two sermons of the eminent minister who officiated, the Rev. Dr. Breden, of Brighton, were of such a superior nature as to draw forth from his many hearers, approving comments of his eloquence and erudition, giving as he did, both morning and evening, a great fund of information upon the Biblical subjects, on which he treated. The Rev. gentleman beneficially impressed his congregations, and both his sermons will long be remembered by all who heard him on Sunday last. For the physical feast on Monday, great preparations were made. The church was handsomely decorated with appropriate mottoes, and in conspicious places the eye was attracted by various products of the farm, the yield of this year's harvest, all so harmoniously arranged as to reflect the highest credit upon the popular pastor, the Rev. Mr. Gee, and a corps of highly efficient assistants. If the abundance of the supply of substantial edibles id any way indicated the result of this year's harvest, then there will be "enough for each, enough for all, and enough for evermore." For variety, quality and quantity, the tables on Monday last could not be eclipsed, and ample justice was done to them by the large number of people who sat around them. After dinner an adjournment was made to the church, where eloquent and interesting addresses were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Breden, Rev. Mr. McLaxon, the Rev. Mr. Gee, and others, the former gentleman treating his hearers to a humorous and instructing discourse on his native country, Ireland, a subject which deeply interested the greater number of his large audience, and the frequent bursts of applause he received, testified that he had their sympathy as well as their hearty commendation. The highly efficient choir of the church, under the leadership of Mr. F. H. Birt, exceeded all their former efforts in their part of the festival, and rendered, both on Sunday and Monday, very effectively, a choice selection of sacred music, some solo parts sung by Mrs. H. Cummings and Miss E. Reynolds, being performed in a manner that would reflect credit on more pretentious vocalists. Altogether, the festival of 1884, was a great success, and both pastor and members of the Methodist church here, deserve unstinted praise for the zeal they have manifested to ensure that success.

BENSFORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The season is far enough advanced to show that large crops of all the grains will be harvested in good condition. This means plenty of money among farmers, notes and store bills paid, and a general revival of all kinds of legitimate business.

The agricultural community of the south part of the township purpose holding a farmer's festival on the 9th instant, at Centreville. A good time is anticipated, as the instruments of brass and trophies for lacrosse are spoken of.

A few of the friends and acquaintances of Mr. R. Benson have had an opportunity of interviewing him after his absence of about thirty years in Australia. He gives good accounts of his success in that country and will return shortly. The object of his visit was to adopt a neice; his nearest heir.

Last week was marked by the unusual occurrence of three deaths. Mr. Arch. Robinson, sen., who has been for some years subject to seasons of melancholy, committed suicide on Monday, 25th ult., by hanging from a small tree. His family are generally well to do.

On Wednesday, 27th ult., Mr. H. O'Hair, after a wasting illness of nearly twelve months, was released from longer sufferiug. The disease was complicated, and, though not painful, gradually reduced the patient to a mere skeleton, while medical aid seemed to be useless.

Also, on Friday, 29th ult., Mrs. Wright, the mother of the unfortunate man who was drowned on Monday, 4th ult., died, having been for a number of years in a helpless condition.

ENNISMORE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

During the first few days of August no particular change took place from July, only on the morning of the 9th we had a sharp frost, when from that it increased to one of the hottest spells ever felt in Canada. The hottest at sun-rise was on the morning of the 18th, namely, 80°, and at sun-set on the 20th at 85°. The coldest morning was on the 25th, the thermometer falling to 38°. The mean temperature of the month was 62°. Rain fell on twelve days, to the depth of 2 and 80-100 of an inch; it thundered on four days with some hail on the 23rd. We had two severe gales on the 3rd and 21st respectively, levelling fences and grain.

Perhaps it may be interesting to some of your readers to receive an account of the hot spell we lately passed through. Between two and three o'clock of Thursday the 4th, the thermometer rose to 90° in the shade, wind S.; 15th, to 94°, wind S.; on the 16th 94°, wind S.; on the 17th, 97°, wind S. E.; on the 18th, 97°, wind S. W.; on the 19th, 94°, wind S. W.; and on the 20th, 97°, wind S.; and on the 21st, 93°, wind S. W. I believe for the month of August, it is unequalled in Canada.

When You Feel Blue

and your back aches, and your head feels heavy, and you wake up unrefreshed in the morning and your bowels are sluggish or costive, you need Kidney-Wort. It is nature's great remedy and never fails to relieve all cases of Diseased Kidneys, Torpid Liver, Constipation, Malaria, Piles, Rheumatism, &c. It operates simultaneously on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, strengthening them and restoring healthy action. Put up in both dry and liquid form. Sold by all druggists.

A SMALL THIEF.

The proprietor of a popular saloon in Ottawa kept missing money from the cash drawer. Finally he began to suspect one of the barkeepers on the night turn, to whom he gently hinted his suspicion. Still the money went, and he at last charged the suspected party with taking it. He indignantly resented the charge, and was permitted to remain on condition that he found the thief. On taking the cash drawer out it was found the mice had a hole in the compartment where bills were kept, and had carried off a number of greenbacks with which to make nests.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil With Hypophosphites, for Wasting Children.

Dr. S. W. Cohen, of Waco, Texas, says: "I have used your Emulsion in Infantile wasting, with good results. It not only restores wasted tissue, but gives strength, and I heartily recommend it for diseases attended by atrophy."

A MUTILATED TRUTH.

"Well, Paddy, they say you put a dime with a hole in it in the contribution box at the orphan collection in your church Sunday."

"I did, sor; an' I done a good thing, sor. There isn't one of them orphans that wouldn't be glad to get a whole bushel of doimes wid holes in 'em."

O. Bortle, of Manchester, Ontairo Co., N. Y., writes: "I obtained immediate relief from the use of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I have had asthma for eleven years. Have been obliged to sit up all night for ten or twelve nights in succession. I can now sleep soundly all night on a feather bed, which I had not been able to do previously to using the Oil."

A HUSBAND'S PROMISE.

"Promise me, dear husband," said young Mrs. Newbridge, affectionately, to Charles —"promise me never, in your darkest hours, ever to commit suicide. I am told it will vitiate your life insurance."

The gloomy fears, the desponding views, the weariness of soul that many complain of, would often dissapear were the blood made pure and healthy before reaching the delicate vessels of the brain. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purifies and vitalises the blood; and thus conduces to health of body and sanity of mind.

A Rare Plant.

The Wild Strawberry Plant possesses rare virtue as a cleansing, cooling, astringent, antiseptic, and healing medicine, and when combined with other valuable vegetable extracts, as in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, it is an unfailing remedy in all Bowel complaints. 36-2t

A blacksmith advertised for a helper who "must be as quick as lightning." The first man who applied for the situation carelessly picked up a hot horseshoe, and the blacksmith hired him immediately.

The N. P. and the Millers.

Mr. Plewes, before the Toronto Board, showed how impossible it was for the Canadian miller to work when the duty on flour was 21 cents less than the duty on the wheat required to make the flour. 342,000 barrels of flour had been imported into Canada in the the last 6 months, while Canadian mills were standing idle. There are 2,000 mills in Canada costing an average of $10,000 apiece, and each employing 10 men. One-third of these men had been idle the greater part of the year, another third had left the country to seek employment, and the rest had been kept at work by employers who ran at a loss rather than see their men leave. Said Mr. Plewes:

"This Government is like all governments, it will right this injustice when pressure is brought to bear upon it. If it is best for the country that one-third of the millers should go into bankruptcy, and that mills should stand idle, don't take notice. If, on the other hand, you think that our demand is just—and we only ask to be placed on an equal footing with the American miller—give us your assistance."

And Mr. Neelon said:

"They talked about the farmer being injured if a reduction of the wheat duty took place. He contended that the result of the tariff had been to lead the farmers to expect to get for their wheat the American price plus the Canadian duty, but when the American wheat could be bought in the shape of flour at a lower rate of duty it was impossible that those expectations could be realized. He contended, therefore, that the high duty had been an injury to the farmers, and that they should join with the millers in securing a change. Farmers now were selling their wheat at from 15 to 20 cents less than they might have had. He himself was unable to buy wheat as he used to, for he could only keep his mill running about one-third of the time. It looked as if the Government was punishing the millers for something they had done. He asked Sir Leonard Tilley for an explanation as to what they had done, but could get no satisfactory answer."

These are bitter, bitter truths, no doubt, but how admirably they prove the truth of the prophecies made by the Liberal speakers of 1878. Those who sought to pluck the golden fruit, who foreswore their political faith and their political friends in the hour of need, find it ashes in their mouth and wormwood in their belly. The backers of the N. P. became accomplices in the robbery of Canadian farmers, of Canadian artisans, of Canadian prosperity—they gave a reckless Government the power they craved—the power to mortgage the brains and muscles of Canadians for generations to come—power for evil—for corruption—for recklessness—for extravagance, such as Canada was never before subjected to, and the specious promises have vanished before the longing gaze of their dupes like the baseless fabric of a vision.—Brantford Expositor.

How a Lady Should Mount.

The most graceful way for a lady to reach the saddle, and the one that is taught in the best riding schools, says the American Horsewoman, is by the assistance of a gentleman. The rider's education will not be complete until she has learned this method of mounting, which, when accomplished easily and gracefully, is delightful to witness. In it the rider will have three distinct points of support, namely, the shoulder of the gentleman, the united palms of his hands, and her hold upon the pommel. The stirrup having been placed across the shield of the saddle in front of the pommels, the lady, holding the reins and the whip, with its point down, in her right hand,—which must rest upon the second pommel,—should stand with her right side toward the horse's left, about four or five inches from it, her left shoulder being turned slightly back. Then, taking a firm hold upon the second pommel with her right hand, she should with the left hand lift her riding-skirt enough to enable her to place her left foot fairly and squarely into the gentleman's palms, which should be clasped firmly together. This done, she should drop the skirt, place her left hand upon his right shoulder, bend her knee, and give the word "ready" or a signal, and at once spring from her right foot up and a little toward the horse. The gentleman at the same moment, must raise his hands and move them toward the horse. The lady must, when rising, press or bear lightly on his shoulder, and also keep a firm hold on the second pommel, which she must not relinquish until she is seated. The gentleman should then remove the stirrup from the front part of the saddle, while the lady transfers the reins to her left hand, passes her right knee over the second pommel, and her left over the third. She will then be ready to have her foot placed on the stirrup.

"You don't say that Tom Russell is going to marry Miss Molly Penderby?" "Yes, that' what they say." "Why, she hasn't got any mind of her own." "That's just the reason he is marrying her. He loves a quiet life, and as she hasn't got a mind of her own, she can't be eternally giving him a piece of it."

"Why is that cup of tea like truth?" asked the head of the family, pointing to the cup of tea by the side of his plate. "Tehee!" giggled his wife; "I don't know. Why is it?" "Because it's my tea, and will prevail." Then his wife looked sorrowful, and asked him what he had been drinking.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Sept 3rd, 1884

There is no movement in grain worth mentioning; an occasional load of fall and spring wheat offering. Fall wheat is selling from 75c. to 80c., and spring at 90c. to 95c., and is taken for milling purposes. In barley there is as yet no movement, two or three loads have been sold at 50c., the quality being about No. 2. One load of new peas sold at 60c. Oats are bringing 35c.; some new have been sold at 32c. Nothing doing in other grains. On the Market, Saturday, the attendance was very fair for the time of year. Roll and print butter in better demand, selling from 18c. to 20c.; in lots, 16c. to 18c. Hardly enough offering to supply demand. Eggs in fair supply, selling retail at about 15c. Chickens in fair supply, bringing 40c. to 50c. per pair. Apples not very plentiful, the quality mostly poor; selling at 20c. to 25c. per peck, by the bag, 80c. to $1.25. Vegetables are plentiful and bringing fair prices. Potatoes selling from 50c. to 60c. per bag. Tomatoes about 40c. to 45c. per peck. Turnips, 20c. per dozen. Cabbages, 4c. to 7c. each.

PETERBOROUGH.—Caisse House. Sept. 29th and 30th.

Prof. Hutchkin's treatment is practical, rational and economical. Its object is immediate relief and eventual cure. It is based on scientific principles and easily demonstrated to the comprehension of every intelligent person, that a truss without steel springs or hard substance, having healed Inguinal and Umbilical as well as Varicocele, at the advanced ages respectively of from 65 and 95 years, must and will stand the test against all Spring Trusses to children as well as adults. Prof. H. having had 30 years' experience has become master of his profession, and DEFIES the Hernia he cannot hold in its place. Prof. H. has invented an apparatus to hold the PILES in their proper place which has been as successful as his other inventions. Go and see for yourselves.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"Oh, Lordi!" said the poor woman, sitting down in a drawing-room chair, and wiping her eyes with her apron, "what shall I do? I'll send and have the place searched, and——"

"What's the matter?" asked the housemaid's voice, and she came in and stopped, looking round.

"The mistress isn't in her room, nor she isn't here nor anywhere, that's what's the matter," said Janet, rocking herself to and fro. "Oh, what's to be done? She's gone and drowned herself."

"I know she aven't gone and done nothin' of the sort. You are a simple old lady," said Bridget with contempt, her thoughts actively springing to the most exciting notion: "why she's just took herself off with that there gentleman as came one evening, and that's what you saw, Mrs. Robertson—and Wolf barking too—and it's a real downright shame I call it, when the master's away on such an errand, that I do."

"Hand your tongue, ye saucy wench," cried Janet, who was apt to become Scotch when put out. "How dare ye say such things o' a wife?"

"Well, didn't you see some one?" persisted the housemaid, undaunted. "The best thing you can do is to send for master."

Poor Mrs. Robertson began to cry very bitterly. The more she had protested, the more she had felt in her heart that she had not much ground to stand upon, and she felt thoroughly helpless. She had not a notion what to do, whether to send and seek her mistress, make inquiries, or let the matter rest till her master returned.

"And, oh!" cried the faithful woman, putting her apron over her head and fairly sobbing, "what a coming home it will be! Oh, Lord! oh, Lord! what will we do?"

"She might have gone out on the beach," suggested Bridget, dubiously. It was clear she made the remark from a sense of duty, and would have felt some little disappointment had her surmise proved correct. But Janet caught at it, and soothed herself by protesting: "She was just nathin' but an auld foo' not to think o' that at once."

All search on beach and rock proved fruitless, however. No one had seen Erica, not even the fishermen, who returned early in the morning; and the day wore on without any tidings of the lost mistress. And then Mrs. Robertson, with a heavy heart indeed, wrote a letter to her master, as carefully worded as she knew how to make it, poor soul.

"MR. ST. JOHN,—Sir, please come home at once. We're in dreadful trouble, there being only Bridget and me to think, and we don't know what to do. Pardon the liberty I take in writing. Yours respectfully,
"JANET ROBERTSON."

She did not know where he was exactly, but addressed the letter to Morely's Hotel, where she knew he often stayed when in town; but Philip was then at Wilton-le-Thorpe, and the letter reached him just after his brother's funeral, when he was about to start for London once more to settle all claims against the dead, of which there were not a few. But he altered his determination at once on receipt of that message, which somehow fell like lead on his heart. Was Erica ill? Why did she not write? Why had she sent no line?

"I am afraid you have had more bad news," said his cousin's voice, the head of the family at whose house he was staying, and Philip looked up, crushing the letter in his hand.

"I am called home," he said. "I must go at once. I fear Erica is ill. I shall catch the train to Pelham End, if I leave at once, and can change there for Rington."

There was no more than time for the warm hand-clasp, which spoke such sympathy, and the earnest words:

"Write and let us know if it is illness. I fear all this trouble has been too much for her."

And then Philip was gone.

On the third day from that on which Erica left her home, Philip St. John once more set foot in that house—deserted, desolate! Was it dishonored?

CHAPTER X.

THE LAST BLOW FALLS.

The wind was sweeping in wild gusts over the lawn, bending the trees before it, lashing the sea below into a boiling foam; the clouds hung low over the horizon, and seemed to mingle with and join the inky black waves that came tumbling along in their uncouth play, when Philip St. John crossed his own threshold and passed at once to the library.

How dull and cheerless it looked, despite the bright fire that burned in the grate. There was a sense of emptiness about the house, a feeling impossible to bring to the bar of reason, but that made him shiver as he entered.

Janet met him in the hall and followed him to the room, and his first question took away the little presence of mind she had left.

"Where is your mistress?" he said, with a force of quietness that told even her that he was anxious. "Is she ill? Tell me at once?"

Janet sank into a chair, trembling from head to foot.

"Oh, how shall I tell you sir?" she said, covering her face. "What shall I say?"

For an instant such deadening foreboding came over him as seemed to take away all power of speech.

Had Erica died all alone in his absence, and they had feared to tell him?

He took one stride to the door, stung with that thought—his impulse to spring upstairs and turn suspense into certainty, even of such woes, when the woman caught his hand, and her look stopped him.

"In Heaven's name," he said, with such imperious sternness that she shrank back in fear; "speak, and tell me the truth! I am in no mood for trifling."

"The mistress is not upstairs," she answered, braced into something like courage by the force of his command. "She isn't here, sir, at all. She has gone."

And then she burst into bitter weeping.

"Gone!" he exclaimed, staggering back as if struck. "Gone!" The word had scarcely any meaning to him. Gone where—out over the rocks; wandering on the cliffs; perhaps gone back to Scotland? But in an instant he had mastered himself with a fierce effort. Blow on blow! Could he bear two such shocks?

He pressed his hand on the woman's shoulder, and at the sound of his voice her tears ceased.

"You will tell me the truth without any more delay, without idle tears, without softening or prevarication," he said, and she knew that she must obey.

Few would have cared to brave Philip St. John when he spoke in that low, hard tone, when that steel-like gleam came to the brilliant eyes.

"I am waiting."

Then in low, hurried accents she told him all. How that Bridget had heard Erica's and a stranger's voice talking at the south gate, and ending with the night she had left her home. Since Janet had written, a fisherman had told her that up the coast a little way he had passed an open boat some distance off, and that a girl and a man were rowing; he fancied there was another form in the boat, but it was too dark to distinguish. She acknowledged that she had been cowardly in not seeking to know who it was in the garden that night. But what could she have done?

"I found this scrap of paper, sir," she concluded, timidly putting into his hand the line Arnold sent to Erica on the race-course, and his hand closed round it like a vice. And then he glanced at it, taking in these fatal words. "I saw it, sir, on her dressing-room floor, and no one has seen it but me."

His very life seemed to cease for a second in that supreme effort to keep calm to her eyes.

"Leave me," was all he said, and then he was alone.

Aye, alone, with his shattered love—with his love hurled back on his own heart, his faith broken to atoms, his honor thrown down, trampled in the very dust.

In the fierce tempest that swept over him he was shaken to the very centre of his being; like a reed he bent before the storm, and gave himself up to be the very sport of wild passions, whose force even he had never guaged till then.

If she had knelt there at his feet and pleaded for mercy, he would have spurned her.

No softer thought came to him in those first hours of burning agony; indeed, there was no distinct thought, his soul was a battle-ground on to which gentle emotion and sweet memories dared not stray. He knew, felt, was conscious only of this his dishonored hearth; his proud name sullied; even the love and faith so ruthlessly, recklessly cast back were secondary to that degradation which blasted the haughty patrician's very life.

He had not moved his position; one hand was still pressed heavily on the back of a chair, the other clenched until the blue veins stood out like cords; the dark eyes, burning, lurid with the storm that was none the less fierce because it found no expression in gesture or word, gazing out straight before him. Stern in repose that face had ever been, but until now, under the quieter influence of his later life, those blacker and more restless passions of his earlier youth had slumbered; such tempests as had shaken him when a boy, stung by injustice or brooding over his loveless life, had visited him rarely since manhood; now they were aroused again to life in all their full power, roused by a scathing agony before which all the habitual control of a lifetime went down like shivered glass.

He could have borne to know she had not loved him, that she had come too late to the knowledge of her own heart; only, if she had not sinned, only if she had not thrown name and honor to the winds; he could have borne to see her lying dead at his feet, to know she had died alone, suffering; but not this—not this! Was it not all a frightful dream? Was there no mistake—no escape from the inevitable conclusion? Could she be guilty, that fair young wife who had come to him as the "gentle rain from Heaven," who had laid her head on his breast, whom his arms had clasped, whose brow his lips had pressed? Had he not whispered only a few short days before, "My darling!"

His darling! Even then, as he had kissed her, she had been set to betray his trust—even then those fatal words he clenched now in his right hand had tempted her from her faith.

One by one there came back to his memory all things that had perplexed him during these past weeks—her quiet question, "What if I failed in love or duty?" his stern answer, and her altered manner. That very night she had seemed so disturbed when her letters came in, and her passionate weeping when, later, he had returned and met her in the garden.

All her strange anxiety and excitement at the races, and a hundred other things, so slight in themselves—words, looks, tones, heeded but unread at the time—all clear now under the fierce light flashed on them by the knowledge he held.

Who was this unknown, this cursed tempter? The man shivered like an aspen from head to foot with the wild surge of deadly wrath, as the question came, and was flung unanswered on one side. What mattered it even? What availed it to know the robber who had stolen the priceless jewel, and in stealing shattered it? Would that bring him back her spotless purity, restore to him her broken faith? Could the shedding of his blood whiten a blackened name?

* * * * *

It was a slight thing to make the first check in that whirlwind of passion that scarce left space even for grief.

The watch-dog Wolf, who had been hers—his wife's—came softly out of a corner, where unseen he had lain, and thrust his head against the closed right hand, uttering a gentle whine.

The touch, the sound, roused him. With a start that sent the mad blood bounding to his heart, he turned, drawing away his hand sharply as if stung, and his eyes fell on the dog, and a change came over his face.

He had often caressed the creature, and it had seemed to love him, following him about from room to room, or lying at his feet, and now came offering its dumb sympathy.

But all that was good and gentle and tender in that man's heart was turned to bitterness and wormwood. He could not be touched now by a dog's simple faith. He could not be softened to give a caress to anything that had loved her.

And reading, with the sure instinct that is given to these lower animals, the steady, bitter hardness of the face his eyes sought, the poor brute laid his ears down and slunk away under the table.

"Aye," Philip said between his teeth, "you too come and ask for a caress, and will turn and rend the hand that gives it. And I have done with all."

With all! Down the sad vista of his life came the memories of childhood, of youth, honor, of love. Not one thing he had touched but had turned to ashes in his hand; not one creature he had loved but had failed him—dumb creatures, brother, wife. Where were they now? Where was that one enduring love he had dared of late to rest in as a haven in which he had anchored with the trembling new-born trust that this at least would bear stress of wind and tide? Well, where was the haven? where his anchor of faith?

The tides had come, and the winds had blown full strong, and behold the haven had vanished, and the anchor lay broken on the ground.

"And I have done with all," he muttered, lifting his hands in strained, locked clasp to his forehead. "With life—with honor—with love. Had I ever love? Was that counterfeit thing that showed me its tinsel wings and fluttered round me for a sunshine season, was that love? And yet—and yet I loved her." He fell down, stricken in agony, his head bowed on his arms. "Brother—wife. Oh, God! oh, God! why hast Thou marked me out so pitilessly to be hunted down—down to worse than death?"

He never knew how the minutes sped away into hours. He had lost all heed of time, or place, or change. The wind came sweeping round the house, wailing like some lost spirit. But he heard it not, was not conscious that the dusk had deepened into darkness, and that even the dull red light of the fire had died quite down.

When he rose at last it seemed as though years had passed over him instead of hours—years, too, of daily, hourly torture. In the stern and steadfast light that burned in the dark eyes, all softness, all that quiet tenderness that had relieved the severe gravity of the mouth, had been merged.

If, in these hours of conflict, his own deathless love had pleaded against the ruthless resolve that swore an eternal justice, that swept away all margin of mercy, of pity, he had crushed its pleadings, had trampled under foot the love that was shame now, or thought he had. She was an outcast. Let her dwell beyond the lines, never seeking forgiveness. She was nothing to him; her own hand put the bar of dishonor between them, and to Philip St. John dishonor was the one bar that not the lifelong penitence of the Magdalen could over-step.

He touched the bell, and, in answer, Janet came up, her eyes yet red with weeping for the woe that had fallen on the house.

It gave him a fierce pang to know that these people thought of and discussed him, this haughty St. John, who had scarcely brooked pity from the woman he loved.

"Send for Poynter," he said, briefly, and Janet, without venturing to say a word, retired.

She knew something of her master, and feared him in such moods as this.

And Philip waited, pacing up and down ceaselessly, with arms folded tightly over his breast. He thought it likely that Nat Poynter knew something of Erica's flight—perhaps knew where she was now—and he did not seek nor care to win her back to him; he would never look on her face, or speak a word to her again, but it was just to try and save her from continuing in a life of sin. Once more the door opened and closed, and Philip looked up and paused, and set his teeth hard for an instant. Great Heaven! what a depth of degradation he must plough through, even to do justice.

Nat stood quite silent, his eyes bent down, a sort of dogged resistance of expression mingling with a half sorrowful look on brow and lips.

When Philip spoke it was with an absolute quietness of tone that told nothing to his hearer of the passions reined in.

"If you can give me the information I shall ask of you, you need have no fear in telling me the truth. Did you or do you know anything of my wife's flight from her home?"

For an instant Nat stood silent; he knew those eyes he feared to meet were fixed on him, he knew that Philip St. John had a right to be told of what he, Nat, had done. He knew he could scatter the cloud that had descended alike on Erica as on her husband. But he had promised Miss Erica, and he had also promised Mr. Arnold, for a price, to keep silence, and swayed alike by his unreasoning affection for Miss Erica, and his love of gold, Nat doggedly determined to be true to both.

Mr. St. John knew nothing; whatever he might suspect.

"I know nothin' sir," he answered, "and I know nothin' of Miss Erica."

"The first is not true," Philip said, "the last may be. I do not seek to know this from any wish on my part to injure you, if you have aided her; my word is enough to you for that."

"I can't say nothin', sir, when I know nothin'," answered Nat, glancing up furtively. "I wish I did. I know what the folks is sayin', and I ain't a goin' to think that on her; why, sir, I carried missy in my arms, and I wouldn't——"

"Death!" muttered Philip under his breath, "must I bear this too?"

"Mr. St. John," said the boatman, speaking with rough earnestness, forgetting his fear of the haughty "master" in his anxiety for Erica; "I don't believe—I won't never believe—as Miss Erica ain't an angel of goodness; she'll come back, and if she do, you will—you will see her, sir——"

But Philip moved then, and in three steps came close up to the man who dared brave him, and Nat absolutely quailed before the flash of those dark eyes, before the terrible and fierce passion that quivered in the low stern voice.

"You are lying," he said, and his right hand was clenched close. "But that matters little. If I could stoop to stain these hands with such blood as yours, you would know that as soon might you brave the lion's wrath as brave Philip St. John. And if you value her life or your own, keep her from my path. Now go, I have done with you."

He turned away abruptly the next instant, biting his lip till the blood came, and the man, appalled and cowed, went out into the storm, and Philip was once more alone. The crust of ice was but thin after all.

CHAPTER XI.

FAREWELL HOPE, LOVE, AND LIFE.

"I believe him too," muttered Poynter, as he quickly strode up the road to his cottage, and began springing up the cliff path. "Good Lord, if she comes back and meets him there'd be mischief done. I wonder if she will come back. I'd give somethin' to know she ain't bad."

Thus soliloquizing, Nat climbed the path till he reached the little plateau on which his cottage stood. He was about to insert the key into the lock when a light touch on his arm made him start round as though he had seen a ghost, and if it had been indeed a ghost he could not have turned whiter, nor fallen back with more apparent fear, for the tall, slender form of Erica St. John stood before him in her long cloak drooping around her, and her veil thrown back.

"Good Lord!" the man said, and for a moment could add nothing else, but he recovered himself very soon and put his hand on her arm. "I am so glad and yet so sorry to see you back, missy," he said, rather huskily, "I don't know what to say. But come in out of the wind."

"Hist!" she whispered, under her breath; "they told me at the station he was come back—is it true?"

"Come in—come in," was all Nat said, gently urging her forward, and she obeyed him, and waited till he lighted a lamp, and then she threw off her bonnet as though even that slight weight oppressed her. Ah! how beautiful she looked in her dire sorrow; the rich bronze hair flowing over her shoulders, those large eyes so pitifully questioning, those white lips quiveringly framing the question:

"Tell me, is it true—is he come back?"

Nat took both her hands in his, and his eyes looked sorrowfully, kindly, down on her. His heart was sore for her. He could have sacrificed in that moment the gold promised him—the gold that should keep him above privation in the cruel winter-time—to see this girl restored to all she had lost.

"Why do you look at me so?" she said, half-shrinking back; "you—you have something to tell me. You must say it quickly, Nat, for I must go home."

She put her hand to her forehead, pushing back the hair, as if she was dazed with all she had gone through.

"My poor lassie!" said the man, turning aside, and his rough voice shook, "ye haven't no home to go to, that's just the truth."

"No home!" How her hands tightened their clasp round his; how her eyes sought his face. "My home—my husband's home——"

"Miss Erca," Nat turned to her again, with the desperate resolve to fight no longer against the inevitable—the truth she must know, "you mustn't think me a presumin' and asking what I ain't no right to ask; if I died for't I must know this. You didn't leave the master's home 'cept only to save Mr. Arnold, didn't you?"

CHOLERA
COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and the natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS:—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the Pain-Killer, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed, recovered.

Believe me, dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours.

Missionary to Swatow, China.

Beware of Counterfeits and Imitations. Ask for the genuine Perry Davis' Pain-Killer and take no other. 30-8t

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

IN MEMORIAM

of Mr. John Robertson, one of the early settlers of Peterborough, who died September, 1881, aged 80 years.

Out from our midst, alas! hath gone
One who among us was well known,
Who 'mong the early settled few
The hardships of the country knew.
Born where heathery mountains vie
With the clouds toward the sky,
Where martyrs prayed and Camerons fought—
Who liberty of conscience bought,
That all who lived on British sod
Might freedom have to worship God,
The subject of this short memoir—
Like to his kin in days of yore—
The good of all he loved to see—
Ever opposing tyranny—
And ever was, whate'er his lot,
To hear a true and noble Scott;
An architect of noted fame,
In years gone by we find his name,
And in the neighborhood still stand
Mansions that were built by his hand.
His years on earth have many been,
And many ups and downs he's seen;
But blessed through life midst noble care,
For goodness hath been pleased to spare
His helpmate, who ne'er him belied,
Who all his ready wants supplied,
Through every adverse changing scene
Hath to him ever faithful been.
Since o'er life's troubled sea he's passed
We hope he's gained the port at last,
To sing among the ransomed race
The triumphs of redeeming grace.

A Great Discovery.

Mr. Wm. Thomas, of Newton, Ia., says: "My wife has been seriously affected with a cough for twenty-five years, and this spring more severely than ever before. She had used many remedies without relief, and being urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery, did so, with most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved her very much, and the second bottle has absolutely cured her. She has not had so good health for thirty years." Trial bottles free at Taylor & Macdonald's Drug Store. Large size $1.00.

What It Has Done.

MRS. GEORGE SIMPSON, Toronto, says:—"I have suffered severely with corns, and was unable to get relief from treatment of any kind until I was recommended to try Holloway's Corn Cure. After applying it for a few days I was enabled to remove the corn, root and branch—no pain whatever, and no inconvenience in using it. I can heartily recommend it to all suffering from corns."

THE DIFFERENCE.

A French gentleman, viewing a cricket match at Lords, in London, asked a neighbor to explain the difference between "gentleman" and "player," and got the answer; "A gentlemen is one who plays for play; a "player" one who plays for pay. "Thanks," replied the Frenchman; "then that street boy I asked just now was right. He said there was a '1' of a difference."

BEAUTIFUL HANDS.

The Irish peasantry are noted for their beautiful hands. Whether potatoes, poor living, bog-trotting and damp climate improve the hand we know not, but the Irish lassie has a well-formed and a pretty hand. They are a small handed people, no matter how much they wash, iron, cook, or dig; the English on the contrary are a people of big knuckles; so are the Scotch.

Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is pleasant to take; sure and effectual in destroying worms. Many have tried it with the best of results.

When is a Chinese most like a vegetable? Why, when a queue cumbers his head, of course.

As the man said after having administered the contents of two boxes of Dr. Scott's Prepared Spice, to his cattle; the result was surprising, as all cases are when a trial is made of this famous remedy.

Repeat this with an air of assurance to a clerical person—"Church music is not difficult to a choir."

Ayer's Ague Cure, when used according to directions, is warranted to eradicate from the system all forms of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, Intermittent, Remittent and Bilious Fevers, and disorders of the liver. Try it. The experiment is a safe one, and will cost you nothing if a cure is not effected.

Turnips fed to sheep are said to make mutton tender. Will cabbages fed to lawyers make legal tender.

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second; It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

"Mamma, the weather is red hot," said a bright little boy. "It's pretty warm, sonny, but I don't think it is red hot." "Yes, it is. It says in the paper that the thermometer is at bloot heat, and you know blood is red."

is a preparation of carbolic acid, vaseline and cerate called McGregor & Parke's Carbolic Cerate. It will cure any sore, cut, burn or bruise when all other preparations fail. Call at J McKee's Drug Store and get a package. Twenty-five cents is all it costs. 35-2t

"Jones is a miserly man, but is very pleasant," said Brown. "Yes," replied Smith, "but it is his miserliness that makes him pleasant." "How's that?" "Why, don't you see he hates to lose anything, and therefore keeps his temper."

A Sad Neglect.

Neglecting a constipated condition of the bowels is sure to bring ill health and great suffering. Burdock Blood Bitters regulate the bowels in a natural manner, purifying the blood and promote a healthy action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. 36-2t

A "sweet girl graduate" at the June commencement read a very clever original essay, entitled "Deceit a Crime." Next day she paid fifteen dollars for a new set of bangs, and bought a corset with much plumpness where it would do the most good.

Respect Age.

Age should always command respect, in the case of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it certainly does, for 25 years that has been the standard remedy with the people, for Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Colic and all Bowel Complaints. 36-2t

"Ever had a cyclone here?" asked a town man who was visiting a country aunt. "A cyclone? oh, yes," said the aunt. "Parson Brown's son brought one from Toronto a spell ago, but law, he couldn't ride it. Tumbled off every time he tried."

Farmers—Try it!

Wells, Richardson & Co's. Improved Butter Color will be found to be the only oil color that will not become rancid. Test it and you will prove it. It will not color the butte-milk; it gives the brightest color of any made, and is the strongest and therefore the cheapest.

A countryman took dinner the other day at a city hotel. The waiter recited the bill of far: "Roast beef, veal and lamb, baked heart, boiled tongue, corned beef and cabbage and beefsteak pie." "They'll do," replied the visitor; "bring 'em along, quick."

Fluid Lightning.

Is the only instantaneous relief for Neuralgia, Headache, Toothache, etc. Rubbing a few drops briskly is all that is needed. No taking nauseous medicines for weeks, but one minute's applications removes all pain and will prove the great value of Fluid Lightning. Twenty-five cents a bottle at J. McKee's Drug Store. 35-2t

The French ambassador to the English Court paid a neat compliment a little while back to a peeress who had been talking to him for an hour. The lady said: "You must think I am very fond of the sound of my own voice." The Frenchman replied: "I knew you liked music."

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and Liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. WHY HE HAD NO FOREIGN ACCENT.

"Speaking of the difficulties foreigners experience in giving the proper accent to English," said Captain Boslum, "reminds me of the fact that when I first came to this country, I could not speak English, yet you cannot detect in my conversation a foreign accent."

"To acquire such perfection must have taken much time," replied a lady.

Potash.

Iodide of Potassium is one of the strongest of the minerals used in medicine, and has produced much suffering in the world. Taken for a long time and in large doses, it dries up the gastric juices, impairs digestion, the stomach refuses food, and the patient declines in health and weight. Persons with blood or skin diseases should be careful how they take these mineral poisons, as in most instances the effect of them is to almost permanently impair the constitution. To take the place of these poisons we offer you a safe, sure, prompt and permanent relief from your troubles. Shaker Blood Syrup is entirely a vegetable preparation, and it is easy to convince you of its merit.

I have cured permanently Blood Taint in the third generation by the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, after I had most signally failed with Mercury and Potash. Dr. Smith, Bangor, Pa.

A young man requests me to thank you for his cure of Blood Poison by the use of your Specific after all other treatment had failed.

J. E. Kennedy, Druggist, Cobourg, Ont.

For years I was afflicted with Dry Tetter of the most obstinate type. Was treated by many of the best physicians; took quantities of mercury, potash, and arsenic, which instead of curing the Tetter, crippled me up with mineral poison and Rheumatism. The Tetter continued to grow worse, and the itching almost made me crazy. In this condition I was induced to take Shaker Blood Syrup, and the result was as astonishing as it was gratifying. In a few months the Tetter was entirely well, the Mercurial Poisoning all out of my system, and I was a well man—and due only to Shaker Blood Syrup. All like sufferers should take it.

A COAT ON HIS STOMACH.

"My dear," said an over-heated citizen to his wife at dinner to-day, just after he had swallowed a piece of meat whose temperature was at the boiling point, "my dear, this food is so hot it will take the coat of my stomach."

"Well, what do you want of a coat on your stomach this weather?" was the gentle response.

The husband was so confused that he rushed out of doors and swallowed the day's supply of ice, which the ice-dealer had just left on the sidewalk.

Home Testimony.

Many hundred recommendations similar in character to the one given below have been received, and give proof of the great value of Polson's NERVILINE as a pain remedy. Try it.

ATHOL, Feb. 20.—We hereby certify that we have used Nerviline in our families, and have found it a most reliable remedy for cramps in the stomach, also for headache, and externally for rheumatic pains. No house should be without this invaluable remedy.—LUKE COLE, ELISHA COLE, J.P.

A CRUEL MAN.

Mother (to married daughter)—Why, what's the matter, Clara? What are you crying about?

Clara—Henry is so awfully cruel (sob) he is getting worse and worse every day (sob). What do you suppose he said just now? He told me I must get rid of the cook; he couldn't stand her cooking any longer (sob). And he knows well enough that she hasn't done one bit of cooking for the last fortnight, and that I have done it all myself! Boo-hoo, boo-hoo, boo-oo!

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired by new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and henceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at fifty cents a bottle.

WINNIPEG'S GREAT WIND.

A terrible cyclone passed over Winnipeg Thursday night, doing great damage, blowing down buildings and stripping roofs from massive blocks. The provincial towns also suffered severly. The damage to crops is heavy. At Portage la Prairie the Canadian Pacific sheds were razed to the ground. Telegraph lines are prostrated in every direction.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night. Worms as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for 1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52t

Funeral Sermons

On Sunday morning last, Rev. Mr. Tovell preached in the Charlotte street church, a feeling sermon on the subject of death, referring to the lamented demise of Miss Martha Moore. Her virtues and Christian forbearance under her last great affliction, and her firm and enduring hope of heaven, were touchingly spoken of.

On Sunday morning next, Rev. Thomas Manning will preach a discourse, having reference to the death of the late William Dobbin, of North Monaghan.

Central Park.

The Central Park, in its renewed and cleared-up condition, presents a vastly improved appearance. The brush, rubbish, etc., have been thoroughly removed, and the grass is bright and green. Councillor Rutherford has taken great interest in this matter, and we trust he will not consider himself discharged till he shall have secured the removal of the long heap of street metal from the north side of the grounds. A few deciduous trees planted there and there between the sombre pines would greatly relieve the hyperborean aspect of Central Park.

Peterborough Driving Park.

The opening of the Peterborough Driving Park will take place on Thursday (to-day), when the following turf events will be presented, beginning at 2 o'clock: (1.) Foot race (¼ mile) for the Barlee medal. (2.) Bicycle race, one mile, prize, handsome silver cup. (3.) Gentlemen's trotting race, mile heats heats, best two in three, open to town and county. First money, $10; second, $5. (4.) Running race, half mile heats, best three in five; 1st, $15; 2nd, $5. Races according to American Turf Club rules. Entrance, 10 per cent. of purse. Admission to the grounds 25 cents.

P. B. C. Regatta.

At a meeting of the Peterborough Boating Club, held on Monday evening, it was decided to hold the annual regatta on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 18th. The following programme of races will be presented: single and double scull races; four oared race; single hunting canoe race (class A, 28 inches beam); double hunting canoe race (class B, 31 inches beam); hurry scurry race; upset race and sailing race. The four oared crews, will began practice at once. All entries are to be made with the Sec. of the committee, Mr. W. Rutherford, (at Ormond & Walsh's). The arrangements are in the hands of an efficient committee and the regatta, will be as successful a one as the Little Lake course has ever seen.

Coal Oil.

Owing to a "combination" having been formed among the oil refiners, coal oil is advancing in price every week. Consumers should take their cans to CHINA HALL and get them filled at once, and thereby save money. China Hall has the best quality of oil in town. Try it once. 31-tf

Money.

Mr. John A Bennett, of Otonabee, is prepared to make loans on real estate and to purchase mortgages. Loans will be made at the lowest rates of interest, payable when the borrower deems the most convenient time, the principal, being payable at such times as may be agreed upon. Expenses are very light. 12-tf

Three Great Circus Troupes in Three Rings.

Forepaugh's Great Show, which exhibits here on Monday, Sept. 15th, is exhibited in three distinct rings. Three separate companies appear at the same time in each ring in friendly competition. No other show in the world is organized upon such a vast scale as Forepaugh's.

A Disputed Asset.

The School Board, we believe object to their property, the central and ward school buildings, being included in the assets of the town. Some of them argue that with equal propriety, the Separate School buildings on Murray and Lake streets, might have been included. There is, however, not any grave probability of litigation arising from the difference of opinion on the subject.

Light for All.

China Hall has the largest and best assortment of lamps and chandeliers in Peterboro', consisting of 2, 3 and 4 light chandeliers, polished brass and bronze. One light hanging lamps. Parlor, kitchen and bedroom lamps at any price. China Hall pays particular attention to the lamp and coal oil part of its business, and will undersell all other dealers. If you want variety, cheapness and durability in the above goods buy at China Hall.

To Be Re built.

Though not wishing to startle our readers with an original metaphor, we are pleased to say the buildings recently burned on Hunter street are to rise, Phœnix like, from their ashes. They will be re-built with all possible despatch. Mr. Kingan will re-build his hardware store, and Mr. John Lynch, who has bought the two stores next west, will rebuild them in an enlarged form, making them sixty feet in depth and three stories in height.

Another large shipment of Goods just received at Turnbull's, comprising new designs in Dress Goods, Mantles and Ulster Cloths, Feather Trimmings, Cut Plushes, etc. If you hear of anything new in the Dry Goods line look for it at Turnbull's.

Commission and Collection Agency.

The public will be interested in learning that Mr. R. W. Thompson has opened a Commission Transfer, Collection and Accountant Agency, in the premises over China Hall, George street, Peterborough. Any persons having business patronage in the above lines to place, will find Mr. Thompson possessing two of the principal requisites for the business—ability and reliability. Farms, houses and lots for sale or to rent, rents and accounts made out and claims adjusted. Be sure and give him a trial.

Chemong Lake Regatta.

Arrangements have been completed for a grand regatta to be held on Chemong Lake, Bridgenorth, on Thursday, September 11th. The following races have been provided for, the first race to start at three o'clock, and the others in prompt order as follows:—Single scull shell race (club), first prize gold medal. Single canoe race (club), first prize, silver medal. Double scull race (club), first prize, two silver medals. Double scull race (club), first prize, two silver medals. Sailing race, canoes, first prize, silver cup. Double canoe race, first prize, two silver medals. The rowing races will be governed by the rules of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen, and paddling races by the rules of the A.C.A. Other information may be obtained from Mr. George Stevenson, Secretary of the Peterborough Boating Club, with whom all entries must be made before Sept. 15th. The committee of management consists of the members of the Peterborough Boating Club; Mr. John McClelland is referee, and Messrs. H. LeBrun and A. Elliott, judges.

This regatta, under the perfect management of the Club, and on Chemong Lake, a beautiful sheet of water for the purpose, will, no doubt, be very successful. Some first-class pulling "talent" has already entered—enough to insure some exciting contests.

Midland Employee's Picnic.

The annual picnic of the employees of the Midland division of the Grand Trunk, was held at the Summit on Saturday last. It was managed from Port Hope, and was essentially a Port Hope picnic. It was however, a most gratifying success. The attendance was about 1,300 to 1,500, of which about 200 —chiefly women and children—were from Peterborough. The grove is not far from the track, and it had been prepared for the occasion in an excellent manner. A fine dancing platform was erected as well as swings, and a refreshment booth supplied the thirsty pleasure seekers, with all sorts of mild and thirst-dispelling drink. Not a drop of strong drink nor a drunken man was to be seen on the grounds. A string band furnished good music for dancing, and the band of the 46th battalions, supplied general music. The different departments of the picnic were intrusted to seperate committees, and, of course everything passed off smoothly. The sports and games were a great attraction; every event was well filled, and the prizes were paid on the spot in cash. The little ones were made happy by toy races, every contestant getting a prize. Everybody reached home safely, and the picnic was in every way a grand success, a great share of the credit of it, being due to the energetic chairman and secretary, Messrs. John McMullen and John A. Cheer.

The Schools

opened on Monday with a large attendance in all departments. In the public schools especially, all the seating accommodation was utilized.

Oddfellow's Picnic.

On account of the lowness of the water in the river, this delightful outing was declared off, and has been postponed to a more convenient season—in fact, next season.

Minden "Echo."

We have received with pleasure, the first number of a new local newspaper, the Minden Echo, published by Messrs Brown & Small. It is a fair sized sheet well filled with well printed reading matter, local and general. We wish our northern cotem. the greatest success, and shall welcome its weekly visits with pleasure.

Garden Party.

The many-sided librality of Mr. Cox does not narrowly consult the interests of only one church. He has kindly placed the beautiful grounds surrounding his residence, at the disposal of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's church, and a grand garden party will be held there on Friday evening next. Admission fiftern and ten cents.

Foot Ball Practice.

The foot ball club gives grounds for the suspicion that they are going fishing every morning. "The early bird catches the worm," and the boys are early birds enough, for they are out on the Ashburnham grounds at 6 o'clock, practising. Beginning last Monday morning, they turn out Mondays and Wednesdays at 6 o'clock.

The Great Trade Sales.

The great trade sales and millinery openings in Montreal are now in progress, and Messrs. Fair, Vav Every & Co., accompanied by their milliner, Miss Choquette, left on Tuesday to attend them. They will return in a few days, laden with the choicest novelties in the millinery line, for their customers.

A Coincidence.

The meeting of the town council, held to consider and adopt the estimates, was this year held on the same day, of the same month—Aug. 30th—as was the similar meeting in 1883. When one comes to the rate, however, the coincidence collapses. This year the rate is 12½ mills; last year it was 13 7-10 mills.

One for Mr. Belleghem.

The Lindsay Post rises to remark. "Some new means will have to be devised if we are ever to be able to overtake and corrall the enterprising burglar. Mr. Belleghem, an estimable furniture dealer in Peterboro', chased one of these nocturnal visitors for some distance the other night, and though he threatened guns and pistols and dirk knives and other things, the burglar stopped not. This was all wrong. If Mr. Belleghem had just quoted a few of his low prices for his excellent furniture, the marauder would have at once retraced his steps to take advantage of the unparalled offer. But the fact is we're always giving these Peterboro' people points, such is our superior intelligence."

The Band and the Competition.

The Fire Brigade Band were awarded third prize at the Bowmanville competition, contrary to the hopes of their numerous admirers—never more numerous than at present although the judges saw fit to award them third place. Four Bands competed. The Waterloo band was awarded first, the Preston band second, and the Fire Brigade Band third prize. The members of our band concede the superiority of the Waterloo band on account of the reed instruments the latter carried, but they are not so thoroughly in accord with the judges, as to the second prize. One of the best musicians, and best judges of music in Peterborough or in the province for that matter, was present and asserted that the second prize should have fallen to our band. We have before pointed out how greatly the Fire Brigade Band would be improved by reed instruments. This competition shows that they are at a disadvantage without them. It is to be hoped that some of our citizens, rich in musicial enthusiasm and money, will devise some plan by which reed instruments may be added to the instrumental equipment of the Fire Brigade Band.

An Important Invention.

Mr. William Cowie, foreman of the EXAMINER Bookbindery has invented and has in use on our ruling machine an improved "striker" of exceeding simplicity and effectiveness. It is so simple in construction and its parts are so few that, exclusive of the "gate" the entire attachment, does not weigh five pounds. Its attachment to an ordinary ruling machine does not require any extra gearing, and by detaching a simple belt the ruling machine can, without removing the attachment, be used for faint lining or for striking by hand. It can be adjusted to different "strikes" in less than a minute and it can be used with four or more "strikes" on a sheet, to run four reams an hour or more if the feeder is expert enough to supply sheets faster. Its cost as against other "striking" attachments is one half less than the cheapest made. Its use enables us to do ruling with far greater rapidity and exactness than by hand. Once Cowie's "striker" is attached to a ruling machine and adjusted a boy can do as good and accurate ruling as a man with twenty years experience. With this improved striker in use, our customers can rely or having orders for ruling, filled with an exactness and promptitude unattainable in establishments where it is not in use.

Friendly Cricket.

The Peterborough and Lakefield cricket clubs put teams in the field here to play a friendly game, on Saturday afternoon. Peterborough won pretty easily with ten wickets to spare—almost one innings. For the visitors there was no particularly brilliant play, Watson T., and Watson R., being the only double figure men with 10 and 14 in the second innings respectively. In the Peterborough eleven, Max Hamilton contributed 28 and 15 (not out.) The other double figures were Strathey, 23, Norley, 13 and Bradley 12. Strathey was the lion in the path of the Lakefield eleven, no less than eleven men out, standing to his credit in the two innings. In the second innings every man but one succumbed to his trundling (7), or was caught off his bowling. Of the eleven three were brilliant catches, and eight "clean bowled." This is the score:

Can't Keep Quiet.

Mr. Joseph Griffin can't keep quiet out of business, in fact his customers won't allow him to do so, and he has, therefore, opened out again in the premises, two doors west of his old stand, Hunter street. Here he has a full stock of prime boots and shoes, and his custom department is in full operation.

Illuminated Canoe Parade.

The illuminated canoe parade on Little Lake on Tuesday night was witnessed by a very large number of spectators. Though the number of canoes was only about 25, the illuminations were the best yet produced and the manœuvring better than ever before. The Fire Brigade band furnished excellent music at frequent intervals.

Lacrosse Match.

On Monday afternoon next, the home club crosses sticks with the Metropolitans, of Ottawa, here. Our boys are neglecting practice shamefully. They owe it to the people of the town, who are always liberal patrons, to do their best to give full value for the entrance fee, and this they can't give without practice. There were only five at the practice on Tuesday night.

Matrimonial

An interesting social event, took place at St. Peter's Cathedral on Wednesday morning, when Bishop Jamot united in marriage, Mr. E. Martin, of Bradford, Pa., and Miss Mary, daughter of the late Patrick Kelly and sister of Mr. Thos. Kelly, dry goods merchant. The popular bride was the recipient of a large number of elegant and valuable presents. The happy couple take a fortnight's honeymoon tour before settling down in Bradford, Pa., their future home. Miss Kelly was long a resident of Peterboro' and made many warm friends, whom we join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Martin, many long years of wedded happiness.

Female Suffrage.

The ladies of Peterborough may not be generally aware that, according to amendments to the Municipal Act, made last session of the Local Legislature (47 Victoria, cap. 32), they have the right of suffrage conferred on them—to vote at municipal elections. The Peterborough voters' list for 1884 will contain the names of 51 female voters for No. 1 Ward. No. 2 Ward will contribute a larger number, and the other wards in proportion. With ladies as voters, baby kissing as a form of bribery, will assume an immense significance. A shrewd female elector, besides having her baby kissed into a blister, might "work the elections" for enough clothes to last her a year. The sex can't be suppressed.

The Park Question.

The town council has shown an unusual enterprise in opening and cleaning up the Central Park, but the same credit cannot be accorded them for their action in regard to the Court House Park. As a matter of fact the title to the Court House Park, is vested in the county, but the latter are willing that the town should have the use of the Park, for the benefit of its citizens. At the last session of the county council, a committee was appointed, consisting of Messrs., the Warden, Burnham, and Sanderson, to confer and make arrangements with the town council, for taking over the park, one of the conditions being that the town should keep it in order, and assume the responsibility of its protection. The committee of the county council have been willing, nay anxious for a conference with the town council, but as yet, that body has taken no action resulting in anything definite. In the name of the public, we call upon our town fathers to take action at once.

Painful Accident.

On Wednesday of last week the wife of Mr. M. Sanderson, Reeve of the Township of Smith, met with a painful accident and one that will affect her for months. She was, in company with her son, and Miss. Nichols, driving to town. At the high bank, corner of London and Rubidge streets, the horse shied at one of those barking curs that are a curse to the town, and upset the buggy down the steep embankment at this point. The result was that Mrs. Sanderson's arm was broken, the large bone of the arm the humerus having been snapped at the neck, just where it enters the shoulder joint. Miss Nichols and the son were shaken up but not seriously hurt. Mrs. Sanderson was removed to Mrs. Hutchinson's near by, and Dr. Halliday attended to her injuries which were others than the broken arm, but not of a serious nature. Mrs. Sanderson could not be removed home from Mrs. Hutchinson's till Friday. She is recovering satisfactorily. The place where the accident happened is a most dangerous one, and the council should see that it is properly railed or otherwise made safe. This will be much cheaper than paying a heavy bill of damages for loss of life or limb.

Suicide by Drowning.

On Wednesday morning the body of Malcom Maitland was found in about four feet of water in the river, near the town shore. The body was brought ashore, and search disclosed the cap, coat and vest of deceased lying on a boulder on the north side of the shore abutment of the bridge, and his tracks in the sand, where he waded into the water, were visible. It was a clear case of suicide. There was no coroner in town on Wednesday, but Dr. Clark, Medical Health Officer, who viewed the body, stated that there was no grounds for an inquest. A few years ago deceased was badly hurt in Baptie's planing mill, since that time, it is said he has been subject to fits of melancholy, and it is supposed that under the influence of one of these, he waded into the river on Tuesday night. Deceased was about 55 years of age, and leaves a wife and three or four children. Latterly he had a pea-nut stand at the corner of Hunter and George streets. He has found the battle of life a hard one the last few years.

St. Andrew's Excursion to Campbellford —A Pleasant Day, Fine Pic-nic Grove and Well-Pleased Patrons.

The pic-nic excursion to Campbellford on Thursday last under the auspices of St. Andrew's Society of Peterborough was a decided success. A few minutes past 7 a.m. the train, under charge of Conductor Morris, that prince of good-fellows, pulled out from the Midland station, having on board 400 excursionists, which was largely augmented at Smith street crossing by a number from Auburn, the mills having been closed down for the day. At Ashburnham the excursion was reinforced by more, bringing the party up to about 500. Fresh additions were received at Keene, Birdsall's and other points on the road, and by the time Hastings was reached the number had been swelled to about 650 persons.

At about 10 o'clock the train reached the

about half a mile this side of Campbellford, where those who had brought baskets got off, while the remainder proceeded to the town. Campbellford is a prosperous and busy place, said to contain about 2,500 inhabitants. The River Trent runs through the centre of the village, and affords splendid driving power to the factories built thereon, and which the excursionists proceeded to inspect. The first place visited was Senior's Woollen Mills, where they were received with open arms by Mr. Senior (who was for some years Superintendent of Auburn Mills in this town), and conducted by him through the factory, which is a four-set one, and manufactures tweeds of all kinds. The enterprising proprietor very generously closed the mills in the afternoon, in order that his employes might enjoy with their Peterborough friends. The next place to visit was the Trent Valley Mills, situated on the other side of the river, but, upon approaching, our reporter was met by several of our townspeople, who informed him that Mr. Turner, the superintendent, would not permit any visitors to enter, and we are therefore unable to give a description. But they are ten-set mills, and said to be the most complete mills in Canada; manufacturing one line of goods, namely, flannels. Whyte's Foundry and the Paper Mills next came in for a visit, after which the party proceeded to the different hotels to procure dinner. Having satisfied the wants of the inner man, they, in company with a large number of the villagers, rejoined the main portion of the excursionists at the grove. At about 1.30 o'clock Mr. Duncan McLeod, President of the Society, called the gathering to order, and, after a vote of thanks had been tendered to Rev. Mr. Beattie, for the free use of his grounds, the following

HALF A HOLIDAY

PROGRAMME OF SPORTS

was proceeded with, under the management of Mr. Archie Moffat, Mr. Thos. Blezard, M. P.P., acting as judge, and Mr. Alex. Stewart as starter:—

100 YARDS RACE (boys under 15 years)—1st, J. Fredericks, of Campbellford. Prize, a pocket knife.

FARMERS' RACE (100 yards)—1st, Joseph Tully, North Monaghan. Prize, a whip.

100 YARDS' RACE (open)—1st, F. Russell, G.T.R. Prize, a cigar stand.

GIRLS' RACE (16 years and over)—1st, Minnie Mills, of Campbellford. Prize, a handkerchief box.

BOYS' RACE (16 years and under)—1st, J. Dunn, of Peterborough. Prize, a mouth organ.

LITTLE GIRLS' RACE (14 years and under)—1st, Katie O'Brien, Peterborough. Prize, silver table set.

RUNNING LONG JUMP.—1st, J. Sullivan, of Campbellford. Prize, a cigar stand.

HOP, STEP AND JUMP.—1st, J. Fredericks, of Campbellford. Prize, a concertina.

In addition to the above sports, quoits, dancing, swinging etc., were indulged in, while the young ladies present seemed to accept the President's advice and take advantage of leap year.

Two pipers, Mr. D. K. Anderson, of Toronto, and Mr. Donald McDonald, of Peterborough, gladdened the hearts of the sons and daughters of Auld Scotia by numerous Scottish airs, rendered on their pipes in first-class style. Mr. Anderson, the brawest dancer in a' the land, who was dressed in the full costume of the Gordon clan, gave an excellent exhibition of the Heeland fling, which called forth rounds of applause.

The prizes were then presented to the winners by the President, Mr. McLeod, after which the pic-nicers proceeded to the station, where, after wishing their Campbellford friends a hearty good-bye, they got under way, arriving home shortly after eight o'clock.

Too much credit cannot be given the people of Campbellford for the hospitalities extended to the excursion party, and particularly to the Rev. Mr. Beattie and Messrs. Senior, Dinwoodie, Chas. Nancarrow, Jas. Whyte and T. Nancarrow, who did all in their power to entertain their visitors.

The best proof of the great power of Polson's Nerviline over every kind of pain is obtained by the use of a 10 cent bottle. Nerviline requires no puffing; every bottle tells its story. It cannot fail, for it is a combination of the most powerful pain-subduing remedies known to medical science. Nerviline is equally useful in external or internal pains. Try the great remedy. Ten cent bottles at any drug store. Large bottles only 25 cents.

INITIATING THE TURF.

Opening of Peterborough Driving Park.

Man, Bicycle and Beast—A Fine Programme of Sports Well Carried Out—Well-Managed Race Meeting—Spanking Sport.

On Thursday last the Peterborough Driving Park was duly dedicated to the sport of speed. A fine programme of local events was prepared, and a large number of spectators assembled. The track was in superb condition, level as a billiard table, and of good turf texture. The judges in the various events were Messrs. W. H. Rackham, Chas. Stapleton and Harry Winch, and Mr. C. L. Burgess, of New York city, acted as timer. Their decisions, always accepted without demur, showed that they were fair and honest.

The first event was the quarter-mile straightaway

FOOT RACE FOR THE "BARLEE" MEDAL,

presented by the late George Barlee for competition among members of the Peterborough Boating Club. The entries for the quarter-mile spin were P. Myles, of the Toronto Bank, J. Morris, of the Ontario Bank, and A. Strickland, of Lakefield, the two latter having, each, one of the three heats to his credit. At the go-off Myles took a good lead, Morris next and Strickland close at hand. This position was kept till within about two yards from the finish, when Morris dashed to the front, winning by about a yard, Strickland the same distance behind Myles. Morris was declared the winner of the heat and the medal.—Time 58 seconds.

THE BICYCLE RACE,

half mile dash. W. Kent, D. Clementi and C. McClelland went off with a good start. Kent took the lead and was rolling neatly ahead of his opponents, when his saddle failed and put him out of the race. McClelland led to the home stretch, when Clementi overhauled him and came in under the string less than a yard ahead. Time, 2-19.

THE GENTLEMEN'S TROT, in road wagons, mile heats, two in three, brought out "Fanny B.," driven by her owner, Ed. Brown, and W. Hetherington's "Brown Barber," driven by Mr. Bob White.

The flyers were off for the first heat with a tidy start—on the first score. The gray mare soon took the lead and held it to the finish, which she made in 3.01.

The second heat Hetherington held the ribbons over the Barber. An even start was got on the first score, but the mare seemed a little stiff. She broke the first quarter, and the Barber took the lead, which he held till the third quarter, when Fanny B. collared the horse, passing him and holding the lead till she went under the string in 3.03½, winner of the heat by two lengths and of the race also.

The starter's bell brought out five horses for half mile heats, three in five. They were Wm. Hopkin's "Accidental," ridden by Charley Stapleton; — Sherwood's "Inglewood Maid," ridden by 'Gus White; C. Leary's "Eli," ridden by Johnny Newhall; R. Redmond's "Chestnut Billy," ridden by R. Redmond; and J. McIntyre's "Nancy Lee," ridden by Billy McGregor.

The first heat fell to "Accidental;" the "Maid" second, "Eli" third, "Nancy Lee" fourth, and "Chestnut Billy" fifth.

The second heat, "Nancy Lee" took first place, "Accidental" second, and "Inglewood Maid" third, the other horses not reporting to the judges.

Therefore only three horses started in the third heat. "Inglewood Maid" forced the running but "Nancy Lee" declined to take her dust and forged ahead to first place, holding it easily, the "Maid" second, Accidental, third.

The fourth and final heat was taken by "Nancy Lee" from the "go in," "Accidental" second, and "Inglewood Maid" third.

In these heats "Nancy Lee" showed a great deal of go, but like the "Dancing Master" in Smart's new sporting novel, "From Post to Finish," she is a vixen to get off.

This concluded the events of the day, which were managed with the greatest credit to the members of the Association. Everything passed off without "hitch or kick." The judges' decisions were square, prompt, and in no case disputed. The presence of so many carriages containing ladies showed that the latter had confidence in everything being ordered decorously, in which they were not one whit disappointed. The best of order was maintained, and the public were, as they had reason to be, well pleased with the tidy afternoon's sport presented. The press has to acknowledge the most courteous treatment from the managers. If the opening meeting is a sample of future ones, the public can rely on finding on future turf occasions, a good programme of good, square races.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were ill-y adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

Interesting Information Concerning Its Operations in Town.

We extract from the September number of Association Notes, the monthly journal of the Association, the following items of interest:

PROVINCIAL CONVENTION.

The Provincial Convention will be held in Peterborough in October, from the 22rd to 26th. A large attendance is expected, as there has been no regular convention held for three years. Prominent men from Ontario and Quebec will be present.

THE ART EXHIBITION

was not a financial success, the net proceeds amounting to only $21.50. This result, however, was offset by its great success in other respects.

A PROSPECTIVE BUILDING.

A friend of the Association, "always forward in good works," has offered $1,000 as a nucleus of a fund for Association buildings. The need of such a building is great. With the promise of one or two amounts similar to the above, a building committee will at once be formed and an effort made to raise the further funds necessary.

VARIOUS EVENTS.

The annual business meeting of the local Association will be held on Thursday, Sept. 18th.

On Thursday, Sept. 25th, the public anniversary will be held in the Charlotte street Methodist church. Addresses will be given by Rev. Mr. Tovell and Mr. Cole, Provincial Secretary. A report of the year's work will be presented, and collections made. Music will be presented by the choir of the church, and a solo selection rendered by Mrs. Chambers.

The Secretary was in Toronto on Friday, 29th August, on business connected with the approaching convention.

It was decided to hold the convention on the 23rd and 26th October. In addition to the delegates from Ontario and Quebec, two of the secretaries of the International Committee, New York, are expected to be present.

A large range of new Mantle and Ulster Cloths now open for inspection at Turnbulls. His window of Ornaments would indicate that these goods were going to be very fashionable this season for Dress and Mantles.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY AGAIN.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,

As you complain of not having proper information respecting the meetings at the first part of the year, I thought I would keep you posted in the proceedings of the last part. At the meeting held on the 23rd of August, it was resolved that there be no show this fall at Peterborough, but that the money be applied to purchase a new ground. Since that time our friends have kindly offered us the use of the Driving Park at the south end of the town, free of charge. I think this is a step in the right direction, it at least shows that they see the benefit of a show. However, the directors had agreed not to have one, and had advertised for parties having suitable grounds, to send in their terms by the 15th of October, not the 15th of September, as stated by the papers, and they would have a meeting about the twentieth, to take the matter into consideration. If the gentleman who writes over the signature of "Agriculturist," will attend, as we presume he will, and give us the benefit of some of the suggestions his cultivated brain may suggest, or if he will exercise a little patience till January next, the officers will all be out of office. That will be the time for Agriculturist to give his proper name, and come forward, and, if he is such a worthy person as we presume he thinks he is, he will have no opposition to be president or director, and as far as some of the old ones care, he may have both. Perhaps Agriculturist is better acquainted with Lindsay or Collingwood, those one-horse towns as he calls them; if not, he must know that the society a few years ago, by the aid of the town and county council, leased and expended about $1,000 in levelling, fencing, and fitting up the present Central Park. The lease is expired, and the fence is taken away. Perhaps Agriculturist is a farmer of one year's standing, and does not know that there was three new directors put in last year; and that gentleman objects to such men as Messrs. Elliott, Davidson, Garbutt, Young, Fitzgerald and Collins, men who have been born and raised within a few miles of Peterborough, and some of the best stock raisers in the county. Now Mr. Editor, if Agriculturist replaces these with better next January, we would like to see his honest face and know who owns it.

For fear I should tire you or your readers, I will close with a few words about the new grounds. As there are some who say we should engage the Driving Park at once, regardless of first cost; when the directors know that the ground costs $1,200, and fencing, half of cost, $900, and if $6,000 be the minimum price for buildings for a one-horse town, how much would it take for a town like Peterborough. As to the other ground offered north of the town, Mr. A. Scott offers to purchase the ground, fence it, take out the stumps and stones, and make the horse ring for the money that is asked for the lot at the south end, leaving the society the buildings to put up. Perhaps there will be more generous offers before the 20th of October.

THOMAS E. BELL.

Smith, Sept. 8th, 1884.

P. S. If Agriculturist reform the society, I suggest that he begin with getting 10 or 12 new subscribers before the end of this month, or the society cannot draw the government money. Thus the branch societies will be minus their shows also.

T. E. B.

Dr. Wheeler's Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya contains elements absolutely essential to cell-growth and the formation of the system. Dr. Dusart, a celebrated Physiologist, of Paris, says that "Phosphate of lime is eminently an exciting agent of the functions of nutrition; in other words, a nutritive tonic—that it induces the albumenoid matter to assume the cellular shape, and that it controls the formation of tissues. When taken into the system more food is absorbed, and the weight of the body rapidly increased, owing to the transformation of albumenoid matter into muscular fibre." Sufferers from imperfect nutrition, as in scrofulous and tuberculous diseases, will derive immediate benefit from its use. For sale by all druggists.

Chinese physicians of a certain class think that every illness arises from a disease devil, with which the air is supposed to be filled. It is, therefore, the physician's duty to find out where the devil has lodged and drive it out. This germ disease is said to be of minute size, but develops gradually until about as big as an ordinary bean. The imp enters the system, it is claimed, through the mouth or nostrils. It is driven out with powders similar to quinine and opium, which are made of Chinese plants.

Mr. C. E. Riggins, Beamsville, writes: A customer who tried a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery says it is the best thing he ever used; to quote his own words, 'It just seemed to touch the spot affected.' About a year ago he had an attack of bilious fever, and was afraid he was in for another, when I recommended this valuable medicine with such happy results."

"CAPITAL" LACROSSE.

The "Capital" Club vs. The Central Ontario Champions.

The "Mets" of Ottawa Win After a Hard Fight—The Home Club Stubborn Contestants—The Best Exhibition of Lacrosse Ever Seen in Town—Not a Dispute nor Unfriendly Word—The Clubs Cheer Like Cherubs.

On Monday last the first twelve of the Metropolitan Lacrosse Club, Ottawa, met the first twelve of the home club in the return match to the Brockville disaster. There was a good attendance of spectators, and the City Band furnished music. At 3:15 the teams drew up for inspection as follows:

PETERBOROUGHS.		METROPOLITANS.
J. Joyal	Goal	W. Clark
P. Myles	Point	J. C. Whyte
M. Tierney	Cover Point	G. Popham
J. Howden	Defence Field	W. J. Egan
M. Halpin	do.	J. O'Connor
A. Yelland	do.	J. C. Grant
J. J. Sheehy	Centre Field	P. Lewis
R. S. Kelly	Attack Field	H. O. Pratt
W. J. Scott	do.	J. P. Burke
C. Rutherford	do.	J. P. Dunn

W. Rudkins	1st Home	J. Keat
J. Coughlin	Field Captain	M. M. Pyke
G. S. Perks	Umpire	E. A. Perkins

M. M. Hackett, Referee.

FIRST GAME—METS.

Sheehy and Lewis faced. Jimmy drew the ball, only to put it in the way of Grant, and he quickly sent the fight down on the home flags. Tierney with one of his long throws put the Mets' poles in peril, but O'Connor put back the rubber in centre field, whence Sheehy rescued it from a scrimmage and passed it to Henderson, who made the fight lively at the enemy's flags, but the rubber speedily travelled up to the Peterborough goal. Once more in the centre field, whence Burke passed it to Hutton, who put it through the home poles four minutes after the face.

SECOND GAME—METS.

Sheehy again won the draw. Yelland was on hand, but the sphere fell to the Mets and the home flags were threatened, but Tierney was there and his long throw resulted in a face. Scott got the ball, passed it to Henderson, whose well-aimed shot on goal was well parried by Clark, who sent the ball to centre field. Henderson took it from Tierney and made another shot on the Mets' goal. Up to this time, four minutes, the forecasters' flags had been repeatedly menaced, and a scrimmage around their goal drew too largely on the home defence, and Burke, securing the ball, it went from him to Dunn, from Dunn, to Kent, who scored the second game in five minutes.

THIRD GAME—PETERBOROUGHS.

Lewis won the draw and the ball was at once on the home goal, but Myles made a change of venue by making a fine run down side field. Being open to check he filled Henderson's net. He passed the ball to Kelly, and the Mets' defence had work, but Clark sent the rubber back to centre field, where Lewis lay in wait. After some fine play, in which he foiled his check, he made a shot on goal. Out it came again, Howden sending it down to the Mets' defence. Popham returned the compliment, Myles ditto, and once again in centre. Sheehy captured the caoutchouc, and after some fine feints and dexterous dodging, took a drop on the Mets' position, but the prompt Popham, with a fine long throw, spoiled the shot. Considerable see-saw "business" followed, in which both teams made fine play, Kelly and Sheehy working together like a pair of little clocks. At length, after the game was 17 minutes old, Yelland got the rubber in centre, and running a little to side field, made a sweet, swift, straight shot on goal—a genuine bulls-eye. Clark, in goal, was ready to stop it, but Billy Rudkins made the neatest bit of play in the match, by checking gool's stick just at the right moment, and the gutta percha passed through—with loud applause.

FOURTH GAME—PETERBOROUGH.

This was a long and weary game, lasting, with numerous faces and "time calls," about 78 minutes, but it was otherwise, genuine lacrosse all the time. Both goals were repeatedly threatened. In one of these attacks on the Mets' goal, a scrimmage resulted, in which Clark got a deep cut in the forehead. An interval of 25 minutes rest followed, during which, Dr. King, surgeon to the club, dressed his wound, and Clendenning took his place. Play was resumed and the fight waxed hot; the game was worked up to a white heat, both sides playing with the greatest brilliancy and vigor. During this spurt, Lewis and Pratt, of the Mets., drew some dandy play out of Sheehy and Kelly. The former got the ball, but Lewis made it too hot to hold, and Jimmy tipped it to Kelly, but Pratt was on him, and it was sent back to Sheehy. Thus half a dozen changes were made with lightning rapidity, and with a brilliancy that was a great credit to the players concerned. Presently Billy Rudkins and O'Connor got into a tussle behind the goal. The latter picked Billy up bodily, and throwing him heavily, broke his collar bone, and he retired. Geo. Giroux took the vacant place, and play being resumed, in about half a minute, Giroux gave the rubber to Henderson who sent it through.

FIFTH GAME—METS.

This was the rubber, and a red hot game it was from face to finish. The Mets'. flags during this bout, required the most frequent defence, and the home boys did their sharpest checking of the day, every man playing with great energy and skill; they made assault after assault on the Ottawa flags, only to be repulsed and made to think of their own danger. At length after eighteen minutes of rattling play, Lewis got the ball in centre field. He made a good shot on goal, but Joyal neatly parried it, and a scrimmage ensuing around the home flags, one of the Peterborough men accidentally knocked the ball between the poles—thus giving the game and the match, to the Mets—time, 18 minutes.

Thus the Ottawa team won, after a prolonged struggle, one of the most hotly contested, scientifically played and pleasantly put-through games, ever seen on the field. The game was marked by the utmost vigor and determined effort on both sides, yet there was an entire absence of bad spirit, and of anything like rough play, with slight exceptions. There were two instances, one on each side, in which rough play, almost amounting to fouls, was done, but it is probable that a great part of each, was due to the headlong impetus with which the players were urged on. However, not a single dispute or, wrangle, interfered with the smooth and amicable progress of the game.

AFTER THE GAMES,

The usual cheers were given, and the crowd and the clubs adjourned to the town. The Mets did not depart till the 10:45 p.m. train. In the evening the Peterborough boys met the Ottawas at their hotel—the Grand Central—and a couple of hours of social intercourse was most pleasantly spent. The two teams, with their late fierce struggle on the field forgotten, the memory drowned in—well, say oblivion—"chummed it" together like cherubs, and sped the minutes with tale song, and jest, till train time. The home team saw the Mets to their train, and the parting was to "Auld Lang Syne."

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 11, 1884.

A TRIP TO THE NORTH-WEST.

A Townsman's Observations.

MEADOW LEA, MAN., Aug. 29th, 1884.

MR. EDITOR,—I herewith send you a few notes of my journey, that are placed at your disposal :

We took our tickets at Peterborough for Winnipeg by the C.P.R. Left there at 7 a. m. and got to Owen Sound at 4.30 p.m. The cars leave us on the steamboat wharf, so we walk across it and go aboard the steamer Alberta. As we went through the country we saw the work of harvesting was well forward. Many fields were cleared. In others the reapers were at work, or the sheaves were standing, and some low fields of wheat, oats or barley were still green. The general appearance was that of an abundant harvest.

The Alberta is a new ship, built of steel, and is one of three owned and run by the C. P. R. company. This was her first trip since she collided with and sunk a barge on Lake Superior. In this collision the barge sunk in a few minutes, and this vessel was seriously injured and taken to Detroit for repairs. She is a splendid vessel, well built and capable of carrying more than 40,000 bushels of wheat. Her saloons and staterooms are well-fitted up, and the table attendance all that could be desired. At 5.45 p.m. we steamed out into the lake, and met a stiff, fresh breeze.

On Sunday, 24th, the wind had gone down and the lake was calm. In the afternoon we steamed up the Ste. Marie River, and got to the Sault at 4.30 p.m., that is, 23 hours after leaving Owen Sound. We had to wait a few minutes before entering the lock, but when we entered we were locked through in a very few minutes. We steamed out on the broad waters of Lake Superior and in 23 hours made Port Arthur. On Monday there was enough wind to make the water rough and choppy, so that our vessel rolled considerably. This caused some of both passengers and crew to pay tribute to Neptune.

The train waited at Port Arthur to take the passengers that came on our boat. Among the passengers on our vessel was the HON. MR. MILLER,

Attorney-General for Manitoba, on his way home from England, after representing his Province before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. I had never seen him before, nor had I seen any picture of him except that given in Grip, and, though Grip somewhat exaggerates his prominent features, yet the picture is so far good that I could easily recognize that he was the person intended.

After leaving Prince Arthur, 18 hours' run brought us to Winnipeg. We had a few minutes delay at Fort William, and I used the time to run across the railway yard to look at the celebrated Neebing Hotel. Some person there told me it was used as railway offices, and could not now be bought that was paid for it. I was agreeably surprised to find that the Kamisistiquia River is so large a stream. Opposite the railway buildings it is broader for ships to pass or turn around than Owen Sound harbour at the wharf. It is generally believed that the C.P.R. will use this as a shipping place as well as Port Arthur.

For less than an hour's run after leaving Port Arthur, going up the valley of the Kaministiquia, there was some level land land covered with light timber, tamarac, poplar, etc. The soil was a light loam. I suppose it would grow grass, potatoes or oats fairly well. But we were soon in a wretched country. Hills of rock, lakes, swamps and muskegs follow each other in rapid succession as we pass over this miserable country. Many people admire this country because of its wild, rough character. But there is so much of the utilitarian in my nature that I do not admire it because it takes so much room and is apparently good for nothing.

appears to be quite a busy little town. Her hotels sent two respectable omnibuses to the station to meet the train, and appeared to be rewarded by taking away a goodly number of travellers. The town is built on an arm of the Lake of the Woods, on rough, rocky ground, but many of the houses look like neat well built frames, clapboarded and painted white. Near it are several long piles of lumber, such as you may see at Hazlett's mill in your town. We also saw several tugs and small sized steamboats on the lake.

Soon after passing this place we leave the country of rocks, hills and lakes, and pass into level country, covered with light timber, mostly poplar. We have passed, without knowing just where,

FROM ONTARIO INTO MANITOBA.

We should have mentioned that it is morning when we are at Rat Portage, and the ground is covered with white frost. The leaves of the potatoes are blackened because of frost on a previous evening.

About sixty miles east of Winnipeg, we see the houses of settlers with fields of wheat, oats, potatoes, etc. On this line of railway, there are no very extended plains free from trees as there are west of the Red River.

On Tuesday at 11 a. m., we arrived at the C. P. R. Station,

IN THE CITY OF WINNIPEG.

I was in this city six years ago, and I can scarcely recognise a landmark by which I might know it was the same place. Then the shops were small and built of boards, now they are large and handsome, and built of brick. There are a great many drains and sewers under construction on the streets. The openings in some of these sewers allow a passage for water five feet square, and are from twelve to eighteen feet deep. There are several large substantial and handsome buildings in course of erection. Though many a fortune has been wrecked, and many a man has fallen, this city and country go on and prosper. We stopped in the new Douglas Hotel and were hospitably entertained by the [illegible].

On Wednesday we took a trip on board the C. P. R. [illegible] Lake. As we passed the stations, Manitoba, Poplar Point, High Bluff, and towards Portage la Prairie, we saw extensive fields of wheat, oats and barley. The CROPS ARE LOOKING MAGNIFICENTLY.

They give promise of an abundant harvest. As we go along we see here and there very considerable herds of cattle grazing on the open prairie. Many farmers are engaged gathering in and stacking hay for their winter fodder, all of which has been cut off land that has never been broken or tilled. Here and there we see a reaper at work cutting barley or wheat. Self-binders are the machines in commonest use here. It is worthy of remark that the harvest is fully three weeks later in ripening here than it is in Peterborough.

On Thursday, 28th, I went to visit Wm. Taylor, Esq., of Meadow Lea. He comes from the neighborhood of Brampton, is a good practical farmer, has a large farm, a splendid herd of about 120 cattle, among them some handsome short-horns, brought from Guelph; but most of them are grade cattle of superior quality. He milks about about 60 cows; about half of their milk he sends to Winnipeg each day by the C.P.R. Last year he milked about 90 cows, the milk from which he shipped to the city. But others have gone into the milk business and he has reduced his herd.

For practical men who will settle themselves down to work and are willing to adapt themselves to the wants and requirements of the country, there is plenty of room and opportunity for thousands and tens of thousands.

WALKER'S LOAD LIFTER.

A FEW WORDS IN ITS PRAISE.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER :

DEAR SIR :

I desire to make use of a short space in the columns of your valuable paper, to make known to my brother farmers the value of P. G. Walker's patent load lifter. Having used one this season, I consider that no farmer can afford to be without it; with the aid of one horse, the load is raised to the top of the barn, enabling the man on the load to fork the sheaves well into the mow. You can perceive there will be the saving of at least, one man in the mow, besides the advantage of forking down, compared with forking up. There was one slight objection in large barns, that was, the load raised opposite the centre of the mow, and in building each half of the mow separate, as is frequently done, the load had to be forked back to the end. Now, Mr. Walker has overcome that objection, by improving his invention into what might properly be called a double lifter, which I have tried in my barn, and pronounce it perfection, at an extra cost not exceeding five dollars. With the improvement you can raise the load opposite each half of the mow as you desire, enabling the man on the load to fork directly into the mow. I intend to have two more erected for next season, such is my opinion of our neighbour's invention.

Mr. Walker is now prepared to sell county or township rights, and I strongly recommend his invention to any person wishing to engage in a business that will recommend itself, for they must come into general use.

The Cry is "Still They Come"

TO WITNESS ADAM FOREPAUGH'S GREAT PARADE

Thousands are everywhere flocking in to see Forepaugh's great street parade, including the magnificent apectacle of "Cleopatra," which is explained in the following historical account :

"Cleopatra was at this time twenty-five years old. She provided herself with vast sums of money and the most magnificent ornaments and habits, and with still higher hopes in her attractions and the graces of her person, more powerful than dress or even gold, she began her royal pilgrimage. Never was equipage more splendid and magnificent than hers; the whole upper deck of her barge flamed with gold; the sails were purple and inlaid with silver; a pavilion of cloth of gold was raised upon the deck, under which appeared Cleopatra, robed like Venus, and surrounded with the most beautiful virgins of her court, some of whom represented the Nereids and others the Graces. Instead of trumpeters were heard flutes, hautboys and harps, and other instruments of music, breathing the softest airs, to which the oars kept time, and rendered the harmony more agreeable. Perfumes burned on the deck, which spread their odors to a great distance. As soon as her arrival became known, the people of Tarsus went out to meet her, and a rumor was spread that the Goddess of Beauty and Love had come to make Tarsus a visit."

Such is the account given by the historians of the time, of the more than royal splendors and magnificence of Egypt's famous and beautiful queen, on the occasion of her visit to the great Roman triumvir, Marc Antony, who, capable by his prowess, of subduing empires, yet was unable to escape the conquest of his head and heart by Egypt's lovely and luxurious queen.

All the regal splendors that marked the "star-eyed beauty's" royal journey are faithfully and magnificently illustrated in the grand pageant which will be given in the great street parade of Forepaugh's colossal show on Monday, Sept. 15th, the date of its exhibition here.

A host of bodily troubles are engendered by chronic indigestion. These, however, as well as their cause, disappear when the highly accredited invigorant and alterative, Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, is the agent employed for their removal. A regular habit of body, and a due secretion and flow of bile, invariably result from its persistent use. It cleanses the system from all irregularities, and restores the weak and broken down constitutions to health and strength.

THE CANADIAN VOYAGEURS.

The following telegram from Lord Melgund, secretary of the Governor-General, to Colonel W. N. Kennedy, Winnipeg, one of the Red River expedition men and a former resident of Peterborough, explains itself :

"Lord Wolseley telegraphs to me to engage three hundred voyageurs to accompany the expedition to Egypt, to take charge of small boats in the rapids of the Nile. He would like men who were in the Red River expedition. Get fifty good men, with foreman, to accompany the party. Wages from thirty-five to forty dollars per month. The men are required to leave Quebec for Liverpool on Sept. 15th. Only really good boatmen would be taken. Be very particular as to qualification.

"MELGUND."

An Ottawa despatch states that Major Denison, of Toronto, who will have charge of the Canadian contingent of the Gordon relief expedition, arrived in Ottawa to complete arrangements for the departure of the men. Mr. Lambert engaged thirty-five boatmen on Tuesday, and applications are coming in steadily. The majority of the applicants are French Canadians. Captain McLawrine, of Templeton, will have charge of one gang, and Mr. Andrew Campbell will have another.

BELLEVILLE.

The case of Barnhardt v. the Midland Railway has been before the courts for over two years. Our readers will remember the accident on the Grand Junction Railway in 1881, by which a deaf mute by the name of Barnhardt was run over by a passenger train while crossing the track. An action was brought for damages and a verdict for $600 obtained. The company carried the case to the full court, when the verdict was affirmed. The company then appealed to the Court of Appeal, where the case was argued, the appeal being dismissed with costs.

How can we raise more corn to the acher? Why, of course, by using PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor has given universal satisfaction, for it is sure, safe and painless. Like every article of real merit it has a host of imitators, and we would specially warn the public to guard against those dangerous substitutes offered for the genuine Putnam's EXTRACTOR. N. C. OPS.

The death of the late James Gillogley has taken away one of the oldest and most respected residents of the township of Ops. Mr. Gillogley was a native of county Fermanagh, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1841, about 43 years ago. He settled with his wife and family in Ops, about three miles south of Lindsay, where the homestead has been located for years. Although not an active man in municipal matters, he was elected and for some time served as township councillor. He was appointed one of the justices of the peace for the county, and held the position for many years.

A WONDERFUL WOMAN.—There is at present in a certain city in Italy an aged woman of humble origin, who possesses marvellous powers of clairvoyance. She has been consulted by persons of high social standing, and on more than one occasion by royalty itself. She has no power of mesmerizing others, being simply a medium. Her visitor places his hand in hers, when she immediately becomes clairvoyante, and in this state accurately describes his state of health and business, frequently making startling revelations. In the event of any ailment she prescribes herbal cures, often with powerful effect. Persons at a distance send a lock of their hair with a fee, which she holds in her hand, and so places herself en rapport with her patients. The foreign papers seem to have full faith in her powers.

The Most Perfect Thresher. The Most Perfect Separator. The Most Perfect Cleaner ever Offered to the Public. The only True Grain Saver.

JOHN DRYDEN, M.P.P., ON THE "NEW MODEL."

(From the Ontario Reformer, December 21st, 1883.)

Our readers are, probably, all aware that Mr. Dryden, M. P. P., President of the Canadian Shorthorn Breeders' Association, occupies one of the finest farms in the Dominion of Canada, and is one of the best farmers. He cultivates something over five hundred acres of land, and there is scarcely an acre but what is in a high state of cultivation, and the whole farm is free from all weeds or plants which are injurious to crops. Not only does he own one of the finest and best tilled farms in the country, but his stock throughout, whether horses, cattle, or sheep, are of the very best breeds, and all of them fine animals. In every Department Mr. Dryden looks out for the best, whether it is in the line of stock, machinery, or seed grains. He and his neighbor, Mr. Samuel Holman, purchased for their own use, this year, a New Model Vibrating Threshing Machine of the Hall Company, and Mr. Dryden's opinion we give below. Every one who is acquainted with him knows that he would not put his name to any statement which is not correct in every particular; therefore his opinion of the New Model is of great value to those who desire to purchase a threshing machine :—

BROOKLIN, Ontario County, Dec. 13th, 1883

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa :

GENTLEMEN,—We are highly delighted with the 10-Horse Power and New Model Vibrator purchased from you this season. It runs smooth and easy; threshes perfectly; separates thoroughly; and the fanning mill does its work so completely that it cannot be excelled. It is just the machine for the farmers to buy because it is so easy to control. It is comparatively free from dust, there can be no waste of grain, and it is so bound to do good work under every circumstance. We heartily congratulate you on the introduction of so complete a separator, a great boon both to threshers and farmers. Very truly yours

JOHN DRYDEN, M.P.P.,
SAMUEL HOLMAN.

The "New Model" Vibrator Thresher.

MARIPOSA, Sept. 29th 1883.

Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa :

GENTS,—The "New Model" Vibrator I bought from you through your agent, E. Walker, is the best thresher I have ever used. I have been threshing over thirty years; have had eight threshing machines before, but the "New Model" is the best I ever have handled. The farmers I threshed for fairly admire the working of the machine; to see the complete separation of the grain from the straw, cleaning it fit for market, and taking all the small grain out at the same time. I have no hesitation in saying that there is nothing can equal it.

Yours truly,
RICHARD MARKS.

ST. MARY'S, Dec. 13th, 1883.

E. O. Felt, General Agent Jos. Hall Manufacturing Co., London :

DEAR SIR,—The New Model Thresher and Oshawa Engine which we bought from your agent, Jno. Fitzsimmons, is all that you claim for it. The farmers are surprised at the way she cleans the grain. No necessity for a fanning mill while she is around. We can truly and honestly endorse the statement which other threshermen have sent you. Words fail to express our surprise at the work she does, she cannot be beat. We have used a number of machines and consider the "New Model" ahead of them all, and would recommend intending purchasers to examine the "Model" before purchasing. Yours truly,

JOHN LANE,
JAMES MOORE.

"It Takes Splendidly Around Here—It Fans the Grain So Clean that it is Really Fit for Market."

MILVERTON, Feb. 12th, 1883.

Editor Stratford Beacon :

RESPECTED SIR,—Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper to inform my farmer friends as to a new threshing machine which I have lately purchased called the "New Model" Vibrator, made at the Hall Works in Oshawa. I have tested it this winter, and desire to say that it is, without doubt, the very best machine I have seen. It takes splendidly around here. It fans the grain so clean that it is really fit for market. I never saw anything like it. It threshes and separates beyond my expectations. The waste of grain is reduced to the lowest possible point; in fact, does not amount to anything. It is the greatest grain saver I have ever seen; threshes rapidly, is easy on the horses, runs very steadily, all the parts being perfectly balanced, and I see nothing in it to get out of order, or to wear out. I have had a good deal of experience in threshing machines, and say, without the least hesitation, that the "New Model" Vibrator is the best thresher, separator and cleaner made in the country. The machine is well made and well finished. Thanking you for the opportunity of informing my farmer friends of the merits of this machine, I am, Sir, yours truly,

WM. COXON.

No Winding. No Choking, and no Grain Carried Over with the "New Model."

GREENBACK, Township Reach,
Oct. 26th, 1883.

To the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company :

GENTS,—In regard to the 33-inch "New Model" Separator and 10 Horse Down Pitts Power, which I purchased of you in July, I beg to say that as a thresher, separator, and saver of grain, nothing can beat it. I have been threshing for the past twelve years, and this is the best machine I have ever used. It gives great satisfaction to all my customers. I have fifty days work ahead yet, and have been threshing steadily ever since I took the machine from your shop. There has been a great deal of damp grain this year, which has made threshing hard work, but the "New Model" has given such great satisfaction that it has been a pleasure to thresh. No winding, no choking, no waste of grain, and the grain has been cleaned fit for market. There is no machine equal to the "New Model" that I know of.

Yours truly, GEORGE O'LEARY.

An Interesting Test.

From the London Advertiser.

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa, have introduced a new threshing machine called the "New Model" Vibrator. This Machine was invented by Mr. Jacob Miller, of Canton, Ohio, who has for forty years been engaged in manufacturing threshing machines. The "New Model" was first offered to the public in 1879. For 1882 more than one thousand were sold in the United States. The Hall Company have been making some very interesting tests to ascertain the real merits of the machine as a grain saver. A platform was built at the rear of the machine with a slatted bottom, so that all the grain fell upon the slats. It was arranged so that one man could stand on either side of the platform and shake the grain out of the straw, so as to allow it to fall through the slats, throwing the straw over on the ground. A hopper was placed under the platform, and under the hopper a fanning mill was placed. Then fifty bushels of grain was threshed, beginning at the rate of sixty bushels per hour, and working up to one hundred and twenty bushels per hour. After threshing fifty bushels at each of the various speeds, the grain in the fanning mill was cleaned up and weighed. It can be readily seen that in this way a test can be made which would indicate exactly the quantity of grain which would be liable to go into the straw stack. Ten tests were made only a short time ago, and the worst result was the loss of five ounces of wheat in threshing two bushels, which was equal to a waste of one bushel in nineteen hundred and twenty. This is a truely wonderful result, and is valuable because the test has been made in a thorough and systematic manner. All kinds of grain have been tested, and the result was equally satisfactory.

CHANTRY, OCTOBER 14th, 1882.

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa.

GENTLEMEN,—I have got the "New Model" Vibrator fairly at work and it is doing better and better work every day. It feeds easier than the other style of machine, and is a perfect cleaner, does not throw over any and is more durable than any other. As you know, I have had forty years' experience in threshing machines, having bought one of the first machines that came into Canada, from the late Joseph Hall, at Rochester, and have been a continuous thresher ever since. There is no better machine made than the "New Model."

Yours truly, E. W. SHELDON.

Important Letter From an Ops Farmer.

Forty Bushels of Cleaned Barley Saved From Re-threshed Straw.

Ops, February 18th 1883.

To the Editor of the Canadian Post :

SIR,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make the following statement which I know will be of interest to all my farmer friends who read your journal. I employed a threshing machine to thresh my grain on the 26th day of January. It was manufactured by J. Abell, of Woodbridge. On February 6th I employed Messrs. Wetherup & Curtis to finish my threshing with a "New Model" Vibrating threshing machine, manufactured by the Jos. Hall Manufacturing Co., of Oshawa.

Messrs. Wetherup & Curtis re-threshed part of the straw and chaff threshed by the Woodbridge machine, and took therefrom thirty bushels of clean barley.

The "New Model" Vibrator is the most perfect thresher, seperator, and cleaner I ever saw.

Yours very respectfully,
DAVID GRAY,
2nd Con. of Ops.

Elgin County.

It has no Equal in the County of Elgin.

From the Ontario Reformer, Sept. 28th 1883.

The success of the New Model Thresher has been without precedent in the history of threshing machines. The Hall Co. received this week the following letter from Mr. Jonathan Yorke, who resides near St. Thomas, one of the oldest threshermen in Ontario. Mr. Yorke bought a New Model on trial, and this letter expresses his opinion after having tested the machine to his entire satisfaction :—

YARMOUTH CENTRE, Sept. 23rd, 1883.

Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa, Ont :

GENTLEMEN,—I have one of your New Model Vibrators and have threshed this season so far with it. The farmers I have threshed for all say it is the best threshing machine that ever came into their barn. It has no equal in the county of Elgin. I have threshed for thirty-seven years and have used most all other kinds of machines, but this lays them all out for good threshing, separating, and cleaning. The wheat is shrunk here, but it will thresh all the grain out of the heads and separate it from the straw and clean it better than any machine I ever saw. It does not scatter the grain all around the hind part of the machine, so when you get the straw threshed you are done. It does not take half an hour to clean up the floor after you have finished the mow. It does not wind in threshing peas or other grain; it stands still on the floor and no belts fly off to bother you. I would advise any man who wants to buy a threshing machine not to buy any other kind, and I am sure when he tries one he will be satisfied that he has got the boss of them all.

Yours truly, JONATHAN YORKE.

PEEL COUNTY.

Never Saw a Threshing Machine as Nearly perfect as the "New Model."

COOKSVILLE, Dec. 30th, 1882.

To the Editor of the Express, Oakville :

DEAR SIR,—We, the undersigned farmers and old threshers, being desirous of advancing the interests of our farmer friends, take great pleasure in calling their attention to a new threshing machine which we have had the satisfaction of seeing work. It is called the "New Model" Vibrator, and was made by the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., of Oshawa. We have had much experience in threshing, separating, and cleaning grain, but we have never seen a threshing machine so nearly perfect as the "New Model." It runs very smoothly, with scarcely any vibration, every part being so carefully and evenly balanced. It threshes rapidly; in fact it can take all the straw men can give it. It feeds very easily. It separates the grain most thoroughly from the straw; in this respect it is remarkable. And, finally, it cleans the grain more perfectly than we have ever seen it done heretofore. The manufacturers claim that it will thresh two thousand bushels of wheat without wasting more than a bushel, and we believe that the machine will fulfil their claim in this respect. We believe there is no machine offered to the public in Canada which so fully meets the demand for a perfect thresher, separator, and cleaner.

A Great Step in Advance of other Machines.

TAUNTON, Dec. 12th 1883

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa :

GENTLEMEN,—We have now thoroughly tested our New Model Vibrator and Ten Horse Pitts' Power which we purchased of you during the season, and are pleased to say that it gives us unqualified satisfaction. It threshes the grain out of the straw completely and saves every kernel of it more successfully than any other machine we have ever seen or used. It cleans the grain almost fit for market. In this respect it is surprisingly ahead of all other threshers and cleaners. It is light on the horses; does not get out of order; easily managed; and in all respects is a great step in advance of other machines. You are at liberty to refer any one to us who desires to know our opinion of the New Model. We purchased the machine almost entirely for the use of ourselves and a few neighbours, and are well pleased with our purchase.

Yours truly
WILLIAM LANDER,
JOHN LANDER.

TO THE FARMERS AND THRESHERMEN OF CANADA.

Our New Model Vibrating Threshing Machine has now been in use in the United States four seasons and in Canada three seasons. As a perfect grain thresher, separator, and cleaner, it stands without a rival on this continent. No less than 1,200 machines were sold in the U. S. last season. We have now a very large force of men employed and can turn out three or four threshing machines per day. Also engines, horse-powers, clover threshers, &c., &c.

We invite any and all parties who may desire a threshing machine to inspect the New Model Vibrator, or send for our descriptive catalogue which will give full information. We guarantee that every machine we send out will give entire satisfaction or we will return the notes or cash which may have been given us for the same.

A Famous Tree.

About a month ago a history was published of a huge old cottonwood tree, a landmark in Harlem, which had stood on the Clay county side of the river opposite the foot of Main street since a period when the memory of that mysterious character, the oldest inhabitant, runneth not to the contrary.

In those days, when the great west was an unsolved mystery, when Kansas City had never been dreamed of, the old tree was a landmark for wandering Indian traders, or adventurous Spanish explorers on the treacherous and muddy Missouri. The traditions of a century had woven themselves about the gnarled branches of the old tree, and all Harlem turned out to witness its demise.

The tree was cut down May 7th by Capt. Gilkerson and a party of his men. The gradual encroachments of the river had undermined its roots, and it was decided that it was not safe to allow it to stand longer in that situation.

Among the old traditions which lingered about the tree was one to the effect that a large amount of treasure had been buried under its roots. In 1841, when the old Santa Fe trail was the great artery of trade between the rich Mexican country and the United States, a train commanded by Capt. Chaves, still remembered as a trader and explorer, was attacked by robbers beyond the present site of Westport, and over $500,000 in gold and silver bullion stolen and carried away. This treasure, tradition says, was carred across the river and buried underneath the roots of the old cottonwood tree. The robbers were pursued and killed, and with them died the secret of the exact location of the hidden treasure. The ground was turned over for yards and about the roots of the tree a few broad pieces of yellow Mexican gold turned up in the loose earth, but the main body of the treasure was never found.

Yesterday evening Capt. Gilkerson, with a party of men, was ripping the river where the old tree stood, when suddenly a quantity of Mexican silver dollars rolled out of the bank and fell at their feet. The dollars are in a good state of preservation, bearing the stamp of the Mexican republic, dated 1841, and were evidently quite new when they were deposited in their mysterious resting-place. The discovery caused great excitement in Harlem, and the digging was continued with great energy, but no trace of the main body of the treasure could be found. The search will be continued, as it is now considered that the whole treasure must be buried in the immediate vicinity.

The old tree was carried away, piece by piece, by relic-hunters, and no trace of it remains to mark the spot where the treasure of the Chaves train was buried.—Kansas City Star.

The Detective Pinkerton.

Many of the stories told of Allen Pinkerton, the great detective who lately died in Chicago, are characteristic of the man. Among others it is said that when the Michigan Central railroad first started there was a good deal of opposition among farmers and others. Trains were wrecked repeatedly, and the opportunity for plunder attracted the worst characters of the country. Allan Pinkerton was sent for, and undertook in person to ferret out the guilty parties. He finally learned of a plot to wreck a certain train. Repairing to the spot after night he found a culvert where he concealed himself. Groping around in the darkness, he found several crowbars and knew then that he was in the right place. He had been waiting for hours when three men approached the culvert. Pinkerton had doubled himself up in a corner to remain undiscovered. The men took the crowbars and proceeded to tear up the track. Single-handed as he was, he followed the men and declared them to be his prisoners. In the dark of the night, the pistols were whipped out and a fight begun, in which Pinkerton killed two men and wounded the third, who escaped in the darkness. Hardly had Pinkerton ascertained that none of the rails were yet displaced when the train thundered by in safety. That was the last organized attempt at train wrecking.

A horoscope cast by an astrologer in Pittsburg, and recorded in the Dispatch, predicts a violent death for Jay Gould within eight years at the most.

WIT AND HUMOR.

"Twas night, and she stood at the open door,
Looking dreamily out on the moonlight earth;
Her head was cradled to hear throbbing heart,
She moaned and panted for all she was worth.
Her eyes were lustrous, her cheeks aflame—
"Oh, what is this we my frame within?"
And the west wind sobbed to her anxious ear,
"You have eaten too heavy of sarsepria."

Some rise with the lark; others get up when the steam whistle blows. Real comfort is found in lying in bed until one feels like getting up.—New Orleans Picayune.

The recent panic in Wall street was not caused by speculation. It was brought by the wives of the Wall-Streeters attempting to buy all the ingredients for cooking the household recipes published in an enterprising evening paper.

When you take a couple of dozen wire window-screens, and attempt to adjust them in the sashes, it is always the last screen you try that fits. There is only one screen, come to think of it, that fits first, and that is the last one; and that is because there is none to follow it.—Puck.

"Where in the world have you been?" demanded a wife of her husband. "It's nearly 3 o'clock in the morning." "I know (hic) it is, my dear. But I cannot tell a lie. I've been working at the office." "Well, I can tell a lie," she replied, sharply, "the moment I hear it, and——" Then the fur flew.—New York Sun.

"What a beautiful girl that is!" exclaimed Fogg. "Such a rare complexion!" "You may well call it rare," muttered Mrs. F.; "it certainly is not well done." Husband and wife may be one in every other regard; but when they begin discussing another woman's good looks you will find two opinions.—Boston Transcript.

We learn from a foreign correspondent that "Zoan's necropolis has been found." It appears to have been lost nearly two thousand years. Mr. Zoan would have probably found his lost necropolis much earlier if he had advertised it in the columns of a daily paper, and offered a suitable reward.—Norristown Herald.

A malicious boy created a panic in a Montreal hotel one day recently by thrusting his head into the dining-room and calling out: "Here comes an officer from New York with a warrant." It was several hours before some of the most nervous guests could be persuaded to come out of the woods and return to their meal.

If a train is advertised to arrive at 11 and doesn't put in an appearance until 12, it is said to be behind time. Any one who can tell us the whyforeness of the thusly will receive, by return mail, a second-handed wooden leg, almost as good as new.—Puck.

Walter Davidge, in a Washington court the other day, listened patiently for an hour or so to the tiresome argument of the opposing counsel. "Your Honor," said the latter, toward the end of his argument, "I have an idea ——" "Your Honor," broke in Davidge, "give him a writ of habeas corpus to take it out of solitary confinement."—Buffalo Express.

Last week, when about to break up for the holidays, Mr. Spurgeon dismissed his young men with a caution. "Don't go courting. That is not good for students. Come back, as some one puts it, with your hearts and manners uncracked. Walk in the fields like Isaac, by all means, and meditate, but don't lift up your eyes for Rebecca. She will come soon enough."

A fashionable lady, who was well known as a collector of bric-a-brac, was taken very ill and told by her physician that she must die. Then she sent for her dearest friend. "Promise me," she said to the weeping woman, "that you will be a mother to my dear——." "Children? Yes, love, you know I will." "No, no," interrupted the dying woman, petulantly, "to my little pitchers." "I cannot," sobbed her friend; "I do not care to assume such responsibility." "Then I must leave them to a cold, heartless world," sighed the dying connoisseur.

The slangy, loud and "horsey" hotel clerk has had his day in the larger cities. He is occasionally met in smaller towns, but is no longer looked upon with favor—even the commercial traveler being inclined to give him the cold shoulder. The change reflects credit upon both the clerk and the drummer.

Professors of the University of Jena, who have been investigating the effect of tobacco upon the human system, report that moderate quantities of the weed may be used without injurious effects. They say that in the German army soldiers in active service are very properly furnished with smoking tobacco, because smoking enables them to endure severer fatigue upon smaller nutrition and with greater alacrity and confidence than would otherwise be the case.

Seals and Sea-Lions.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Sloss, of the Alaska Commercial company, we have been able to examine Prof. Henry W. Elliott's observations on the life history of the seal and sea-lion of Alaskan waters. Prof. Elliott tells us that the fur-seals which repair to the islands of St. Paul and St. George, of the Pribylov group, are in numbers almost fabulous. They go to land to shed fur and hair and to breed. The seal life of that region is classified under the head of fur-seal, sea-lion, the hair-seal, and the walrus. Of the true fur-seal, the professor goes so far as to say that there is no other animal known to man superior to this from a purely physical point of view, and for creatures exhibits as high an order of instinct approaching even to intelligence. A male is in his prime at six or seven years, measures 6½ to 7½ feet in length, and weighs at least 400 pounds, some reaching 600 pounds. The comparatively small head is almost all occupied by the brain, the large bluish hazel eyes alternately burn with revengeful, passionate light, then suddenly change to the tones of tenderness and good nature. When it seeks the land it is in its fattest condition. In from six weeks to three months the superfluous fat is consumed by self-absorption, and the bones show under the shrunken skin. It does not seek the place of its birth, but aims for land without regard to special location. The seal-weather is "the foggy, humid, oozy damp of summer," and about the 1st of June the males select their positions, after the most extraordinary brutal contests which man can witness. The females arrive a few weeks later. The body is covered with two coats, the short, crisp overhair concealing the soft, elastic fur. In contrast with that of the males the behavior of the females is described as of "exceeding peace and dove-like amiability." The females are four to four and a half feet long, and more shapely than the males. They do not have protracted fasts like the males, and have no great masses of blubber to sustain fasting. Soon after they give birth they leave their young on the ground and go to sea for food, returning perhaps next, or not for several days, in the meantime speeding to distant fishing-banks to satiate their hunger. The head and eye are exceedingly beautiful; the expression is really attractive, gentle, and intelligent. The large, lustrous, blue-black eyes are humid and soft with the tenderest expression, while the small, well-formed head is poised as gracefully on her neck as can well be imagined. She is the very picture of benignity and satisfaction when she is perched upon some convenient rock and has an opportunity to quietly fan herself, the eyes half-closed, and the head thrown back on her gently-swelling shoulders. Prof. Elliott declares that he never saw any driving of the young pups into the water by the old ones, in order to teach them to swim, as certain authors have positively affirmed. The pups blunder into the water awkwardly, and become the most expert swimmers only after many discomfitures.—San Francisco Bulletin.

T. G. Appleton, who died recently, once advertised a fine horse for sale "for no other reason than that the owner wished to leave Boston." The inner facts were that the horse always refused to go over a bridge, and that it was impossible to leave Boston without going over a bridge.

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral.

No other compounds are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so tried with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unnecessary exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal disease. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1877 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed nights after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 61 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it choked as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved [illegible]. Can you wonder at our [illegible]?"

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that it did for me what I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRADDOX."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1883.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 11, 1884.

The Mowat Reception.

The indications are that the reception to be accorded Hon. Mr. Mowat, in Toronto, on September 16th, and the accompanying demonstration in his honor, will be one of the grandest political ovations, which a Canadian ever received. From every part of the province, we receive accounts of active preparations for the great event, and it is probable that every riding in the province, will be more or less largely represented, and that the total number who will take part in the demonstration will be well up into the thousands. Excursions from all points are being arranged, and it looks as though Toronto will be almost overwhelmed with the Liberals of Ontario, on the 16th. A prominent feature will be the presence of a large number of young men to pay their tribute to the wise administration of Mr. Mowat. The most of these have imbibed their ideas of Liberal principles from their personal observations of Mr. Mowat, as their exponent, during his regime. They have no by-gone recollections to confirm their allegiance to Liberalism. Their personal observation of Hon. Mr. Mowat's honorable, straightforward and patriotic career, has compelled the expression of admiration of him as a statesman, true to his trust and his province, which they will render on the 16th inst. It is expected that there will be a large representation from these two ridings. Let it be understood that every true Reformer, every elector who is desirous of upholding the rights of this province, will be expected to take part in the demonstration. On Monday, tickets will be issued on all railways, at reduced rates, particulars of which will be found in another column. Let it be distinctly understood, that no certificate will be required to make any elector a delegate, and entitle him to a reduced fares. It is desirable that as many as possible should reach the city on Tuesday morning, so as to be in readiness to join in the procession at 11.30. In addition to the demonstration, the banquet in the Granite Rink will be an important feature of the occasion, and as the accommodation is necessarily limited, those who propose attending, should make early application for tickets. Tickets to the banquet are $2.00 each, which may be had on application at the EXAMINER office, where also beautiful badges bearing an excellent portrait of Hon. Mr. Mowat, can be obtained. We hope that every Liberal in these ridings, who can make it convenient to attend, will do so, and unite with the Liberal host of Ontario, in doing honor to a statesman, who has spent the prime years of his life in maintaining the rights of the province, and giving it the blessings of wise, economical and honest Reform rule.

A Refuge for Rogues.

There is a terrible laxity of morals in the United States, especially amongst those persons occupying positions of trust, involving the custody of money. The worship of the "almighty dollar," has created a mania for its possession, which overides all moral restraints. The fiscal policy of the country, permits monopolists to enrich themselves by robbing the consumer, and the average bank cashier, infected by the example thus set, betrays his trust by misappropriating the funds under his charge, and robs the orphan in a less legalized way, but just as effectively. To escape the punishment of these methods of getting rich, which the law does not recognise, all the plunderers have to do, is to step over the border into Canada, and enjoy their ill-gotten wealth in perfect security—there are no extradition provisions to molest them. This is a subject that should have the promptest international attention. We do not want this country to be made a rogues' refuge. We have enough immorality of our own to guarantee us the status of modern civilization; we do not desire, by giving these scoundrels sanctuary, to be participes criminis of robbing the widow and orphans, who have entrusted hard earnings to a bank, whose cashier has stolen its funds and sought refuge in Canada, by even passively shielding them from the punishment due their crimes. Let such an extradition treaty be framed, that the thieves may be sent back, and made to disgorge and suffer proper punishment. Let a similar method be meted to our own defaulters. The mere crossing of an international boundary line, should shield no offender against the most trivial breach of law, (outside of political offences) from the grasp of its officers. The long and easily passed boundary line between Canada and the United States, combined with the absence of an extradition treaty, comprehensive in its scope and simple in application, offers a premium to crime. There would be much less crime in either country, did not the perpetrators feel sure that by stepping across the boundary line, they would be free from responsibility to the laws they had outraged.

European Politics.

The political situation in Europe is full of warlike possibilities—so exceedingly strained are the relations of some of the great powers, that a very slight increase of tension, may result in a hostile rupture. England has, through the complications arising from the Egyptian question, incurred the hostility of Germany, Austria, and France. The latter is particularly bitter. The tone of the French press is insultingly hostile to England. An intense jealousaly of England's intentions in Egypt, keeps France in continual hot water. Every movement of the former is construed into an attack more or less covert on French interests. The Gordon expedition is the latest grievance. It is declared that the presence of British troops in Egypt, is a menace to French interests in the East. It is feared that in case the Chinese squabble, results in a Franco-Chinese alliance, the Sues Canal will not be allowed to be used for the transport of French troops. In view of this, the French papers assert that there are 3,000 French troops in Algeirs, ready to be utilized to seize Cairo and hold it as a pledge against England's interference in Chinese matters. But the French are apparently indulging in a great deal of bluster. They will think twice, before they provoke a war with England. History furnishes ample grounds for the prediction, that they will do so at their peril. The suspicious friendliness of Germany to France cannot be much counted on. Bismark would probably like nothing better then to encourage France to get into trouble, without assisting her out of it. He has his game to play—the elections to the Reichstag are coming on, and he is, no doubt, using the occasion to secure a larger majority than he is at present favoured with. If France provokes hostilities with England, counting on Germany's assistance, she will be as sorely disappointed as she will be in the result of such hostilities, in any event.

France and China.

The news that war has broken out in Anam between the French and Chinese can hardly be said to be surprising or unexpected. It has been asserted that extreme and unwonted atrocity characterized the invaders from the first in their dealings with the natives, and reprisals and complications such as have arisen were the natural consequences of the barbarous treatment they received.

There are, perhaps, very few persons who know that Anam is but another name for Cochin China, and still fewer who are aware of the circumstances under which the French occupied that country. Let us briefly recite some interesting particulars on this latter point.

France first obtained a foothold there through Roman Catholic missionaries. By a treaty, made as far back as 1787, a certain territory was ceded to France in consequence of the French Revolution. In the meantime, however, the missionaries there suffered persecution at the hands of the natives. Ever since that time outrages have been frequent. In 1847, a serious conflict ensued in consequence of an endeavour on the part of France to enforce upon the Anamese Government the toleration, if not the acceptance of Christianity. About 1858, the murder of several missionaries was made by the French a sufficient cause for revenge, and also a pretext for colonial aggression.

In 1861 Anam was defeated, and the following year a treaty was concluded, placing the government of Cambodia under the government of France. In 1863 revolt against French rule led to other schemes of conquest, and resulted in three other provinces of Cambodia being declared French territory, the whole constituting what is now called French Cochin China.

This territory, though exceedingly fertile, on account of the annual inundation of the Mekong, or great river of Cambodia, has never quite equalled the expectations of the French, by reason of the damp, unhealthy climate. This river, too, is not navigable, so that trading vessels by this route are unable to reach China. On the other hand, the navigability of the Songcoi, flowing into the Gulf of Tonquin, guaranteed the much-desired water-way, and so measures were taken for the complete subordination of Anam to French interests. In 1874, Tudel, the King, recognized by treaty the protectorate of France, and agreed to open the ports of Tonquin and the Songcoi River to foreign trade. When the Chinese government heard of this proceeding they strongly objected, claiming that the King had no right to make this treaty without their consent, Anam being a suzerainty of China. The French naturally took the King's side in this quarrel, it being in their interests to do so. Here, then, we have the causes which led up to the war, now, unfortunately, in active operation.

On the part of France it has been from the first, as will be seen, a case of colonial aggression. If it was necessary to punish the inhabitants of Anam for outrages committed on Christian missionaries, it was not necessary, at any rate, to get possession of their country.

The occupation of this territory, adjacent to China and in some measure under her control, could not be regarded otherwise than as hostile to that country. Even the King who made the concessions objected to by China, is now against the French and with the Chinese.

Whatever may be the result of this unhappy conflict, it is pretty certain France will be taught a lesson, which an aggressive power is indeed most unwilling to learn, viz.: to restrain its ambition by respecting the rights of others. China is by no means ignorant of modern warfare. Both sea and land forces are supplied with the very best appliances for the art of war, their officers are equal to their equipments, and whatever France may try to show for a time by means of cooked telegrams, the result of the contest may well be considered extremely doubtful.

Editorial Notes.

Mowat is going—to have nearly twenty majority next session, says the Welland Tribune.

Mr. Belleau, Conservative M. P. for Levis, Q., has been unseated for securing his election by bribery and mulcted in full costs. One by one the Tory corruptionists are being made to "walk the plank."

It is reported that Sir John is contemplating adding the Island of Jamaica to the Dominion of Canada. That would be another calf, the Welland Tribune remarks, for Ontario, the milch cow of the Dominion, to suckle.

Those dear old gossips, the Dominion senators, will have some congenial matters to dwaddle over next session. There are six notices of applications for divorce given. Our political pensioners will revel in social nastiness for a few weeks, and charge the county $150,000.

The editors of the Port Hope Guide and Orillia Times have each a libel suit on their hands. That of the Times is criminal libel of a fellow journalist—the News-Letter, while friend Wilson of the Guide is to be asked to furnish a financial salve for a wounded reputation. The charge of criminal libel against the editor of the Times at the preliminary hearing, before the magistrates, was dismissed, no evidence having been adduced to support it.

The government returns of the amount of liquors sold for "medicinal" purposes in Prince county, Prince Edward Island, under the Scot Act, shows that the people of that county are very unhealthy. On an average, every man, women, and child, found it necessary to take medicinally, four doses of liquor. Whisky seems to be a favorite medicine, the quantity of this powerful medicine taken, being about five times as great as that of any other liquor.

The Lennox election resulted in an exceedingly full expression of the opinions of the electors. The vote was the largest ever polled in the riding, at any one election. The result has terribly disgusted the Conservatives. The way the Kingston News regards the situation, shows how much the opinion of the electors is respected by the Tories. Before the election, it indulged in the following graceful tribute to the electors of Lennox:

"A more intelligent body of voters than those in Lennox is not to be found in any constituency in Canada.

After the election, it indulged in the following disgraceful dictation:

"It is quite time the electors of Lennox were told what they really are. They are scrupulously careless, diligently sluggish and sublimely thick-headed."

In his speech in Kingston last Friday Hon. Mr. Blake exposed the lop-sided nature of the N. P., which promised protection to the farmers. The farmers are entirely unprotected, practically, yet they have invested in their business one thousand and five millions of dollars, while the manufacturers have only eighty millions invested in their industries. But as the latter includes blacksmiths, saw and flour mills, representing thirty million dollars, which the N. P. has only injured, it can only be said that fifty millions were actually invested in protected manufactures, or an amount only equal to one year's interest at 5 per cent. on the farmers' capital. And yet the N. P. was to be an especial boon to the farmer. Wool at 17 cents a pound, wheat at 75 cents, and barley at 50 cents per bushel, with high taxes on almost everything he consumes, is the way he is protected by the blessed N.P.

By taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla many a poor sufferer who submits to the surgeon's knife because of malignant sores and scrofulous swellings, might be saved, sound and whole. This will purge out the corruptions which pollute the blood, and by which such complaints are originated and fed.

IT PAYS WELL TO BUY GOOD!

You have heard of the smartness of the old lady's sons. She shut them up in a room together, and they both made their fortunes trading jack-knives. You remember the joke and you get the idea.

On the edge of the Fall Season's Trade, we part to say a something to you about business—your business of buying what you need—and now is as good a time as any.

This season we come before you as Direct Importers. Is there anything in that for us? Is there anything in that for you?

Read on a little further and we'll tell you.

Our buyer, when in England, found Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers, both holding great lots of almost everything in our trade; holding—not for better prices—but for buyers. Buyers were scarce. There was stagnation.

Now our buyer bought freely, judiciously, and bought well. He bought good.

We were not burdened with goods. We had the requisite outlet in our large trade to handle a directly imported stock. Our buyer bought to undersell the retail market here and make a profit.

Our sales are going to be more—not less—than last year, for we adapt our buying and selling to the times we are in.

We offer you a stock bought to sell. This we know, and it's for you to prove it.

We shall not try here to enumerate the lines of goods in which we can offer you exceptional good value. You'll hear of them presently. We'll finish our business talk by saying:—

Our Stores are full of Goods—our own importations—and our prices are what our view of the opportunity makes them. We won't ask you to buy the things of fashion. It's a time for getting almost all the substantial staple things to wear, and to keep home with.

It's a time for you to make your money by your spending of it.

It's a time for caution, but the caution is to be shown in choosing where and what you buy, and the bargains you make.

And surely when by our trade policy the bottom is reached in goods, and we offer to you the top of the purchasing power of money, you'll neglect your own interests if you fail to buy from us.

SOUTH MONAGHAN.

Successful Harvest Home Festival—A Pleasant Day's Enjoyment.

A delightful Harvest Home Festival was held in the New Agricultural Hall, South Monaghan, on Tuesday last, under the auspices of the South Monaghan Agricultural Society. There was a fair attendance from Peterborough, a considerable number, accompanied by the Fire Brigade Band, which played during the day in its usual first-class style, going down the river on the Whistle-Wing. The physical wants of the large attendance of the public at the hall, were bountifully provided for by the ladies, who made a fine spread, every way creditable to their taste and culinary skill. A lacrosse match between a Peterborough team and one from Millbrook was on the programme, but the former failed to be present and great disappointment was felt. The Peterborough lacrosse club should be cautious about making engagements they cannot or do not fulfil. As it was, the public missed the sport and had to be content with an exhibition of the game by the Millbrook club. During the afternoon short addresses were delivered by Messrs. Geo. A. Cox, Mayor of Peterborough, Dr. Kincaid, ex-Mayor Lundy, J. R. Stratton, of THE EXAMINER, W. Ferguson, Reeve of Millbrook, D. W. Dumble, Councillors R. S. Davidson and Cahill, and Mr. Riddell, Reeve of the township. Allusion was made by all the speakers to the desirability of securing closer commercial relations between South Monaghan and the town by building a bridge at Rose's.

IN THE EVENING

an entertainment was given in the Hall by the Obrey Company, assisted by the Fire Brigade Band. Messrs. M. Dunn and A. Elliott contributed songs, and Mr. W. Dixon gave an exhibition of ventriloquism. The entertainment was largely attended and gave great satisfaction. The Dominion piano used on the occasion was kindly loaned by Mr. J. J. Irwin, Peterborough. The affair throughout was most enjoyable and successful, and reflects the greatest credit upon all concerned in the management. The receipts, in aid of the funds of the new hall, were large. We congratulate the Society on its success, and hope that their next venture in providing a first-class entertainment will be marked by as great success.

Several cases of Millinery Goods arrived at Turnbulls; all the latest Trimmings, Ornaments, etc., are now in stock.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Thomas Munro, dry goods merchant, Belleville, formerly of Munro & Alexander here, was in town on Friday.

Mr. James Elmsley of Belleville is in town for a week's visit, the guest of his son-in-law, Mr. J. C. T. Lacey.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gladman, and Miss Ullyott, have returned home from their tour in the Western States.

Judge Lucky, of Rochester, has been visiting our back lakes, and he thought his name never so appropriate to his condition, as when enjoying the bracing breezes and five-pound bass of our back lakes.

We are glad to notice again amongst us, Rev. J. W. R. Beck, rector of St. Johns, who, has returned from his trip to the "old country," with renewed health and energy, for the discharge of his pastoral and sacerdotal duties.

Mr. A. W. Jones has been appointed head master of the south ward public school, in the place of Mr. Kidd, resigned. Mr. Jones is a young gentleman of good literary qualifications, and will no doubt justify the wisdom of his appointment.

The liberality is to be highly commended, of Messrs. J. Newhall, W. Croft, Frank White and Wm. Whalen, who, at the request of Mr. D. Belleghem, who conducted the funeral of the late Mr. Maitland, furnished hacks for the occasion free of price.

Mr. W. H. Ketchum, of the office of the Superintendent, Midland Division, G. T. R. has, we are pleased to learn, been promoted to the position of chief clerk of the Passenger Department, in place of Mr. C. H. Beasley, transferred to the Audit Office, Montreal.

Messrs. W. H. Dayman, W. Cushon, Harry Dunn, Fred Billings, J. J. Lynch, A. Seney, Thos. Sanderson, Fred Cameron, J. Pidgeon, J. Callaghan and W. Watson, are "the stuff" from which will be selected the nine to compete in the base ball tournament in Lindsay next week.

Several carloads of sawas, who had attended the meetings of the British Science association, Montreal, passed through Peterborough on Thursday evening, en route for Toronto and the west—as far as the Rocky Mountains. So immense a collection of solid science will hardly ever pass the town again.

Mr. M. O'Brien, who has been in the employ of the owners of Martin's flouring mills, (now the Dominion Mills) since their erection, has resigned his position. The customers of the mills, who for 21 years, have been accustomed to Mr. O'Brien's genial presence, will regret his departure.

Mr. Charles Russell, at the recent second class examinations, took so high a standing as to win the Lord Lorne bronze medal, presented to collegate institutes, for the pupil taking the highest number of marks in the second class examinations. Mr. Russell, "smashed" the paper—so to speak—on mental arithmetic.

Mr. C. L. Burgess and wife, of New York city, were in town. Mr. Burgess has been doing our back lakes. Being asked about the fishing, he epitomized his opinion in the words, "well, I caught a five-pound bass in Lovesick Lake yesterday morning, and I guess that's fishing." Every visitor from abroad, is a standing advertisement of Peterborough and the unrivalled piscatorial possibilites of its vicinity. On starting for Peterborough, both Mr. and Mrs. Burgess thought they were coming to a back-woods village, where one could fish off the back porch, and shoot deer and b'ar from the back door. The latter left two large trunks containing her "good clothes," bringing only her picnic wardrobe, and she was as much non-plussed at being set down in a bustling "city" like Peterborough, as a man would be who unexpectedly dropped in to a dinner party, in a cricketting coat. Mr. Burgess is greatly taken with Peterborough, as a thriving town, and with the scenery and fishing grounds of our lakes. He vows he will spend next summer here, even if he is a candidate for governor. We will welcome a hundred of such whole-souled Yankees as he is.

Reminders.

Remember the exhibition of the Horticultural Society in the Opera House this (Thursday) evening. There will be a fine exhibition, well-worth seeing. Admission ten cents.

Remember the Chemong Lake Regatta today (Thursday). A fine progamme of races is provided, and a baseball match will be among the attractions. 'Busses will be run from the town to the Park. Don't miss the regatta.

Fashionable Wedding.

On Wednesday afternoon last, the marriage of Mr. G. W. Hatton, of the firm of Hatton & Wood, barristers, and Miss Fanny Campbell, daughter of Jas. Campbell, Esq., "Walkerfield," was solemnized by the Rev. J. W. R. Beck, at St. John's church. The church was crowded to witness the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hatton go abroad for a honeymoon tour. We beg to offer the compliments suitable to so delightful an occasion, and to give the newly wed. our warmest wishes for future happiness.

A good selection of Ladies' Jerseys, Black and Coloured, just received at Turnbulls.

The Mowat Demonstration.

The arrangements in connection with the reception to Hon. Oliver Mowat, have been completed. The honorable gentleman arrives in Toronto on Tuesday, Sept. 16th, by special train from Hamilton, at 11.30 a.m. Previous to that hour the procession will have been formed at the G. T. R. Station, and move towards the Queen's Park on the arrival of the train. At the Park, after the presentation of addresses to the Attorney General, speeches will be delivered by him and leading members of the Liberal party. In the evening a banquet will be given in honor of Mr. Mowat in the Granite Skating Rink Badges, suitable for the occasion, have been issued by the executive committee. Representatives from each riding or county should have a banner, upon which should be painted the name of the riding or county. The railway companies will issue tickets to excursionists as follows: On Monday, 15th Sept., return tickets at the rate of one dollar for the first 33 miles, and two cents a mile for each additional mile. On Tuesday, 16th Sept. return tickets at one single fare. In both instances the tickets will be good to return until Monday, the 22d Sept. Every Reformer who can reach Toronto on the 16th inst., whether formally appointed a delegate or not, will take part in the procession. County or city associations should arrange to have every one act as a delegate who can be induced to visit Toronto.

FRASERVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The following is a report of pupils who took the highest number of marks in each class for the month of August, in S. S. No. 9, Cavan, and No. 4, North Monaghan:—Senior Fourth.—1st, James Laing; 2nd, Hannah Campbell. Junior Fourth.—1st, Helena Emerson; 2nd, Ada Rae. Senior Third.—1st, Ida Dunlop; 2nd, Mary Latimer. Junior Third.—1st, Annie Magee; 2nd, Annie Cunningham; 3rd, Wm. Halloran. Second.—1st, Minnie Clark; 2nd, David Cunningham; 3rd, Wm. Cunningham. Part Second.—1st, Maud Laing and Bessie Goodfellow; 2nd, Martha Atchison; 3rd, Joseph Patterson. Owing to the busy season the attendance during the month was not quite as large as usual. Average, 33.

A garden party, in connection with St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Peterborough, was held on Wednesday evening, September 3rd, at Mr. Wm. Stewart's, Otonabee. Everything was got up in first-class style, and undoubtedly was a rich treat to all who availed themselves of the opportunity by "taking it in." The ice cream was excellent, and the I-screams were numerous. Professor Jackson and wife caused a musical breeze to pass over the audience occasionally, highly appreciated by all. The Misses Stewart, together with Messrs. McKee, Elliott and Leary, also brought the assembly to a standstill in order to rightly appreciate the beautiful singing which was being so cheerfully rendered. Plays, eating, drinking, gossiping, etc., characteristics of garden parties, were well attended to. The evening's performance passed off very pleasantly; the attendance was large, and, indeed, great praise is due Mr. and Mrs. Stewart and family on account of their hospitality, and also because of the much trouble there is in connection with such festivals. Receipts of evening, $24.50.

The brethren of No. 46 L. O. Lodge intend having an excursion to Idyl Wild on Sept. 23rd. This undoubtedly will be a pleasant trip and will be largely attended, therefore, withhold not thyself from a good day's sport.

The grain in this vicinity is all cut, and the greater part of it is under cover. The yield, as far as heard from, is superior to what it has been for the last five or six years.

Mr. Price has been appointed section boss at Bethany, and intends leaving here at once.

Mr. J. Robertson, formerly merchant here, intends ere long to remove to Peterborough.

Mr. A. Stewart is rapidly learning the essentials for a prosperous merchant. We wish him success.

D. C. Throop, formerly teacher here, made us a short visit and was heartily received by all; he is looking well.

OTONABEE.

THE LATE WILLIAM CLEARY.

Mr. Wm. Cleary one of the oldest settlers of this township died very suddenly, on Sunday evening last. He was in Peterboro' at church in the morning. In the evening he was in the family circle enjoying his usual health. The family retiring, left him alone, and that was the last they saw of him alive. He was found dead in his bed on Monday morning. The deceased was a native of Cork, Ireland, from which country he came to Canada, in 1825, and settled in Otonabee, where he has lived continuously till the day of his death. He was married to Catherine Doherty, (who died exactly three weeks before her husband's demise) and the union was blessed with eight children, of whom five are living. All are married except one daughter. Deceased was in politics a Reformer. The funeral took place on Tuesday when a large concourse of neighbors and acquantances followed the remains of their respected friend to the R. C. Cemetery, Peterborough.

WELL PROTECTED.

Paris Ont., has a first class volunteer fire department, a hose company at the station, 20 men; an engine company at the station 30 men; a hose company at the town hall, 30 men; a steam fire engine, with paid engineer and fireman; waterworks (Gravitory) with 85 lbs. pressure at lower levels up to 30 at the station, with numerous hydrants; a hook and ladder waggon (new) of the very best description, and a good company to run same; besides, there are five hose reels at different parts of the town each having 250 feet of mostly new hose

Cricket Match.

A cricket match was played on the Ashburnham grounds on Wednesday, between the home eleven and the Syracuse team. The first innings resulted in a majority of 45 for the Peterborough team—135 to 90. The double figures were Norley, 65, W. Sabin, 22, and T. Ruthertord, 17. For the visitors the extra-digit figures were, McLachlan, 20, Smith, 17, Calthrop, 33, and Turton, 12.

Few Rich Men in California.

The majority of people in this State are not rich. There was a time when the glamour of wealth seemed to be over all the State. There are not so many rich people in California to-day in proportion to the population as there are in each one of the older States of the Union. There is less warrant for costly living or for domestic expenditures on the scale of prospective fortunes. Looking to the future, one might inquire what are the prospective sources of wealth? There are no more great fortunes to be made in railway construction, few or no great fortunes to be made in mining ventures, the stock boards are no longer prominent. Only the slow processes of wealth are left—agriculture, manufactures and industrial pursuits generally, which are most fitting for a people who are not wealthy, but who have not yet quite forgotten the lives of their fathers and mothers—the domestic economy by means of which large families were well brought up, educated and sent out into the world to make their own way successfully.—San Francisco Bulletin.

A ragged little girl in a London school was recently asked why Adam and Eve were turned out of Paradise. She promptly answered: "Because they didn't pay their rent." Her parents had been evicted for non-payment of rent several times within a few months.

[Peterborough Markets.

PETERBOROUGH, Sept 16th, 1884

There is no change in the movement of grain. Prices without any particular change. Fall wheat may be quoted at about 80c. Spring wheat selling at about 80c., being a drop of 5c., and likely to be lower. In Barley there is nothing doing, may be quoted at 50c. to 55c., not enough offering to establish prices. Farmers are slow to offer their wheat at present prices, but we fear they may have to accept less money before long. The market on all grains may be put down as flat. On the Market, Saturday, the attendance was fair. Roll butter was in better demand and brought 20c. to 22c. Eggs in fair supply and sold at about 15c., retail. Potatoes were slow sale and could be bought freely at 50c. per bag. Sweet apples sold from 50c. to 60c. per bag. Sour or cooking brought 60c. to $1 per bag, by the peck, 20c. to 25c. The bulk offering was of a poor quality. Tomatoes sold at about 25c. per peck—some very good offering. Fresh lamb brought 7c. to 9c. Other commodities unchanged.

BITTERS

Now is the time to cleanse the system of humors and Bad Blood. The use of Crowfoot Bitterr in the spring will do this, and at the same time strengthen. Men, women children use it.

What the Druggist Says.

Dear Sirs,—The Crowfoot Bitters are selling rapidly here and giving remarkable satisfaction, as evidenced by the demand which is daily increasing.

PARKIN & Co., Owen Sound.

It Has Made a New Man of Me.

I am the most agreeably surprised man in this section of the country. I don't think any one could feel worse physically than I did when I commenced taking Crowfoot Bitters. It has made a new man of me. It is the best dollar I ever spent. I could not eat or sleep, and felt miserably dejected. After taking Crowfoot I could eat, sleep, had a splendid appetite and felt fine-rate. I believe it to be the best medicine of the period for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

She flushed to her very brow, and a wild terror came into her eyes.

"To save him, only to save him," she said. "You know I dared not trust him alone; and he is safe—at least not if he knew—Philip; but oh, what is in your face, Nat? Your eyes look so into mine. He knows then that I went away——"

"He knows, missy." The man spoke low and falteringly. "He came back this evening, and Mrs. Robertson, she saw you leave with Mr. Arnold, and the girl Bridget, she heard you speakin' to him before, and they found that there note I give you on the course, and the master read it, missy. Dear Miss Erica, for pity's sake don't so; ye ain't goin' to faint?"

"Faint!" she echoed, and drew her hands from his and knelt down by the table, resting her forehead on them, and rocking herself to and fro with a low moan. "Go on, go on."

"The master, he sent for me, but I couldn't say nothin', missy, seein' as how ye telled me not."

"Yes, yes; and how did he look, and what did he say—say of me?" she asked with feverish rapidity, and she moistened her parched lips and lifted her eyes a moment on him.

The man was silent. How could he tell her she was in Philip St. John's eyes a dishonored wife?

She rose up and came to him, an almost fierce gleam in her eyes, and her slender fingers closed on his arm with a clasp like iron.

"The truth," she whispered hoarsely; "I will know the truth. You shall tell it me—I must hear it. Tell me—I shall go mad!"

Frightened, Nat put his arm quickly round her shoulders. "Dear Miss Erica, perhaps some day he won't be so hard on ye."

"He thinks it now," she said, in the same way; "he thinks—what can he think but that I am—oh, great Heaven!" she broke down into wild, bitter weeping that shook her from head to foot. "Am I lost—lost? Has he cast me out? Am I dishonored in his eyes? Oh, no, no; I will not believe it. I cannot, I cannot bear this—his love was all I had."

She struggled passionately for control, and lifted her head, tossing back her long hair with an almost wild gesture.

"But I will go to him," she continued excitedly; "I will beseech his mercy; he will surely trust me!"

She turned, and putting out her hands like one who gropes in darkness, moved to the door. But Nat sprang forward and stood between it and her, and she drew back with a haughty defiant flash in the large eyes.

"You dare not stand between me and my husband," she said. "Let me pass, I am not afraid of the night; let me go, and I will plead with him—he will see me."

"He won't see you, Miss Erica," said the man, earnestly. "I'm afraid to let you go. You mustn't, missy; you mustn't, indeed."

"Let me go," she cried out, frantically, with a passion of entreaty in her accent. "I must, I must."—she choked back the agony that well-nigh mastered her—"I must kneel to him, and he will forgive—believe. I am his wife; he will not refuse me. You do not know him; you think him cold and stern—not to me, never to me."

Nat caught her hands and held them in his own.

"I'm just afraid for your very life, Miss Erica; that's the downright truth," he said. "You shan't go, not if I stand here all night. It's no use your looking so wild-like at me; there's quite enough misery without any more bloodshed. I must tell ye, after all, what he said; and he meant it all—every word; you ought to know him, missy; he's just flint. He says to me, quite passionate, for all he was quiet enough; 'If you value her life and your own, keep her from my path.' There!"

For a moment, as those awful words fell on her senses, the girl stood like one on whom sentence of death has fallen. Only then at last did she seem to fully comprehend all that had fallen on her—banned and cast out, dishonored, lost!

"He—said—that!" fell from her stiffened lips. "'Keep her from my path.'"

She tottered forward a step, dizzy and blind, and fell like one dead at his feet.

It was bright early morning before the girl once more opened her eyes on her world of woe—opened them to meet the anxious, concerned gaze of her protector, and she started half up from the rude settle on which he had laid her.

"Lie still, my dear, lie still," he said, putting her back; "you mustn't stir; I'll take care of you."

"But I must go," she said, dreamily, but looking round with wide-open eyes. "I must go to him—home."

"He's gone away, missy," said the man, soothingly. "You mustn't try to see him."

She drew in her breath with a quick gasp, and pressed her hands over her forehead, as, like a flash of lightning, came back to her the memory of the night before.

"Ah, I know—I remember," she said, with such despairing bitterness that the tears started to his eyes. "I remember now where I am and—what I am. Have I really done so awful a wrong, am I the guilty thing he thinks me?"

"No, no, my dear," interposed Nat, earnestly. "You ain't well now, but you mustn't talk like that. Look, missy, you can write to him and tell him."

"I cannot tell him the one thing that will clear me," she said, shaking her head, wearily closing the burning eyelids. "I—I—will see him."

"Listen now, Miss Erica. What could you say if you saw the master? You won't tell him about Mr. Arnold. You say he would have his life. He wouldn't never spare him, and you're right, I'm thinking. You can't say a thing he'd listen to, 'cause, you see, 'tis all true like."

She lay silent for some time, and then rose up, putting him aside.

"I will write," she said, quietly. She seemed utterly spent and worn out, the mere wreck of the bright, bold-spirited Erica of old. "Give me paper; you have some? He is really gone?"

"I see him go to the station, Miss Erica. I can see right over the village from here. The train's gone this half-hour."

"Very well. Give me paper."

She sat, leaning her head on her hand, while he brought her a sheet of paper, and then he went out and sat down a little way out of her sight. She drew out the little gold pencil-case—his gift to her—and looked at it for a moment with wistful sadness, then bent down and wrote these lines of despairing supplication—of such useless pleading. Surely they might have touched him to some softer answer!

"I have nothing to say—no excuse, no reason to offer, no explanation to give of my absence. I deny nothing that you have been told, it is all true—all but that I am guilty, that I have brought dishonor on your name. I plead for trust—you loved me once, Philip—for trust that shall cover my fault. Am I asking more than your love can give? Oh, think, for the love of God! think of the love I tried to give you! Remember your lips have pressed mine—have called me your wife, your darling! I am that still, Philip—loyal true, though I may seem to have broken my faith. What shall I plead, what more shall I say? I have no words, Philip, my thoughts fail me in my despair. Have mercy! have pity! and forgive——"

She broke off abruptly, adding no more, and the pencil dropped from her fingers.

It had been agony to her to write those words. They came from the depths of her despair, and she knew they were empty words, they would fall dead to the ground.

And so they went forth, and the days passed slowly, all too slowly. She was told that the house was shut up, only Mrs. Robertson remained to take care of it. It was said in the village that it was to be sold, and all the village knew her story now, and in the great houses round they spoke of it too, and some pitied and condemned, and more condemned and had no pity. Well, she was not worthy of pity if it were all true.

And one day there came an answer for her. It had come under cover to the postoffice at Rington, whence she had dated.

"I ask neither reason, explanation, or excuse from you," Philip wrote, "as you say you deny nothing but one thing; that denial I pass over. You ask more faith than lies in me to give. For dishonor I have neither forgiveness, or mercy, or pity. Justice you may claim, and justice I give you. You are my wife yet in name, as Heaven's law made you, and that I cannot break, but from henceforth you are nothing more; there lies a gulf between you and me that not a life-long penitence can bridge. You have chosen your path—see that it never crosses mine, for never will I look on your face again. You are dead to me.

"I have made arrangements with Mr. Garth, my solicitor, by which you are provided for. You are at liberty to apply to him by letter whenever you will."

That was all—those cold, hard lines, no softening apparent in them, not one word of farewell.

And as Erica read the last lines her features grew rigid and stony, and she rose up and laid the paper on the fire and watched it consume.

"He gives me justice!" she murmured, a world of bitterness in the low tones. "And I will die before these hands shall take hold of the life his justice renders me. And so, farewell, hope, love, life!"

All was over now.

Henceforth her life would be a blank, an existence, in which despair would be her only partner.

Ah, why was she doomed to bear so heavy and cruel a burden? Could the spirit of her mother look down with approval on the bondage she had laid upon the soul of one so innocent?

CHAPTER XII.

WHAT THEY SAID IN THE CLUBS.

"There goes a man," said Archie Proctor, "for whom Fate seems to have reserved all her 'whips and scorpions.' I fancy 'all the fairies but one,' as someone says, assisted at his birth."

The remark was made to two or three men who were in the smoking-room of the "Norfolk," and they one and all looked up.

"Who are you talking of?" asked one, with a half smile of surprise at this solemn assertion.

"That man there," replied Archie, waving his hand towards the window.

"What! the man speaking to Lady Cheshunt—the one on that splendid horse?" cried Greville, the writer. "Why, that's Philip St. John, the man of the day. You might single out some other unlucky dog for your sententious observations."

"One of the luckiest fellows," said another. "The man's famous, and isn't above two or three and thirty. Wish I were he, that's all."

"Then," said Mr. Proctor, grimly, "you wouldn't say so if you as much about him as I do. I wouldn't change places with Philip St. John with all his gifts of mind and person, and his fame."

"What's up, then?" laconically asked Captain Cartwright, who was popularly supposed to know everything, but clearly didn't know this.

"I wonder he's never married," put in Greville, still watching the grave and handsome litterateur, who was chivalrous in his courtesy to all women, but had never singled out one above the other for more than the ordinary attention of a gentleman.

"He is married," said Proctor, "as far as I know, at least."

"Married!" they all echoed. "Never knew it till this day; never saw his wife. By the way, wasn't there something about a brother who was murdered about three or four years back?"

"His brother Walter—yes, a young fellow in the Lancers," answered Proctor, with whom reticence was not a salient quality. "Not like this one. Oh, dear, no. A good sort of young fellow—clever, too—but not much back-bone in him. He got drawn into betting and all sorts of games—that he never said a word about, of course, to St. John, who was then away from London. It came out at the inquest, I remember. They have never found the murderer. And then," added Proctor, after a pause, "he came back from his brother's funeral to find his wife gone off with someone, an old lover, I suppose. Young thing she was—such a beauty."

There was a moment's silence. They all knew Philip St. John to a certain extent, and this page in his past life revealed to them was sorrowful enough to touch the most careless there.

"And so deuced proud as he is!" said Greville, at length, as if uttering aloud the conclusion to a train of thought.

"Hush!" said Cartwright, quickly, "he's just dismounted and is coming in."

These three years have scarcely changed him. In the brilliant eyes there lies the deathless shadow—deeper, graver, perhaps; the lips are set more sternly, and it may be there is something now about him that chills and repels, yet still he unconsciously draws men to him by the brilliant gifts that compel homage and reverence.

But not one could read the daily and hourly suffering that lay on the man's soul, torture scarcely dulled by time, for what time can even skin over honor's wounds? Who could guess the eternal conflict of the love that would not, could not die, with the indomitable pride that could never stoop to forgive a deadly wrong to honor.

Once among his letters—many there were; some dainty scented pink notes that were tossed unopened aside—there came one the writing on which sent a lightning thrill to his heart that seemed to stab him with a desperate pain. He had taken it up and looked a brief moment on the characters, traced he could think in what anguish perhaps; then, with lips close pressed, and hand that never faltered, he had put it unopened into an envelope, and sent it back to that little cottage on the cliffs at Grayle. The man would know where to send it probably. And then he had sat the long night through, his head bowed on his hands, without once moving.

Three years of such suffering, and a life-time lay before him. What wondrous power is given to man to suffer! And yet the whole world of intellect was at his feet. He was sought by all. Society welcomed him and would have opened its doors to the famous litterateur.

He came in now to the smoking-room and glanced round, shaking hands with Proctor and the others.

He turned to Greville.

"You are the man I wanted. I knew I should find you devoted to cigars at three o'clock."

"You're too bad, St. John," said Greville, laughing and coloring; "don't grudge a poor devil his cigar; I've been working like a galley-slave all the morning, and a man must have a smoke after luncheon."

"Luncheon from one to two; cigars from two to three," said Philip, and the men laughed, for Greville's devotion to cigars was a joke among them; "but I did not come to take you to task, but to give you an invitation from the editor of the 'Circle.' He has a dinner-party to-night—everybody you ought to know will be there. I spoke to him to-day about you."

"You are too kind, St. John," said Greville, earnestly; "how can I thank you for troubling yourself?"

"I want a clever man for the 'Circle,' mon cher," answered Philip, without a smile; "voila tout, there is no room for thanks."

"And you wouldn't believe I meant them if I gave them," Greville said, with a sort of manner with which a man makes a venture on untried ground.

But Philip only smiled a little, the half sarcastic smile that was yet not unkindly, as he turned to go.

"My faith would last as long as your gratitude, I dare say. I must go now, I have a man to see in Hampstead somewhere; if you have a moment to-morrow, Greville, you can bring your cigar to my chambers, from two to three, and tell me how you fared with Harrington."

"Aren't you going to-night, then?" asked Greville.

"No; I shall not have time. I have work to do. I shall see you to-morrow."

CHAPTER XIII.

"FORGIVENESS OR DISHONOR."

Along the white dusty road, chequered with the shadow of sweet-scented laburnums and chesnut trees, a hansom cab came bowling along at a swift pace. It was one of those pretty suburban retreats upon which the advance of bricks and mortar in the north is fast encroaching.

On one side were small villas, standing within gardens; on the other, the grounds of some large house, aristocratically hidden from the common gaze, somewhere down a long drive.

Not a human being or another vehicle was in sight; only a collie dog was busy in the roadway over a bone, which fact proved that seldom did carriages pass that way. And, indeed, the whole place seemed set out of the world. The houses looked as if they had gone to sleep in the sun, their green jalousies carefully excluding the light, which might be more treasured in England since so little of it is vouchsafed to its inhabitants.

A sudden shout from the driver of the hansom, the sharp pulling up of the horse, and a shrill cry of pain, startled Philip St. John from the thoughts which, waking or sleeping, were ever his grim companions.

It was but a moment's work to spring from the cab and bend over the poor dog, who, too busy with his bone to heed the sound of approaching wheels, had fallen a victim to his country supineness, for the driver, not noticing him until he was almost on him, had then been too late to stop the horse from knocking the animal over.

"I didn't see the beast, sir, till I was on him," said the man, holding back the horse, which, impatient and frightened by the incident, was straining at the bit to be off. "Take care, sir, he might bite."

"I am not afraid," Philip said, with a ring of contempt in his voice for the vulgar terror of dogs which characterizes even stalwart men of the lower order. "He is not much hurt. You have managed, my friend, to run over his shoulder and graze his jaw."

The poor dog suffered Philip to examine the extent of his wounds, looking up into his face with that trustful gaze which seems to acknowledge that the examiner is "cruel only to be kind," and only uttering a soft, plaintive whine as Philip staunched with his handkerchief the blood which flowed from the creature's mouth.

"There don't seem to be nobody here, sir," said the man, looking round.—"They're all asleep, I take it, in this part."

Philip glanced around. He could not leave the dog in the road, and the creature could not walk. He looked so piteously up at his benefactor, too, when he moved a step away, that Philip could not have found it in his heart to disregard the mute appeal.

"I am close to the place I was going to," he said, after a pause, "you need not wait. I recommend you, my friend," he added, as he paid the man, "when you come out to these parts not to follow the customs of the inhabitants and go to sleep at five o'clock."

The man looked a little sullen, and drove off, and as Philip paused, somewhat uncertain what to do with his charge, the gate of the house opposite was opened, and a servant ran out, uttering an exclamation between amazement and grief when she saw the dog.

"Oh, what is the matter?" she cried, running to him. "Oh, my poor Kenneth! he's dreadfully hurt."

"There is not much harm done," said Philip, "the driver of my cab was awkward enough to run over him. If you will tell me where you live, I will do what I can to repair the mischief."

"Oh, sir, how good you are!" said the girl. "Poor Kenneth! But he can't walk, I'm afraid, sir; and my mistress—oh, she will be sorry, seeing as she's alone but for Kenneth, and he's such a pet, sir, with her."

"I think, my good girl," Philip said, "you would serve both better if you show me where to take the dog, instead of lamenting."

The girl colored high and began to remonstrate.

"He can't walk, sir, and oh, you mustn't carry him, a gentleman like you, sir. I can."

"A gentleman may do worse things, foolish girl, than carry a dog," was all Philip said, as putting her aside he bent over Kenneth and lifted him easily in his arms. "Now lead on, I have no time to waste."

"It's this house, sir," said the girl, meekly, and she led the way up a short garden-walk and through the open door into the pretty flower-decked hall to a small room beyond. She was not a London-bred servant, apparently, or she might have had some trepidation in introducing a stranger into the house, or else, Philip thought, with the scepticism natural to a man of the world, taking in the neighborhood and general surroundings, her readiness could be otherwise explained. He laid the dog quietly on a couch, and then, turning to the girl, said:

"There is nothing to be done but to wash his mouth with warm water; there are no broken bones, and he will be well in a week or two."

"Will he really, sir?" The girl looked quite amazed by the knowledge of dogs displayed, "Poor dear! I'll do what you say, sir; thank you, kindly, for taking such trouble. I'll go and call my mistress, sir, if you'll please to step this way; she'd be vexed not to thank you herself."

CHOLERA

COMING!

The countries where Cholera prevails, as in India, China and Africa, Pain-Killer is considered the surest and safest of all known remedies, and the natives place the most perfect reliance in it.

Read the following extract from the letter of a missionary in China:

DEAR SIRS:—I ought to have acknowledged long ago the box of Pain-Killer you had the goodness to send me last year. Its coming was most providential. I believe hundreds of lives were saved, under God, by it. The Cholera appeared here soon after we received it. We resorted at once to the Pain-Killer, using as directed for Cholera. A list was kept of all to whom the Pain-Killer was given, and our native assistants assured us that eight out of every ten to whom it was prescribed, recovered.

Believe me, dear sirs, gratefully and faithfully yours.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes: "AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers. W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro." Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES." Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

The Paradise of Women.

Miss Emily Faithfull, says the Pall Mall Gazette, who has just returned from her third lecturing tour in the United States, brings back a great store of information concerning the position and prospects of women who work across the Atlantic. The field for female labor is much wider there than it is in the Old World; prejudice against the employment of women, which are rampant here, are there either non-existent or so attenuated as to be innocuous. Women occupy almost every profession, and the Americans have realized much more than the Old World nations the ideal of la carriere ouverte aux talents so far as the sexes are concerned. In the States there are female barristers, pastors, doctors, and, in short, members of almost every profession except the army and navy, the nearest approach to a naval officer being Mrs. Captain Mary Miller, who recently succeeded to the command of a Mississippi steamboat on the death of her husband. There is hardly a newspaper in the country of standing and influence which has not at least two or three women as regular members of its staff. One of the leading newspapers in New York has a lady as its second-best writer, and one of the best newspaper properties in the foreign press of America is edited by a German lady, who took over the business on the death of her husband. Women act as regular reporters, and one has achieved considerable notoriety as a critic of cattle shows. As interviewers women are very successful, and the specialty of the female journalist in America is a certain indefinable lightness of touch, combined with a grace and brightness of expression, which her confrere emulates in vain.

One point which impressed Miss Faithfull much in her American journeyings is the fact that women in America are much less ashamed to earn a living than in this country. In England it is regarded as natural and right for a man to work for his daily bread, but for a lady to earn a salary is too often regarded as discreditable. Nine women out of ten who are earning their living will preface the statement of that fact by a more or less elaborate apology for having to work for their living. In other words, work is not regarded as the normal state of women, and this shows itself in many ways. English ladies applying for a situation will give false names, and in one case, which only recently came under Miss Faithfull's notice, a lady threw up a profitable situation rather than to allow her name to be known to her fellow workers. In America it is otherwise. Fine-ladyism is creeping in, no doubt, but it has not yet attained that universality which it enjoys in England. America, however, is unquestionably the paradise for American women, nor is there any country in the world in which the husbands are so good, so kind, so affectionate as in the States. In fact, they spoil their wives. In railway carriages the wife lolls at her ease, surrounded by cheap novels, while her husband nurses the children and supplies all their wants.

Sam Ward's Way of Testing Wine.

Mr. Sam Ward's death is deeply regretted in England. I doubt much whether his friends in this country knew or cared much about his personal history in America, beyond the fact that he took care of them when "in the states" as nobody else ever did. His dinners, his introductions, his advice to traveling Britons, were the foundation of his extraordinary popularity among the Britons at home; and a very sufficient foundation it was. They all said when they came back that they had never had so good a time as when under Sam Ward's care. He even, as you perceive, taught them to speak American, and in this they delighted almost as much as they did in the banquets with which he regaled them at Delmonico's. He really did much to make America and Americans better liked in England, and that is a service which may be set off against a considerable catalogue of faults which, in common with other mortals, he undoubtedly was chargeable with. The fact that he did it by what are called hospitalities neither enhances nor diminishes the merit of the service. Dining with him was one of the most serious functions of life, and a criticism of a dish or an opinion of a vintage was never lightly delivered. Nobody can ever forget it who ever beheld the series of evolutions by which he first acquired for himself, and then imparted to the company, his judgment on a glass of claret. The keen eye upon the latter to see that he wrought no harm upon the precious fluid as he let it flow from one crystal to another; the delicate adjustment of the thumb and finger to the glass; the poise of the glass as he lifted it; the concentration of his whole being in the sense of smell as the bouquet of the wine reached the nerves that transmitted it to the brain; and the touch of the lips which followed, and the instant, subtle, decisive comparison of bouquet with flavor; the delicious content which spread over his features if both senses satisfied; the appeal to friends hard by to share in the delight; the graceful invisible lines which the glass described in the air as he set it down—he who has not seen all this and much more in the simple act of tasting and testing a new bottle has never seen Uncle Sam in his best estate. —G. W. Smalley's London Letter.

Our painted cab-readers are now open, but lots of men will continue to hold up their pants with a leather belt fastened with a shingle nail.

A Strong Endorsement.

The Clergy, the Medical Faculty, the Press and the People all endorse Burdock Blood Bitters as the best system renovating blood purifying tonic known. Its work bears out their best recommend. 36-2t

As two ladies were gazing at the black bear in the yard of the Little Windsor, one remarked: "Oh, what a nice buffalo robe his skin would make!"

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second; It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

It is curiously stated that a Hebrew's nose never grows after the years of age. Probably for the same reason that lightning never strikes twice in the same place—not necessary.

A Cure for Cholera Morbus.

A positive cure for this dangerous complaint, and for all acute or chronic forms of Bowel Complaint incident to Summer and Fall, is found in Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry; to be procured from any druggist. 36-2t

A little girl, whose father was a merchant tailor, said to her mother: "Mother, I can always tell when pa makes a misfit, because he always gives you and me fits when he comes home."

Female Troubles.

"What kind of a dog is that?" asked the major of the colonel, as he saw a lean, hungry looking canine poking his head and neck through the front gate. "That's a watch-dog," observed the owner proudly. "Is he a good watch-dog?" "Well I guess so. It takes my wife and myself over half our time to watch him for fear he'll eat up everything in the house."

Respect Age.

Age should always command respect, in the case of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry it certainly does, for 25 years that has been the standard remedy with the people, for Cholera Morbus, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Colic and all Bowel Complaints. 36-2t

THE TIGHT LITTLE ISLAND.

Prince Edward Islanders call their native land "the tight little island." In view of the immense quantity of alcholic "medicine" which a Scot act return shows its inhabitants to have swallowed, the name is not inappropriate.

A Lawyer's Opinion of Interest to All.

J. A. Tawney, Esq., a leading attorney of Winona, Minn., writes: "After using it for more than three years, I take great pleasure in stating that I regard Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, as the best remedy in the world for Coughs and Colds. It has never failed to cure the most severe colds I have had, and invariably relieves the pain in the chest." Trial bottles of this sure cure for all Throat and Lung Diseases may be had free at Taylor & Macdonald's Drug Store. Large size, $1.00.

CRICKET AND TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

The Australian eleven, who gained such astonishing victories in 1879, were all teetotalers, and wish that fact to be publicly known. In play and work there is nothing like pure water. If you want your brain to be clear, and your muscles strong, imitate the Australians. The names of the eleven can be found in Lillywhite's cricketing annual for 1880. Almost all of them form the present eleven of Australia.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and Liver complaint and rheumatism.

Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water.

All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters. I had used seven bottles; the hardness is all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case, otherwise I would have been in my grave.
T. W. Morley, Buffalo, Oct. 1, 1881.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring.

I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost. I know it."—A Workingman.

TOO MUCH OF A NAME.

A young man has a sister Jessie, who was sent to a fashionable school for young ladies. When she left home he wondered if she would acquire the affectation other young ladies that he knew had, by attending the fashionable. After being there a year he began to flatter himself that his sister was proof against such nonsense, when he received a letter signed "Jessica," instead of Jessie, as heretofore. In answering, he wrote something like this: "Dear Sister Jessica. Your welcome letter received. Mammaica and papaica are well. Aunt Maryica and uncle Georgica started for Tadousaca yesterday. Have bought a new horse; it is a beauty; it is named Maudica, etc. Your affectionate brother Jamica." The next letter was signed Jessie.

Saved from a Horrible Death.

Up to May last I had spent at least five hundred dollars for treatment by many of the best medical men without any benefit. My mouth and throat became badly ulcerated, sores breaking out on my neck and legs. I also suffered excruciatingly with Rheumatism, grew very despondent, and my best friends advised me that the icy hand of death was fast approaching. I caught at Shaker Blood Syrup like a drowning man at a straw. After taking two bottles I could feel a change for the better. The sores began to discharge freely, and Rheumatism to abate. When I had taken six bottles every sore had healed and my skin began to assume a natural appearance. I persisted until I had taken twelve bottles, and there is not a symptom of the disease remaining, and I feel as well as I ever did. I have gained twenty-one pounds in flesh, and my friends wonder at my improved condition. I have recommended it to many, and in every instance with complete success. I believe that Shaker Blood Syrup has saved me from a horrible death.
T. S. Cannon, South Boston, Mass.

In 1878 I was the victim of a terrible Blood Poison, and after being treated by three physicians was confined to my bed, not able to raise my hand to my head, spitting up clots of blood, and reduced in weight from one-hundred and eighty-five to one hundred and thirty pounds. I then began the use of Shaker Blood Syrup, and in less than three months I was entirely well, weighed one hundred and ninety-six pounds, and have never had a symptom of the disease since. If it had not been for Shaker Syrup I believe I would have been in my grave.

THE INNOCENCE OF CHILDHOOD.

"Ain't you almost boiled!" inquired a kid of a gentleman calling on her father and mother.

"No, little one, I can't say that I am. On the other hand, I feel quite comfortable."

"That's funny, I should think you would be."

"Why so, Daisy?"

"Oh, because I heard mamma say your wife kept you in hot water all the time."

James Brayley, Hamilton, says:—"I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value, we had plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away, I was as bad with Billious Fever and indigestion as any one could be, I have taken three bottles and am nearly well and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than I ever expected to be." Free trial bottles at J. McKee's Drug Store. 37-2t

Death by Drowning.

On Monday morning, Louis Drake, a river driver in the employ of Mr. McDonald, of the Point St. Charles Mills, was accidentally drowned. Together with other men, he was driving logs in the river, a short distance north of the town. The other workmen crossed the stream in a punt, but Drake, for some reason preferred to try to cross by wading, and unfortunately lost his life in the attempt. When partially across he sunk into a deep hole beyond wading depth. He threw his pike-lever, which he carried in his hand, away, and struck out to swim ashore. On the way he suddenly threw up his hands, sank and was drowned before a rescue could be made. The body was recovered in about fifteen minutes. Deceased was a young man, aged about twenty-five, married, but without children. It is a pity that men engaged in such dangerous occupations should not be familiar with the directions for "Treating the Drowned," issued by the Ontario Government. These state that there is hope of restoring, by proper treatment, persons apparently drowned, after a lapse of two hours, and yet poor Drake was only in the water about a quarter of an hour.

Seats For Fifteen Thousand.

In connection with the great specialties and monster menagerie, the most gigantic and combined circus in three rings ever seen in this country is to be found in Forepaugh's Show. The mammoth pavilion will accommodate fifteen thousand spectators, and is supplied with luxurious arena chairs. Three great troupes! Different performances in each. One ticket admits to all.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

Employes' Pic-Nic.

On Thursday last the employes of the William Hamilton Manufacturing Company, with their wives, families, sweethearts and friends, to the number of about 200, held their annual pic-nic at Chemong Lake Park. The day was delightfully spent in true picnic style—lunching under the trees, swinging, boating, dancing, doing nothing, etc. Those inclined to sport had a baseball match—bachelors vs. benedicts. The benedicts having had more experience—with various culinary missle weapons, such as tea pots, saucepans, billets of wood, etc.—won easily. The day was a most enjoyable one, the only drawback having been an accident to Mr. T. Kent, who, while fixing a swing, fell from a tree and fractured two or three ribs.

Cricket.

Last Thursday and Friday an interesting match was played in Toronto between teams selected from the counties of Victoria and Ontario and from Toronto. The play was close. The counties total was 151, and the Torontos made 153, with two wickets to go down. The counties team had hard luck in the first innings, the last man being dismissed for a total of 22, while Toronto in its second bout only scored 31. Peterborough was represented by Norley, who piled up 18 well-earned runs in the second innings. His bowling was very destructive. His analysis shows 6 wickets for 15 runs, which the Globe's report says "is itself a record." "The result," says the Globe, "of the above match was an arrangement for a match between the Duke of York Rangers and the county of Peterborough, to be played in Peterborough on Sept 17th and 18th. The match is to be a benefit for Norley, whose play in the counties match fully justifies the interest taken in him."

The Deaf and Dumb Institute.

The session of the Provincial Deaf and Dumb Institute, at Belleville, opened yesterday under very favorable auspices. During the summer recess the class-rooms and other departments have been thoroughly cleaned and renovated, and the Institute and its surroundings are in a healthy condition. As usual, the teachers and officers have been sent to all the places of rendezvous for the pupils, where they take charge of the several divisions of the "silent community" and escort them to Belleville. Mr. J. B. Ashley, one of the staff, arrived in Peterborough on Tuesday, and Wednesday morning met all the children coming from the Muskoka and intervening sections at the Midland depot here. He gave them a good dinner at the Queen's Hotel, and otherwise looked after their comfort and welfare before the train left at 2 p.m. The total attendance this session is expected to reach 250 or more. Every arrangement is complete for the comfort and convenience of the pupils, and parents may rest assured that their little ones are well cared for while being instructed. The Institute, under the efficient superintendency of Mr. R. Mathison, is doing a noble work for the deaf and dumb of this Province.

St. Paul's Church Lawn Social.

Last Friday evening a most successful Lawn Social under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, was held on the beautiful grounds surrounding the residence of Geo. A. Cox, Esq. He had generously placed his house and grounds at the disposal of his guests, and the latter have to thank him for a most successful evening of enjoyment. The grounds were, thanks to Mr. T. G. Hazlitt, splendidly illuminated by the electric light. The air was pleasant and the aids to enjoyment were abundant. The well-supplied refreshment tables were freely patronized. During the evening the Fire Brigade Band delighted the large number present with excellent renditions of their favourite selections. Rev. Mr. Torrance, in a neat little speech, on behalf of the Society, thanked Mr. and Mrs. Cox for their great generosity in thus throwing open their house and grounds for the occasion. The action, he intimated, was only consistent with Mr. Cox's role of a public benefactor. Mr. Cox briefly expressed the pleasure it had been to both himself and Mrs. Cox to be able to aid the objects of the Ladies' Aid Society. He assured all present that they had been heartily welcome. After "God Save the Queen," by the band, the company separated. Besides uncomputed assets of enjoyment, there was realized the neat sum of $161 net cash, for the benefit of the Sunday School fund.

Funeral Sermon.

On Sunday last, Rev. Mr. Manning preached, in the Charlotte street Methodist church, the funeral sermon of the late William Dobbin. Reference was made to the evidence that the deceased had sought and found, the "narrow path," which terminates in the better land.

Street Hydrants.

Plans have been placed with the town authorities for the placing of street hydrants enough to double the present number. They will be placed on Simcoe street from George to Aylmer, on Water, from Brock to Simcoe, on Hunter from George to Aylmer, and on George street from Smith to the present limit, London street, and from Sherbrook street to Wolfe.

Prepare.

For the time is coming when you will consider not how many degrees in the shade, but how many degrees below zero. Any of my customers wanting their furs repaired, will do me and themselves a favour by calling on me now, as later in the busy season, repairing doesn't pay, and cannot be done. 37-1t W. LECH.

A New Department.

The ladies of Peterborough and vicinity will be glad to learn that J. C. Turnbull is making preperations for adding a dressmaking department to his business, which will be under the management of a thorough dressmaker. This will be a great convenience, as parties wishing to make up their own dresses, can have them cut and fitted in time to take home with them, any day except Saturdays.

Pluck and Nerve.

The other evening, Mr. J. Billington was driving with a friend on the streets. The buggy struck some building material, and threw the friend out together with the reins. The horse at once set off at full speed, leaving Mr. Billington in a very dangerous position. But, with a pluck and nerve seldom displayed, he was equal to the occasion. He climbed over the dashboard and along the shafts till he reached the reins, and stopped the flying animal.

Young Men's Christian Association.

The annual meeting of this association is to be held on Thursday, 18th inst. The officers for next year will be elected, and reports of the year's work will be presented. Every member is expected to be present. On the 25th September, the anniversary meeting will be held in the Charlotte street Methodist church. Addresses will be given by the Rev. I. Tovell, and Mr. T. S. Cole, Provincial Travelling Secretary. Music will be provided by the choir of the church. Solos will be sung by Mr. Chambers. The public generally are invited to attend this meeting, which promises to be very interesting.

Parties who have been waiting for Millinery to see the new shapes, can get the latest now at Turabulls.

The Hamley-Williamson Race

The half mile foot race at the Driving Park on Saturday evening, attracted a large crowd of sporting men. The race was between Henry Hamley of Port Hope, and A. E. Williamson of Midland, for a purse of $300. Both men have good records, but Hamley easily won on Saturday night, thus justifying the confidence in him, and saving the money of his Port Hope admirers, who were present in large numbers, and who backed him freely, to the tune of two to one. Hamley led from post to finish, and won easily by several yards, in 2¼ minutes. Mr. John Brydon, trained Williamson for the race, and Messrs. John A. Cheer, of Port Hope, and James English, of Peterborough, were judges, Mr. C. L. Burgess, of New York, acting as starter.

Dr. Barnardo's Home.

On Thursday a Ladies' Committee meeting was held at Hazel Brae, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon to transact business in connection with the Home. The following ladies were present, Mrs. Wallis, Mrs. George. A. Cox, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. Beck, Mrs. Bradshaw, Mrs. J. Stratton, Mrs. Gilmour, Mrs. McLelland, Mrs. T. Fitzgerald. Mrs. Wallis presided over the meeting. Several points of greater or less interest were discussed and the following resolution was adopted. "That a working meeting be held fortnightly at Hazel Brae in the interest of the Home." A subscription was at once taken up for the purpose of procuring material suitable for winter garments for the children at present in the Home, so that there might be work ready for the next meeting which is fixed for Thursday the 11th inst. Donations to this fund either in money or material are earnestly solicited. It was suggested that a Sewing Machine would be a very desirable addition to the property of the Home.

The Boating Club Concert.

The concert given under the auspices of the Peterborough Boating Club, was eminently successful. There was a large attendance and the programme was a most excellent one. Prof. Doucet gave two piano solos, which were well received and honored with a recall for the second number. Mr. Warrington, of Toronto, on his first visit, made himself a favorite, and he was received on Wednesday night with great enthusiasm. His "Good Company" was given in his best style. He replied to an irresistible recall, with "Sailing." His other numbers, the barber's song from "The Barber of Seville," and his humorous Scotch selection, "m ! 'm ! were both encored. Miss Howden sang in excellent voice, a selection from the Barber of Seville, "Una Voce Poco Fa." Being heartily recalled, she gave "Maiden May," with delightful effect. She also sang in the second part, Gounod's sweet "Ave Maria." Miss Howden has a pure flexible voice of large compass, and sings with excellent taste and enunciation. Miss Cottingham's contralto selection, "Saved from the Storm," was so sweetly and successfully rendered, that she was "encored." Her second number, "The Song for Me," emphasised the excellent impression she had made. Miss Clench, the wonderful violinest, in her several selections, made the public debtors to the Boating Club for the sweetest music ever heard in the Opera House. Her marvellous command over her instrument, places her above all ordinary criticism. Mr. A. Henderson, of Whitby, in his recitation, the "Battle of Inkerman," and the "Death of Marmion," showed himself a well trained elocutionist, quite ahead of most amateur reciters. Miss Revel played the accompaniments throughout with excellent taste and judgment. The concert was in every way, a most decided success; yet it may not be amiss to hint to the singers from a distance, that Peterborough patrons of music, would appreciate something new occasionally. The sublimest music, sung at the best, becomes, if too often repeated, like a tale that is twice told.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet. 18-tf

Peterborough Cheese Board.

The regular meeting of the Board was held on Tuesday. The same cheese boarded at the last two meetings (the detailed list previously published) was offered. The amounts, boxes, were July, 558, August 2300, September, 2275, October, 1560. There was considerable bidding, the result being that Mr. Thomson, of Toronto, bought 556 boxes July for 9½; Flavelle, Lindsay, Keene and Warminister, 1960 boxes, at 10c. for August, and 11c. for September and October. McBean, of Montreal, bought the August make of the remaining factories for 9¾c. Brower, Belleville (Warrington) bought the balance of September and October, at 11½c. for September, and 11¾c. for October.

Off for Egypt.

On Tuesday evening, the following members of the Peterborough contingent of Canadian voyageurs, engaged to pilot and assist the British expedition for the relief of General Gordon, in Egypt, left on the 10.30 express for Ottawa, in charge of Capt. Aumond, of that city:—Wm. Henry Anderson, Sidney Blade, John Faulkner, Murray Matheson, John White, Thomas Hanson, Jas. Marcello Mowry, Charles Billings, Alex. Ross, W. H. Lowry, John Welsh, Wm. Harris, John Corcoran, Albert Bradshaw, John McMahon, John A. Sherlock, Peter Phalan, John Welsh, John Gorman, John Barr. (Samuel Clancy and Adolph Sinatt, were accepted, but did not go with the rest on Tuesday night.) These men are engaged for 6 months at forty dollars per month, with a complete kit of clothing, blankets, etc., and free rations. Some of the party are married men, and these and some of the others have made arrangements, so that their wives, relatives or agents can draw from J. T. Lambert, agent of the Imperial Government, Ottawa, $25 per month of their pay. In going up the Nile, two Canadians will be told off to each boat, to be placed at bow and stern, while the soldiers man the oars. The entire party sails on the Ocean King, from Montreal. Mr. T. Cavanagh, the veteran man-finder, recruited the Peterborough contingent, and Dr. O'Shea made the medical examination of the twenty one recruits, and pronounced them as sound as a bell. We hope they will return equally safe and sound.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR, I am informed that a person of the name of Thomas N. Willan made a statement, at the Harvest Home Festival at Centreville on Tuesday to the effect that it was some stories circulated in Peterboro' by me that caused the non-appearance of the Peterborough Lacrosse Club, who were I believe, advertised to play a match with the Millbrook club during the afternoon. I wish to say through your columns that if he or any other person made any such statement that it was a deliberate falsehood, which I am prepared to prove, to the satisfaction of any reasonable man. I am not in the habit of interfering with any person or committee in any arrangements being made. You will kindly do me the favor of publishing this correction in your first issue,

Your truly,
CHARLES BYERS.

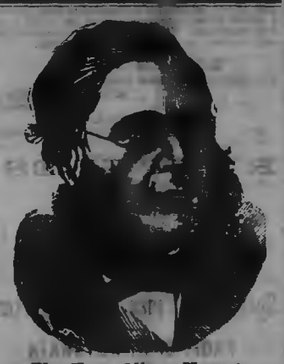
Market and Sell Early.

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is, with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone.

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer."

The above was clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its commonsense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low. People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexander's. Call and be convinced.

Jas. ALEXANDER



The Hon. Oliver Mowat.

Hon. Oliver Mowat, Premier of Ontario, was on Tuesday the recipient of the most splendidly enthusiastic reception and demonstration ever given to and made in honor of any public man. Now that his name is on every tongue a brief sketch of his life and political career will be read with interest.

"Familiar in their mouths as household words,"

Hon. Mr. Mowat is a Canadian by birth, but of Scotch descent. He was born at Kingston, Ont., July 22nd, 1820. His father, John Mowat, Esq., was a native of the Scotch Highlands, born in Caithness, served in the British army during the Peninsular War, came to Canada in 1816 and settled in Kingston, where he engaged in mercantile pursuits. He was identified with the Conservative party in politics, but was in accord with the Liberal party in advocating Responsible Government and other urgent reforms of the time. The son was reared in the midst of Conservative influences, but taking an interest in politics until he had become accustomed to study and reflection, he formed opinions, liberal in their tendency. He was chiefly educated in a school controlled by Rev. John Strachan, D.D. He commenced studying law at Kingston, in the office of Mr. John A. Macdonald, the present Dominion Premier, but completed [illegible] in Toronto. After his call to the bar in 1841 he began practice first at Kingston, afterwards in Toronto, where he formed a partnership with Mr. Burns and Mr. Vankoughnet, both of whom were subsequently elevated to judicial positions. Mr. Mowat devoted himself to the equity branch of his profession and took a leading position in the Court of Chancery. Thus he laid the ground-work of that intimate knowledge of constitutional law, which has made him the six-fold victor over Sir John in the struggle for the maintenance and securing of Provincial rights. In 1856 he was created a Queen's counsel, and the same year was appointed one of the Commissioners to consolidate the statutes of Canada and of Upper Canada respectively. His growing leanings towards Liberalism eventually brought him into close alliance with the Reform party, and at the general election of 1857, when he was but thirty-eight years of age, he defeated Mr. J. C. Morrison in South Ontario by an overwhelming majority, and took his seat in the Upper and Lower Canadian Parliament. The great Liberal leader, the Hon. George Brown, was then at the height of his power, and pressing the political battle with all the energy possible to his iron will and capacious intellect. Mr. Mowat at once took his place by the side of this opposition chieftain as a pronounced Liberal, and bore a distinguished part in the struggle that preceded the fall of the Macdonald-Cartier Government. In the new, short-lived Brown-Dorion Government he held the position of Provincial Secretary. At the general election of 1861 he was returned again as representative of South Ontario. In the Sanfield Macdonald-Dorion Government, formed August 12, 1863, he became Postmaster-General. He held this position until the 21st March, 1864, when the Ministry was succeeded by the second Taché-Macdonald Government. In the Coalition Government formed on the 30th of August, 1866, for the purpose of effecting the confederation of the British North American provinces, in which Mr. Brown, with two other Reformers, entered, Mr. Mowat being one of them, he took his old position as Postmaster-General. But a vacancy having occurred in the Court of Chancery he retired from political life to accept a position on the Bench. In 1872 he left the Bench to re-enter political life as Premier of Ontario, in place of the Hon. Edward Blake, who had retired from the Provincial Parliament in order to retain his seat in the House of Commons.

Since that time Hon. Mr. Mowat has conducted the affairs of the Province of Ontario with great caution, but with an energy and progressive spirit that have made Ontario the banner Province of Canada, in material prosperity, prominent possession of civil rights, freedom from debt, progress and liberalism. For thirty years he has been a prominent figure in public political life, and has maintained his personal and official integrity so far unassailed that his bitterest foe can point to no stain on his character as a politician or a man.

It is to his persistent and unflagging exertions that the Province of Ontario has now a splendid domain of 200,000 square miles, instead of the mutilated territory of 110,000 square miles, which Sir John and his political henchman, Mr. Meredith, sought to give her. Well is it for this Province that during the past ten critical years the Province has been guided by Hon. Mr. Mowat and not by Mr. Meredith, who has proven himself more capable of following the malignant behests of Sir John Macdonald, whose hostility to this Province has been so successfully combatted by Hon. Mr. Mowat. Now Ontario is the most prosperous and best governed commonwealth in the world, and the honor is due, through the people of Ontario's firm adhesion to liberal principles, to Oliver Mowat and his colleagues.

It was, therefore, eminently fitting that he should receive the magnificent ovation of Tuesday, Sept. 16th, on his victorious return from the crowning one of a long series of triumphs, won after a stern and unwavering struggle for the rights of the people of Ontario.

Hon. Mr. Mowat is, in his 65th year, a comparatively young man, still full of vigor and energy, and every well-wisher of Ontario will pray that he may long be spared to apply to the administration of the government of this Province the results of the ripe experience, sound judgment and matured wisdom of thirty years of irreproachable political life.

THE EGYPTIAN CONTINGENT.

Canucks Carried Off in the "Ocean King."

On Sunday last the Peterborough batch of brave voyageurs and the rest of the Canadian contingent sailed from Montreal on the Ocean King for the land of the Nile and the hippopotamus. In the afternoon the quay at which the Ocean King was moored presented a lively scene, while on the steamer herself things were no less lively. Carts with huge pieces of beef, bacon and pork, trucks with bedding, tin cans, tin buckets, medical stores, ship's biscuit, and other requirements for the comfort and health of the four or five hundred of the Canadian contingent for the relief of General Gordon were being unloaded and their contents rapidly transferred to the steamer by the quick-moving, laughter-loving sailors. On the gangway stood Lord Melgund, Deputy Minister Smith and other officials, seeing that matters moved on a pace.

Mr. R. Lawrence, the optician, who has sometimes visited Peterborough, presented the contingent with 450 pairs of tinted spectacles, which will be of the greatest service in protecting the eyes of the Canadians from the fierce glare of the sun and the dust of the desert. The steamer bearing the contingent sailed for Quebec on Monday, at 1.30 p.m. Before leaving the Governor-General delivered an address to the contingent. Whatever other dangers they have to undergo, stopping bullets will not be one of them. It will be their duty to command the boats in ascending the rapids of the Nile, that is to say, two voyageurs will be told off for each boat, one to be stationed in the bow and the other in the stern, and the soldiers will man the oars. The entire expedition will be conducted on testotal principles, Lord Wolseley having determined to follow the precedent of the Red River expedition. Dr. Neilson, surgeon to the party, says that the water of the Nile is not very wholesome, and that probably the men before marching in the morning will fill their bottles with cold tea, a most refreshing beverage, and very much recommended by Lord Wolseley. He is also of the opinion that the fact of a Canadian contingent being employed will bring this country very much into prominence, not only in England but in Europe more especially, as it is a complete departure from the custom of the War Department.

We extend our warmest wishes for a safe voyage a prosperous campaign and a safe return of the Canadian contingent, especially of the score of brave Peterborough lads that accompany it.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were ill adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

MOWAT'S WELCOME.

Ontario's Ovation to Oliver.

Right Royal Reception.

The Largest Political Demonstration ever Held in Canada—A Triumphal Progress From the Falls to Toronto—Spontaneous Bursts of Enthusiasm all Along the Line—Monster Meeting in the Park—Grand Banquet in the Evening—Altogether a Magnificent Success.

The sixteenth day of September, A.D. 1884 will be forever a landmark in the history of Canada. In after years it will be told how on that day Ontario, the staunch old banner Province of the Confederation, welcomed the man who had proven himself the man after the people's own heart by his fearless, consistent, and magnificently successful advocacy of Provincial Rights and of the observance of the Federal principle in the Canadian constitution. The immediate cause of the rejoicing was his victory which kept the Province double in size what it would have been had his opponents prevailed. But even this could not alone have aroused such tremendous enthusiasm as was shown by the sons of the Province on Tuesday, had it not been preceded by a long list of others, some of them almost equally important. It was not simply that Mowat was triumphant that caused the people to rejoice, but it was because he had carried the standard of the people's rights in triumph so far through the battle that rages so constantly and so fiercely in Canadian politics. The demonstration was emphatically the people's rejoicing. It was the

by the voters of the Province at the victory their cause had scored, and it properly and appropriately centered round the man who had been foremost in the fight and leader of the hosts. No less important, no less stirring event could have drawn together the twelve thousand voters who took part in the grand parade of yesterday. To be allowed to be of the company was properly esteemed an honor, and till they die these good and true men will have it to boast that their champion was not allowed to enter the Province after victory, unheralded and unwelcomed, but that they turned out with their friends, their brothers and many of them with their sons to greet him with hearty cheers, and to lead his carriage in triumph through the streets of the Provincial Capital. No such gathering has ever met to do honour to a Canadian public man. The size of the gathering, great as it was, was not so remarkable as

ITS WIDELY REPRESENTATIVE CHARACTER.

No county in the Province was unrepresented, and even those at a long distance sent in delegations so large that they were themselves proof of the enthusiasm which prevails in those places in favour of Provincial rights.

The progress of Mr. Mowat from his entrance into Ontario at Niagara Falls, right up to Queen's Park was a

CONTINUED OVATION.

On the arrival of the train containing Mr. Mowat and party at the Suspension Bridge, N. Y. it was met by a large concourse of people, and after a hearty shaking of hands and congratulations, the honored hero of the day and party were escorted to carriages in waiting. As soon as they reached the Canadian side the honorable gentleman gazed upon the faces of thousands of his people, who welcomed him home on the very threshold of Ontario, amidst the booming of cannon. A large bonfire, sent its blaze away up in the heavens, presenting a delightful picture of the Suspension and Cantilever bridges spanning the Niagara River. The large concourse of people formed themselves into procession and each one bearing a torch started out to parade the principal streets with the hon. gentleman and party at their head in carriages, and a grand sight was witnessed amidst the thousands of rockets and Roman candles that filled the air with their fiery contents. All the public and many of the private buildings were illuminated and decorated with flags and evergreens.

On reaching the Town Hall., where a large platform had been erected, an address of welcome was read to Mr. Mowat, to which he replied in a brief and fitting manner, after which the Hon. Messrs. Fraser and Pardee were introduced and made brilliant and effective speeches, which were attentively listened to and appreciated by the large crowd of electors, after which the party left for the Clifton House. In the morning they took the 7:30 a. m. train for Toronto.

At St. Catherines and Grimsby the Lincoln Liberals swarmed on the train and at Hamilton the party halted and addresses were presented to which Mr. Mowat briefly replied. The welcome of the Ambitious City was enthusiastic. At Hamilton the party was met by a train containing many of the Premier's Toronto friends.

ARRIVAL IN TORONTO.

Leaving Hamilton the train made its way to Toronto rapidly and with a few stoppages. Promptly at the time appointed—half-past eleven—the Union Station was reached. The whole northern platform—that part of it at least from which any view at all could be had of the Premier—was crowded. In front of the car where he was the crowd was too dense to be by any means pleasant. Shouts were raised for Mowat, and on his appearing on the platform he was cheered again and again. The strains of music could be heard from beyond the station walls, showing that the organization of the procession was being proceeded with. Hon. Edward Blake and Hon. S. Huntington, ex-Postmaster-General, made their way through the throng, those nearer them giving way as much as the pressure of the crowd would allow them, and these distinguished gentlemen were among the first to grasp Mr. Mowat's hand. So perfect had the arrangements been carried out that it was not necessary to wait more than a few minutes to give Mr. Mowat's friends, personal and political an oportunity to greet him. The hero of the day, accompanied by an assembly of Canada's most distinguished men, was escorted through the crowds, who gave vent to their enthusiasm in loud and oft repeated cheers, to the carriage which awaited him.

THE PROCESSION

By 10 o'clock the delegates from the different parts of the province had begun to assemble at points on Wellington and Front Streets, intersecting York Street, in readiness for the arrival of Hon. Mr. Mowat. While Mr. Mowat was landing the marshals had been busily getting the procession in order, and no time was lost in making a start up York Street to King Street. First came a band, then young men of Ontario with banner on which was inscribed, "Honour to the Franchise Champion." They were followed by the Oxford delegation, then a banner bearing, "Ceed Mille Failthe," on one side and on the other "A Thousand Times Welcome." Then came the Torontos, with a banner bearing, "The Queen City Rejoices in Her Citizen's Statesmanship." The other delegations followed in their alphabetical order. Amongst the INSCRIPTIONS ON THE BANNERS WERE.

"We are the Boys for Mowat."
"Mowat Holds the Fort."
"The Brants Uphold Mowat, and an Honourable Constitution."
"Mowat Honoured in Every Household."
"Mowat—Ability, Wisdom and Honour."
"Mowat and his Colleagues, Wise and Economical."
"Provincial Rights, the Keystone of Confederation."
"Victory, not by Might but by Right."
"The Sun may be Eclipsed and the Moon may be Darkened, but Hon. Oliver Mowat Always Shines."
"Frozen Whiskey has lost its Charms in Manitoba, &c., &c."

There were about 20 bands in the procession. Immediately after the delegates came a mounted escort from East York, and then the carriage containing Mr. Mowat, Capt. McMaster (chairman of the demonstration committee), and Douglas, president of the North Oxford Reform Association, followed by carriages containing Mr. Mowat's colleagues, Hon. Messrs. Huntington, Meredith, and members of the local legislature. The line of march was along King to Yonge, up Yonge to Gravenhurst, thence to Queen's Park. Mr. Mowat was frequently cheered along the route, the streets being crowded with spectators.

Among the other turn-outs was the young men of Ontario, 1,500 strong, 200 young men being from the City of Toronto. This was a grand turn out. On the large banners were the inscriptions—"The young men of Ontario," "Honour to our Franchise Champion," and "Mowat—one hundred thousand welcomes."

The Peterborough delegation mustered in procession 100 strong. The Fire Brigade Band also occupied an honorable place in the triumphant march.

It is estimated that there were

ABOUT 4,000 IN THE PROCESSION.

which as it passed up Yonge, resulted in the most magnificently enthusiastic welcome ever given any man in Canada. One end of the line was in Queen's park at the platform before the end had got in motion. That is a distance of two miles. Most of the men were four deep and in close column. Several [illegible] were [illegible] by the [illegible] and did not arrive in time to take part in the march. The procession was frequently interspersed with banners, and well marked by bands of music. Members of parliament and leading men from all the municipalities walked behind their respective flags. There were men from Bruce and Glengarry, from Lambton and Renfrew, from Lincoln and Muskoka. Mr. Mowat as he rode up Yonge street escorted by a yeoman guard of young men from East York, was cheered continually by the double line of people who occupied the sidewalks, and by the processionists who formed in open order to let him and the prominent members of his party pass through.

AT THE QUEEN'S PARK,

the band platform was taken possession of and a meeting organized. Hon. A. Mackenzie, M. P., was chairman and seemed in better fettle than for some time back. He welcomed Mr. Mowat and called for the addresses, a couple of which were read and a score of which were taken as read. They were all highly congratulatory.

The premier's speech was a magnificent one and was received with unstinted enthusiasm. Hon. Edward Blake and others also delivered addresses.

THE BANQUET

in the evening was still more successful. The immense Rink of the Granite rink had been arranged as a dining hall and every seat was filled. One thousand and seventy sat down; while the gallery was filled with ladies. Hon. Edward Blake presided as chairman and Geo. A. Cox, Esq., occupied one of the vice-chairs; he proposed with well suited remarks the toast of the "Ontario Legislature." Mr. Blake's splendid speech was characterized by a vindication of a real federal union as against a centralizing government. What did legislatures and provincial parties' struggles, and provincial autonomy have to do with it if it was not to make laws for the province? Was it only that thirteen men at Ottawa could disallow them when they pleased. And the best proof of this contention lay in the fact that the people time and again had asserted the right of the province to deal with provincial affairs. In this fact that the people had so declared lay as much Mr. Mowat's right to do as he had done as in any assignment of powers that the constitution gave to the province.

Sir Richard Cartwright devoted himself to a denunciation of the attempt made to get Mr. Mowat out by bribery at the last election, by resort to the election courts, and by the Banting-Wilkison plot. He asserted in fact that Sir John Macdonald was at the bottom of all these devices. Mr. Mowat was the Mordecai whom the people delighted to honor, while Sir John was the Haaman who ought to be hanged.

Hon. L. S. Huntington, Three Rivers, received a splendid hearing. He was confident that the liberal party would eventually triumph.

Hon. Mr. Mercier, leader of the provincial opposition in Quebec, made a long speech. It dealt with provincial rights, and the corruption of the Conservative government at Ottawa and Quebec. Both lived by passion, by ignorance, by bribery. He paid glowing tribute to Edward Blake, and prophesied an early triumph for liberalism all over Canada. Other speeches by eminent liberal politicians followed.

BOBCAYGEON.

Wild ducks are reported plentiful. They are an important source of revenue to our Indian brothers.

The Saved Army meetings continue to be attended, particularly on Sunday evenings. Several meetings were held, last week, at Ventress' School House in North Harvey.

QUARRYING.—The gang of stone cutters under Mr Milburn, who have been engaged in getting out stone for the Omemee bridge, have nearly completed their work. The steamer Ontario started last Friday with three scows of stone, intending to go up the river to Omemee, owing to the lowness of the water, they were unable to get much past the floating bridge. If the stone has to be taken by way of Lindsay, and railway, it will add very much to the expense.

Canadian Prints.

Messrs. Fair, Van Every & Co., have opened out the first consignment of Canadian-made prints, shewn in Peterborough. The prints are made at the Magog (P. Q.) Textile and Print works, and are excellent goods a credit to the country; the patterns are rich and tasty, the colors are guaranteed permanent and the goods are only ten cents a yard. Don't fail to call and see them or fail to read this enterprising firm's new advertisement in this issue.

Tenders for Ties.

In reference to the advertisement of the Grand Trunk Railway, in another column, calling for ties, the attention of lumbermen is called to the facts of the company's intending to supply a large portion of the main line with ties from the Midland Division, in case the offers are favorable. A copy of the specification and form of tenders may be seen at this office.

THE MIDNIGHT HORSEMAN.

Never Give up Because of Intense Trial.

SERMON BY REV. DR. TALMAGE

"Then went I up in the night by the brook, and viewed the wall, and turned back, and entered by the gate of the valley and returned."—NEHEMIAH ii; 15.

A dead city is always more suggestive than a living city—past Rome than present Rome—ruins rather than newly frescoed building. But the best time to visit a ruin is by moonlight. The Colosseum is far more fascinating to the traveler after sundown than before. You may stand by daylight amid the monastic ruins of Melrose Abbey, and study shaft and oriel, rosetted stone and mullion; but they throw the strongest witchery by moonlight. Some of you remember what the great poet of Scotland said in the Lay of the Last Minstrel:

"If thou wouldst view of fair Melrose aright, Go visit it by the pale moonlight."

Washington Irving describes the Andalusian moonlight upon the Alhambra ruins as amounting to an enchantment. My text presents you the tower down, the gates down, the walls down—everything down; Nehemiah, on horseback, by moonlight looking upon the ruins. While he rides, there are some friends on foot going with him, for they do not want the many horses to disturb the suspicions of the people. These people do not know the secret of Nehemiah's heart, but they are going as a sort of bodyguard. I hear the clicking hoofs of the horse on which Nehemiah rides, as he guides it this way and that, into this gate and out of that gate, winding through amid the debris of once great Jerusalem. Now the horse comes to a dead halt at the tumbled masonry, where he cannot pass. Now he shies off at the charred timbers. Now he comes along where the water under the moonlight flashes form the mouth of the brazen dragon after which the gate was named. Heavy-hearted. Nehemiah! Riding in and out, now by his old home desolated, now by the defaced temple, now amid the scares of the city that had gone down under battering-arm and conflagration. The escorting party know not what Nehemiah means. Is he getting crazy? Have his own personal sorrows, added to the sorrows of the nation, unbalanced his intellect? Still goes on, Nehemiah, on horseback, rides through the first gate, by the tower of the furnaces, by the king's pool, by the dragon well, in and out, and not until the midnight ride is complete, and Nehemiah dismounts from the horse, and to the amazed and confounded and incredulous body-guard declares the deep secret of his heart when he says, 'Come, now, let us build Jerusalem.' What, Nehemiah have you any money?' 'No,' 'Have you any kingly authority?' 'No.' 'Have you any eloquence?' 'No.' Yet that midnight moonlight ride of Nehemiah resulted in the glorious rebuilding of the city of Jerusalem. The people knew not how the thing was to be done, but with great enthusiasm they cried out, 'Let us rise up and build the city.' Some people laughed and said it could not be done. Some people were infuriated, and offered physical violence, and said the thing should not be done. But the workmen went right on, standing on the wall, trowel in one hand, sword in the other, until the work was gloriously completed. As that very time, in Greece. Xenophon was writing a history, and Plato wat making philosophy, and Demosthenes was uttering his rhetorical thunder; but all of them together did not do as much for the world as this midnight moonlight ride of praying, courageous, homesick, close-mouthed Nehemiah. My subject first impresses me with the idea what an intense thing is attachment to the house of God. Seize the bridle of that horse and stop Nehemiah. Why are you risking your life here in the night? Your horse will stumble over these ruins and fall on you. Stop this useless exposure of you life. No. Nehemiah will not stop. In hot haste this seeming adventurer comes to Jerusalem, and in my text we find him on horseback, in the midnight, riding around the ruins. It is amongst the spectacle of this world that has inspired the ardant attachments of Nehemiah for the sacred Jerusalem, which in all ages has been the type of the Church of God, our Jerusalem, which we love as much as Nehemiah loved his Jerusalem. The fact is that you love the House of God so much that there is no spot on earth so sacred unless it be your own fireside. The Church has been to you so much comfort and illumination that there is nothing that makes you so irate as to have it talked against. If there have been times when you have been carried into captivity by sickness, you have longed for the Church the holy Jerusalem, just as much as Nehemiah longed for his Jerusalem, and the first day you came out you came to the house of the Lord. When the temple was in ruins, as ours was ten years ago, like Nehemiah, you walked around and looked at it, and in the moonlight if you could not hear the voice of the dead organ the psalm of expired Sabbaths, and the clang of the communion tankards. What Jerusalem was to Nehemiah, the house of God is to you. Sceptics and infidels may scoff at the Church as an obstacle affair, as a relic of the dark ages, as a convention of goody-goody people, but all the impression they have ever made on your mind against the Church of God is absolutely nothing. You would make more sacrifice for it to-day than for any other institution and if it were needful you would die in its defence. There are thousands of people in this house to-day who would, with Isaac Watts, says in regard to it:

JERUSALEM IN RUINS—

'Zion's garden walled around,
Chosen and made peculiar ground;
A little spot enclosed by grace
Out of the world's wild wilderness."

Or you can take the better words of the kingly poet as he said, 'If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning." You understand in you own experience the pathos, the homesickness, the courage, the holy enthusiasm of Nehemiah in his midnight moonlight ride around the ruins of his beloved Jerusalem. Again, my text impresses me with the fact that before reconstruction there most be an exploration of ruins. Why was not Nehemiah asleep in bed? Why was not his horse stabled in the midnight? Let the police of the city arrest this midnight rider, out of some mischief. No. Nehemiah is going to rebuild the city, and he is making the preliminary exploration. In at this gate, out at that gate, east, west, north, south. By the fish gate. By the dragon well. By the tower of the furnaces. All through the ruins. The ruins must be explored before the work of reconstruction can begin. The reason that so many people in this day apparantly converted, do not remain converted is because they did not explore the ruin of their own heart. The reason that there are so many professed Christians who in this day lie and forge, and steal and commit adultery, and go to the penitentiary, is because they do not first learn the ruin of their own heart. They have not found out that 'the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked.' They had an idea that they were almost right, and they built religion as a sort of extension, as an ornamental cupola. There was a superstructure of religion built on a substratum of unrepented sins. The trouble with a good deal of modern theology is that, instead of building on the right foundation, it builds on the debris of an unregenerated nature. They attempted to rebuild Jerusalem before, in the midnight of conviction, they have seen the ghastliness of the ruin. They have such a poor foundation for their religion that the first north east storm of temptation blows them down. I have no faith in a man's conversation if he is not converted in the old fashioned way—John Bunyan's way, John Wesley's way, John Calvin's way, Paul's way, Christ's way. A dentist said to me a few days ago, 'Does that hurt? I replied 'Of course it hurts. It is in your business as in our profession—we have to hurt before we can help; we have to explore and dig away before we can put in the gold.' You will never understand redemption until you understand ruin. A man tells me that some one is a member of the church. It makes no impression on my mind at all. I simply want to know whether he was converted in the old fashioned way or whether he was converted in the new fashioned way. If he was converted in the old fashioned he will stand. If he was converted in the new fashioned way he will not stand. That is all there is about it. Ah, my friends, you see this is

NOT A COMPLIMENTARY GOSPEL

That is what makes some people so mad. It comes to a man of a million dollars and impenitent in his sins, and says, 'You're a pauper.' It comes to a woman of fairest cheek who has never repented and says, 'You're a leper.' It comes to a man priding himself on his independence and says, 'You're bound hand and foot to the devil.' It comes to our entire race and say, 'You're a ruin—a ghastly ruin, an illimitable ruin, and, unless the grace of God rebuilds you, and ever-lasting ruin? Satan sometimes says to me, why do you preach that truth? Why don't you preach a gospel with no repentance in it? Why don't you flatter men's heart so that you make them feel all right? Why don't you preach a humanitarian Gospel, with no repentance in it, saying nothing about ruin talking all the time about the redemption? Instead of preaching to five thousand you might preach to twenty thousand; for there would be four times as many who would come to hear a popular truth as to hear an unpopular truth, and you have voice enough to make them hear.' I say, 'Get thee behind me Satan.' I would rather lead five thousand souls into heaven than twenty thousand into hell. The redemption of the Gospel is a perfect farce if there is no ruin. 'The whole need not a physician but they are sick.' 'If any one, though he be an angel from heaven, preach any other Gospel than this,' says the apostle, 'let him be accursed.' Again my subject gives me a description of busy life!

TRIUMPHANT SADNESS.

If there was any man in the world who had a right to hope and give up every thing as lost, it was Nehemiah. You say, 'He was cupbearer in the palace of Shushan, and it was a grand place.' So it was. the hall of that palace was two hundred feet square, and the roof covered over thirty-six marble pillars, each pillar sixty feet high; and the intense blue of the sky, and the deep green of the forest foliage, and the white of the driven snow, all hung trembling in the upholstery. But my friends, you know very well that fine architecture will not drown homesickness. Yet Nehemiah did not give up. Then when you see him going among those desolated streets, and by those dismantled towers, and by the torn-up grave of his father, you would suppose that he would have been disheartened, and that he would have dismounted from the horse and gone to his room and said, 'Woe is me! My father's grave is torn up. The temple is dishonored. The walls are broked down. I have no money with which to rebuild. I wish I had never been born. I wish I were dead.' Not so said Nehemiah. Although he had a grief so intense that it excited the commentary of his king, yet the penniless, expatriated Nehemiah rouses himself up to rebuild the city. He gets his permission of absence, he gets his passports; he hastens away to Jerusalem. By night, on horseback, he rides through the ruins; he overcomes the most ferocious opposition; he arouses the piety and patriotism of the people, and in less than two months—namely, in fifty-two days. Jerusalem was rebuilt. That's what I call busy and triumphant sadness. Here is a man who has lost his property. He does not go to hard drinking. He does not destroy his own life. He comes and says, 'Harness me for Christian work. My money's gone. I have no treasures on earth; I want treasures in heaven. I have a voice and a heart to serve God.' You say that the man has failed. He has not failed he has triumphed. Oh, I wish I could persuade all the people who have any kind of trouble

TO NEVER GIVE UP!

I wish they would look at the midnight rider of the text, and that the four hoofs of that beast on which Nehemiah rode might cut to pieces all your discouragements and hardships and trials. Don't give up! Who is going to give up, when on the bosom of God he can have all his troubles hushed? Give up! Never think of giving up. Are you borne down with poverty! A little child was found holding her dead mothers hand in the darkness of a tenement house, and some one coming in the little girl looked up while holding her dead mother's hand and said, 'Oh I do wish God had made more light for poor folks!' 'My dear, God will be your light, God will be your shelter; God will be your home.' Are you borne down with the bereavements of life? Is the home lonely now that the child is gone? Do not give up. Think what the old sexton said when the minister asked him why he put so much care on the little graves in the cemetery—so much care than on the larger graves—and the old sexton said, Sir you know that of such is the Kingdom of heaven,' and I think the Saviour is pleased when He sees so much white clover growing around these little graves.' But when the minister pressed the old sexton for a more satisfactory answer, the old sexton said, 'Sir, about these larger graves, I don't know who are the Lord's saints and who are not; but you know sir, it is clean different with the bairns.' 'Oh, if you have had that keen, tender, indescribable sorrow that comes from the loss of a child, do not give up? The old sexton was right. It is all well with the bairns. Or, if you have sinned, if you have sinned grievously—sinned until you have been cast out by society, do not give up. 'Oh, there is no reason why any one in this house, by reason of should give up! Are you a foreigner, and in a strange land? Nehemiah was in exile. Are you penniless? Nehemiah was poor. Are you home-sick? Nehemiah was home-sick. Are you broken-hearted? Nehemiah was broken-hearted. But just see him in the text, riding along the sacrileged grave of his father, and by the dragon well, and through the fish gate, and by the king's pool, in and out, in and out, the moonlight kindling up the features of this man, until you see not only the mark of sad reminicense, but the courage, the hope, the enthusiasm of a man who knows that Jerusalem will be rebuilt. I pick you up to-day, out of your sin and out of your sorrow, and I put you against the warm heart of Christ. "The eternal God is they refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms.

Pure Blood

Is the absolute necessity of health.

The marvellous results of Shaker Blood Syrup upon all humors and low conditions of the blood (as proven by the cures prove it the best blood medicine. Such has been the success of this article at home that nearly every family in whole neighborhoods have been taking it at the same time. It eradicates scrofula, vitalizes and enriches the blood, thereby restoring and renovating the whole system. Shaker Blood Syrup purifies the blood, cures dyspepsia, cures biliousness. A peculiar point in Shaker Blood Syrup is that it builds up and strengthens the system, while it eradicates disease, and as nature's great assistant proves itself invaluable as a protection from diseases that originate in changes of the seasons, of climate and of life.

Toronto, Ont., February 20th, 1884.

Gentlemen,—

I have used Shaker Blood Syrup in my family for scrofulous humor with wonderful success, and am happy to tell you that it is the best medicine we ever used. I do sincerely advise any one who is troubled with scrofula to give this valuable remedy a trial, and assure them they will not be disappointed.

Very truly yours,

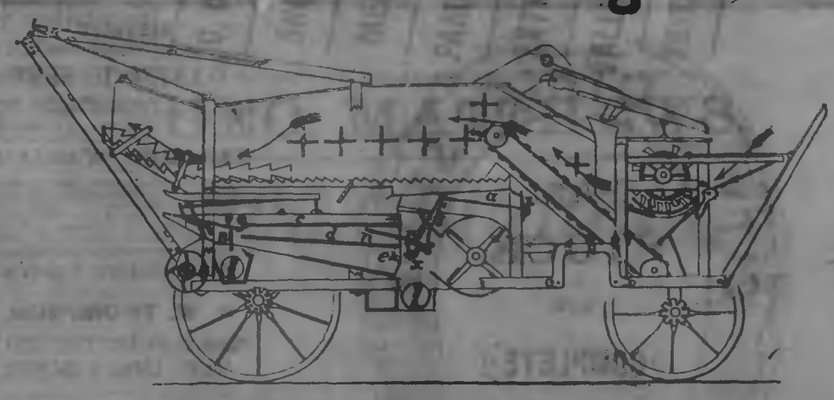
Millar's New Model Vibrating Thresher



MANUFACTURED BY THE

JOSEPH HALL MANUFACTURING COMPANY,

OSHAWA - - - - - ONTARIO.

The Most Perfect Thresher. The Most Perfect Separator. The Most Perfect Cleaner ever Offered to the Public. The only True Grain Saver.

JOHN DRYDEN, M.P.P., ON THE "NEW MODEL."

(From the Ontario Reformer, December 21st, 1883.)

Our readers are, probably, all aware that Mr. Dryden, M. P. P., President of the Canadian Shorthorn Breeders' Association, occupies one of the finest farms in the Dominion of Canada, and is one of the best farmers. He cultivates something over five hundred acres of land, and there is scarcely an acre but what is in a high state of cultivation, and the whole farm is free from all weeds or plants which are injurious to crops. Not only does he own one of the finest and best tilled farms in the country, but his stock throughout, whether horses, cattle, or sheep, are of the very best breeds, and all of them fine aminals. In every Department Mr. Dryden looks out for the best, whether it is in the line of stock, machinery, or seed grains. He and his neighbor, Mr. Samuel Holman, purchased for their own use, this year, a New Model Vibrating Threshing Machine of the Hall Company, and Mr. Dryden's opinion we give below. Every one who is acquainted with him knows that he would not put his name to any statement which is not correct in every particular; therefore his opinion of the New Model is of great value to those who desire to purchase a threshing machine:—

BROOKLIN, Ontario County, Dec. 13th, 1883

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa:

GENTLEMEN,—We are highly delighted with the 10-Horse-Power and New Model Vibrator purchased from you this season. It runs smooth and easy; threshes perfectly; separates thoroughly; and the fanning mill does its work so completely that it cannot be excelled. It is just the machine for the farmers to buy because it is so easy to control. It is comparatively free from dust, there can be no waste of grain, and it is so bound to do good work under every circumstance. We heartily congratulate you on the introduction of so complete a separator, a great boon both to threshers and farmers. Very truly yours

JOHN DRYDEN, M.P.P.,
SAMUEL HOLMAN.

VICTORIA COUNTY.

The "New Model" Vibrator Thresher.

MARIPOSA, Sept. 29th 1883.

Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa:

GENTS,—The "New Model" Vibrator I bought from you through your agent, E. Walker, is the best thresher I have ever used. I have been threshing over thirty years; have had eight threshing machines before, but the "New Model" is the best I ever have handled. The farmers I threshed for fairly admire the working of the machine; to see the complete separation of the grain from the straw, cleaning it fit for market, and taking all the small grain out at the same time. I have no hesitation in saying that there is nothing can equal it.

Yours truly,
RICHARD MARKS.

ST. MARY'S, Dec. 13th, 1883.

E. O. Felt, General Agent Jos. Hall Manufacturing Co., London:

DEAR SIR,—The New Model Thresher and Oshawa Engine which we bought from your agent, Jno. Fitzsimmons, is all that you claim for it. The farmers are surprised at the way she cleans the grain. No necessity for a fanning mill while she is around. We can truly and honestly endorse the statement which other threshermen have sent you. Words fail to express our surprise at the work she does, she cannot be beat. We have used a number of machines and consider the "New Model" ahead of them all, and would recommend intending purchasers to examine the "Model" before purchasing. Yours truly,

JOHN LANE,
JAMES MOORE.

"It Takes Splendidly Around Here—It Fans the Grain So Clean that it is Really Fit for Market."

MILVERTON, Feb. 12th, 1883.

Editor Stratford Beacon:

RESPECTED SIR,—Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper to inform my farmer friends as to a new threshing machine which I have lately purchased called the "New Model" Vibrator, made at the Hall Works in Oshawa. I have tested it this winter, and desire to say that it is, without doubt, the very best machine I have seen. It takes splendidly around here. It fans the grain so clean that it is really fit for market. I never saw anything like it. It threshes and separates beyond my expectations. The waste of grain is reduced to the lowest possible point; in fact, does not amount to anything. It is the greatest grain saver I have ever seen; threshes rapidly, is easy on the horses, runs very steadily, all the parts being perfectly balanced, and I see nothing in it to get out of order, or to wear out. I have had a good deal of experience in threshing machines, and say, without the least hesitation, that the "New Model" Vibrator is the best thresher, separator and cleaner made in the country. The machine is well made and well finished. Thanking you for the opportunity of informing my farmer friends of the merits of this machine, I am, Sir, yours truly,

WM. CROSS.

An Interesting Test.

From the London Advertiser.

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa, have introduced a new threshing machine called the "New Model" Vibrator. This Machine was invented by Mr. Jacob Miller, of Canton, Ohio, who has for forty years been engaged in manufacturing threshing machines. The "New Model" was first offered to the public in 1879. For 1883 more than one thousand were sold in the United States. The Hall Company have been making some very interesting tests to ascertain the real merits of the machine as a grain saver. A platform was built at the rear of the machine with a slatted bottom, so that all the grain fell upon the slats. It was arranged so that one man could stand on either side of the platform and shake the grain out of the straw, so as to allow it to fall through the slats, throwing the straw over on the ground. A hopper was placed under the platform, and under the hopper a fanning mill was placed. Then fifty bushels of grain was threshed, beginning at the rate of sixty bushels per hour, and working up to one hundred and twenty bushels per hour. After threshing fifty bushels at each of the various speeds, the grain in the fanning mill was cleaned up and weighed. It can be readily seen that in this way a test can be made which would indicate exactly the quantity of grain which would be liable to go into the straw stack. Ten tests were made only a short time ago, and the worst result was the loss of five ounces of wheat in threshing two bushels, which was equal to a waste of one bushel in nineteen hundred and twenty. This is a truly wonderful result, and is valuable because the test has been made in a thorough and systematic manner. All kinds of grain have been tested, and the result was equally satisfactory.

CHANTRY, OCTOBER 14th, 1882.

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa:

GENTLEMAN,—I have got the "New Model" Vibrator fairly at work and it is doing better and better work every day. It feeds easier than the other style of machine, and is a perfect cleaner, does not throw over any and is more durable than any other. As you know, I have had forty years' experience in threshing machines, having bought one of the first machines that came into Canada, from the late Joseph Hall, at Rochester, and have been a continuous thresher ever since. There is no better machine made than the "New Model."

Yours truly, E. W. SHELDON.

Important Letter From an Ops Farmer.

Forty Bushels of Cleaned Barley Saved From Re-threshed Straw.

Ops, February 18th 1883.

To the Editor of the Canadian Post:

SIR,—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to make the following statement which I know will be of interest to all my farmer friends who read your journal. I employed a threshing machine to thresh my grain on the 26th day of January. It was manufactured by J. Abell, of Woodbridge. On February 6th I employed Messrs. Wetherup & Curtis to finish my threshing with a "New Model" Vibrating threshing machine, manufactured by the Jos. Hall Manufacturing Co., of Oshawa.

Messrs. Wetherup & Curtis re-threshed part of the straw and chaff threshed by the Woodbridge machine, and took therefrom thirty bushels of clean barley.

The "New Model" Vibrator is the most perfect thresher, teperator, and cleaner I ever saw.

Yours very respectfully,
DAVID GRAY,
2nd Con. of Ops.

Elgin County.

It has no Equal in the County of Elgin.

From the Ontario Reformer, Sept. 28th 1883.

The success of the New Model Thresher has been without precedent in the history of threshing machines. The Hall Co. received this week the following letter from Mr. Jonathan Yorke, who resides near St. Thomas, one of the oldest threshermen in Ontario. Mr. Yorke bought a New Model on trial, and this letter expresses his opinion after having tested the machine to his entire satisfaction:—

YARMOUTH CENTRE, Sept. 23rd, 1883.

Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., Oshawa, Ont:

GENTLEMEN,—I have one of your New Model Vibrators and have threshed this season so far with it. The farmers I have threshed for all say it is the best threshing machine that ever came into their barn. It has no equal in the county of Elgin. I have threshed for thirty-seven years and have used most all other kinds of machines, but this lays them all out for good threshing, separating, and cleaning. The wheat is shrunk here, but it will thresh all the grain out of the heads and separate it from the straw and clean it better than any machine I ever saw. It does not scatter the grain all around the hind part of the machine, so when you get the straw threshed you are done. It does not take half an hour to clean up the floor after you have finished the mow. It does not wind in threshing peas or other grain; it stands still on the floor and no belts fly off to bother you. I would advise any man who wants to buy a threshing machine not to buy any other kind, and I am sure when he tries one he will be satisfied that he has got the boss of them all.

Yours truly, JONATHAN YORKE.

Never Saw a Threshing Machine as Nearly perfect as the "New Model."

COOKSVILLE, Dec. 30th, 1882.

To the Editor of the Express, Oakville:

DEAR SIR,—We, the undersigned farmers and old threshers, being desirous of advancing the interests of our farmer friends, take great pleasure in calling their attention to a new threshing machine which we have had the satisfaction of seeing work. It is called the "New Model" Vibrator, and was made by the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Co., of Oshawa. We have had much experience in threshing, separating, and cleaning grain, but we have never seen a threshing machine so nearly perfect as the "New Model." It runs very smoothly, with scarcely any vibration, every part being so carefully and evenly balanced. It threshes rapidly; in fact it can take all the straw men can give it. It feeds very easily. It separates the grain most thoroughly from the straw; in this respect it is remarkable. And, finally, it cleans the grain more perfectly than we have ever seen it done heretofore. The manufacturers claim that it will thresh two thousand bushels of wheat without wasting more than a bushel, and we believe that the machine will fulfil their claim in this respect. We believe there is no machine offered to the public in Canada which so fully meets the demand for a perfect thresher, separator, and cleaner.

A Great Step in Advance of other Machines.

TAUNTON, Dec. 12th 1883

The Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa:

GENTLEMEN,—We have now thoroughly tested our New Model Vibrator and Ten Horse Pitts' Power which we purchased of you during the season, and are pleased to say that it gives us unqualified satisfaction. It threshes the grain out of the straw completely and saves every kernel of it more successfully than any other machine we have ever seen or used. It cleans the grain almost fit for market. In this respect it is surprisingly ahead of all other threshers and cleaners. It is light on the horses; does not get out of order; easily managed; and in all respects is a great step in advance of other machines. You are at liberty to refer any one to us who desires to know our opinion of the New Model. We purchased the machine almost entirely for the use of ourselves and a few neighbours, and are well pleased with our purchase.

Yours truly
WILLIAM LANDER,
JOHN LANDER.

No Winding. No Choking, and no Grain Carried Over with the "New Model."

GREENBACK, Township Reach,
Oct. 26th, 1883.

To the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company:

GENTS,—In regard to the 33-inch "New Model" Separator and 10 Horse Down Pitts Power, which I purchased of you in July, I beg to say that as a thresher, separator, and saver of grain, nothing can beat it. I have been threshing for the past twelve years, and this is the best machine I have ever used. It gives great satisfaction in all my engagements. I have fifty days work cleared yet, and have been threshing steadily ever since I took the machine from your shop. There has been a large amount of damp grain this year, which has made threshing hard work, but the "New Model" has given much great satisfaction that it has been a pleasure to thresh. No winding, no choking, no waste of grain, and the grain has been cleaned fit for market. There is no machine equal to the "New Model" that I knew of.

Yours truly, GEORGE O'LEARY.

TO THE FARMERS AND THRESHERMEN OF CANADA.

Our New Model Vibrating Threshing Machine has now been in use in the United States four seasons and in Canada three seasons. As a perfect grain thresher, separator, and cleaner, it stands without a rival on this continent. No less than 1,200 machines were sold in the U. S. last season. We have now a very large force of men employed and can turn out three or four threshing machines per day. Also engines, horse-powers, clover threshers, &c., &c.

We invite any and all parties who may desire a threshing machine to inspect the New Model Vibrator, or send for our descriptive catalogue which will give full information. We guarantee that every machine we send out will give entire satisfaction or we will return the notes or cash which may have been given us for the same.

FRUITS AND FLOWERS.

Annual Exhibition of the Horticultural Society.

The annual exhibition of the Peterborough Horticultural Society held in the Opera House last Thursday, was a creditable success.

The floral exhibition was a very fair one, the collection large and of good quality. Great good taste marked the make up of many of the magnificent bouquets. There was a limited display of fruit as was to be expected, but some fair specimens were on exhibition. An excellent collection of ladies' work added greatly to the interest of the exhibition, especially to the lady visitors.

The lady judges were, Mrs. Dr. Burnham, and Mrs. David McDougall; the gentlemen, Messrs. F. Mason, town, and Mr. J. D. Roberts, of Cobourg.

TABLE TALK.

"The cream of the joke was, said the new boarder, "that the——"

"If you say skim milk of the joke, we'll understand you better," said the bread-pudding man.

"Don't interrupt," continued the new boarder; "the landlady herself heard him giving out the conundrum."

"And what was it?" asked the chronic joker piously, after a long wait.

"Why are we all martyrs?"

There was a dead silence, as the feeble old joke struggled to its legs, revealing the brand, B. C. 65.

Then the new boarder answered in a voice he tried to render steady and truthful:

"Because we all perish at the steak."

The Druggists have just received a supply of Dr. Wheeler's Celebrated Chemical Food and Nutritive Tonic, the Compound Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya. This preparation has been in use in private practice for fifteen years, and is confidently recommended to the public as the most elegant and reliable tonic in use for building up constitutions that have for a long time been suffering from Chronic Wasting Diseases, depending upon poor blood. It perfects nutrition by aiding the digestion and assimilation of food, and thereby building up and vitalizing all the organs and tissues of the body. In diseases peculiar to women, and in delicate children, it supplies a want long felt by the physician, of a safe and agreeable remedy that may be taken for a protracted period without any possibility of injury, or of becoming repugnant to the patient. Sold at $1.00.

WESTERN JUSTICE.

A passenger in an Arizona railroad train was arrested by a sheriff for a minor offence a short time ago. Seeing a judge playing poker in the smoking car with a brace of colonels, the sheriff prevailed upon him to stop the game for a few minutes and try the prisoner. The Judge did so, fined the prisoner $40, and before an hour had passed away had cleaned out every colonel on the train. Then he played a little game with the late prisoner, who promptly won all the judge's pile and set up the drinks for the crowd.

Jos. Beaudin, M. D., Hull, P. Q., writes; Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil commands a large and increasing sale which it richly merits. I have always found it exceedingly helpful; I use it in all cases of rheumatism, as well as fractures and dislocations. I made use of it myself to calm the pains of a broken leg with dislocation of the foot, and in two days I was entirely relieved of the pain."

PROTECTION CANNOT SAVE THEM.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 11.—On account of the depression in trade, the Edgar Thompson Steel Company has notified its employees that unless they accept a reduction in wages a suspension of operations will be necessary. Mr. Andrew Carnegie is the head of the firm, which employs nearly 5,000 men. The probabilities are that the reduction will be accepted, as the shutting of 1874 mean to this vicinity a greater pay than ever during the past ten years. There are only about half the mills and glass factories in operation. There is great distress among the poor, and there are 4,000 vacant rooms in the city on account of the poorer classes doubling up to save expenses.

NO TRAITOR ESCAPES.

Thousands of copies of a nihilist proclamation were circulated in Warsaw during the Czar's visit. It is signed by the central committee. The proclamation says: "In the struggle to sustain the people against the rule of the Czar, we ought to have recourse to the same weapons as he uses. Our fight is now if it was ever, a l'outrance. We have done justice on Journalist Skiriptsyk, whose death was wrongfully attributed to the violence of thieves, but he was executed by us as a spy. No traitor escapes." The police have failed to discover the source of publication of the proclamation. They seized a nihilist at the railway station disguised as an officer of the guard.

THE COFFEE CUP AS A BAROMETER.

If, in sweetening your coffee you allow the sugar to dissolve without stirring the liquid the globules of air contained in the sugar will rise to the surface of the liquid. If these globules form a frothy mass, remaining in the centre of the cup, it is an indication of duration of fine weather; if, on the contrary, the froth forms a ring round the sides of the cup, it is a sign of heavy rain; variable weather is implied by the froth remaining stationary, but not exactly in the centre.

I tried a bottle of it after suffering for some ten years, and the results are certainly beyond my expectations It assists digestion wonderfully. I digest my food with no apparent effort, and am now entierly free from that sensation, which every dyspeptic well knows, of unpleasant fulness after each meal."

A NEW USE FOR DEAD SOLDIERS.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the glow and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. G. P. RICHARDS writes from Shirley, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWER, proprietor of the Methodist (Ohio) Examiner, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. It has promoted the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1882: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidences of the change which Nature time proveroth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and am here been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 16 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 15, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 18, 1884.

The Wheat Crop and its Price.

The Canadian wheat crop this year is a good one, and good judges estimate that it will amount to a surplus of forty millions—of a surplus that is of wheat seeking a market abroad.

The English wheat crop this year is estimated at 11,000,000 quarters. This will leave 104,000,000 of bushels to be supplied from abroad, of which India, according to report, will be able to supply nearly one half, leaving Turkey, Russia, Canada, United States and Australia to supply the balance. This shows that the supply is greatly in excess of the amount required. That is, these five countries will only be called on to supply about ten millions apiece. This of course means that the price will rule low, with little prospect for advance. There is also, as another reason for this opinion, a large amount of the old wheat crop "in sight." The present crop will in a large number of cases, have to be put upon the market. There can be little hope for advance, and in view of the fact that the deterioration of grain by shrinkage and by vermin, will not make it pay to hold for a rather doubtful advance of a few cents on a bushel, it seems that the bulk of the crop will ere long be put upon the market, so that the price will continue at, perhaps, its present discouraging figures. The price in the British markets is the lowest it has been for a century, and with wheat pouring into England at the rate of over three million bushels per week, and a little more than equalling the demand, it is not probable that prices will stiffen.

This state of affairs is sufficiently discouraging to the farmer generally, and must be galling to that portion of the class, which put faith in the windy promises of the N. P. advocates, and by their votes, saddled the country with a high taxation policy—in consideration of lavish promises that such a policy would make and maintain high prices for the products of the farm. In June, 1878, wheat was worth a dollar and a half per bushel; to-day it is hardly worth more than half that sum, and the promises made deliberately to gull the farmer, have not in one instance been fulfilled. If the N. P. is not responsible for low grain prices, it is responsible for the double evil of high taxation, combined with low prices for grain. The farmer is compelled to accept prices for grain 25 per cent below a bare paying profit, while burdensome taxes rest on nearly all the necessities of life, he has to pay for—out of grain sold at starvation figures. No matter what his grain brings him, he has the taxes to pay, which though indirect, are none the less a burden. This year the Dominion Government will take from the products of the people, something like 35 millions of dollars. The bulk of this will have to be paid by the farmer, mechanic and labouring man, for the benefit of the comparatively few manufacturers. Thus the manufacturer is heavily protected, while the farmer and workingman have no protection. The government cannot protect the farmer, and it will not protect the labouring man, whose money it is spending to import labor to compete with the Canadian workingman.

Now the farmers can see what a glaring fraud the National Policy is to them. When its advocates wanted to delude the farmers into voting for it, which many of them very hastily and foolishly did do, the latter were assured that it would secure a home market for all their produce, and keep up the prices. Now they are insultingly told (which Reformers told them before '78) that the law of demand and supply must regulate the price of grain; no act of parliament can affect it. A wise man can only be fooled once in the same way, and the farmers are too watchful of their own interests to trust Tory policymongers after having once been grossly deceived by them.

A new Home Rule party, it is said, is started in Ireland. The platform of the new home rulers is: First, peasant proprietorship; second, an Irish Parliament sitting in Dublin, which is to be composed of a Local Assembly, and the Irish members elected to the House of Commons, who are to constitute the second chamber of the Local Legislature; third, every member is to take the oath of allegiance to the Queen and her successors. The so-called new home rule party do not differ from the supporters of Mr. Parnell, except that they specifically mention British connection as one of the planks of their platform.

The "Grand Old Man."

The enthusiastic cordiality with which Hon. Mr. Gladstone was received by his Midlothian constituents must have made the stalwart peers tremble in their boots. Nothing is surer than that the popularity of Mr. Gladstone's Franchise Bill, as developed among his constituents, betrays the general feeling in every British constituency. In the fight for popular rights the venerable fogies, the members of the House of Lords, will sooner or later learn that they are running against a rock that will wreck their gorgeous but rather timber-shivered bark. Mr. Gladstone will not dissolve the House, even though the Lords again reject the franchise bill. There is more work to do. Besides the bill itself the reconstruction of the House of Lords is a live question. Mr. Gladstone is the hero of the hour, and in fact is more deserving of the support of the Jingo party, which so persistently abuses him, than that party is willing to acknowledge. It has been pointed out that Mr. Gladstone's administration has grabbed more territory than any other British Government since the early part of the present century. The other day the Germans, it will be remembered, established a protectorate at Angra Pequena. The colony was slightly inland, and the Germans thought it covered to the coast; but the British authorities immediately seized Wallfish Bay and the adjacent territory, thus shutting the Germans off from entrance or exit to their colony unless they passed through British territory or journeyed about a thousand miles. Is it any wonder that they abuse Mr. Gladstone, who has outwitted their statesmen? Bechuana land, the delta of the River Niger, and large tracts of other territory have been quietly seized and placed under British protection, while the German, French and American press have been discussing with mutual gratification the alleged isolation of Great Britain, and the hauling down of a British flag at a place where it was never unfurled. The continental diplomatists may have fooled Disraeli, but they cannot get around "the grand old man." How the British Liberal statesmen must have laughed in their sleeves at the so-called "inspired" articles in the continental press about France and Germany's wonderful energy in seizing African and Oriental territory. When it comes to a big land steal, it is safe to back a British government up against the world, because their apprenticeship has been more thorough. If somebody at the end of the the year counts up the additions to the territorial jurisdiction of the various European countries, it will be found that Great Britain has grabbed within the present year ten times as much land as any other European nation. Let somebody look at the map, and trace out the boundaries of the lands seized and the result will be astonishing. The Mother Country to-day controls more than one-third the entire continent of Africa.

Prison Reform.

In a Christian country the reform of prisons should be effected, as far as may be, through the application of Christian principles. It is, perhaps, one of the highest of those duties which fall to the lot of men in this life, to seek to turn the sinful from the error of their ways. To visit those in prison, and reform them if possible, grows out of that boundless charity which resembles the Divine love, and which will be well repaid in peace of mind and an easy conscience.

Prison reform contemplates, as a part of its work, the improvement of prison discipline and the government of prisons. Barely a generation ago the lash was relied upon as the chief instrument of discipline, and in one English prison it was laid on at the rate of a thousand strokes a day. What was this but that un-Christian barbarity and harshness which, as human nature goes, could only provoke revenge, hatred and despair? Less than a generation ago each keeper punished his own men as he wished, and too often showed the temper of a savage in fulfilling his will.

The law has now done away with these and many similar abuses and barbarities and operates somewhat in the spirit of justice and compassion. Care is taken that the prisoners should receive some kind of religious instruction, be kept employed, and be treated as human beings. All these things have been made potent instruments of reform in place of the old-time hardening processes of cruelty and abuse.

Let no one suppose, however, that the good work already accomplished makes further reform superfluous. This is by no means the case. Prison administration is not always committed to upright, humane and enlightened men. The physical and moral influences in some prisons are still very injurious, causing the inmates, on going out, to be even worse than when they entered. Juvenile offenders, especially, suffer greatly in this way. They are often brought into close personal contact with hardened criminals, whose foul language they hear, and whose experience in vice and crime they listen to and are at times excited to emulate. This, the grand jury of the county of York, in their last presentment, plainly stated was the case in many places at present. They naturally condemned such an evil system as most injurious to the public welfare, as well as a gross outrage on the children and their parents. They recommended that the trial of the young under 16 should be made private, and that, when convicted, such persons should in no way be associated with adult prisoners.

Their conclusion that "to bring such persons into close contact with ordinary jail birds, and thus placing them within hearing of language which must defile their minds, weaken their self-respect, and may lead to their entrance upon a criminal career" is one well-worthy of the deepest attention of all enlightened and thoughtful persons interested in prison reform.

Another suggestion to make the time of a prisoner's release depend to some extent on his good conduct and exertions in learning or working at a wage-earning occupation, is also most important. These indefinite time-sentences or "commutation laws" under which convicts can earn a considerable diminution in the period for which they were originally incarcerated, have been tried thoroughly in other countries and are found to be productive of very much good. They cause the unfortunate criminal to be on his good behaviour all the time he is in prison, and lead him to labour diligently, with the view of lessening his sentence and giving him a material benefit as the fruits of his toil.

It must be admitted that, in one sense, the the saddest day of convicted criminals' lives is not when they enter prison, when they are at least sure of a living, but when they leave it and are sure of nothing, except starvation or stealing. They leave the prison gates, with nothing more than an unsavoury reputation, stigmatized as out-caste, and society refuses to have them again in the ranks of law-abiding and honest industry. What we want in every city and town are Prison Associations, the members of which will assist those discharged from our jails and penitentiaries in their great extremity and distress, and put them, when they desire it, in the way of earning an honest living. Such a plan for prison reform stands at the very head of all endeavours to help the depraved and sinful, and is worthy of the hearty support of all who profess to love their fellow-men.

Editorial Notes.

The Liberals of Oxford are going to have a big demonstration in honor of Hon. Mr. Mowat, at Woodstock, on the 19th inst.

The Governor-General in Council has ordered that Thursday, 6th of November, be observed as a day of general thanksgiving to Almighty God for blessings vouchsafed to this Dominion.

Lord Dufferin's many Canadian admirers congratulate him upon his appointment as Governor-General of India. His appointment is that testimony to merit the public expect from a Liberal administration.

The Reform meeting in Glasgow in favor of the Franchise Bill, was a great success. Seventy thousand persons joined in the procession, among whom were 400 persons who took part in the Reform movement of 1882. Mr. Gladstone's popularity was testified by a most enthusiastic welcome.

The exports of rum from Jamaica in 1882, was 22,742 puncheons. Do the advocates of union favor interprovincial free trade in rum, or do they propose subjecting the article to an excise duty?

Sir John Macdonald claims to be a "run-'un to go." Is that the reason, asks the London Tiser, he is going for old Jamaica?

The amended Crooks Act prohibits the sale of liquors on fair grounds. The directors of the Toronto Industrial Fair have resolved to take out licenses under the Dominion Act and thereby defeat the intentions of the Ontario Legislature. Nothing could better illustrate the mischievous tendencies of the Dominion law.

The revised edition of the Old Testament will not be in the hands of the public until the spring of 1885. As in the case of the revised New Testament, the book will be published simultaneously on both sides of the Atlantic. Christians who have managed to travel pretty correctly in the narrow way, by the light of the dear old edition, will possibly, manage to get on without the new one for a few months.

Tory newspapers advocate the admission of the crown colony of Jamacia into the Confederation, because our breadstuffs market would be thereby enlarged. Why, bless your soul, these same sheets said the effect of adopting the so-called National Policy, would be to furnish a home market for all the farmer could produce. They feel that they have lied to the farmer, and now they want to mollify him by standing treat to Jamacia rum.

An investigation of the figures in the United States elections of 1882 shows that there are seventy-seven districts lost by the Republicans in 1882 which can be turned by a transfer of 500 votes, and into these districts both the Republican and Democratic managers of the present campaign are putting every available energy. If the result in Vermont, however, indicates the general result, there will be few of the districts lost in 1882 regained, but rather an accumulation of Republican disaster.

In his speech at Winnipeg, Sir Richard Cartwright complained of the injustice done to the North-West in the matter of representation in Parliament. He pointed out that the 15,000 white inhabitants of British Columbia had six representatives in Parliament, while the quarter of a million of people east of the Rocky Mountains had only five representatives. This is a matter that ought to engage the attention of the Liberals in Parliament, who should endeavor to have justice done to the people of the North-West in the matter of representation.

The Montreal Journal of Commerce is authority for the statement that nearly $3,000,000 worth of cattle have been shipped from that city since the opening of navigation last spring. Eight years ago the exports did not reach one-tenth of that sum. Of late the cattle shippers have met with unprecedented losses. One Montreal firm has lost $100,000, and some Toronto firms have met with crippling reverses. The high prices paid to farmers for the stock, the high rates of ocean freights, and the heavy shrinkage in value in England account for this collapse.

The Lindsay Post thus draws the political portrait of the representative of West Peterborough in the Local House:

Mr. Carnegie in writing and speaking, is one of the most unfair and least scrupulous politicians of the day, and is notorious for his recklessness in distorting and garbling statements.

The Post is to be congratulated in its expertness in pen-and-ink portraiture. One would think that the writer had followed his subject through an election campaign, the picture is so exceedingly life like, that one would recognize it as intended for the original "if he saw it any where."

It is clear from the report of the physicians of the late Mr. Folger, Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, that his death was due to over-work. This is a terrible lesson to our Cabinet Ministers at Ottawa. At the present time there are no less than five Ministers toiling their lives away at the seaside or some other place of recreation. So fearful is Postmaster-General Carling that the fate of Folger will be his, that he makes only flying visits to the capital and does as little work as he can; but there is danger of Minister Bowell succumbing any minute, he having charge of no less than five departments.

The Ottawa Government have again placed the workingman under a debt of gratitude. So solicitous are they for the welfare of our toiling artisans and laborers that they will not allow them to be over-worked. Our paternal N. P. Government has just invested $4,000 of the workingmen's money in the purchase of five thousand copies of a book which is to be circulated in France with a view of inducing French laborers, and no chance to immigrate to this country. There are quite a number of Canadian workingmen at present in the employ of "Street & Walker," [illegible] Montreal, who determined that they should be notified. This eminently fair to protect everything but labor, and how to appeal [illegible] contributed by the labouring class in bringing out emigrants to take what little bread [illegible] W. P. has left, out of his and his children's mouths.

Parties who have been waiting for Millinery, to see the new shapes, can get the latest now at Turnbulls.

LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

COUNCIL MEETING.

The regular meeting of the Village Council was held in the Council Chamber on Monday evening, the 8th ult. Present,—Councillor Urquhart and the chair, and Councillors McWilliams and Moore.

Minutes of last regular and special meetings read and confirmed.

Moved by Mr. McWilliams, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the bonds furnished by the newly appointed Collector, Mr. W. McDonald, be accepted.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. McWilliams, seconded by Mr. Moore, that the Roadmaster obtain what plank is required to repair the sidewalks.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. McWilliams, seconded by Mr. Moore, that this Council grant the use of the Council Chamber to Mr. Joseph Nelson and others, on Thursday night, they to furnish their own light if required.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. McWilliams, seconded by Mr. Moore, that this Council do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Reeve.—Carried.

LOST.

A good story comes from up the back lakes. For the past week or two a Peterborough party have been camped in the vicinity of Mount Rascal, head of Clear Lake. One morning a few days since, a young gentleman of the party (who was up in the back woods of Canada for the first time) awoke at early dawn, not feeling very well, he left the camp in his night shirt for a short walk in the woods, and upon endeavouring to retrace his steps got lost, a heavy fog soon sprung up and our hero blundered around in all directions but the proper one, being ashamed to call for help and be caught in his airy garments. When the members of the camp arose for the day, he was missed, and as hour after hour went by, a search was instituted, and he was found about 11 a.m., by a Peterborough gentleman, on the lake shore about half a mile from camp, in anything but an enviable condition, and smuggled into camp. Efforts have been made to keep all quiet, and here it is.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.

Monday the 15th was set apart by proclamation of our Reeve, as a civic holiday, and it was well observed; most of our citizens took advantage of the special train and went to Peterborough to see the White Elephant, and take in the circus. Others went up the lakes to Young's Point and Burleigh, while the "Home Guard" wandered around the almost deserted streets, not certain if it was not Sunday or a fast day.

LAKEFIELD DAM.

Mr. C Wynne, the contractor of the new dam, expects to get to work at it next week, and will push the work through, so as to get above water before the cold weather sets in.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The regular meeting of the Lakefield School Board was held in the Council Chamber on Tuesday evening the 9th Sept.

Present, Mr. W. C. Sanders, Chairman in the chair, Messrs. Dr. Caldwell, Dr. Armour, Dench and Gordon.

Moved by Dr. Caldwell, seconded by Mr. Dench that the following accounts be paid, viz.

Isac Watson, Sen., Work	$35.00
David Arnott, Repairs	6.50
	$41.50

Moved by Dr. Caldwell, seconded by Mr. Gordon that this meeting do now adjourn to meet at the call of the Chairman.—Carried.

SANITARY.

Some parties have buried a dead horse just outside the eastern village limits and the stench is fearful. The Douro Board of Health should attend to the matter and give the parties a lesson which may prove of benefit to both themselves and others in the future.

SIDEWALKS.

Our village road master is hard at work placing the sidewalks in repair for the fall, and none too soon as in many places, the planks were rotten or broken and an accident liable to occur at any moment, which might have cost the village more than all the repairs required.

PERSONAL.

Mr. E. Harris, a former salesman in Mr. John Hackett's dry goods store, is renewing old friendships in town.

Figures Won't Lie.

The figures showing the enormous yearly sales of Kidney-Wort, demonstrate its value as a medicine beyond dispute. It is a purely vegetable compound of certain roots, leaves and berries known to have special value in Kidney troubles. Combined with these are remedies acting directly on the Liver and Bowels. It is because of this combined action that Kidney-Wort has proved such an unequalled remedy in all diseases of these organs.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY AGAIN.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I notice a communication in THE EXAMINER from Mr. T. E. Bell, Smith, concerning the West Riding Agricultural Society, which contains a thing or two I should like to notice. I did not, and do not, complain of the ability of Messrs. Garbutt, Young, Fitzgerald and Collins to carry out a successful show; but does neighbour Bell expect these men are going to leave their farms and come to town and spend their time in raising funds to buy grounds in town? And, by the way, without wishing or intending to be personal, allow me to inquire if it would not be as well not to have too many farmers on the board of directors—to arrange the prize list so that their own stock can be sure of a prize? There have also been Presidents who would have done better roosting on Burleigh rocks than reading long-winded addresses prepared for them by others. It is plain that if a decent exhibition is worked up for the West Riding there will have to be some new blood infused into the management to make it a success. Why were not the present officials looking after grounds two or three years ago? They knew that the lease of the old grounds was expiring, and if they had had as much foresight as a squirrel they would have looked out a little for the future. Now there is no Society, or what amounts to the same thing, no exhibition. It is a dying shame that a rich agricultural county like the West Riding of Peterborough should not have enough energy and business ability to maintain a respectable society and give a decent exhibition. It is time that there were some new hands at the wheel. Some live farmers and some live business men in town should put their heads together and unite their energies in establishing a Central Exhibition. The material is all ready to hand—the field is ripe unto the harvest. With railway communication extending in every direction, it is an easy matter for people from every part of the district to reach the town. With a good exhibition, the business men would reap a golden harvest from the presence of large crowds in town for several days, while the farmer would have a bigger host of admirers for his stock. There would be more stock shown and a larger interchange of ideas and experience in stock raising. There is no reason, besides not doing it, why Peterborough should not have a splendid Central Exhibition. The great Industrial Fair in Toronto is entirely managed by the business men of the city, and it is boomed and boomed till it is, every year, a greater success. As a farmer, however, I should not like to have the town men have the whole control, but if they and the farmers would pull together they would make an immense success of a Central Exhibition. Who will be the first to wake up?

Yours, etc.,
AGRICULTURIST.

AN EXPLANATION.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I notice that a correspondent of the Times accuses the honorable members of the Municipal Council of this township with using twenty dollars of the township money for the purpose of buying votes. Now, Sir, I have noticed that any man in a public position who refuses to pay the "noble-minded patriot" of the Times any price that he may choose to ask for printing is subject to all kinds of contemptible abuse, and always under the heading of "correspondence." I have no doubt had this contemptible individual been allowed free scope at the township treasury that the present Reeve would have been lauded as one of the finest and most economical Reeves that ever graced a municipal chair. This, however, Mr. Crough would not submit to, hence this abuse. It is not my intention to take up much of your space, but I will ask that you give me room to explain this charge, which I will do as briefly as possible. Mr. C. O'Reilly lives on broken lot 19, in the 9th concession of Ennismore, containing about 40 acres, his land running into the lake. At a recent meeting of the Council he presented a petition, signed by about 40 ratepayers, asking the Council to buy or make him a road to his farm, which would cost the township about $200. Mr. C. O'Connor and Mr. John Young live on their land directly in front of Mr. O'Reilly, thus preventing him free access to and from the road at all seasons of the year; so, to enable him to get out easily, $20 was unanimously voted by all the members of the Council to Mr. Young for the right of way for ten years to Mr. O'Reilly's farm. Now, whose vote has been bought? Mr. O'Connor would not give or sell the right of way across his property, and Mr. Young will be glad to allow the Council to keep the money, which has not yet been paid over. The Council in this way saved the township at least $200; and Mr. Young showed a manly spirit by agreeing to accept such a small sum for the annoyance of right of way across his farm for ten years. I leave the intelligent ratepayers of the township to say which was the wiser course for the Council to pursue!

I ventured to say that the affairs of this township were never more wisely nor judiciously managed than they have been under our genial friend and Reeve, Mr. Crough. He is above any selfish motives, and his past course has shown us that the contemptible personal spirit apparent in the Times are the result of vindictive spite. In conclusion, Mr. Crough is the true friend of the people and the taxpayer, and the less he has to do with the Times the better for himself and the township.

Yours truly,
RATEPAYER.

Ennismore, Sept. 15th, 1884.

[Since the above was in type we have received two more letters on the subject, but as they cover the same ground as the letter given above, it is not necessary to publish them. All agree in exonerating the Reeve, Mr. Crough and the council, and condemning the jealous abuse of the Times.—ED. EXAMINER.]

THE FACTS STATED.

To The Editor of THE EXAMINER.

DEAR SIR, Having seen a paragraph in last week's EXAMINER over the signature of Charles Byers, charging me with telling a deliberate falsehood, I will claim your indulgence.

Being so well known both in town and country, it would be out of place for me to vindicate my own character, but I simply will state facts and let others corroborate or deny my statements.

On Saturday, the 23rd of August, Mr. Wm. Rutherford and myself went to Peterborough to charter a steam boat and engage the Fire Brigade Band for the South Monaghan Harvest Home Festival. We were given full liberty to do anything which, in our judgment, would be for the interest of the society or enhance the pleasure of the day.

In consultation with Mr. Calcutt then we decided to have a lacrosse match to entertain the people on the grounds in the afternoon of the festival, and, in order to make sure of a lacrosse team from Peterboro', Mr. Calcutt went with us to see Mr. Sanderson to see if a team could be got. We were assured by Messrs. Calcutt and Sanderson that they could sent a team. On that assurance we bought a cup, and I went on the next Monday morning to Millbrook and arranged with the Millbook team to play. On the following Wednesday I was sent to Peterborough to get the posters and programmes for the festival. While in town I called to see Mr. Sheehy, field captain of of the lacrosse team, he told me that he could not promise a team, as they were in communication with the Ottawa Mets. to play a return match in Peterborough, and that the Mets. had the choice of the day, and it might be on the 9th, but if not there would be no trouble in sending a team, and I left with the assurance that Mr. Sheehy would do his best to come.

On Saturday the 6th of September, I went to Mr. Hackett's to give Mr. Sheehey complimentary tickets for the lacrosse team, and promised them free tickets for the festival, and while there Charles Byers came in. I left with the assurance that Mr. Sheehey would do his best to come.

On the morning of the 9th I went to Peterborough to take charge of the excursion, and called on Mr. Sheehy to see if the team were ready. Judge of my surprise when he told me he could not come. He gave several reasons why they could not come, and said after I left him on Saturday that Charles Byers told him not to go because a crowd was coming from Millbrook to clean them out, and if they did not want to be abused to stay away. I assured Mr. Sheehy that such was not the case, and promised him that no person would be allowed to interfere. We then want to see Mr. Fortye, where I repeated Mr. Sheehy's statement, assuring them that they would be well used. We spoke to four lacrosse men, but none would come, and one distinctly said he would not go to get abused. I had delayed the boat one hour to try and get a team. When I saw we could not I said to Myers, Sheehy and Fortye that all that could be said was that they were afraid to go, and they admitted it.

My thanks are due to Captain Carson, who, after so much delay, safely landed our party at Faucher's Park at 12.15 p. m., where carriages were waiting to receive us.

On being asked why the lacrosse team did not come, I repeated Mr. Sheehy's statement, and believed it to be the real cause. I will leave the public to draw their own conclusions, and I ask Mr. Sheehy and Mr. Fortye to corroborate or deny my statements; also to say, if the story circulated through Peterborough was or was not the real cause of the lacrosse team not coming.

I remain yours, &c.,
THOMAS MARSHALL WILLAN.
South Monaghan, Sept. 15, 1884.

A FLAT DENIAL.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,

I notice that an anonymous writer in the Review, complains that families are made destitute, that liquor is being sold in my shop by the glass, and that the inspector is not doing his duty in not prosecuting me for breach of the Act. I wish to correct the impression likely to be made by such a letter, and I defy the writer to prove that either families are made destitute or that I sell liquor by the glass. I deny that the "disorderly persons" referred to, procured the elements of their disorder from my place. I keep a licensed shop according to the conditions of my license, and I am not to blame if persons get drink elsewhere and make disturbance in the neighborhood of my place. If "Verdi," the writer in the Review, refers to my place as a "hell hole," he is a vile slanderer and sneak, who makes insinuations under cover of a false name, which he would not dare to make over his own name. I challenge him to prove a single one of the vile insinuations he has made respecting my place. I pay my license and keep a reputable place of business, and do not propose to submit to be lied about by an anonymous slanderer.

Yours truly,
JOHN TREBELL.

APSLEY.

A match game of base ball was played in Chandos on Sept. 5th, between the Apsley Clippers and the Swamp Angels of Chandos, resulting in an easy victory for the Clippers, by 63 runs. The Apsley Club and friends feel very grateful to the Chandos club for the kindly manner in which they were treated by them. A return game will be played soon, when a much more closely contested game is expected, as the grounds were rough and the boys lacking sufficient practice, on account of the busy season.

MORE MAIL MUD.

The Toronto Mail of Saturday contains the following estimate of the young men of Canada:—

"These young men are peculiar to the Grit party. They may be found at street corners after nightfall. They are fond of the shelter of friendly fences, against which they can lean, to pull at the cigar ends that accident places at their command. They are redolent of whiskey and slang, and tobacco and profanity; and will shout you for Hardee with hearty good will, or cheer you for Pardee with a wink and a leer, at the slightest provocation. Out of such materials a good picturesque procession can no doubt be provided. But for any much better material it is vain to hope."

We commend this extract to the young men. It may be that there are some such in the country as the Mail describes. If so they are not Reformers. They are not the class of young men with whom we are acquainted. The class with whom the Mail staff are brought in contact may be such as Mr. Griffin here describes. If there be any such, to our certain knowledge, they are not to be found in the Reform ranks.

BENSFORT.

The anniversary tea in connection with the Bensfort Union Sabbath School, will be held on Friday, Sept. 26th, at the Methodist brick church, South Monaghan. Rev. Messrs. Foster, Cameron, Metcalf and Johnson, will deliver addresses, and music will be furnished by the choir. Admittance 25 and 15 cents.

BETHANY.

AN Orange Demonstration will be held at Bethany Agricultural grounds on Sept 24th, under the auspices of L. O. L. 1022, for the purpose of raising funds to build an Orange hall. Athletic sports and other amusements will be held, and the Ballyduff and Bethany bands will be in attendance. Addresses will be given by Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, M. P., Col. Williams, M. P., Mr. John White, M.P.; Bro. Wm. Johnston, G. M. E. O., Bro. J. B. Collins, D.G.M.E.O., Bro. Rev. Dr. Smithett, G.C.B.N.G.; Dr. C. H. Brereton, M.P.P.; Rev. H. F. Burgess, and other gentlemen.

The Mercer-Strickland Race.

The attempt to row this single scull event left over from Fobert's regatta, on Monday, was defeated by rough water, and the race is postponed from day to day till suitable water is secured.

Boating Club Regatta.

This promises to be a first-class aquatic meeting, this (Thursday) afternoon, there being a large number of entries. The first event will be the challenge mile single blade canoe paddle, between Weller and Fitzgerald. If the wind weakens the regatta will be a great success.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Sept. 17th, 1884

The movement in grain is still very light, not much fall wheat offering, it sells from 78 to 82. Spring wheat 80 to 81, What little barley offering has sold from 48 to 55c. Oats selling from 32 to 35c. Nothing doing in other grains. On Saturday the market was fairly attended. Butter was in good demand 22 to 24c, a good deal offering, best seemed to be wanted. Eggs brought about 15c. retail with 16 asked. Chickens in fair supply selling 40 to 50c. per pair. Some tinnits of butter were offered, 20c. was asked, would likely bring 17 to 18. In apples the assortment and quality was better, by the peck they sold at 20 to 25c. by the bag 60 to $1.00 rather slow selling. Potatoes are very dull 50c. bag, asked may be quoted at from 40 to 50c. per bag.

COUNCIL MEETING.

Council met in Warsaw, Aug. 30th, 1884. All present.

Minutes of last meeting read and signed.

Mr. Robb, Commissioner, filed his statement of expenditure of $200 on 9th line, with vouchers for same, which was examined and found correct.

On motion, John Hunter was appointed Collector, at a salary of $60

On motion, the Clerk was instructed to strike the rate and levy the amount required by Trustees of U. S. S. No. 6, on receipt of their requisitions.

An appropriation of $150, under Messrs. Kelly and Kirk, commissioners, was made for opening 7th con. line, from boundary to lot 6.

ORDERS GRANTED.

To A. F. Choate, balance of contract on bridge in Warsaw, $137.00; S. Roraback, refund of statute labor tax, $6; C. R. Young, for lumber for sidewalk, $10.

BY-LAWS PASSED.

One to provide for the levy and collection of taxes, and one to appoint a collector.

RATES LEVIED.

For county, including equivalent to Government grant, 3 mills; for county, less equivalent on Separate School supporters, 2 22-50 mills; for township, 1 mill.

AMOUNTS LEVIED ON SCHOOL SECTIONS.

On S. S. No. 1, $380; No. 2, $270.62; No. 3, $511.33; No. 4, $236.81; No. 5, $216.55; No. 9, $223.60; No. 11, $215; Separate School, $22.30.

A case of Tweeds bought cheap, just received at Turnbulls. Parties wanting a suit will do well to look through this lot.

NORTH MONAGHAN.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

On Monday night a barn belonging to Mr. Stewart, on the gravel road about three miles from town, took fire in some mysterious manner, and with its contents was entirely consumed. The barn was occupied by Mr. Wm. Cooper, who leases Mrs. Stewart's land, and he lost 50 bushels of wheat, 60 bushels of oats and 30 of peas. Messrs. White Bros., butchers, Aylmer street, town, had also about 350 bushels of oats stored in the barn. The loss is complete, there having been no insurance.

GALWAY.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Harvesting is just about over, spring wheat is a good crop, and oats also a good crop. Peas are well laden, but straw short; potatoes are an extra good crop. There are quite a few berries here this fall.

Thomas Byrne shot a large bear last week.

Miss Annie E. Chrow, from Peterborough, was here last week, spending her holidays among her many friends, and they were all glad to see her, and made her a hearty welcome. She looks as bright as ever.

An Editor's Tribute.

Theron P. Keator, Editor of Ft. Wayne, Ind., "Gazette," writes: "For the past five years have always used Dr. King's New Discovery, for Coughs of most severe character, as well as for those of a milder type. It never fails to effect a speedy cure. My friends to whom I have recommended it speak of it in the same high terms. THE HAINES

"Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous endorsements by the leading artists of the World as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument give I can you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—ERNESTO GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOPIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of.—CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI, ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCCA, EMIL AMBRA.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the severest tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

IT PAYS WELL TO BUY GOOD!

You have heard of the smartness of the old lady's sons. She shut them up in a room together, and they both made their fortunes trading jack-knives. You remember the joke and you get the idea.

On the edge of the Fall Season's Trade, we part to say a something to you about business—your business of buying what you need—and now is as good a time as any.

This season we come before you as Direct Importers. Is there anything in that for us? Is there anything in that for you?

Read on a little further and we'll tell you.

Our buyer, when in England, found Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers, both holding great lots of almost everything in our trade; holding—not for better prices—but for buyers. Buyers were scarce. There was stagnation.

Now our buyer bought freely, judiciously, and bought well. He bought good.

We were not burdened with goods. We had the requisite outlet in our large trade to handle a directly imported stock. Our buyer bought to undersell the retail market here and make a profit.

Our sales are going to be more—not less—than last year, for we adapt our buying and selling to the times we are in.

We offer you a stock bought to sell. This we know, and it's for you to prove it.

We shall not try here to enumerate the lines of goods in which we can offer you exceptional good value. You'll hear of them presently. We'll finish our business talk by saying:—

Our Stores are full of Goods—our own importations—and our prices are what our view of the opportunity makes them. We won't ask you to buy the things of fashion. It's a time for getting almost all the substantial staple things to wear, and to keep home with.

It's a time for you to make your money by your spending of it.

It's a time for caution, but the caution is to be shown in choosing where and what you buy, and the bargains you make.

And surely when by our trade policy the bottom is reached in goods, and we offer to you the top of the purchasing power of money, you'll neglect your own interests if you fail to buy from us.

It Has Made a New Man of Me.

I am the most agreeably surprised man in this section of the country. I don't think any one could feel worse physically than I did when I commenced taking Crowfoot Bitters. It has made a new man of me. It is the best dollar I ever spent. I could not eat or sleep, and felt miserably dejected. After taking Crowfoot I could eat, sleep, had a splendid appetite and felt first-rate. I believe it to be the best medicine of the period for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"There is no need of thanks," said St. John, smiling a little. "I were less than man to have left this noble-looking brute to his fate; and, truth to say, he might have died before anyone had seen him. Pray don't disturb your mistress."

"Oh, indeed," cried the servant, with enthusiasm, "she would be angry with me if I let you go without seeing you."

And Philip shrugged his shoulders and smiled, and yielded, following the girl into the drawing-room, a dainty apartment, replete with all the graceful accessories which a cultivated woman gathers about her, and Philip glanced round him while he waited that minute or two. It might have been that nameless something which without reason carries the mind back to scenes and places it has known before, perhaps the luxury of flowers—roses, white and red, many-hued geraniums, delicate lilies of the valley—that flashed back to his vision as in a mirror, a long low room with just such wealth of flowers, and a girl's fair face bending over them, touching them with a girl's dainty petting ways. Or was it, in truth, some subtle chord of sympathy, touched into mysterious vibration? Was it some such feeling that made him lift his eyes suddenly, for he had not heard the slight rustle of the window-curtain pushed aside, to see a woman's slight form enter from the garden. He looked up, and with a smothered cry recoiled:

"God in Heaven spare me! Erica!"

One minute she stood, then sprang forward to his feet, stretching out her hands:

"Philip! Philip!"

What piercing anguish rang in the voice once so pathetic in its sweetness.

"Look on me, speak to me. You turn away and cover your face, as though to look on me were misery and pain."

"It is, it is!" he muttered, hoarsely. "I have not sought this; I thought never to look on your face again. Stand back. I have no place here."

He stretched out his hand as though to put her aside and pass out, but she fell on her knees before him, lifting her clasped hands, her eyes seeking his with a wild appeal.

"You will not go, you will not leave me, denying me all mercy! No, no; you shall not put me aside; I must, I may claim some pity."

That agonized voice, that wondrous beauty, did they touch him, or only rouse again the fierce passions that had been only veiled?

"Three long years—so long, each minute a weight of lead. Has there come no whisper to you, Philip, that the wife you loved once was innocent? Has there come no voice pleading mercy for her? You lock your hands together—your eyes avoid mine. It is torture to see me, to hear my voice, to be in my presence. Oh! thou who hast mercy, move this heart to mercy."

She bowed her head down in bitter despair with tearless sobs that shook her slight frame like a reed.

Is he unmoved by this—a woman's tears?

"Aye, aye," he said at last, looking down on the bending form at his feet. "Tears, tears! a woman can ever find these to draw from some well, be it ever so shallow. The time has gone by when these tears can move me. Did you think of love or pity, or of justice even, when you stabbed the honor of the man whose name you bore and were bound to keep unstained? But what boots it to speak of that?" he said, with a sudden passionate change in voice and look; "the gulf is made; the chain is broken; the scar is burned into my very life. Once more I tell you, for your sin I have neither mercy nor pardon."

She wrung her hands above her head. "No forgiveness, no mercy. Oh, the vilest criminal, the most lost among women, might ask that, Philip." She spoke with quick gasps, pushing back her hair now, moving her hands restlessly in the very anguish of her despair. "I will not, I do not ask much. I would not ask to come back to you, because I have nothing to say, except to beseech a trust you cannot give; but only—only forgiveness—only forgiveness."

"Forgiveness!" he said, with a strong passion that shook his voice. "No; you do well to ask only that, and that is not mine to give. You have dared to trample on the one thing I held a spotless treasure above all else; the one thing I thought could never fail me when love was denied and trust withheld; honor still was left—and that is tainted. A thousand deaths; a thousand tortures were better than that slow agony, that wreck of all but the curse of life.—And while I hold that deadly life, ask no more. Mercy! I have no wells of mercy left."

Shrinking, almost cowering on the ground, she had heard those scathing words, spoken with so deliberate a passion, not under the ephemeral excitement of a passing anger. Her brain was dizzy with the strain laid upon her; but as once more he moved, and would have passed her by, as those awful words fell from the ruthless lips, she gathered strength from despair, she almost flung herself again before him, clinging with a frantic clasp to his hand—a clasp that would not be denied.

"No, no! oh, no, no, Philip," she cried out with a very passion of agony that sent the blood flushing to his brow. "You are human, you have passions and feelings, you are not a thing of stone. Oh, take back the words: it cannot—must not be! I have, suffered; is it not an agony to know that I am lost, despised in your eyes and the world's, to be scorned? And I have not sinned, I am guiltless. And if—if——" she stopped, convulsively choking back the anguish that almost mastered her; "if I were all you deem me, there was one who sinned—whom they would not have stoned—and Christ forgave——"

"Have you ever read," Philip interrupted, through his clenched teeth, "that the man wronged forgave? I trow not. Yes, I am human, a man with passions, whose very strength is my curse." He paused a moment; she had bent her face down, her fingers twining still around his hand; the touch that brought back a thousand softer memories. Yet was he touched, moved at last to a shadow of relenting; moved by that despair, by the love that never could die? If it were so, the very potency of the inward pleading, perhaps, hardened him to yield no pity. If it were indeed so, he would not give way to such a gentler mood.

He bent down, and with firm though gentle hand unclasped the slender fingers that had little strength to hold him, and put her back; and then her tears ceased, she rose up, her features white and set as marble; in the large eyes a steadfast sternness as she faced him and spoke, locking her hands over her breast.

"Merciless—cruel—hard," she said, the words dropping slowly from her pale lips. "When you, Philip St. John, shall stand all stripped of that pride, that honor which makes your priceless mantle here, when you shall be arraigned before that bar, where I, too, shall stand, how shall you dare appeal for mercy, who give no mercy here? Mercy! that was all—all I pleaded. Well, I have asked in vain, now it is all over, I will trouble you no more."

Like one who has no more strength left to battle against fate, she sank into a chair near the table, and laid her face down on her crossed arms; and that mute despair sent a rush of passionate, regretful pity, sorrow—almost tenderness—back to the heart of the man who a few short moments before had been immovable as the rocks that have braved a thousand tides.

His glance wavered, and then took one short step back to her side.

"Give but this denial—one word of explanation—and I will listen," he said, his low voice shaken with the trembling agony of a yearning that was scarcely a thought. "Tell me one thing that is false in all the past."

She lifted for a second her weary shadowed eyes to his, a transient gleam of hope in their depth, but it faded quickly, and once more the head drooped down.

"I cannot," she said, hopelessly, "I cannot deny—I have no explanation to give—one thing is false, and that you will not believe."

He turned from her, veiling his face.

"So be it," he said, hoarsely, and passed out.

Had he heard, or in fancy had he seemed to hear, the whispered cry that has been, and will ever be the restless appeal from the helpless to the Helper, "How long, oh, God! how long?"

Hours had passed wearily away, the sun had sunk, and the evening day mild and cool on tree and flower, when Erica St. John lifted her head and looked round the twilight room—looked with a vague expectation of seeing the man who had left her—left her in bitterest sorrow.

But she was alone as she would ever be, no change could come to her; if Arnold died and she were released from the oath that lay, a burdan almost too heavy to bear, on her soul, she might tell Philip all she had done; but would he forgive this? for she was doing him a bitter wrong. Could he forgive the semblance of sin?

CHAPTER XIV.

"IS IT REQUIRED OF ME? IS IT RIGHT."

"Without counting the cost," she murmured, clasping her hands over her eyes. "I have not—and oh! the cost is more bitter than death, if only I suffered! Must he suffer so too? Is it required of me? Is it right?" She paused, and her hands dropped down before her and her eyes were lifted with a yearning agony. "Oh, to feel once more the touch of his hand on mine, to feel his lips pressed to this burning, aching forehead, to hear his voice speak gently, in love to rest in those arms—rest—rest!"

How has she lived, this frail girl, all through the long years of separation, alone in the world; never at peace, never at rest; ever on the tension of awful fear for the murderer she is doing such wrong to shield.

She had come to London after that vain appeal to her husband; she could not stop in Grayle, everyone knew her and her story.

And not long after that her aunt in Scotland had died and left her money—not much, but more than enough for her own needs, and this little villa in Hampstead.

But there was Arnold to be supplied with money. He was always writing for money, and she, dreading that if she did not send it, he would procure it in some way that might lead to his identification—had rarely refused him; though she was ill able to stand such continual drain on her purse.

He always told her he must pay Nat Poynter well or the game was up there, and she had no means of disproving this assertion, as she had lost sight of the boatman. He too had left Grayle, for he had got into ill odor there, it being popularly believed that he had had something to do with Erica's flight.

"If I told Philip," the unhappy girl murmured, covering her face, "that I was bound by an oath, that was why I could not explain, would he believe me then? Would he have mercy, and with that mystery between us——"

She shivered, and pushed back the silky hair from her face, and knit her brows together.

"What did he come for?" she said, in a half dazed way; "he had not sought this, he said. Ah, I know now." She smiled a bitter, a very bitter smile of pain, as she moved towards the door. "Mercy for the dumb brute, stern justice for the frail woman. Well, well, poor Kenneth has done him no wrong, true."

She passed out across the hall to the little room where Kenneth lay, comfortably enough, on the sofa; the servant had done all that she could for him, and had not liked to disturb her mistress, and so had left Kenneth alone while she went about her duties, and as Erica entered he testified his joy at sight of her by beating the end of his bushy tail on the sofa, erecting his ears, and looking eager—the poor creature was feeling too bruised and ill to do more.

"Dear old Kenneth!" the girl said, kneeling beside him and putting her arms about him, and he laid his head affectionately on her shoulder, and tried to lick her soft cheek. "He was tender and kind to you, my Kenneth," the girl said, sadly, with tears that fell fast on the dear honest face; "his hand has caressed you in your pain, his eyes have rested kindly on you. Oh, Kenneth, Kenneth! I wish—I wish I were you."

And Kenneth whined softly and tried to give his silent sympathy, divining but dimly the hopeless anguish that found expression in that useless wish.

She sprang suddenly to her feet as a knock came at the door, dashing away her tears as the servant entered:

"A gentleman, ma'am, to see you," she said; "I've asked him to the drawing-room."

"I cannot see anyone," the girl answered; "it is late."

"He said, ma'am, you'd be sure to see him," said the girl; "he'd come from abroad, and was an old friend; that's what he said."

Her heart seemed to give one throb; and then sink down like lead. From abroad! She knew who it was.

"I will come," she said, very quietly; "I think I know who it must be."

And Mary retired somewhat puzzled, Mrs. St. John had never received so many visitors before.

Erica paused one moment outside the drawing-room door, and then went in. A man, still young, but bearing in face and mien the unmistakable signs of a life of dissipation, was standing turning over an album by the table, full under the light of the chandelier. His face was bronzed and half concealed by a thick beard and moustache; his hair, hanging low over his forehead, was thin and more than streaked with grey, the eyes were sunken, the brow creased with lines, and the hand that held the book was unsteady.

He turned as the girl entered and stood bending a little forward, her large eyes dilated, seeking to recognize, yet doubtful if she in truth looked once more on the handsome, careless cousin with whom she had sported in those happy, far-off days of childhood.

"Well," he said, at last, with a half laugh, not good to hear, "so you don't recognize Arnold Murray. That's a good thing too, for if you didn't, who would, I wonder?"

She came a step forward, and lifted her hand to her head.

"Arnold!" she said, in a shocked whisper. "Arnold Murray! so changed—so fearfully changed!"

"You needn't look so scared, girl," he said, with some roughness. She noticed now that his voice was low and husky, its bold, free tone gone. Was this wreck of manhood indeed Arnold?—"You haven't much of a welcome to give a fellow, but I don't expect that, of course. You've grown more beautiful than ever, Erica."

"Hush!" she said, quickly, "don't speak like that. Tell me why you are in England, where the very air you breathe is full of danger."

"Because I'm sick of wandering," he answered. "Who do you think'll know me? Why, I passed two fellows I knew in the Lancers yesterd—and neither of them gave me a second glance. Bah! I am all right. I've been in London a week knocking about."

"You take all risk to yourself," Erica said, steadily. "I have done my part. I can give you no protection other than I have. Heaven knows I have lost enough. I will lose no more."

"I don't see as you've anything more to lose," said Murray, with a half sneer. "It's my life or your name. And," he added, with a look that made the passionate blood rush to her cheek, "your name rests with me. All the power is not yours, pretty cos."

She knew it too. Of what use, if she could have done so, to tell Philip the truth, when with a word this man could blast her name to the world? Philip might believe—but who else?

"Why have you come to me?" she said, abruptly.

"I naturally came to see you, and I want money as naturally. I've had to send some to Poyntes that I won at cards. I've nothing, and I've had nothing since the morning. Haven't you got some wine?"

She looked at him steadily—a look before which his own wavered.

"Your hand shakes," she said, "your cheek is flushed. No, I have no wine. I will give you money—nothing else; and then you must leave this house and never come here again. I am living alone, and never receive anyone."

"You've got quite knowing since you've lived in London," said Arnold, with again a sneer. "Where am I to get food at this time of night? Give me something to eat and drink, I tell you."

With a sudden change of voice he spoke the last words, a fiercer gleam in his eyes. But she did not shrink or waver.

"I have sworn," she said, low and sternly, "to shield you from danger and death. I have not failed. Aye, to the uttermost I have kept every tittle of that vow. But beware how you try me too far. From the moment you suffered me to bear the charge of dishonor, I vowed you should never again eat of my salt or sleep under my roof. Money I will give you, and from henceforth that is to be the limit of our intercourse. Remember that I hold your liberty in my hands."

He seemed almost to cower before her as she spoke. She did not fear him.

"Give me money, then," he said, sullenly. "I guess I shan't trouble you much longer. I'm broken all to pieces; racketing from one place to another, and play and drink. It's no good looking at me, Erica, I must drink or drop—send thought to the devil. I've wished sometimes that they'd nail me; only death is horrible—a nightmare that haunts me." He shuddered strongly and turned away muttering: "No, I couldn't face that; life is sweet after all, mere life!"

Mere life! and Philip St. John had deemed that "a curse, a deadly thing!"

There was some pity, more bitter scorn, in the girl's face as she put a purse on the table, and he took it up without glancing at her. Somehow he could not say to her again, "I hold your name, as you hold my liberty, in my hands," and he passed from her presence in silence. And the girl stood where he had left her, with burning eyeballs that could weep no more, and her heart numbed into a dull agony.

"For this man—for this man," the dry lips whispered, "I have wrecked his life—yet not for Arnold's sake, but my oath's. Is it just?"

CHAPTER XV.

NAT POYNTER COMES TO LONDON.

A Great Eastern train had just arrived at the Liverpool-street station and discharged its load of passengers. Amongst those who had alighted from the third-class carriages, was a man dressed in the boatman's garb of blue serge, and he wrapped round him a rough pea-jacket, as though even on this hot June day he felt chilly.

He looked gaunt and hollow-eyed, and walked somewhat feebly, although he should have been by his build a strong and stalwart man.

But nevertheless he is not so much altered but that we know the rough, sturdy face with its mixture of kindliness and hardness. The world had knocked Nat Poynter sometime boatman and "handy man" of Grayle, about a good deal in these three years. He looks as if sickness and short allowance of food had done something for him, and he has not the bright, ready, alert look he once had.

Perhaps, too, that secret he holds, and the woe it is bringing to "Miss Erica," whom he loves still in his strange fashion, weighs on his soul, and gives him an anxious, drawn expression; and, working, with that remorse, Mr. Arnold hasn't paid him anything for a long time. If he had been steadier he wouldn't have felt that long illness so.

He stood on the platform looking round him with some bewilderment; the noise and bustle confused him—he was not used to such a crowd of people all rushing about absorbed in their own business, not one of whom he knew, or who knew him. All this was quite new to him, he had not been in London since his young days, and there was no Liverpool-street Station there. He caught a porter at last.

"I say, master," he said, with a strong tinge of Suffolk accent which his long residence in the county had given, for he was not a native, "where must I go for the West End of London?"

The man stopped and laughed. "You ain't a Suffolk man," said he, "are you?"

"That's just it—leastways I've lived there pretty well all my life on an' off," answered Poynter, with a little eagerness. "You come from them parts?"

"Rather," said the porter, with a smile, though I've been in London ever sin' I was a little chap. Come along, mate. I'll show you where to go."

Nat thanked him and felt grateful for the strong fellow-feeling which exists among provincials, and the porter took him along what seemed to him endless tunnels and down interminable steps until he emerged on to the Metropolitan platform.

"Where d'you want to go?" asked he then.

"That's what I don't know," answered Nat, who was not only physically but mentally in a fog. "I want to get to Pimlico; somewhere in them parts. I don't know."

"Pimlico," said the porter; "that's a thunderin' way. You're on the wrong line, too; you'll have to get to the Mansion House Station. Do you know that?"

"My dear, look down below," said a grandioso, as he stood on Brooklyn bridge with his wife, and gazed at a tug hauling a long line of barges. "Such is life—the tug is like a man, working and toiling, while the barges, like women, are——" "I know" interrupted Mrs. Garcidly, "the tug does all the blowing, and the barges bear all the burden."

Mrs. Mary Thompson, of Toronto, was afflicted with Tape Worm, 8 feet of which was removed by one bottle of Dr. Low's Worm Syrup. 38-2ins

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "26 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

THE ART OF SWIMMING.

How a Professor Teaches Youngsters to Strike Out Like Frogs.

"It has often struck me as singular," said the instructor, "that the majority of people who begin to take swimming lessons imagine they will never be able to learn. I am speaking particularly of men and boys. As a rule, they have little faith in the instructor, and seem to be a little suspicious of his good intentions. Ladies, on the contrary, are confiding. They follow instructions closely, without questions, and learn quickly. Some of the best swimmers we have are little girls and ladies. Of course they don't possess a man's strength and endurance, but they seem to understand what they will have to do and persevere until the purpose is accomplished. The average boy and youth will insist upon remaining in the water longer than is beneficial—very few of them realize that ten minutes in the water is in the majority of cases a far better time to produce a vigorous reaction than a half hour. On a warm day, however, a person is very much tempted to remain in longer than is good for him.

"What causes this lack of confidence in so many persons?" was asked.

"It is rather difficult to explain," was the reply. "You can take a dozen boys and set them to studying languages or mathematics, or in learning a new physical exercise—such as rowing. The chances are ten to one that everybody will feel that he can learn more quickly and perfectly than every other boy. It is different when it comes to swimming. Almost every pupil will exclaim: 'I know there is no use trying, because I can never learn if I tried a hundred years.'"

"Well, how many years does it require?"

"Years! exclaimed Mr. Dinsmore, in astonishment, "why it doesn't take even months or weeks. From three to six lessons will make the most timid person confident. This is the way we teach," and, leading the way to the tank, the instructor explained how the motion with the hands and feet were first taught in an auto-room. "The pupil is placed in apparatus," said he, "which supports his body and gives his arms and legs a free swing. Then a teacher counts slowly, one, two three, until the learner can kick out like a frog at regular intervals. After that he is placed in the tank, and his head kept above water with a band under the arms, held in place by a rope attached to the ceiling. When the motion has been acquired the band is taken off, and the first thing the pupil does is to gulp in a mouthful of water and bob under the surface. A long pole is ready in the teacher's hands, and the struggling, sputtering youth grabs the end of it, and nearly coughs his lungs up. That is all overcome in a few more lessons, and the learner is surprised to find that he can easily swim from one end of the tank to the other.

"It is a little surprising," continued the instructor, "to see how many men there are over 40 years of age who can't swim any more than an oyster. We had one pupil here a a few years ago who was close on to 70. He was slightly feeble, bald as a watermelon, and had the gout. Well, sir, that old chap went to work with a will, and learned how to swim inside of two weeks. The only thing that bothered him was the flies. The little pests would skate all over his head while he was in the water, and he would forget where he was and make a frantic grab. Of course his nose would go under and he'd be half strangled. It used to tickle the boys immensely, and as soon as the old gentleman reappeared on the surface he was received with a loud cheer.

"Several ladies have become such excellent swimmers that they were instrumental in saving human life. At Atlantic City, two seasons ago, a very handsome girl—the daughter of a prominent railroad man—swam out beyond the breakers and rescued a young man who was going down for the last time. Did it result in a marriage? No, sir; the young fellow was very grateful, and, I believe, did make some sort of a proposal, but, as he was clerking in a notion store at $8 a week, was freckled, had no front teeth, and wore plaid clothes, he didn't make out very well. That identical young lady is now engaged to marry a wealthy New York banker. He fell in love with her while she was splashing around in the ocean at Cape May. There was one advantage, at least, of knowing how to swim. It caught a husband."—Philadelphia Times.

The Wart Disappeared.

"Do you remember Joe Grimes?" inquired Fitzgoober at dinner.

"Who, that old scar-faced monkey that used to hang around you so much?" asked Mrs. Fitz.

"Yes, the same man," replied Fitz, "he has returned to the city to stay."

"The hateful wretch. I wish he could have stayed away; he has an old wart on his jaw that always made me sick to look at; you say he's come back to live?"

"Yes he went West, you remember, and has made half a million dollars; he has bought the finest mansion in the city, and is——"

"Oh, Fitzy," broke in the lady, "do bring him with you to tea this evening; I will be so delighted to see him again."—Atlanta Constitution.

VARIETIES.

Happiness depends not so much on means and opportunities as on the capacity of using them.

For a mild cathartic and efficient tonic, use Burdock Blood Bitters. Every bottle guaranteed. 38-4t

Our happiness depends less upon the art of pleasing than it does upon a uniform disposition to please.

Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for all diseases of the skin, dirt, etc. 38-2ins

If you want to do right, you must do right. There is no such thing as well-doing apart from well-being.

Freeman's Worm Powders are agreeable to take, and expel all kinds of worms from children or adults. 38-2ins

Be at least as polite to father, mother, child, as to others; for they are more important to you than any other.

"Blood Food" is the suggestive name often given to Ayer's Sarsaparilla, because of its blood-enriching qualities.

A right mind and generous affection have more beauty and charms than all other symmetries in the world besides.

Croup and Throat and Lung Troubles are treated successfully with Allen's Lung Balsam. See advertisement.

When a lady indulges in a round of shopping she might be said to go out on a buy-cycle.

Use the safe, pleasant and effectual worm killer, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; nothing equals it. Procure a bottle of it and take home.

If it were not for church bells a good many young men would not be drawn to Sunday meeting.

When your horses are troubled with coughs, colds, swelling of the glands, roughness of the hair, botts, or anything of that description, if you procure a box of Dr. Scott's Prepared Spice, you would find it a remedy.

Faith is a sublime truth, loyalty to a great purpose will make the faces of men shine like the sun, and their raiment white as the light.

A FIELD OF CORNS.—Thomas Sabin, of Eglington, says. "I have used Holloway's Corn Cure with the best results, having removed ten corns from my feet. It is not a half way cure or reliever, but a complete extinguisher, leaving the skin smooth and clear from the least appearance of the corns.

Mistress: "Well, Bridget, is there a fire in my room?" Bridget (a new importation): "Sure, mim, yis, there's a fire—but it's out."

Down in Dixie.

The wife of Mr. J. Kennedy, dealer in drugs in Dixie, was cured of a chronic cough by Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The best throat and lung healer known. 38-2t.

Men's fortunes are oftner made by their tongues than by their virtues; and more fortunes overthrown thereby, also, than by their vices.

Respect Old Age.

An old favorite is the remedy known as Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Thirty years reliable for cholera morbus, diarrhœa and summer complaints. 38-2t.

A kind voice is a lark's song to a hearth and home, and the sweetest music in all the world to one who loves you. It is to the heart what light is to the eye.

Great Negligence.

There is a great neglect with most people to maintain a regular action of the bowels, which causes much disease. Burdock Blood Bitters cure constipation. 38-2t.

Whatever busies the mind without corrupting it, has at least this use:—That it rescues the day from idleness; and he that is never idle will seldom be vicious.

Quickest Thing on Record.

Is Fluid Lightning for Neuralgia, headache toothache, etc. It does not blister or discolor the skin; requires but one application to banish all pain magically without using any greasy liniment or carrying your head in a poultice for weeks. Try a twenty-five cent bottle from J. McKee's Drug Store. 37-2t.

It was "Darling George" when a bridal couple left Toronto; it was "Dear George" at Montreal; at Quebec it was "George," and when they reached Tadousac it was "Say you!"

High-Priced Butter.

Dairymen often wonder how their more favored competitors get such high prices for their butter the year round. It is by always having a uniform gilt-edged article. To put the "gilt edge" on, when the pastures do not do it, they use Wells, Richardson & Co.'s Improved Butter Color. Every butter maker can do the same. Sold everywhere and warranted as harmless as salt, and perfect in operation.

Paper peach baskets are being used in Maryland, but it is said they are no more successful than the old kind in preventing the dozen big peaches in the basket from crawling on top.

A story about a bishop. The Bishop of Limerick being in failing health, his physician recently told him it would be necessary for him to seek rest and change of air at Nice. The Bishop positively declined to do so. Then said the doctor, plainly: "My Lord, I tell you candidly that your case is a most serious one, and if you do not go to Nice you must very soon go to Heaven." "Oh, well, in that case," replied the Bishop, "I'll go to Nice.

WHAT SHE GAVE HIM.

"Nancy is George still flying around with you?"

"Yes, ma'm," answered the girl.

"Why, I thought you had given him the mittens?"

"I did several days ago."

"And he still comes? That's strange; a young man usually flies all to pieces and never speaks to the girl again."

"He seems to like it," answered Nancy, blushingly.

"Well, I can't understand him; can you imagine why he likes it?"

"Don't know, ma'm," turning very red, "unless it was because my hand was in the mittens when I gave it to him."

"Hum, that's enough, child."

Purely Vegetable.

First the bud, then the blossom, then the perfect fruit. These are the several stages of some of the most important ingredients composing of painless and sure corn cure—PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR. The juice of plants greatly concentrated and purified, gums and balsams in harmonious union, all combined, give the grand results. Putnam's Extractor makes no sore spot, does not lay a man up for a week, but goes on quietly doing its work until a perfect cure results. Beware of acid substitutes.

FREE TRADE AND PROTECTION.

"I'll tell you how it is, Algernon," she said in musical murmurs.

"Yes, Maud," he replied, in subdued tones, watching her, with the reflected light of the moon in her deep-brown eyes.

"Pa has money, you have none. Pa is a free-trader, you are a protectionist."

"Yes," with rising inflections and doubtful tone.

"I will suggest that pa make a free trade of my hand for your business ability, and then I'll look to your arm for protection."

"Bless you, my children!" from a stentorian voice on the back piazza.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Willing, of Manchester, Mich, writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only 50 cents a bottle at Taylor & Macdonald's.

THE SOUND IN THE HALL.

"Has he gone, dear?"

"Yes, grandma."

"And what was that sound in the hall, Jessie?"

"Why, it must have been the door shutting, grandma.

"Your grandma may be old and deaf, Jessie, but doors did not shut with a sound like that when she was a girl."

"Did the men wear moustaches then, grandma?"

"No, my dear."

"Well, that makes the difference, probably."

WHAT THEY THINK OF IT.

The members of the British Association who took part in the excursion to the Rocky mountains arrived safely at the summit on Thursday night. An address of welcome was presented to the visitors at Calgary, in replying to which Sir Richard Temple expressed the astonishment of the party at the splendid resources of the country and the wonderful progress in its development.

James Brayley, Hamilton, says:—"I read the testimonials for McGregor's Speedy Cure and found that I had not to go to New York, Philadelphia, Louisiana or Texas to find living witnesses of its value, we had plenty of persons right here to prove its merits. I got a bottle and it helped me right away, I was as bad with Billious Fever and indigestion as any one could be, I have taken three bottles and am nearly well and can eat any kind of food without it hurting me. I may say that I am better than I ever expected to be." Free trial bottles at J. McKee's Drug Store.

No Such Word in Fail.

A failure to relieve or cure summer complaints can never be truthfully applied to Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. All dealers sell it. 38-2t.

Farmer Furrow thinks capital punishment ought to be abolished, because so many murderers are swung straight into glory that heaven won't be a decent place for a respectable white man to stop in over night."

Some philanthropist has said that a man who truly loves a horse cannot be wicked. He must be in the wrong, for Texas gaols are full of men who love other people's horses, not wisely, but too well.

"What's this thing?" asked a man who was inspecting a music store. "That? Oh, that's used on violins. We call it a chin rest." "Gimme one!" exclaimed the visitor. "S'pose it would work on my wife?"

At an Indiana wedding the choir sang, "Come, ye disconsolate." The officiating clergyman, feeling awkward about it, attempted to mend matters by giving out a hymn, but unluckily struck into the one beginning, "Mistaken souls that dream of bliss."

"Does your head ever swim, Mr. Sniffkins?" asked little Tom Poplnjay of his sister's beau. "Yes, Tommy, I suffer occasionally from dizziness," replied the slim. "I thought so," said Tommy. "Pa said he would pitch you into the horse pond, only your head would keep you from sinking."

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for 1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52t

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Y. M. C. A. Anniversary Meeting.

Members and friends are again reminded of the annual meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association to be held in their rooms on Thursday, 18th of Sept., at 8 p. m. Reports of the work will be presented, and officers for the ensuing year will be elected. All are invited to attend.

Several cases of Millinery Goods arrived at Tuesday's: all the latest Trimmings, Ornaments, etc., are now in stock.

The Art Interchange.

The Art Interchange of September 11 contains a charming design in color of a vase decorated with pink morning glories. The addition of bronze to this design makes it most exquisite for decoration in mineral colors. The same issue also contains a beautiful picture of a girl in frilled cap, which strongly suggests the Cherry Ripe of Millais. Price per copy, 15 cents. Published by William Whitlock, 140 Nassau street.

Light for All.

China Hall has the largest and best assortment of lamps and chandeliers in Peterboro', consisting of 2, 3 and 4 light chandeliers, polished brass and bronze. One light hanging lamps. Parlor, kitchen and bedroom lamps at any price. China Hall pays particular attention to the lamp and coal oil part of its business, and will undersell all other dealers. If you want variety, cheapness and durability in the above goods buy at China Hall.

Anniversary Meeting.

The first anniversary meeting of the Y.M. C. A. will be held in the Charlotte street Methodist Church, on Thursday evening, 25th of August. An interesting programme has been prepared, and will include addresses by Rev. Mr. Tovell and T. S. Cole, traveling secretary of the association, sacred solos by Mrs. Chambers and Mr. Horning, and other music by the choir of the church. Several ministers of the local churches will take part in the exercises, and a collection will be taken up in aid of the association. The public are invited to attend.

Ready Made Clothing.

While in Toronto I bought at a big discount for cash, a large lot of Men's and Boy's Over Coats, Tweed Suits and Pants, some of which were slightly damaged by smoke, being part of a stock saved from a recent fire. These are all new sound goods, and will be sold much below regular prices. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 38-4in.

Coal Oil.

Owing to a "combination" having been formed among the oil refiners, coal oil is advancing in price every week. Consumers should take their cans to CHINA HALL and get them filled at once, and thereby save money. China Hall has the best quality of oil in town. Try it once. 31-tf

Money.

Mr. John A Bennett, of Otonabee, is prepared to make loans on real estate and to purchase mortgages. Loans will be made at the lowest rates of interest, payable when the borrower deems the most convenient time, the principal, being payable at such times as may be agreed upon. Expenses are very light. 12-tf

The Cholera Scourge.

This plague is raging in Italy, particularly in Naples, with deadly violence. In this city with a population of 375,000, the record for the week ending Monday Aug. 16th, is: Monday Sept. 9th, 275 deaths, Tuesday, 250, Wednesday, 265, Thursday, 328, Friday, 430, Saturday, 617, Sunday, 231, total for one week, 2,566. Heavy rains have resulted in a marked diminution of deaths.

The Great Forepaugh Show.

Thousands of people thronged to the town to see this great show on Monday, and they were not disappointed. The gorgeous street parade was more than was expected, and the performance, both afternoon and evening, gave the greatest satisfaction. Everything advertised was presented in first-class style, and many features of the show were such as no travelling exhibition ever presented. There is no fraud about Forepaugh's great show. It is a first-class exhibition, in which the advertised programme, and more, is faithfully carried out.

Burglar Arrested

On Thursday Detective Murray, (Toronto) brought in a man named Cook, from Fenelon Falls, where he had arrested him on a charge of larceny and burglary. He figured about town recently as a sewing machine repairer, carrying his kit of tools, (burglar's no doubt) in a grip sack. While in town he renewed acquaintance with Mr. Renton, watchmaker, both being ex-British soldiers, and is accused by the latter with the theft of three watches. He was heard before the Police magistrate on Thursday on the charge, and remanded till to-day, (Thursday.)

Cobourg Lacrosse.

Last Thursday the Young Peterboroughs played the second heat for the "Brewery Cup," with the Cobourg Lacrosse club, and suffered defeat, and slackened their grip on the Brewery Cup a second time. The defeat of the home team is unfortunate, but they claim to have won three games in succession, which were disallowed by the umpire and referee, against whom a protest was entered with the result that they were removed. Peterborough won the first game, and Cobourg the next three (not counting the three won by the home team, and disallowed.)

International Cricket.

The match between the Syracuse players and the home team, resulted in a victory for the home willow, by 45 runs, the match having been decided by the first innings. Peterborough made 135 in her first innings against 90 scored by the visitors. In the second innings the home team had put together 79 with three men to bat. In this innings double figures were made by Rutherford, 19, Miles Hamilton, 10, R. B. Rogers, 14, and M. Giroux, 12. The match was a surprise to the Syracusans, who expected a walkover.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

Educational Services.

The educational services in the interests of the Methodist church will be held in the George-street church on Sunday and Monday, Sept. 21st and 22nd. On Sunday morning Rev. Dr. Jacques, Principal of Albert College, Belleville, will preach, and in the evening the pulpit will be occupied by Rev. Geo. Douglass, D.D., LL.D., President of the Montreal Theological College. Both of these divines take high rank, the latter having been considered the most eminent thinker and pulpit orator in the Canada Methodist Church. On Monday evening the usual annual educational meeting will be held in the George street church. The chair to be taken at 7.30. Both the above gentlemen will deliver addresses. At both the Sunday services and at the Monday evening meeting collections will be made in aid of the educational fund.

Baptist Lawn Social.

The ladies of the Baptist Church intend giving a lawn social on Mrs. Gilmour's grounds, corner of Park and Gilmour streets, on Thursday evening, Sept. 18th. The grounds will be illuminated and the Fire Brigade Band in attendance. Everybody invited. Admittance at the gates, 15 cents, and not 10 cents as stated on the bills. Remember to-night (Thursday).

Sudden Death.

We extend our deepest condolence to Mr. Robert McWhinnie, of the firm of Foot & McWhinnie, on the occasion of the sudden death of his wife, which took place on Saturday night. In the evening Mrs. McWhinnie was down town and appeared to be in better health and spirits than usual. About eight o'clock she returned home, and had been home only a few minutes when she was seized with paralysis of the heart, and died before any assistance could be given, although Dr. Kinevid was called in at once. The deceased lady was only thirty-three years of age, and was greatly beloved and respected. Her husband, who is one of our most respected business men, has the general sympathy in his sad bereavement.

INTERNATIONAL THROAT AND LUNG INSTITUTE.

Owing to the fact that the last visit to Peterborough a great number who were anxious to get the treatment and were debarred from doing so on account of the shortness of the visit as well as an error in the dates of the last advertisement. Dr. Washington, the very eminent specialist will again be most happy to meet at the Caisse House, Sept. 24th and 25th, all who took the treatment during his previous visit, as well as all others who are desirous of the treatment. Circulars containing testimonials of the most wonderful cures of the most difficult cases of Catarrh Catarrhal deafness, loss of voice, sore throat, Asthma, Bronchitis, and Consumption, will be placed in every house and business place in Peterborough. Read them, they are as genuine as gold. Come early; consultation free.

Caisse House, September 24th and 25th.

Sanitary Matters

A meeting of the local Board of Health, held on Friday night, was called to consider the condition of Hunter street drain, which is indeed a most filthy nuisance, but no action was taken in the matter. Dr. Clarke submitted a condensed report of the sanitary supervision exercised so far this year: 416 yards and 337 privies had been examined: of the 311 yards examined, 86 were found in good condition, and 225 had been cleared: 120 hog pens, manure heaps, etc., had been removed; 231 notices had been served; 12 prosecutions made, and 8 old wells had been closed up. In respect to slaughter houses, Dr. Clarke said the inspectors had visited them twice a week and found them in as good condition as could be expected. A member of the Board (Mr. Cox) stated that he had introduced dry earth closets into the new tenements he was building. A motion by Mr. Cox, seconded by Mr. Stapleton, was carried, authorizing the inspectors to notify all persons now having closets on George street from Brock to Charlotte, and on Hunter, from Queen to Aylmer, to replace them with earth closets.

Circus Notes.

Mr. George Claxton's youngest child—"Baby Claxton"—met with an accident on Sunday, that might have resulted seriously. The little three-year-old managed to slip away to see the circus arrive. A heavy waggon, while being run from the cars, ran over the little fellow's foot, but, wonderful to say, he escaped with only trifling injuries.

A market gardener near the circus grounds stood sentry over his gardens, armed with a double-barrelled shot gun, during the two nights and the Sunday the circus was bivouaced in the neighborhood. Any attempt to raid his melon patch would have been a Payne-ful one to the intruder.

Thousands of persons visited the circus grounds on Sunday, and the Sunday Schools had a very limited attendance. In consequence of their truancy, hundreds of juveniles on Sunday night, after their return home, found little comfort in a sedentary position.

The livery men and bus drivers reaped a golden harvest on Monday, being busy as bees from noon till 11 o'clock p. m.

Business men found circus-day about as good as an ordinary Saturday.

The Chemong Regatta

The windy weather of Thursday afternoon last, resulted in spoiling the fine programme of aquatic sport at Chemong Lake. The attendance was small, as any one with any aquatic judgment, knew there could be no races in such weather. It blew great guns all the afternoon, getting, however, a little quieter about five o'clock. Rather than utterly disappoint the considerable of spectators who had rather gradually assembled, the single canoeists consented to paddle. There were five entries, but only Messrs. J. L. Weller, Geo. Fitzgerald and Arthur Blade started, the two others declining to paddle with single against double bladed paddles in rough water. The course was 1½ miles straightaway, the finish being a little west of the boat house. Mr. John McClelland acting as starter, got the men off pretty well together, and they kept sociable distances during a considerable part of the course. About a quarter from the winning buoy, Blade dropped astern, but it was a prow and prow paddle between Weller and Fitzgerald, the latter leading slightly. Both men were encouraged by the cheers and shouts of their backers, and Weller responding, spurted gamely and passed the wire half a length ahead, winner of a close keen race. Messrs. A. Elliott and H. Le Brun were judges. No more racing being in sight, the crowd wended its way home. During the afternoon a scratch match of base ball between chosen nines was played in the park. We are sorry, that the boisterous weather made such a dismal failure of Mr. Fobert's venture, as there was a fine programme of events, and had the weather been good there would have been a great crowd present. He does not say "die" however, but will make arrangements for another regatta later in the season.

The Checkers and the Championship.

Three Times and Out.

The "Checkers'" Third Plucky Grab for the Medal—Their Third Defeat in Three Straight Games—A Well Contested Match—Good Play on Both Sides—A Fine Friendly Game.

On Monday last a very stubbornly fought game of Lacrosse was played on the Ashburnham grounds. The Checkers of Beaverton made their third attempt this season to lay hands on the championship Medal of Ontario, but it still eludes their grasp and is still as far away as ever, or further according to the old saw "three times and out." At 3:30 play began between the following teams:

PETERBOROUGHS.		CHECKERS.
J. Joyal	Goal	J. McLean
F. Myles	Point	H. Davidson
M. Tierney	Cover Point	D. McKinnon
J. Howden	Defence Field	D. McMillan
M. Halpin	do	S. Weeks
R. W. Kelley	do	A. Kennedy
J. J. Sheehy	Centre Field	F. McMillan
R. H. Fortye	Home Field	C. Cameron
W. J. Scott	do	J. Burchard
J. Henderson	do	A. Cameron
J. Rutherford	2nd Home	W. E. Cameron
J. Canning	1st Home	A. F. Burchard
J. Coughlin	Field Captain	A. H. Wheeler
Geo. Petersn	Umpire	J. Kennedy

Referee, J. Garvin, Toronto.

THE GAME.

On the face Sheehy collared the ball passed it out in reach of Kelly's ready rawhide; he next consigned it to Sheehy from whom Henderson received it and made a fine shot on Beaverton goal, but Davidson and McKinnon were on the watch and averted the danger for the moment. A face now took place near the "Checkers" flags and then there was another close call, and the rubber was sent up towards Peterborough goal, but Howden, with one of those neat catches for which he distinguished himself throughout the game, secured the sphere and hurled it to the other end and the Beaverton defence had hot work, the team play of Henderson and Sheehy, giving no end of trouble, but Weeks, who, showed some fine play got the ball away and there followed a good deal of up and down play, both goals being alternately manaced. However, the Checkers' good defence saved them a more speedy defeat, for their poles were in frequent danger of punishment. At length after nearly half an hour's play the ball was faced at the "Checkers" end. The champions receiving the custody of the rubber, it found its way into Cannings' stick and he scored first game after 29 minutes play.

The second game was shorter but equally as fiercely fought. Sheehy won the draw, and the ball was in a moment down on the Beaverton flags. It was repelled and Tierney cleverly stopped its way to his flags and, with one of his long throws put the visitors' defence at work. The game continued with great vigour, the Checkers putting in some good play, but their efforts could not equal the firm team play of the home boys. Henderson and Sheehy seemed to be everywhere where the ball was, and in any contest for it, if they made a bid for the rubber, it was invariably knocked down to them. Henderson' dodging and manipulation of the ball was much admired, and at length, when Jimmy had soared the sphere the "Checkers" man gave up trying to check him and he had his throw in peace. Beaverton goal in this game was often threatened, and Peterborough's did not escape danger, but the defence on both sides was good and the game was prolonged. Finally Beaverton's defence had to give in to repeated assaults and, after 15 minutes play Henderson sent the sphere between the poles securing second game.

The third game Sheehy drew the ball to Kelly who picked it up and made a shot on goal, which was parried, yet the fight became hot around the "Checkers'" flags. The ball however was got out to centre field, but only to be returned, and attack after attack was made on Beaverton's position. Preceding one of these, Sheehy, Scott and Henderson had a little pic-nic amongst themselves with the ball, followed by a scrimmage, out of which Jimmy snatched the sphere and made a beautiful drop on goal, but it was speedily returned and Joyal was called on. He sent the rubber back again, and then followed repeated shots on the "Checkers'" goal. The danger was well averted by McLean and the pole players, and the ball sent repeatedly by fine long throws on Peterborough's position, but they were well stopped, Howden, making some beautiful catches and long throws. Myles also showed good work, and Fortye was exceedingly active. For the other side, Burchard and Cameron made some excellent play and good throws on goal. At length after 46 minutes play, the Checkers' defence could no longer withstand the frequent assaults on it, and Henderson securing the ball on left centre field, sent it with well-aimed precision flying through the flags.

The game throughout was well fought, the Checkers showing marked improvement since their previous visit. The home team was a comparatively weak one, the absence of two of the first twelve necessitating a draft on the junior twelve. The game was a very friendly one, not a dispute nor an unkind word marring its course.

Artillery Competition.

On Tuesday eight men of the Peterboro' with the Durham Field Battery, left on the 11 o'clock train to go to the Artillery Competition at Toronto, which takes place today, (Tuesday). They will be joined in the city by eight more men of the Battery from Port Hope.

Skating and Curling.

At a meeting of curlers and skaters held on Tuesday night, the question of the removal of the present rink building was considered. In consequence of the leaky condition of the rink caused by its proximity to the race, it was decided to remove the building to the vacant lot on Charlotte street, next west of Fitzgerald's livery stables. This action, however, is dependent on the required increase of $2,000 of the stock of the company. Of this $1,000 was pledged on Tuesday night and a committee appointed to canvass for the balance, which will probably be secured.

The Fire Brigade and Band.

This week the Fire Brigade to the number of thirty and the Fire Brigade Band went to Toronto to enter in the competition at the Industrial Exhibition. The Brigade wore their new fatigue caps. These were supplied by Messrs. Millar Bros. and are very neat headgear. They consist of dark blue coloth, with peaks, and the initials "P. F. B." worked in heavy gold braid. The Brigade won the second prize in the tug of war. The Band took second prize in the Band competition, and had the honor of being selected to lead the grand procession in honor of Hon. Mr. Mowat.

Peterborough Barley.

Mr. A. N. Diamond of Diamond & Co., of George street, who has had twenty two years experience in handling Bay of Quinte barley, says that in spite of the high reputation the latter has received, the barley of Peterborough destrict, is in every way its superior—in all the qualities that go to make a first class grain, Mr. Diamond has this fall received visits from Oswego and Albany grain dealers and the opinion is that these will be a market for all the barley produced but that owing to the abundance and cheapness of other course grains to price of barley will hardly rule as high as the demand would otherwise cause it to do.

Smith's Blanket.

Just received another large consignment of Crawford Peaches, beautifully fresh and nice. As the market is firm, and steady ranging among the higher figures, and will be creeping up from this out, parties intending buying, will do well to give their attention to the matter at once.

Plate Glass Broken.

On Tuesday night the large 8x10 ft. plate glass in Mills Bro's. hat store was broken ruinously. Late in the evening some men were seen scuffling near the spot—a crash was heard and three men ran one way and two in the opposite direction. The loss will be complete as the plate was broken beyond use, and was not insured. The break argues strongly for the presence all night of a policeman on George street.

F. H. DOBBIN, Undsay.

Market and Sell Early.

"Our farmers are completing the ingathering of one the finest harvests with which Providence has blessed and rewarded their labors. Here and there may be light returns in some kinds, but taken as a whole the crop is a remarkably good one. It is; with the exception of hay, much larger than for several years past. It is quite evident that this province is some few millions better off than it was last year in respect to the harvest alone. * * * * * * *

"In this district a large harvest has been got in about three weeks earlier than usual. The question is: Will it not be better for the farmer to market his grain early while the roads are dry and hard, instead of waiting six weeks or two months when the roads are bad? Prospects of higher prices later on are very poor indeed; and farmers should not forget that freight and insurance rates advance with the season. These tend to diminish the price of grain to the farmer."

The above was clipped from the editorial columns of a neighboring town paper, and can recommend it for its commonsense points. Alexander has already marketed and is selling early. His Fall Stock is now nearly complete and selling freely. Never perhaps in the history of dry goods have prices been so low. People are astonished to find that $1 can buy so much goods at Alexander's. Call and be convinced.

MOWAT'S GREAT SPEECH,

On the Occasion of His Reception.

Richly Worth Repeated Reading—The Whole Ground Traversed—Ontario the Dominion's Back Bone—Her Victory in the Boundary Matter—Sir John's attempted Compulsion—Mixing up Manitoba—The Failure of this Scheme—Mr. Mowat's Position—Ottawa Tory Hostility—Dominion Government Obstruction—Their Robbery of this Province—The Young Men—Franchise Reform Foreshadowed—Reform and Responsible Government.

At the monster mass meeting of Ontario's people, held in Queen's Park, Toronto, on Sept. 16th, Hon. Mr. Mowat in reply to addresses delivered the following magnificent speech, Hon. E. Blake in the chair:

Hon. Mr. Mowat came forward amid enthusiastic and long continued cheering. When the applause had partially subsided, he said: "Citizens of Ontario, I feel overpowered at the grand welcome which you have given me to-day. It is all the more touching to me—it is emphasized by the fact that you, sir, are presiding over this grand gathering of Reformers, and of a great many Conservatives from all parts of our noble Province. (Cheers.) On an occasion which involves what I would accept as some honor to myself, I feel that honor all the more when the gathering is presided over by one of my best friends, one who has been my political and personal friend for a quarter of a century (cheers), and one who deserves the friendship of every man, either Reformer or Conservative. (Loud cheers.) The addresses which have been presented to me are expressed in a spirit of exceeding kindness. They describe at all events the ideal of what in my position I should be and what I should do. I accept them as expressing that ideal, and not at all supposing that they represent the reality. All that I claim is that I have always endeavored to do my duty as I understood it, and I rejoice to know that in my endeavors to discharge it I have had the appreciation of my fellow-citizens during the twelve years which have elapsed since my friend Mr. Blake (cheers) advised the Lieut.-Governor to send for me and asked me to form an Administration. (Renewed cheers.) But whatever confidence I have been honored with by my fellow-citizens I know well that there is of all the interesting subjects which have occupied public attention, and which occupy it now, no one which could have brought together such an enormous gathering except the great subject in which we have been engaged lately; that nothing but the

and the importance of it could have brought together such an enormous gathering. (Cries of "And we won it.") Yes, and we won it. We won it for you, and we won it for every part of our country. The addresses presented come from every part of our Province; from Algoma on the north—which is now as large as all the rest of Ontario together, thanks to the right and the decision of the Privy Council and from Ottawa River on the east, and from Sarnia on the west, as well as all along the great lakes and the interior parts of the country. I cannot doubt, therefore, the great interest taken by the people of Upper Canada on this great subject. You are here from all parts of the Province, representing all classes of our fellow-citizens, and I rejoice to know that among you, too, there are not merely Reformers, but Conservatives also. (Cries of "We will make them Reformers.") I hope we shall make Reformers of them, and at all events that they will be willing to show they are patriots before they are party men. (Cheers.) Reformers are party men because they are patriots. (Cheers.) No one now will doubt that the subject of the boundaries of the Provinces is of intense interest to our whole people. This interest could not have been suddenly aroused. It must have long existed to produce such a gathering as surrounds me to-day. Now, why is it we are so anxious that our limits should not be curtailed? First and foremost, the reason is because we love Ontario; that we believe in Ontario; that we know from our past experience that it is for the interest of the Dominion as well as the Provinces that the limits of Ontario should not be restricted.

ONTARIO, IN FACT, IS THE BACKBONE of the Dominion, and the more we are interested in the success of Confederation the more anxious we are that Ontario's extent should not be contracted. (Hear, hear.) Hitherto that has been the position of our Province. We desire that that should continue to be the position of our Province for all time; that it should not be brought down to be one of the least of all the great Provinces (loud cheers); that there should be extent of country enough to admit of development, so that as the other Provinces develop so should Ontario develop (loud cheers.) I have said that we desire the full extent of our territory to be retained because we are desirous of Confederation continuing to be a success, and be a success in a larger measure than heretofore. (Cheers.) Whatever part of our constitutional system has been a success or a failure, that part of it which provides for separate Provinces and for extensive jurisdiction in the government and legislation of the Province is that part which, beyond all doubt, has been most successful. (Cheers.) In Ontario success of the administration of public affairs and of legislation has not only been recognized by the great Reform party of the country, but to a large extent it has been recognized in the secret hearts and sometimes in the words of Conservatives themselves (laughter and cheers); and while our people divided upon the issues with which the Dominion Government has to deal, and while in the last two elections which have been held in consequence of those divisions the Conservative party has returned a majority of representatives to the House of Commons, yet every election since my Premiership commenced, the electors have pronounced for the present Provincial Administration. (Loud cheers.) Indeed, I see no indications that they will change now; indeed, I see nothing in this demonstration consistent with such a view. (Laughter and cheers.) In this great battle which we have been fighting, and which has brought you together, what were the issues between the parties? It is well to remember that there is no room for doubt that the settled policy of the Conservative chieftains at Ottawa was to deprive Ontario of this territory. Their public journalists write as if there was neutrality on the part of the Dominion Government in respect of this territory—as if it was a question only between Manitoba and Ontario—as if all that the Dominion Government wanted was to know who was the rightful owner of the territory. But the contrary of all that is a certain fact. From 1870 or 1871 the conservative party represented at Ottawa adopted as their settled policy that this territory should not belong to Ontario if they could help it. Their first step to accomplish that purpose was taken during the administration of my friend, Mr. Blake (cheers), while he was at the head of the Ontario Government, and it was frustrated by him, though it would not have been frustrated if he or some other Reform leader had not been in power. The Ottawa Government of that day, a Conservative Government, did indeed agree with the Ontario Government under Sandfield Macdonald, that this question of the boundaries of Ontario should be settled by a commission. But what were the instructions given to the commision by the Ottawa Government? Was it to investigate where our boundaries were? Or that they should take those boundaries which the Dominion Ministers had always represented as the boundaries of this Province? No. The commissioners were instructed to draw boundaries that would have excluded from Ontario the whole of the territory which has since been in dispute, and our right to which is now finally confirmed by the highest judicial tribunal of the empire. (Loud cheers) Neutral! Why the Conservative Government has never been neutral from that day to this. (Cheers.) There has been no time during the whole of that period when they have not taken every possible means to deprive us of that territory. Sir John Macdonald himself, the leader of the Government, absolutely declared not only that this territory was, in his judgment, in his competent judgment as a constitutional lawyer—(laughter)—not in Ontario, and that the arbitrators had sought to add to Ontario a large territory to which she was not entitled; but he went further, and declared in the face of the House and the country that his purpose was to compel the Ontario Government to abandon the award of the arbitrators. And yet we are told he is neutral in this matter, and only wanted to know where the boundary was! (laughter.) He sought to accomplish that purpose of compulsion—that unsuccessful purpose of compulsion—(cheers)—but we did not intend to be compelled. (Cheers.) The people of Upper Canada did not mean to be compelled; those whom they sent as representatives did not mean to be compelled, and we have not been compelled. (Loud cheers.) But Sir John Macdonald was not inactive and his Government and party were not inactive in their endeavors to compel us to abandon those boundaries. An act was passed, in the same session, I think it was, giving the Dominion's claim on this territory to Manitoba, under the notion that this might be the means of which Sir John Macdonald publicly declared it was his object to accomplish. How was his object to be accomplished by this means? Manitoba was near, and Toronto, the capital of Ontario, was far distant. It was easy to send in constables from Manitoba, while it was a long distance to send officers from this Provincial capital. We were at that time in possession of the territory. Our courts were held there, and our officers were there. It could do nothing but damage the prospects of a settlement to send officers from Manitoba. But then it was hoped we would be induced to withdraw from the territory. That no doubt was the purpose, and when we did not withdraw, what did the journals of the Conservative Government at Ottawa do? They did their very best to force us to withdraw. They called our officers cut-throats, they declared our course to be illegal and immoral, and there was nothing in vituperation or misrepresentation which they did not do in order to create a public feeling antagonistic to us, to induce us to withdraw from the territory. What was the purpose which could be accomplished in seeking to force us to withdraw? I will tell you. According to judicial authority, where there is a dispute in regard to territory between two Governments, the territory belongs for all purposes of litigation and adjudication, to the country that is at the time practically exercising jurisdiction there. If, therefor, we had withdrawn from the country as Sir John Macdonald desired us to do, as he proposed that Manitoba, with Dominion assistance, should compel us to do, as the Conservative journals sought to compel us to do, should by means of courts established there continuously, declare that the territory belonged to it, Manitoba, and that by holding possession for a few years, the territory would be practically lost to us. The purpose was to place us in such a position that we should be either induced or compelled to withdraw, and that we should gradually lose our hold on the territory, however clear our title to it might be. But by the support of the Reformers of Ontario, and by a sense of right and duty, we would not withdraw. (Loud cheers.) We maintained our position and the Manitoba Government found there was no possibility of accomplishing that scheme for the destruction of Ontario's interest in that territory. Then we found

MR. NORQUAY,

Premier of Manitoba, making speeches to reporters and others declaring that all they wanted was to have the question settled. I telegraphed to Mr. Millar, Attorney-General there, to come down here and we would try if we could not settle it. I had no doubt it could be settled as soon as the parties wanted it settled. (Hear, hear.) The trouble was in parties professing to want a settlement when they did not want it. (Cheers.) The trouble was that there was a political object to be gained by Sir John Macdonald and his associates—a political object, not here in Ontario (for he thought Ontario was quite safe, that the Conservatives were strong enough and had money enough, and that protection doctrine was popular enough to make this Province quite safe), but in other Provinces. Then, I dare say, he found his action supported by some narrow and prejudiced men who occupied prominent positions in other Provinces which they represented, and his purpose, therefore, in keeping this matter open and seeking to deprive Ontario of the territory was, first, to make political capital, and second, to deprive Ontario of the territory if possible, and thus strengthen his political position in other Provinces. (Cries of "He will have to gerrymander again.") Further, after having taken the steps through Parliament which I have mentioned, the action of the Executive was called into force for the same purpose. At that time there was only one building used as a jail at Rat Portage, of which you have heard so much. That jail was the property of the Dominion. Our officers, until we obtained a jail of our own, were in the habit, with the consent of the Dominion Government, of using the jail for the imprisonment of offenders convicted by the action of our officers. But after the time of which I have spoken, after the Act was passed by which the claim of the Dominion was assigned to Manitoba, our privilege of using the jail was taken from us and given to Manitoba. ("Shame.") Was that the proceeding of a neutral Government? Was that such an act as would have been taken by the Ottawa Government if their purpose had not been to embarrass us still further, and lead to our consequent abandonment of the country? (Cries of "No.") But likewise. (Cheers.) We obtained a vote from the Legislature and ourselves built a jail and court house, after which we sent up a small constabulary force, and with the people in our favor we were able to continue in possession. We might have driven out the Manitoba officers. We would have no difficulty in raising sufficient men; a force who would gladly have gone up. (Cheers.) Why, before our policy was well understood I had offers from all parts of the Province of men who wanted to go up there and drive every Manitoba and Dominion official from the territory. (Cheers.) I had some such offers from old men and from young men; from old men who had fought battles before and wanted to fight fresh ones; and from young men who had fought no battles but who were quite willing to risk their lives and shed their blood in defence of the rights of their Province. (Loud Cheers.) The territory being ours, if we had acted upon the urgent suggestions which were received from many quarters we would have acted within the law. Manitoba had no more right (that is the effect of the decision of the Privy Council) to interfere with us at Rat Portage than she had to interfere with us in Toronto, and we would have been justified before the law, and in point of moral right too, had we driven them out, just as we would be justified in doing so if they made such an attempt here. (Loud cheers). We would have been justified in driving out Manitoba officers who interfered with our Provincial jurisdiction, and also the Dominion officers who interfered with our position in the territory. We proposed which would, for the time, suit our purpose equally well. We proposed to have such a force there as would ensure that our rights would not be interfered with, and if Manitoba officials remained there they to the same extent should exercise jurisdiction. That sort of possession did not suit the purpose of Sir John Macdonald and the Manitoba Government, the latter being most exceedingly anxious to obtain that territory, which was so near its borders, and which, when developed and settled might be a source of great gain to the Province, and Manitoba became exceedingly anxious that the trouble should cease. It became the interest of the people of Manitoba that the difficulty should be settled at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Miller therefore came down here, at my suggestion, armed with full powers to act for his Government, and we came to an agreement, and by which the delay that I always feared in dealing with the Dominion Government was rendered impossible. (Cheers.) He agreed with me—for he was just as anxious for a settlement as I was, and Manitoba was as anxious as Ontario was—that the matter should go before the Privy Council; but we fixed the time that it should go. (Hear, hear.) We put it out of the power of either Government to create delay by an express declaration between us that the matter should be heard not later than June or July. Difficulties and delays might have arisen from numerous causes. A great cause of delay, by which the question might easily have been kept open for years by either party desiring it, was to the evidence which should be submitted to the Privy Council, with the questions upon which they were to be asked to pronounce. We agreed that the evidence should be in on a certain day, on some day in April, and that evidence not then in should not on that account delay the hearing in June or July. Other details having reference to the condition of the country in the meantime were provided for, and the effect of the agreement was that the case was heard in July and the judgment was that which the people of Ontario long knew ought to be the judgment, which, as a lawyer, I had no doubt would be the judgment. (Loud cheers.) Whether the award of the arbitrators should be considered binding was quite another question. That was a matter for the lawyers, on which our people do not profess to express any opinion. Most of our lawyers were quite clear that it was not legally binding; but no one could doubt, no intelligent person could doubt, no one who wanted to act right could doubt, that in conscience and in good faith, and was binding according to every principle recognized in inter-governmental transactions. (Cheers.) The reference was entered into, the award was made under circumstances that no civilized country is modern times would have felt itself at liberty to repudiate (loud cheers); and when it was repudiated by the Government and Parliament at Ottawa, that was done towards Ontario which no civlized country would venture to do in regard to a foreign nation, even though a foreign foe. (Renewed cheers.) We were far worse treated than one civilized country would treat another, however much opposed it might be. Under such circumstances the people of Upper Canada felt that the award ought to be confirmed by whatever legislation was necessary; and those of you who have read such portions of the discussion before the Privy Council as were published in the newspapers must be persuaded that the Privy Council thought so too. (Loud cheers.) They could not discover why the award had not been ratified and carried into effect by necessary legislation. They were asked in one of the questions to say whether legislation by the Province and the Dominion was needed to carry out the award. They declined to answer that question, but they said the legislation which should take place and which was expedient was legislation by the Imperial Parliament. Those who were opposed to Ontario might in the future, as they had done in the past, prevent the Dominion Government from passing whatever Act might be necessary; but they had no power over the Imperial Parliament. And the Judicial Committee's recommendation was adopted by Her Majesty in Council, and the Order which I dare say you have read calls on all persons to conform to the decision which has been pronounced. (Loud cheers and a voice, "It is not in the Mail.") Then you should read some other paper. (Laughter and cheers). One of our friends who I suppose reads only that journal says he has not seen the order because it has not appeared there. It ought to have appeared there. (Hear, hear). In fact nothing good ever does appear in the Mail. When you want to find anything good it is not to the Mail you should go; but if you want to find something bad, you will be quite safe in opening any number of that journal issued. It would be tedious, gentlemen, to go into details; but I have said enough to enable you all to see that it was the settled policy of the Government at Ottawa that this territory should not be ours if it were possible to keep it from us; that there was no neutrality, but active hostility on the part of the Dominion Government in regard to the whole matter. Coming to the time when we went before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and argued the case there.

WHO WAS IT CONFRONTED ME THERE?

Had I merely to deal with the counsel for Manitoba? No; the Dominion Government employed the ablest counsel of the Conservative party in this country for the purpose of showing that Manitoba was right and Ontario was wrong. The Dominion Government did their very best to throw into the scale against us all the prestige that naturally belongs to the Dominion as compared with any one of its Provinces. But all was in vain. (Loud cheers.) The right was with us; the evidence was with us; we had a good tribunal, an impartial tribunal, a tribunal whose ability and impartiality no one could impugn. The result is that you, gentlemen, are all here to-day to express your joy at the result, joy which Reformers feel specially because the great result has been brought about in spite of the efforts of the Conservative chieftains at Ottawa, and you have a right, therefore, having supported us in our struggle and having kept us in our places, to feel the joy in the result in a special manner. But the good which will result to the country from our success will not be confined to Reformers. I am glad to know this; for I always like to do as much good to Conservatives as I can; they need all the good we can do them. (Laughter.) I mean the average Conservative, who does not know what is good for him, and to whom we must do good in spite of himself. (Laughter.) But there are good men among them, and those who are not good I should like to make good. (Renewed laughter.) I should like them to become as good as the average Reformer, and if I could accomplish that result I would do so much to raise the national character of my Province. (Cheers.) We had to guard particularly against the danger of further litigation on this boundary question. I did not think it just that after fighting our battle before the arbitrators and having won it, that we should be constantly called upon to repeat the victory. People think that there is a certain amount of danger in every litigation; it may be a very small element, but be it small or great the party should not unnecessarily be compelled to incur it. I was less concerned about the result than I was about the time that new litigation might occupy. I knew it would be practicable, easy in fact, to delay the reference to the Privy Council for any period that either party might desire. The position of the territory was such that it was in the interest of the Ottawa Government that difficulties should arise. The danger of difficulties arising was manifested by a single circumstance. When it was decided that the western boundary should be decided in June or July, the Ottawa Government thought at one time that the whole question as to the northern boundary might as well be decided at the same time. We were in possession of the territory; they could not do very much with it so long as we

and claiming the territory to be ours. And perhaps they thought the prestige of the Dominion would give them an advantage before the Privy Council, which, however, it did not give them. I may there is a recent circumstance in this connection which demonstrates what good cause I had to apprehend delay in the necessary proceedings. When the Dominion Government came to the conclusion I have indicated, that they might as well have the whole subject decided at the same time, they addressed to the Provincial Government a despatch stating that fact. The case for the purpose was then actually settled by counsel on both sides; the necessary evidence was agreed to, and all that was wanted was that the Dominion Government should carry out what, in their own despatch of two months ago, they declared their intention to do. They did not carry it out, although they had said in a formal manner that it was necessary to have the other case heard at the same time as the case of Manitoba respecting the western boundary. At almost the last moment they withdrew from their position, and I have not been able to get from them a single word of explanation or defence of their action. (Laughter and cheers.) If even at the very last moment, and after the very last proceeding had been taken for the purpose of bringing about a complete settlement, there had been that delay, you can easily see we had to guard carefully against delay. (Cheers.) In the numerous addresses which had been presented to me allusion is made in every one of them to the subject on which I have been touching, and I have shown you what the settled policy of the Dominion Government was; that there was no neutrality, and that all statements to the contrary in the newspapers are false. (Cheers.) Another statement constantly made by Conservative journals is that the Dominion Government was all along wanting to go to the Privy Council, and that the Ontario Government was all along opposed to such reference. That is just as false. It is not only not true, but it is the reverse of the truth. I can prove it. (Cheers.) If I had the documents I could give the documents themselve in corroboration of my statement. In the meantime I may give a statement of fact. The Award was made in 1878. If the Dominion Government did propose that we should go to the Privy Council, when did they make the proposal? Not in 1878, 1879, 1880 or 1881. Now turn up the documents. Let every one look at the official documents and he will find this, which has been reiterated in the newspapers, that in all those years not one word is said in any communication from the Ottawa Government to the Provincial Government about a reference to the Privy Council. We were every year addressing despatches to the Dominion Government on this subject; we were pressing them to have this matter settled, and during all those years on the part of the Dominion Government for this mode of settlement, nor any other, with one exception. I thought it a disgraceful thing that this valuable territory should be in such a condition that no one could tell what Government had jurisdiction there, and I therefore asked that some of the Dominion Ministers should meet me for the purpose of seeing whether we could not find a basis by which that disgraceful state of things might be terminated. We had a meeting for that purpose in 1881, and a proposal was then made by the Dominion Ministers to have the question of right tried anew. What we proposed was, to go to the Privy Council. They said no. It was proposed by Sir John Macdonald that we should have a new arbitration before an English ex-judge. I did not think that very reasonable or sensible. We had already had a reference before three very able men in whom every one could have perfect confidence, and it seemed absurd to have the case tried again before a single judge. (Cheers.) Further, he was to take all the evidence anew. In that event it would be very easy to keep the question open for years, during which time all political capital possible could be made out of it by the Dominion Government. Then the next despatch from Ottawa in which any reference is made to the subject of settlement, and the only dispatch up to that time, was received in January, 1882. And what was the proposal then made? A mode of settlement was proposed; was it by a reference to the Privy Council? No. So far from a proposal being made for a reference to the Privy Council at that late date, the question of a reference was in that despatch. (Laughter and cheers.) What are you to think of public journals which have been proclaiming for years that the Dominion Government had advocated for many years a reference to the Privy Council, when we find that during all these years I have mentioned they proposed nothing at all; that when they did propose something it was another proposal, of which now the party may well feel ashamed, and that when they referred to the Privy Council at the late date I have mentioned they actually expressed objection to a reference to the Privy Council? (Laughter and loud cheers.) They proposed again a reference to an English ex-judge or to the Supreme Court, going through all the evidence anew and giving opportunity for interminable delay if they wanted it. Then with respect to the Privy Council reference, all the Dominion Government ultimately said was this, if both Ontario and Manitoba prefer a reference, though the Dominion did not, the Dominion Government would concur in it. They knew well that Manitoba would not express any such preference, that it would only act in accordance with it to carry out the policy of the Dominion Government. So in proposing that reference to the Privy Council the Dominion Government knew it would require the consent of both Manitoba and Ontario and that such would not be given. What do you think of journals declaring that it was the Dominion Government that proposed a reference to the Privy Council? The Privy Council have held that the Award is not legally binding, and have themselves adjudged, however, that the awarded boundaries, as far as they considered them, were the right ones. So we are really in a better position than if the Award had been declared legally binding. (Cheers.) Sir John Macdonald said the Reform Government obtained the Award improperly. That could not be said in respect to the present decision. The case was discussed by the ablest constitutional counsel in this country; days were spent before the Privy Council in examining evidence, and yet the Judicial Committee came to practically the same conclusions as did the arbitrators. (Loud cheers.) We got nothing more from the arbitrators than that to which we were entitled, and about the boundaries to which we were entitled, and which Mr. Blake, when Premier in 1872, expressed his willingness to adopt. While all this had been going on, while the Dominion Government and Parliament have been taking the strongest measures possible to deprive us of our territory, the Dominion Government have been making

NOT ONE SUGGESTION WAS MADE

GRANTS OF LAND AND TIMBER TO THEIR FRIENDS.

We have objected to this; we have expostulated with them; we have asked them to tell us what they are doing. They would not even do that. Our despatches were utterly disregarded. They were determined to keep us in the dark and have done so to this moment; and we know nothing as to what they have been doing except from returns submitted to the House of Commons giving information respecting lands granted and timber licenses issued, the good things obtained by Conservatives through the favor of the Dominion Government. (Laughter.) All the licenses and grants were bad. The licenses by which much of the timber of that territory has been lost and irretrievable loss inflicted, and under which the licensees are seeking to cut more, and appropriate money properly belonging to the Province, are bad; and so far as they are bad, the Ontario Government will put a stop to such action. (Loud cheers.) We were not anxious to bring those parties before our courts here because of the numerous delays involved in deciding the great question of right. We were anxious to have some conclusive action on the matter before we could do much in the way of action, but now that the Privy Council had given a permanent judgment we do not mean to delay any longer in preventing the destruction of timber, which timber it is our duty to protect in the interests of the people of Upper Canada. We care not what political services have been rendered by the licensees, the Government must repay those services in some other way than by granting our timber and territory. (Loud cheers.) Amongst the addresses with which I have been honored today, is an address from the young men of the Province. I was very glad to receive that address. I am glad to know that the young men have taken such an interest in public affairs that they have organized specially as young men, and seem to contemplate action as young men in public affairs. It is of the greatest moment to our interests as a Province that our young men should familiarize themselves with political affairs, that they should have clear notions of what the interests of the Province require. (Cheers.) They have a longer time before them than we have. Most of my years have been spent and I cannot have many more to spend in the service of my country; but this Boundary question in which we are interested, and other constitutional questions, will interest my sons and the sons of the older men before me. I am glad, therefore, of the interest taken by the young men in the great subject of political affairs, and I am glad they recognize the great importance of this practical discussion in which we are engaging, and that they recognize the value of the great battle we have been fighting and which we have won. I rejoice in the reference made in the address to the desirability of

ADDING LARGELY TO THE ELECTORATE.

I am glad to know that my colleagues agree with me that there should be a large addition made to the electorate, and I doubt not that at the next election you will have many votes of young men and of others which hitherto you have not had. (Loud cheers.) But young men are not only largely interested in this way, but they have a special duty devolving upon them, viz.: to do what they can to raise as high as possible the national character. (Cheers.) That depends largely on the character of the young men. I should like our country to be specially characterized by a high and lofty patriotism. (Loud cheers.) I should like our people to be noted everywhere for their honesty, their sobriety, their thrift, and their fair dealing (renewed cheers); and the young are likely to feel their hearts burning with emulation to do something to accomplish those great objects; and I rejoice to believe that our young men are cherishing that desire. In order to do the best they can for the country they will find it necessary, if they have not done so already, to join one or other of the political parties. What I ask of those who are hesitating as to whether the should join this or that party is, not to make a decision without very careful consideration. I know that they will find that if they want to do the largest possible amount of good, it is necessary to join one or other of the two great parties. Government by party is a fact. Something may be said against it; but it is a fact, and will long remain so, and to be entirely independent of either party is to have no weight whatever in public affairs. When young men come to consider which party they should join—I will give them advice on that point, too. (Laughter and cheers.) I dare say there is no doubt that those who have had a Reform education are Reformers now, and they will always continue Reformers. (Cheers.) I have no further suggestion to make to them. (Laughter and cheers.) They are all right, and no doubt will continue all right. But I should like to say a word or two to those who have had the misfortune of having a Conservative training, to those who have had Conservative associations or former Conservative prejudices. That was my own position. I was brought up in the very hot bed of Conservatism, and as I know a great many good Conservatives I have a very kindly feeling towards them. I am speaking now of the average Conservatives. (Laughter.) I have nothing to say to them. I have this kindly feeling because I know so many are patriotic, good men, anxious to do the best for their country. I say all my own early associations and prejudices were in that direction. But when a young man I began inquiring, just as many young men are now doing, with all the care of which I was capable as to which of the two parties was right then. I came to the conclusion, judging by the history of the past and the events of the present, that the Reformers were right and the Conservatives were wrong. (Cheers.) Looking at history I found that Reformers had always been right and Conservatives always wrong. This is now a matter of history. Take

RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT,

It was opposed by Conservatives and advocated by Reformers. Conservatives as well as Reformers rejoice in the victory for responsible government. Take again municipal institutions, to which we are owing a larger portion of our prosperity. The older men and students of history know that the Reformers were opposed by Conservatives as strongly as they ever opposed any good measure. It was not without a great deal of difficulty and fighting that Reformers succeeded in winning that battle likewise. (Cheers.) And now Conservatives as well as Reformers rejoice that the victory was won. (Cheers.) Then again in regard to Church and State, and so on. I found that on the questions before the country at the time I entered public life and publicly declared myself on one side rather than on the other, the Reformers were right, as was proved to be the case in regard to the past history of the country. And when we look at the old land and compare the history of Conservative and Liberal parties there, we find the Liberals have been right and the Conservatives wrong. Then, in this country the Conservative party sympathize with the Conservative party in England. Look at our Conservative journals. Whenever they deal with English subjects you find their sympathies all with the Conservatives on English questions. You find the Reformers all sympathize with the Reform party in England on English questions. I ask young men to consider these things and see whether they can come to any other conclusion than that at which I arrived, that in order to do the best for our Province they should join the Reform party and oppose the Conservatives. (Loud cheers.) It is now thirty years since this matter was decided by myself. During the whole of those thirty years, except when I was on the Bench, I was a close observer of political affairs, and I had something to do with the political leaders; and I tell the young men present that I have never for one day during that period had the slightest doubt as to the correctness of the conclusion at which I arrived. (Loud and continued cheering.) I rejoice, after thirty years' experience, experience of every kind, and in the light of all the information I have acquired, that I DECIDED FOR THE REFORM PARTY.

(Renewed cheering.) I have been with the Reform party all that time, and I do not think I will ever belong to any other party. All I have to say to young men in that regard is, follow my example. (Enthusiastic cheering.) The grand reception you have given me to-day shows the intense interest you and those whom you represent here take in the question I have been discussing. I rejoice in this welcome because I know that it means that interest, and I thank all the young men, and those who are not young, for the part you have taken in giving me this splendid reception. (Loud cheers.) I have loved Ontario always, but this day's proceedings make one love it better than before." (Loud and enthusiastic cheers.)

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were illy adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

Tabernacle Sermons.

The Influences of Indordinate Fashion on Society.

SERMON BY REV. DR. TALMAGE

'Whose adorning let it not be . . . . . putting on of apparel.' I Peter 3 ; 3.

That we should all be glad is proved by the opening of the first wardrobe in Paradise, with its apparel of dark green. That we should all, as far as our means allow us, be beautifully and gracefully apparelled, is proved by the facts that God never made a wave but He gilded it, or a tree but He garlanded it with blossoms, or a sky but He studded it with stars, or allowed the smoke of a furnace to ascend but He columned and turreted and domed and scrolled it into outlines of indescribable gracefulness. When I see the apple-orchards of the spring and the pageantry of the autumnal forests I come to the conclusion that if Nature ever does join a Church, while she may be a Quaker in the silence of her worship, she never will be a Quaker in the style of her dress. There will be as much as on earth, but it will be a different kind of fashion. It will decide the color of the dress ; and the population of that country, inexorable law, will wear white and stainless garments. The Old and New Testament of her Bible are Madame Demorest's Magazine and Harper's Bazar. Her altars smoke with the sacrifice of the bodies, minds, and souls of ten thousand victims. In her temple four people stand in the organ-loft, and from them there comes down a cold drizzle of music freezing on the ears of her worshippers. This goddess of fashion has become a rival of the Lord of heaven and earth ; and it is high time that we unlimbered our batteries against this idolatry. When I come to count

FASHION IN HEAVEN

THE VICTIMS OF FASHION

I find as many masculine as feminine. Men make an easy tirade against women, as though she were the chief worshiper at this idolatrous shrine, and no doubt there are men in the more conspicuous part of the pews who have already cast glances to the more retired part of the pew, their look a prophecy of a generous distribution to others of the more cogent part of my discourse. My sermon shall be as appropriate for one end of the pew as for the other. Men are as much the idolaters of fashion as women, but they throw themselves on a different part of the alter. With men, the fashion goes to cigars, and club-rooms, and yatching parties, and wine suppers. In the United States the men chew up and smoke one hundred millions of dollars worth of tobacco every year. That is their fashion.

MASCULINE DEVOTEES.

But men do not abstain from millinery and elaboration of skirt through any superiority of humility. It is only because such appendages would be a blockade to business. What would sashes and trails three and a half yards long do in a Wall Street stock market ? And yet men are the disciples of fashion just as much as women. Some of them wear boots so tight they can hardly walk in paths of righteousness. And there are men who buy expensive suits of clothes and never pay for them, and who go through the street in great stripes of color like animated checker boards, and suggest to one that, after all, Tweed in prison dress may have got out of the penitentiary. Then there are multitudes of men who, not satisfied with the bodies the Lord gave them, are padded, so their shoulders shall be square, carrying around a small cotton plantation ! And I understand a great many of them now paint their eye-brows and their lips ; and I have heard from good authority that there are multitudes of men in Brooklyn and New York—men—things have got to such an awful pass—multitudes of men wearing corsets ! I say these things, because I want to show you that I am impartial in this discussion, and that in my discourse both sexes, in the language of the Surrogate's office, shall 'share and share alike.' As God may help me this morning, I shall show you what are the destroying and deathful

INFLUENCES OF INORDINATE FASHION.

The first baleful influence is in fraud, illimitable and ghastly. Do you know that Arnold of the Revolution proposed to sell his country in order to get money to supply his wife's wardrobe ? I declare here before God and this people that the effort to keep up expensive wardrobes in this country is sending many business men to temporal and eternal perdition. But why should I go to these infamous defaultings to show what men will do in order to keep up great home style and expensive ward-robes, when you and I know scores of men who are put to their wits end and are lashed from January to December in the attempt to keep up great home style. Things will be no better until we learn to put on our heads and backs and feet and hands no more than we can pay for. There are clerks in stores and banks on limited salaries who in vain attempt to keep the wardrobe of their family as showy as other wardrobes, and what with buying of muffs and diamonds and camel's hair shawls and high hats they have nothing left except what they give to cigars and wine suppers, and they die before their time, and they will expect as ministers to preach about them as though they were the victims of early piety and after a high toned funeral, with silver handles at the side of their coffins of extraordinary brightness, it will be found out that in the act of dying and going to Greenwood they swindled the undertaker out of his legitimate expenses. Do not send to me to preach the funeral sermon of a man who dies like that. I will blurt out the whole truth, and tell that he was strangled to death by his wife's ribbons. During the last fifteen years there have been innumerable fine businesses shipwrecked on the wardrobe. The temptation comes in this way ;—A man thinks more of his family than he does of all the world outside, and if they spend the evening in describing to him the superior wardrobe of the family across the street, and they cannot bear the sight. The man is thrown on his gallantry and his pride of family, and without translating his feelings into plain language, he goes into extortion and issuing false stock, and skilful penmanship in writing somebody else's name at the foot of a promissory note ; and they all go down together—the husband to the prison, the wife to the sewing machine, the children to be taken care of by those who were called poor relations. Men and women put so much in personal display that they often have nothing for God and the cause of suffering humanity. A Christian man cracks his Palais Royal glove clear across the back by holding on to the one cent too tight as he puts it into the poor box. A Christian woman, at the story of the Hottentots, crying copious tears into a twenty five dollar hankerchief, and then giving a two cent piece to the collection, thrusting is down under the bills so people would not know but it was a ten dollar gold piece. One hundred dollars for incense to fashion. Two cents for God. Give us ninety cents out of every dollar. The other ten cents, by command of His Bible belong to Him. Is not God liberal according to this tithing system laid down in the Old Testiment—is not God liberal in giving us ninety cents out of a dollar, when He takes but ten ? We do not like that. We want to have ninety-nine cents for ourselves and one for God. Now I would a great deal rather steal ten cents from yon than God. I think one reason why a great many people do not get along in worldly accumulation faster is because they do not observe this divine rule. God rises up and says : 'Well if that man is not satisfied with ninty-cents of a dollar, then I will take the whole dollar and I will give it to the man or woman who is honest with me.' The greatest obstacle to charity in the Christian Church to-day is the fact that men expend so much money on their stomachs and women expend so much money on their backs, they have nothing left for the cause of God and the world's betterment. Again, inordinate fashion causes

DISTRACTION IN WORSHIP.

You know very well there are a good many people who come to church just as they go to the races, to see who will come out ahead. What a flutter it makes in church when some woman with an extraordinary display of fashion come in ! 'What a love of a bonnet !' says some one 'What a perfect fright !' says five hundred. For the most mercilers critics in the world are fashion critics. Men and women with souls to be saved passing the hour in wondering where that man got his flamboyant cravant or what store that woman patronizes. What distraction of public worship ! Dying men and women, whose bodies are soon to be turned into dust, yet before three worlds strutting like the peacocks, the awful question of the soul's destiny submerged by the question of Creedmoor polonaise and navy blue velvet with long fan train skirt, long enough to drag up the church aisle, the husband's store, office, shop, factory, fortune, and the admiration of half the people in the building. Men and women come late to church to show their clothes. Yet, my friends, I have given you only the milder phase of this evil. It shuts a great multitude out of heaven. The first peal of thunder that shook Sinai declared, 'Thou shalt have no other God before me,' and you will have to choose between the goddess of fashion and the Christian God. There are a great many seats in heaven, and they are all easy seats, but not one seat for the devotee of fashion. You could not sail up the harbor of heaven with that rigging. You would be fired on as a blockade runner. Heaven is for meek and quiet spirits. Heaven is for those who think more of their souls than they do of their bodies. Heaven is for those who have more joy in Christian charity than they have in fashionable attire. Why, if you with your idolatry of fashion, should some how get into heaven, you would be for putting a French roof on the 'house of many mansions,' and making plaits and the Hamburg embroidery and flounces in the robe of eternal life, and you would be for introducing amid the queens of heaven the patterns of Butterick's Quarterly Dressmaker. Give up this idolatry of fashion, or give up heaven. Oh, men and women, give up the idolatry of fashion. The rivalries and the competitions of such a life are a stupendous wretchedness. You will always find some one with brighter array, and with more palatial residence, and with lavender kid glove that makes a tighter fit. And if you buy this thing, and wear it you will wish you had bought something else. The frets of such a life will bring the crows feet to your temples before they are due, and when you come to die, you will have

A MISERABLE TIME.

I have seen men and women of fashion die, and I never saw one of them die well. The trappings off, there they lay on the tumbled pillow, and there were just two things that bothered them—a wasted life and a coming eternity. I could not pacify them, for their bodies, minds, and souls had been exhausted in the worship of fashion, and they could not appreciate the Gospel. When I knelt by their bedside they were mumbling out their regrets and saying, "O God ! O God !" The garment hung up in the wardrobe, never again to be seen by them. Their God cast them off. Without an exception as far as my memory serves me, they died without hope, went into eternity unprepared. The two most ghastly death beds on earth are the one where a man dies of delerium tremens and the other where a woman dies after having sacrificed all her faculties of body, mind, and soul in the worship of fashion. My friends, we must appear in judgment to answer for what he have worn on our bodies as well as for what repentance we have exercised with our souls. Christ announced who would make up the royal family of heaven when He said, "Whosoever doth the will of God, the same is my brother, my sister, my mother."

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success ; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

JOSEPH GRIFFIN'S

BOOT AND SHOE STORE.

My Boot and Shoe Store opposite the Oriental Hotel was recently destroyed by fire—set by incendiaries—the greater portion of my stock was saved, and I am again re-established in business,

Two Doors West of my Old Stand, on Hunter Street, where I shall be happy to meet again all my friends, old and new. All the stock saved from the late fire (as good as new) I shall sell below cost to make room for the New Fall and Winter Stock ordered.

NOW IS YOUR TIME TO BUY CHEAP BOOTS

as I positively intend to do as I advertise. As I shall run the old stock off as quickly as possible, parties requiring Boots should call at once and secure first choice.

My Order Department is as complete as ever. Leave your orders. I guarantee satisfaction.

A Word for the Cranks.

Cranks, my son? says Bob Burdette. The world is full of them. What would we do were it not for the cranks? How slowly the tired old world would move did not the cranks keep it rushing along. Columbus was a crank on the subject of American discovery and circumnavigation and at last he met the fate of most cranks, was thrown into prison, and died in poverty and disgrace. Greatly venerated now? Oh, yes, Telemachus, we usually esteem a crank most profoundly after we starve him to death. Harvey was a crank on the subject of the circulation of the blood; Galileo was an astronomical crank; Fulton was a crank on the subject of steam navigation; Morse was a telegraph crank; all the old abolitionists were cranks. The Pilgrim fathers were cranks; John Bunyan was a crank; any man who doesn't think as you do, my son is a crank. And by and by the crank you despise will have his name in every man's mouth, and a half-completed monument to his memory crumbling down in a dozen cities, while nobody outside of your native village will know that you ever lived. Deal gently with the crank, my boy. Of course some cranks are crankier than others, but do you be very slow to sneer at a man because he knows only one thing and you can't understand him. A crank, Telemachus, is a thing that turns something, it makes the wheels go around, it insures progress. True, it turns the same wheel all the same time, and it can't do anything else, but that's what keeps the ship going ahead. The thing that goes in for variety, versatility, that changes its positions a hundred time a day, that is no crank; that is the weather-vane, my son. What? You nevertheless thank heaven you are not a crank? Don't do that, my son. Maybe you couldn't be a crank, if you would. Heaven is not very particular when it wants a weather-vane; almost any man will do for that. But when it wants a crank, my boy, it looks about very carefully for the best man in the community.

A Selfish Skye.

"Nell" is a funny little dog. Her intelligence is remarkable. A nod of the head indicates that she may go out, and her joy is beyond bounds. Standing up on her hind legs, then scampering across the room and into the hallway, she seems to be full of life. Her eyes fairly glisten with delight. But when the head is shaken at her, a sad look comes over poor Nell. She fairly droops, and goes to herself in meek humility. Nell is fond of boiled chicken; she will leave the tenderest out of a porter-house steak for a chicken bone and over her dainty food she shows a selfishness almost human. Carrying her bit of chicken under the desk she will place it carefully out of ordinary reach, and watch it as a miser watches his gold. Twenty times in the afternoon she goes and smells in a dainty way her coveted morsel, but takes no bite at it. If a strange dog comes in outside of the desk, she watches him with pointed ears erect as she peers through the picket gate. But when a dog of any kind of size steps one foot inside the gate she flies to her hidden store and devours it instantly. Every act of this little Skye, every motion, and the eagerness she manifests to eat up every scrap of the chicken in the presence of the strange dog, tells of a deep-seated selfishness. She would not share one bit of that chicken with another dog if she knew he was starving. Yet Nell has many good qualities, and her intelligence is wonderful.—Hartford Courant.

The part of Pompeii where the present excavations are going on has revealed some most beautifully painted pictures and walls, some of which are very vivid in color; but almost every house in this quarter was visited by the owners themselves immediately after the eruption, and they, by mining through, took away almost every valuable thing, 1,800 years ago. The upper stories of the houses of Pompeii cropped out above the strata of pumice stone, ashes and mud deposited on that sad day in '79, A. D., and the inhabitants could very easily sink a shaft and run regularly through the walls, searching, though in the dark, after the treasure, which, generally speaking, would be found on the ground-floor, as all that was above would have been crushed by the superincumbent mass of pumice stone and

LOVE'S SWEET STORY.

Among the golden corn sheaves,
The poppies blushed to hear,
All hushed to light whispering,
A dreaming [illegible]
The bindings where they nodded,
As through the sheaves they sped,
Tip tail-ends stirred and rustled
To see the pair go by.

Among the golden corn sheaves,
The poppies blushed to hear,
The love words spoken only,
For one fair lady's ear.
The light breeze, gently sighing,
Caught from the sea afar,
And o'er the lovers gleaming,
Looked down the evening star.

Among the golden corn sheaves,
At twilight's witching hour—
Ah, happy, hopeful dream time,
When youth is in its flower,
When e'en love's sweet story,
By youthful lips is told—
The story ne'er forgotten,
Though youth grow gray and old.

Mis Were Possible

To get the testimony of the multitude who have used the Shaker Blood Syrup for spring debility, langour, lassitude, and that general feeling of stupidity, weariness and exhaustion which every one feels during this season we should be able to present to our readers such an overwhelming mass of commendatory messages, that the few who have not tried it would do so at once. It is a positive fact, and has been so effectually demonstrated that no one to-day denies it, that the Shaker Blood Syrup contains more real medicinal value than any article now before the public. Hundreds, in spite of their prejudices, are taking the Shaker Blood Syrup, and now honestly declare it to be the best medicine ever offered to the public; and they are quite right, and this sentiment must and will extend just as far as people will allow themselves to be influenced by facts and by the testimony of those people who have tried it and know whereof they speak. In presenting The Shaker Blood Syrup to the public we suffer, because people have been so often humbugged by the weak decoctions with which the country is filled. It is often difficult to make people believe what an advertisement says, because of the evil influence produced by those unreliable, worthless preparations It is true that honest people are constantly suffering from the effects of dishonesty, and this will probably always be so but it does not require any remarkable ability to see how the real worth of The Shaker Blood Syrup impresses itself upon people. Our reputation rests upon the value of this medicine, and we are proud of the record it is making. For sale by Ormond & Walsh, Druggists.

AN OLD PROVERB.

They were in the moonlight, and the solemn witchery of the hour had touched him, but it hadn't quite reached her.

'My dear Miss Annie,' he gurgled, 'do you know that I love you better than anything else in the world.?'

'You have told me so, Mr. Softhead,' she answered, in a tone of doubt.

'And do you believe me?'

'Well I suppose I have to. They say, you know, that children and fools, tell the truth, and you are no child, Mr. Softhead.'

A cloud passed over the moon, and the young man escaped in the darkness.

The great results which have attended the regular use of Quinine Wine, by people of delicate constitution and those affected with a general prostration of the system, speak more than all the words that we can say in its behalf. This article is a true medicine and a life-giving principle—a perfect renovator of the whole system—invigorating at the same time both body and mind. Its medical properties are a febrifuge tonic and anti-periodic. Small doses, frequently repeated, strengthen the pulse, create an appetite, enable you to obtain refreshing sleep, and to feel and know that every fibre and tissue of your system is being braced and renovated. In the fine Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, we have the exact tonic required, and to persons of weak and nervous constitutions we would say, never be without a bottle in the house. It is sold by all druggists.

VISITING THE HOLY LAND.

An Ayrshire farmer met a country rector who had been two years absent on travel. 'Mr. Rector,' said the farmer, 'you've been to the Holy Land, I hear?' 'I have, John, and got safe back, you see.' 'Well said John, 'I often thought I'd like to hear about the spot. It's a fine country I suppose' 'Well said the rector, 'I saw Lebanon, and Jerusalem, and the Twelve Palm Trees, and the wells of water on the Great Desert; and we went across the Jordan and up to Mount——' 'Excuse me interruptin' you, Mr. Rector,' said the farmer, 'but if it be a fair question, hoo were turnips looking out yonder?

A Popular Fallacy.

Many people think that Rheumatism cannot be cured. It is caused by a bad state of the blood which deposits poisonous matter in the joints and muscles, causing lameness, stiffness and swelling of the joints and excruciating pains. Kidney-Wort will certainly effect a cure. It acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels, stimulating them to a healthy action, purifies and enriches the blood and eliminates the poison from the system. Go to the nearest druggist, buy Kidney-Wort and be cured.

SURE TO BE A POLITICIAN.

A little boy and girl playing in the yard. The girl finds an apple under a tree, and with an exclamation of delight, begins to eat it.

"Hold on," said the boy. "Throw it away. The colwy is comin', an if you eat that apple you will be too sick, an you can't talk, an' the doctor will come an' give you some bad medicine an' then you will die."

The girl throws the apple down, and the boy, snatching it up, begins to eat it.

"Don't the girl cries. Won't it kill you too?"

"No," says the boy, munching the fruit. "It won't kill boys. It's only after little girls. Boys don't have colwy.

That youngster will be a great politician.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan.' writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purifies the blood and regulates the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctors' bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor & MacDonald.

STARTED WITH A LUCKY NUMBER.

"I hear Gail Fisher who left here a few months ago, is married and living in Indianapolis. Did he marry well!"

"Oh, yes; he married well. He was well when he married."

"No joking. I mean did he get a good start by marrying?

"Oh, yes; he got a good start—he married a widow with seven children.

A Live Fly Catcher.

"Of what earthly use is a toad?" a naturalist was asked.

"It is a very useful animal about the house. There isn't a better fly catcher. I trained a toad once and kept it in my room. Its place was on the window bench, and my diversion was to see it catch flies. If riflemen could aim as it does with its tongue, they would be invincible. Its aim is as unerring as its glance. Its tongue is made so that it can shoot it out nearly two inches. It is so sharp that it spears a fly as upon the point of a needle, and it is done as quick as a man can wink. It requires very great attention to see the operation."

"How do they live in the winter?"

"Toads crawl into a crack in the earth or bury themselves in the mud. There are numerous stories about the time they can live without food or air. Mr. Buckland's experiments showed that they could live two years, so that we must conclude that the legend of the discovery in the bowels of the earth of toads that possibly lived before Noah are misleading. They certainly get a modicum of air in their hiding places. There is no trustworthy account of a live geological toad. Toads are found in stones, but they are merely housed up in a solid coat of sun-baked clay, which on the exterior seems as hard as a stone, but which, in all probability, contains a fissure invisible to the naked eye, through which it gets air and drink.

"The toad is sometimes found concealed in a knot of a tree, where it has been encased in bark; but here, too, it is not wholly locked up from air. It has the power of contracting its body, and swelling it to twice its natural size. It certainly can live in a greater state of torpidity than almost any other animal, and, being born a tadpole, it is liable to be carried by the water to very extraordinary places."

"Does it have any cry?"

"Yes; curiously enough, it has a cry that sounds like an infant screaming under a pillow. Its utterance is stragely human, but it comes forth only when it is injured or frightened.—New York Sun.

How to Get a Start.

"It requires quite a long time for a man to get a start in the world," said an old fellow, "but some of the most colossal fortunes have been built on loans advanced by friends. When I married I had to borrow money with which to pay for my license. That was shortly before I came to this town."

"I suppose you are well situated now," remarked a bystander.

"Hardly as well as I might be; still, if business should be prosperous this year, I think that by close economy I can refund the money which I borrowed to pay for my license."—Arkansaw Traveler.

And also all and singular that part of

in the said Town of Peterborough, more particularly described as follows, viz:—Commencing at the north-west corner of said lot No. 7, thence southerly along Aylmer Street, 55 feet; thence easterly across the said lot No. 7, to the eastern limit thereof; thence northerly along the said limit 55 feet to the north east corner of said lot; thence west to the place of beginning, and known as the Baptist Church property.

The following are the terms and conditions of sale:—

1.—No person shall advance less than $20 at any bidding under $500, nor less than $50 at any bidding over $500, and no person shall retract his bidding.

2.—The trustees shall not be obliged to complete or carry a sale into effect, if in their judgment an adequate price is not offered for the land, but subject to these conditions the highest bidder shall be the purchaser.

3.—The purchaser to pay ten per cent of the purchase money at time of sale, and the balance in 30 days without interest. The deposit to be returned to the purchaser within two weeks from the time of sale, if the trustees resolve not to complete or carry the sale into effect; otherwise the trustees to be deemed to accept the offer of the purchaser.

4.—The purchaser shall not be entitled to the production of any title deeds other than such as are in the hands of the trustees.

5.—If the purchaser fails to comply with the conditions aforesaid, or any of them, the deposit and all other payments made thereon shall be forfeited, and the premises may be re-sold, and the deficiency, if any, by such re-sale, together with all charges attending the same, or occasioned by the defaulter, are to be made good by the defaulter.

25 CENTS will get you a copy of "OUR JOSHUA AS A REPORTER," and the person who discovers the largest number of typographical errors in the first three chapters and will forward the list to the undersigned before 1st Oct. will receive an OIL PAINTING size 22 x 26 in. 5 in. gilt frame, and the two who find the next largest number will each receive OIL PAINTINGS size 18 x 24 in. heavily framed. The book is just what every one having anything to do with newspaper work should have. The Scottish American Journal, New York, says of it:—

"Our Joshua as a Reporter" is a new book by the author of "Brother Jonathan Sketches." It is a humourous description of the trials and troubles inherent to a newspaper office, and follows the hero from the time he enters as a novice until he becomes a full fledged reporter Many of the incidents and are intensely amusing, and the work is evidently written by one who is thoroughly acquainted with the practical details of a newspaper office. Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, SEPT. 25, 1884.

To Whom the Credit Belongs.

In order to discredit Hon. Mr. Mowat and his victory on the Boundary Award matter, the Tory journals assert that the credit in the matter is due to Sir John and Mr. Meredith. The latter's claims are easily disposed of, he has been merely the pliant tool of Sir John in the matter—has occupied the position of a mere cypher, a spineless automaton. Sir John has always been hostile to Ontario's claim in the matter. He claimed on behalf of the Dominion, nearly half the territory awarded by the Privy Council. He declared, so great was his friendship for this province, that Mr. Mowat, representing Ontario by choice of the people—Mowat, "that little tyrant," should not get one acre of land, not one stick of timber, nor a pound of minerals, from the disputed territory, since declared to be ours. Mr. Mowat never refused to refer the matter to the Privy Council, which Sir John professed to be so anxious to do; but he insisted on conditions that would secure the rights of the Province in the meantime. When Mr. Mowat, on behalf of Ontario, had agreed with Manitoba to submit the case of the western boundaries to the Privy Council, he urged Sir John to agree to a reference of the whole question. Sir John assented to having this case presented, and even sent over counsel to England, Mr. Christopher Robinson, and Mr. Hugh McMahon, to represent the Dominion, but, at the last moment, he backed out, and declined to submit the case as agreed upon. Note Sir John's anxiety. As he and his organs pretend he was anxious for a dozen years to submit the dispute to the Privy Council, but when it came to the point, and after agreeing to submit the matter of the disputed boundary to that tribunal, he backed out and refused to do so. How does this double dealing which looks very much like characteristic trickery, contrast with Mr. Mowat's action? The very first chance Mr, Mowat got to submit the question in a shape which he thought secured interim protection to Ontario's rights, he did go. And although Sir John, after agreeing, backed out at the last moment, Mr. Mowat went on and has secured the great triumph of a decision which doubles the territory of this Province. How much of the credit is due to Sir John of securing a decision of the Judicial committee of the Privy Council in favor of Ontario's claim?

South Renfrew.

Dr. Dowling, of South Renfrew, as one of the instruments in exposing the Bunting conspiracy, to bribe a government out of power, has incurred the bitter enmity of the Mail and the baser Tories. Dr. Dowling was elected in the general elections in 1882, by a majority of 100. His election was protested, and he was unseated on the grounds that he had committed an illegal act in sanctioning the payment of the travelling expenses of voters, but as Chancellor Boyd, one of the judges, observes:

"Without any corrupt intent, and in ignorance, which was involuntary and excusable, under a belief that so long as he did not personally bear or pay the said expenses, it was not illegal, and under the further belief that the said voters (Dr. Dowling's employes) were bound or willing to repay the said expenses or allow them to be deducted from their wages."

Chancellor Boyd held that Dr. Dowling was not disqualified, but Justice Cameron held that he was disqualified. Dr. Dowling was again a candidate and was again elected by a majority of 400, an increase of 300 over his former majority. This election was again protested, and the judges held that as he was disqualified at the time of his last election, he could not have been elected legally. His seat was therefore declared vacant on this ground, although there was not a particle of evidence to show that an illegal act had been committed during the contest by Dr. Dowling, or his agents. Dr. Dowling will again be returned for South Renfrew, and no doubt, by a further increased majority. The electors have once resented the Tory persecution with which Dr. Dowling has been assailed, and they will do so again so emphatically that even the Mail will perceive that it is overshooting the mark.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie.

Though Hon. Alex. Mackenzie was too honest to stoop to a humbugging "policy" to retain power, and though the people in a moment of haste—to be repented of at leisure—discarded him, yet he still commands the respect of even his opponents and the "whirligig of time brings about its revenges." Especially is his policy in regard to the Canadian Pacific Railway justified by subsequent events. It was due to him that Winnipeg is the city she is to-day. Mr. Mackenzie gave her the only railway connection (the Pembina Branch) with the world, she has enjoyed for five years after he left office, and it is solely owing to the carrying out of his plans and surveys, that Winnipeg has now a competing route. In spite of the ridicule of Mr. Mackenzie's selection, the Railway company has been forced to adopt the much abused Kammistiquia harbour, and the use of steamers for transportation, and the Tory government are "eating crow" in dredging out the only obstacle to its being the best harbour on the lakes—the bar at its mouth. Mr. Mackenzie, by an order in Council, adopted the Fraser river route to Port Moody. This order was cancelled by the Tory government but after a year and a half of active effort in favour of some other route, they were compelled to fall back upon the terminus Mr. Mackenzie had selected. Thus the wisdom, carefulness and prudence of Hon. Mr. Mackenzie have been vindicated—by his enemies—and in the most practical way, too, by adopting the very recommendations they in their party blindness denounced. Hon. Mr. Mackenzie is more highly favoured than most men, who have to wait for posterity to vindicate their actions; but in the present generation, he has had his administrative and executive wisdom accredited by his most bitter enemies, for the logic of facts was against them—Hon. Mr. Mackenzie was right—he acted with honest intentions.

Singing Small.

The Tories are heart-broken at the defeat of Sir John on the Boundary business and filled with gall at the way in which Ontario honored Mr. Mowat on Tuesday last. They were so stunned at the unexampled outburst of loyal admiration of the Premier that all they can do is to try to belittle the affair and and misrepresent the attendance. The Mail asserts that the number in the procession was 3,067—magnanimously ignoring fractions. The Globe places the numbers, after careful consideration, at over 12,000. It is galling to the Tory sheets to see and feel that not only are the facts against them, but the people, as they have shown in their great tribute to Mr. Mowat, are also against them.

Hon. Mr. Mowat's Speech.

In last issue we devoted considerable space to a report of the grand demonstration held in Toronto in honour of Ontario's Champion, Hon. Mr. Mowat. This week we give a full report of his park speech. We make no apology in either case. As the successful champion of Ontario's rights and her firmest friend, he was worthy of the honor, and his comprehensive remarks on the subject of his struggle for the people's rights is certainly worthy of record. His speech is well-worthy the most careful and attentive perusal—moderate in tone, truthful in narration, and a clear, lucid exposition of the situation.

Editorial Notes.

American wheat crops are variously estimated at from 520,000,000 bushels to 550,000,000 bushels, stocks on hand left over about one-third less than last year. The United States consumption is about half the above quantity.

The veteran Joe Rymal, at the Mowat demonstration in Toronto, referred to Mr. Wm. H. Meredith as a "weak sister," and in doing so unknowingly bore testimony to the truth of the saying that "history repeats itself." In his school-boy days the leader of the Ontario Opposition was known as "Sissy" Meredith.

Attorney-General Miller, on his return from England on his bootless Boundary trip, was honored with a banquet at Winnipeg. Cold "crow" was the piece de resistance of the menu. The same dish will be served up at the banquet the Tories are going to give Sir John as an "antidote" to the poison (to them) of the Mowat demonstration.

Sir John Macdonald attended the meeting of the British Association at Montreal, and, of course, was asked to speak. An exchange is mean enough to report that when Sir John was apologizing to the Association for his lack of information on scientific subjects, a young urchin in the audience sang out, "How are you on constitutional law?" Sir John is now said to be yearning for an opportunity to "gerrymander that boy."

We Canadians are yearly winning higher respect from the Old Country. Our marksmen down them at Wimbeldon. Our oarsmen give their best scullers their back-wash, and the other day, at Toronto, a Canadian artillery team defeated a picked English team, both at the target and at the ordinance shifting contest. The British scientists will carry back a high opinion of our country, and altogether Canada is rapidly becoming known and appreciated.

Those blatant Tories and those self-styled "Reformers," who howled so loudly because Hon. Mr. Mowat had appointed a Roman Catholic as Registrar of Peterborough, are now asked, if they have any indignation left, to give us a taste of it on the appointment of John O'Connor, also a Roman Catholic, to the bench of the Superior Court. The situation is, however, modified by the fact that in the first appointment the appointee was qualified to fill the position, while in the other—well, O'Connor steps into the shoes of Chief Justice Hagarty. Shade of Jeffries, commend us to the contrast!

"It is absurd to allege that young men can have any especial predilection for a politician (Mr. Mowat) who does nothing for them in the present, and offers them nothing in the future.—Review.

The young men of Ontario do not regard Mr. Mowat as a politician who has done nothing for them. They recollect that he gave the franchise to farmers sons, and conferred the franchise on income voters in towns. Of course the Review will argue that this amounts to little. It amounts to just this much; it shows that no dependence can be placed in the truth of our contemporary's assertions on political matters, when falsehood direct will serve its evil ends better.

No less than 717,517 inhabitants of the United States were born in Canada; and 930,347 had fathers who were born in Canada, while 931,408 had mothers who came from the same country. Under proper government this huge mass of people would have remained in Canada; but then the Tory organs tell us that there have been twenty years of almost uninterrupted Tory rule. It certainly does look like it!

The trial of the protest against the election of D. W. Allison, Esq., M. P. for Lennox, takes place on Nov. 11th. Mr. Prayn, the defeated candidate and petitioner, though he entered the protest with a great flourish of trumpets, is anything but anxious for the trial to take place; he has tried in vain to get the judges to postpone the case for six months, but the application was refused. He has grave fears, not only that he cannot make his charges stick, but that his own party tactics will be exposed. Hence his desire for delay and postponement of the evil day.

"The Peterborough Review has had a new spasm of the old Boundary Award agony with this result:

"The highest Court of the realm has declared that the arbitrators were appointed without proper authority, and that they exceeded their instructions, that their award was irregular and invalid."

There are three distinct statements in this deliverance, and each is notoriously and wilfully untrue. There is nothing clever about the performance. It is simply naked misrepresentations without regard for decency or sign of ability."

Our readers will see by the above from the Globe, that the reputation of the Review for political mendacity and dishonesty, is extending even beyond Peterborough, Lindsay, Cobourg and Port Hope.

Ladies remember you can not only get your Dress Goods right but the latest style of trimmings to match at Turnbull's.

WALKER'S LOAD LIFTER.

A FEW WORDS IN ITS PRAISE.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I desire to make use of a short space in the columns of your valuable paper to make known to my brother farmers the value of P. G. Walker's patent load lifter. Having used one this season, I consider that no farmer can afford to be without it; with the aid of one horse the load is raised to the top of the barn, enabling the man on the load to fork the sheaves well into the mow. You can perceive there will be the saving of at least one man in the mow, besides the advantage of forking down, compared with forking up. There was one slight objection in large barns, that was, the load raised opposite the centre of the mow, and in building each half of the mow separate, as is frequently done, the load had to be forked back to the end. Now, Mr. Walker has overcome that objection, by improving his invention into what might properly be called a double-lifter, which I have tried in my barn, and pronounce it perfection, at an extra cost not exceeding five dollars. With the improvement you can raise the load opposite each half of the mow as you desire, enabling the man on the load to fork directly into the mow. I intend to have two more erected for next season, such is my opinion of our neighbour's invention.

Mr. Walker is now prepared to sell county or township rights, and I strongly recommend his invention to any person wishing to engage in a business that will recommend itself, for they must come into general use.

THOMAS BLEZARD, M.P.P.

Villiers, Sept. 6th.

We, the undersigned, are satisfied that Mr. T. Blezard did not say too much about the lifter, as we are all satisfied that we have got justice, and have had no trouble with the machines.

It is with great pleasure I write a few lines, to think I have had so good luck as to build 18 of those machines and to do the work for one season and the 18 did not require 5 cents to pay all repairs. Who has had better luck with a new machine? As I am now preparing for 1885, I will try and have plenty, as I could have sold 10 or 12 more, but I couldn't get them made. Any person wishing one of my Load Lifters can send me a card and I will answer it. I will have one on exhibition at the Keene Fair, and perhaps at Norwood and Lakefield. The model will be half of its full size. This patent is for sale or in parts.

P. G. WALKER,
Westwood, Ont

I have also great pleasure in certifying to the great value I place on Mr. Walker's Load Lifter. It is a capital machine, and no farmer should be without it.

WALTER SCOTT.

Mr. Walker's Load-Lifter is just what every farmer requires. Saves time, labour and money. I would not be without mine for five times its cost. It is simple, durable, and easy to be worked. Saves its cost in two weeks in harvest time. I purpose having two more erected early in the spring.

New Insurance Business.

Mr. Geo. A. Morrison and Mr. A. Wilson, have opened an insurance office in the rear part of Sailsbury & Co's. bookstore, where they intend carrying on an insurance business in all its branches. Both gentlemen are pushing and energetic men, and representing, as they do, good reliable companies, the public will find that business transactions with them in their line will be in every way satisfactory.

When symptons of malaria appear in any form, take Ayer's Ague Cure at once, to prevent the development of the disease, and continue until health is restored, as it surely will be by the use of this remedy. A cure is warranted in every instance.

The population of the Congo Valley is placed by Mr. Stanley at fifty millions of people. What an opening for commerce lies there? Already the imports and exports of the district amount to $10,000,000 annually, of which Britain takes $3,000,000 for her exports alone.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet. 18-tf

PERSONAL.

Mr. J. H. Burnham has returned home from a lengthened visit to England.

Mr. Kelly, of London, Ont., is relieving Mr. G. A. Smith, teller of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Commerce, while the latter is taking his holidays.

The Winnipeg Times of Sept. 16th, says: "Dr. Barnardo, of London, England, who, with his secretary, arrived here from the east on Sunday, left for the Rockies this morning. He is about establishing an industrial farm on which to train young English lads and men. He will prospect the best townships still vacant, and will probably soon have decided in the exact locality in which to start. He was a guest at the Queen's during his stay.

Professor Wm. Lant Carpenter, B.A., B. Sc., F.C.S., of London, England, the celebrated chemist, was in town two or three days, leaving on Tuesday morning. He was at the Oriental Hotel, and while there he analyzed two or three specimens of water taken from Toronto Bay. On the fact becoming known that the learned Professor had been rash enough to open a bottle of Toronto Bay water in the house, the hotel was thoroughly disinfected, and so prompt and complete were the measures taken, that there is no fear of an epidemic of typhoid fever or other disease breaking out in town. Prof. Carpenter, not having having his worldly affairs in order—his will made, etc., declined to risk his life by making an analysis of the water of the Hunter street sewer, where it empties into the George street sewer at McClelland's corner.

Sale of Real Estate

IN ASHBURNHAM.

I have received instructions from

MR. C. YOUNG, Merchant,

To offer for sale by Public Auction, on Thursday, 2nd Oct., 1884

on the premises, that valuable property situated on Elizabeth Street, in the Village of Ashburnham, extending 56 feet on main street, running back 195 feet. The buildings are red brick with white brick front. The hotel contains 30 rooms, with a frontage of 43 feet, three storeys in height, with good cellar kitchen, sheds and out buildings, with good well in yard, and hard and soft water in kitchen. The yard is large, and the stable has room for 20 horses, with driving sheds.

—ALSO—

with white brick front, 18x50, with good cellar and dwelling house attached. The dwelling contains 6 rooms, with all necessary conveniences, with separate stable and driving sheds from hotel property.

The above property offers a rare chance to a live business man, and will be sold, as Mr. Young is giving up business owing to ill health, and is now selling off his large stock of Groceries, Wines and Liquors at cost, to enable him to have the stock cleared off by the date of sale.

TERMS.—Ten per cent of the purchase money to be paid down at time of sale, and sufficient to make one half the amount to be paid within 14 days from date of sale, when the deeds will be given. The balance may remain on the property, at the option of the purchaser, for a term of years to be agreed upon.

There will be a reserved bid.

The hotel is leased for $300 a year, with three and a half years yet to run.

The store and dwelling can be readily leased at $250 a year. A good profitable business is being done. The sales for the last five years being over $20,000 a year.

Sale to Commence at Two o'clock on the premises.

Further particulars may be obtained from MR. C. YOUNG, on the premises, or from

1884 FALL CIRCULAR 1884

—OF THE—

Boot and Shoe Emporium

The subscriber wishes to return his thanks to his numerous customers and the public generally, for the patronage bestowed on him during his two years business amongst them, and hopes by careful attention during the coming season, to merit a continuance of their favors. My object in the future shall be as in the past, to give the best satisfaction possible, and place the Newest Goods to be had before the public at the lowest possible prices.

OUR FALL STOCK is now daily arriving, and in a few days will be fully complete, when we will be most happy to show goods and quote prices to intending purchasers.

Yours Respectfully,

J. McALEER,

BOOT AND SHOE EMPORIUM, GEORGE STREET, PETERBOROUGH.

IT PAYS WELL TO BUY GOOD!

You have heard of the smartness of the old lady's sons. She shut them up in a room together, and they both made their fortunes trading jack-knives. You remember the joke and you get the idea.

On the edge of the Fall Season's Trade, we part to say a something to you about business—your business of buying what you need—and now is as good a time as any.

This season we come before you as Direct Importers. Is there anything in that for us? Is there anything in that for you?

Read on a little further and we'll tell you.

Our buyer, when in England, found Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers, both holding great lots of almost everything in our trade; holding—not for better prices—but for buyers. Buyers were scarce. There was stagnation.

Now our buyer bought freely, judiciously, and bought well. He bought good.

We were not burdened with goods. We had the requisite outlet in our large trade to handle a directly imported stock. Our buyer bought to undersell the retail market here and make a profit.

Our sales are going to be more—not less—than last year, for we adapt our buying and selling to the times we are in.

We offer you a stock bought to sell. This we know, and it's for you to prove it.

We shall not try here to enumerate the lines of goods in which we can offer you exceptional good value. You'll hear of them presently. We'll finish our business talk by saying:—

Our Stores are full of Goods—our own importations—and our prices are what our view of the opportunity makes them. We won't ask you to buy the things of fashion. It's a time for getting almost all the substantial staple things to wear, and to keep home with.

It's a time for you to make your money by your spending of it.

It's a time for caution, but the caution is to be shown in choosing where and what you buy, and the bargains you make.

And surely when by our trade policy the bottom is reached in goods, and we offer to you the top of the purchasing power of money, you'll neglect your own interests if you fail to buy from us.

T. DOLAN & CO.

Nos. 1 and 2 Cluxton's Block.

It will be to your Interest to look through my Beautiful Stock if you want a NEW SUIT or a Fall Overcoat.

My new Cutter, Mr. R. G. Kilpatrick, will be pleased to take your measure, and give you the Latest Cut and Fit now worn in the cities.

H. LeBRUN.

LADY ELECTORS.

LIST OF FEMALE FRANCHISE-HOLDERS.

The lords of creation have always been wont to scout the importance of the ballot wielded by the white hand of woman. Now that ladies have been endowed by Mr. Mowat with the Franchise—in municipal and school elections—man will perhaps hold their political influence in higher respect. The feminine franchise power in Peterborough is numerically a strong card. If the lady electors choose to unite on any question, they will hold the balance of power. It would hardly be thought that there are in Peterborough 224 ladies entitled to wield the ballot next January, but such is the case, and here are their names—by wards:

Methodist Educational Interests.

Annual Educational Meeting.

On Sunday and Monday the annual educational services in the interest of the Methodist Church were held in the George-street Methodist Church. On Sunday morning Rev. Dr. Jacques, Principal of Albert College, Belleville, preached to an overflowing audience an eloquent and impressive sermon from the words contained in the 7th verse of the 3rd chapter II. Timothy. In the evening the large church was crowded in every corner to listen to a discourse from Rev. Dr. Douglass, Principal of the Methodist Theological College, Montreal. Dr. Douglass took for his text the first four verses of the 42nd chapter of Isaiah, and preached therefrom a sermon, which for depth and sublimity, of thought, beauty of language, aptness of illustration and fervent zeal, has seldom been equalled in a Peterborough pulpit.

MONDAY'S MEETING.

On Monday evening the "Educational meeting proper was held. George A. Cox, Esq., occupied the chair and delivered a neat and practical speech. D. W. Dumble, Esq., also made a telling speech, in his usual vigorous manner. He was followed by Dr. Jacques, whose logical, practical and convincing remarks and powerful appeals on behalf of the educational interests of the church, were listened to with the most marked attention. The address of Dr. Douglass was, like his sermons, full of beauty and fervour. It was studded with hard truths, while at the same time it abounded in eloquently-clothed imagery and passionate appeals on behalf of the work he was striving to aid.

A GENEROUS GIFT.

At the conclusion of Dr. Douglass' address, Mr. Cox rose and said that so deeply impressed and carried away was he with the moving eloquence of Dr. Douglass' speech that he knew no better or perhaps more acceptable way, of, at the time showing his gratitude and testifying to the effect of the speech, than by tendering to Dr. Douglass a cheque for $1,000 in aid of the funds of Montreal Theological College. This announcement was received with applause, but with no surprise, for Mr. Cox's frequent exhibitions of this kind of generosity are becoming delightfully common.

Collections were taken up at both Sunday services, and also at the Monday evening meeting, and these, with the subscriptions, amounted to the handsome sum of $210. These educational services were successful beyond any former ones.

LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

You must not expect a large budget of items from your correspondant this week, everything is so dull and quiet in the village and items from the surrounding country are just as scarce.

BURLEIGH LOCKS.

A train load of timber arrived in Lakefield last week from Millbrook, Garden Hill &c., for use in the construction of the dams in connection with the Burleigh Locks. It was unloaded here and rafted up, and is now being towed up to Burleigh. It almost seems like "bringing coal from Newcastle," to bring timber from the front and raft it up stream to the timber country, but the size and kind could not be obtained, so the contractors were forced to go elsewhere for it.

TAXES.

Our newely appointed collector Mr. W. McDonald will be on the war path next week. Our citizens are always glad to see "Weller" but he may expect to get the "cold shoulder" from many for the next month or two.

FORESTERS.

The regular meeting of Court Lakefield No. 43, C.O.F., will be held in the Foresters' Hall on Thursday evening the 25th. There are two or three initations and brethern from Peterboro and Apsley are expected to pay Court Lakefield a visit.

THE HARVEST HOME FESTIVAL.

We have been requested to publish the following letters concerning an episode of the above event;—

"MR. SHEEHY EXPLAINS."

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reference to the letter of Mr. Willan, which recently appeared in the Review, I beg to make an explanation. In justice to Mr. Byers I may state that I overheard a conversation between Mr. Byers and another gentleman, in which the former mentioned the fact that he had heard that a crowd from Millbrook was going to the festival for the avowed purpose of taking the lacrosse cup home with them. The mere fact of Mr. Byers mentioning the matter did not in the least deter a Peteborough team from going down and competing in the match. The true reason why we did not go down was because the Peterboroughs had at the time two matches on, with the Ottawas and Cobourgs, which were of far more importance to them than the match at Centreville.

I remain,
Yours, etc.,
JAMES SHEEHY."

Peterborough, Sept. 17th, 1884

"CORROBORATION."

To the Editor of the Review.

SIR,—In reference to Mr. Willan's letter, in regard to the South Monaghan Harvest Home Festival, I might say the statements which Mr. Willan made at the festival, to the effect that a team from Peterborough could not be obtained on account of a rumor that if they went they would get rough usage, was correct, as I personally asked two or three players to go, and that was the reason they gave why they would not. I do not know who originated the report, but such a report there was, and that was the explanation made to Mr. Willan why the team did not go.

Yours truly,
R. H. FORTYE."

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

When from loss of nerve power, or misusing the stomach, the digestive appartus fails to convert enough food into blood to maintain the daily balance of supply and waste, it is more physiological to furnish those elements in our food that contain the potential energy of the nervous system and material for repair, as in WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA, than to secure more work by over-driving the organic functions with stimulants and excitants.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Sept 24th, 1884

In grain there is more doing, without much change in prices. Spring wheat selling from 80c. to 82c. Fall wheat about the same. In barley receipts are increasing, prices ranging from 45c. to 60c. Nothing doing in peas; none offering. Oats are offering sparingly, selling from 33c. to 35c. On the Market, the attendance has been fair. Butter in rolls selling freely, from 20c. to 23c. Kegs, if good, would bring 17c. to 18c., for local use. Eggs in fair supply, selling mostly at 15c., some cases 16c. Chickens, 35c. to 45c. Potatoes slow, 40c. to 50c. per bag. Apples, 60c. to 75c. per bag, something extra would bring about $1.00. Tomatoes, 80c. to $1.00 per bushel, in fair supply. Fresh lamb, 7c. to 9c. Other commodities unchanged.

YOUNG'S POINT.

(From our own Correspondent.)

A grand pic-nic in aid of the funds of the Young's Point R. C. Church was held on Thursday last, and proved to be in every respect a complete success. Considering the lateness of the pic-nic season there was a large number—over 500—present. Abundant and excellent refreshments were provided, and the time was most pleasantly put in, with sports, games, etc., etc. Dancing was one of the leading features of the amusements, and was diligently patronized. Father Keating, who has charge of the Young's Point mission, was indefatigable in his endeavors, both before and during the pic-nic, to make it both pleasant and successful, and it was due to his kindness, fatherly oversight, and interest in the affair that it was so pleasant a success. The financial outcome was very gratifying, the amount netted being nearly two hundred dollars, although sixty dollars was the most that was expected.

BITTERS

Now is the time to cleanse the system of humors and Bad Blood. The use of Crowfoot Bitters in the spring will do this, and at the same time strengthen. Men, women children use it.

What the Druggist Says.

Dear Sirs,—The Crowfoot Bitters are selling rapidly here and giving remarkable satisfaction, as evidenced by the demand which is daily increasing.

PARKER & Co., Owen Sound.

It Has Made a New Man of Me.

I am the most agreeably surprised man in this section of the country. I don't think any one could feel worse physically than I did when I commenced taking Crowfoot Bitters. It has made a new man of me. It is the best dollar I ever spent. I could not eat or sleep, and felt miserably dejected. After taking Crowfoot I could eat, sleep, had a splendid appetite and felt first-rate. I believe it to be the best medicine of the period for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"Lord, yes," said Poynter, laughing; "I mind a goin' that're place when I was a boy. I was took to see the Lord Mayor at some kick up or other."

"Well, the station ain't fur from there—you can ask, you know, and get out at Victoria—you mind."

"Thank ye, mate, kindly." And Nat, having received full sailing directions how to reach the Mansion House, departed, and reached it in safety, and in a very short time, it seemed to him, found himself at Victoria.

"That there Underground," said he to himself, as he coughed the sulphur from his throat and felt he would have given a good deal for a puff of sea air, "may be a wonderful thing, but hanged if it ain't a chokin' me. Now, where's this 'ere place Mr. Arnold writted from last week. Young fool, what does he want in London, just to worrit Miss Erica. Oh, Lord! I wish I hadn't never known nothin' about all this."

With which earnest, but ungrammatically expressed wish, Nat slowly began the ascent of more steps, and asked the ticket-taker how he should get to Gilbert-street, Pimlico; at which the man eyed him all over and wondered what he wanted there, and directed him, in the gruff way which usually passes for politeness among "Underground" officials.

But on reaching the street and asking if Mr. Righton (that was the name Arnold had given him) was there, he was told that such a person had been there, but had left.

"Oh, three days gone," said the woman. "You seem put out; be you from far?"

"A long way," answered Nat, who was inwardly in a great passion with Mr. Arnold. He had not a notion how to get a lodging for the night, or bread to eat, for he had not a penny; he had spent his last coin on the railway fare. The woman seemed concerned at his timid looks, but he was not the sort of man to give money to; besides, how should she know he had none, and Nat was proud and would almost have died sooner than beg. He must do something for money, even if it was to keep "dark" about a murder.

"Never mind," he said, turning away, "I daresay I'll find him. You 'aven't an idea where he is, you're sure."

"Don't know more nor the man in the moon," answered the woman.—"Folks comes and goes in this 'ouse, and I never ask where they come from or goes to—'tain't my business—sorry for you," and she shut the door.

"What shall I do now?" said Nat to himself, as he traversed again the narrow, shady-looking streets. "I'll have it out o' that infernal young scamp. I've a mind to go straight off to Mr. St. John, and split on the lot. I would if it wasn't for Miss Erica; don't know how she'd take it. I wish I knew where she was—I'd give somethin' to see her purty face ag'in."

He sighed as he thought of that, and looked longingly towards a baker's shop he passed; he had tasted nothing since the early morning, and had been ill, and he was feeling faint and weary, and was angry and ill at ease too.

"That young scamp," he growled; "Miss Erica's to be unhappy along o' him. It's a gettin' late; the sun'll be down soon. Hullos! here's a park." He had walked some good way, and had come upon the Green Park from Grosvenor-place; the sight was refreshing to his eyes, and he had passed the night in worse places than a tolerably quiet park. He drank some water at a drinking-fountain near one of the gates, and entered. "I've some notion I've seen this 'ere afore," said he; "that be the duke's statter over there, I mind. Well, I can't go no further—I'm dead beat. Curse that scamp! I ain't goin' to starve for him."

It was a secluded path in which he found himself. There was no one in sight, and he was the solitary occupant of the bench on which he had sunk down, with a groan of mingled weariness and mental disturbance. But he had not long sat so, when a step, crunching the gravel on the pathway, caught his ear, and he looked up, with no idea that the gentleman coming swiftly towards him had anything to do with him or his concerns.

As he came closer, however, Nat bent forward with a change of face; the listless weariness left it, giving place to an eager scrutiny, and he half rose as the young man came by.

He, on his part, suddenly paused, and started back with an abrupt exclamation of "The devil!"

"Mr. Arnold, as I'm alive!" And it seemed as though, for a moment, Nat could get out no more.

But Arnold was not so much taken aback.

"What are you doing here, in the devil's name?" he said, roughly. A flush was on his face, his manner excited; he seemed to have had, Nat thought quickly, too much to drink; but he was not to be put aside like that, and resented the words and the tone.

"I came up to see you," he said, and rose up and faced the young man with a truculent air that somewhat daunted him for a moment. "I went to that there place you writed from, and you was gone. 'Twasn't fair that, Mr. Arnold."

"What d'you want me for?" said Arnold, impatiently. "I'm in a hurry, I can't stop now."

"Oh, but you've got to," replied Nat, coolly. "Look 'ere, sir, I don't want to be presumin' like; but I promised to keep dark about——"

"Yes, yes, I know; you needn't talk about it," interrupted Arnold, with a sudden flush and succeeding pallor. "You want money, I suppose; I haven't any for you. There—I have no more to say."

"Wait a bit, wait a bit, young master," Nat laid his hand on the other's arm. "Just you listen. I've been druv from place to place ever sin' I was fool enough and brute enough to give in to you and Miss Erica, and help you off. I've been sick all the winter, and can't get no work now, and I ain't nothin' to live on; that's just the size of it. Do you think I'm a goin' to keep your cursed secret if I starves for it? See you at the devil first, where you belong, a-makin' that there girl miserable, and away from her husband all along o' you. And look ye," Mr. Poynter waxed wroth, and seemed to have taken with his anger a new lease of strength, "I ain't a-goin' to bear it no more. If you don't give me money I won't keep dark no more, and missy can go back to her husband. Do you hear?"

Arnold had been partaking freely of wine, and his mind was off its balance. Enraged at Poynter's tone, he was forgetful of all that day in this man's power to do. His voice was hoarse with passion as he shook off his hand.

"Stand off," he said; "how dare you use such language to me? What do you mean, you scoundrel? Trying to wring money out of me. If you come pestering after me I'll give you in charge as an impostor."

A savage gleam shot into the man's eyes at these words. The tone was enough to arouse his passion; and that Arnold Murray, who would have been working in the hulks, or hung perhaps, but for him, should dare to "give him cheek," was enough to enrage him, especially as he had been brooding over his wrongs, and was feeling the gnawings of hunger through Arnold's fault.

But he was shrewd and cunning, as well as strong-tempered, and the moment Arnold began to "bluff it out," as he expressed it, he took a grim determination, to which he had been inclined before. It needed but the slightest spark of the match to fire this train.

"It's devilish hard, master," he said, sullenly, burning the white to knock Arnold down; "I've had neither bit nor sup across my lips this blessed day, and I don't know where to turn for a bed."

"Sleep in the park, or go to the workhouse, or the devil," was the savage and polite reply; "don't annoy me, that's all. I've had enough without you. I'll give you in charge if you are not off."

"I tell you what, Mr. Arnold," said Nat, "you've been 'aving too much drink. You aren't in your senses, like."

"I'm enough in my senses to know you're telling lies," retorted Arnold, losing all control. "I shan't give you money, and you had better take care what you do. You'll come in for a term, you know, for concealing crime. Ha! ha!" he laughed, with a sort of stupid triumph as Nat shrank back a little.

He knew better, but it suited him to seem cowed by the information, which Arnold knew also to be false.

"Ta, ta, my prince of beggars; you had better go back where you came from."

He turned on his heel with a loud laugh, and reeled slightly as he did so; but he steadied himself with an oath, and strode off over the grass at a pace which rendered it impossible for Nat to follow him.

But Nat's eyes followed the retreating form with a look so black, so full of hate and threat of coming danger, as would have made Arnold in his sober senses beg in abject fashion for forbearance, had he seen that look.

"So, so, my fine bantam cock," he muttered between his teeth, "when the wine's in the wit's out. You've just done for yourself now, cursed young idiot! Mr. St. John'll be fit to kill me, but I'll chance it. I'd do more nor that to spite you, and bring Miss Erica back. I'll go to him to-night, blessed if I won't. I can easy find out where he is. He paused a moment and knit his brows. "What'll missy say to me breakin' my word? but there—it's for some good, sure." He gave his head a decided nod, and an angry gleam shot from his eyes. "He shall know what 'tis to raise Nat Poynter's dander. He shall suffer for't. I ain't a-goin' to starve for him, blowed if I will." And he walked away with as brisk a pace as he could command.

CHAPTER XVI.

"NAT POYNTER'S CONFESSION."

Philip St. John had once more seen his wife—had spoken to her—had felt the touch of her hand on his, and that brief half-hour had broken up the foundations of his self-control—that case of granite it had taken, it seemed to him, a life-time of anguish to build up. And the strong love that had been so cruelly stabbed—not dormant, but still secondary to the burning sense of wounded honor and the old sting of injustice—this strong love, overwhelmed by other passions, woke anew to struggle desperately, to frame every prayer that she had pleaded, to seek reason for her flight, tenable or untenable, to find flaw in the chain of undenied evidence that condemned her.

She had knelt at his feet and lifted her eyes to his, eyes that could only mirror a stainless soul. Was it possible for guilt to wear such aspect? How fair she was, diademmed with sorrow! The music of her voice echoed back to him; he heard it day and night. The touch of her hand lay still on his. Ah, how wildly she had clung to him, how frantically besought only his mercy! And he had put her from him, and denied even that. He could endure that terrible strain of passionate emotion; it had been possible when to look on her was to bring back the sense of all so irrevocably lost; but now, in solitude, in silence, it seemed as though there must be some different reading to give to her conduct.

Again he traveled over all the fell evidence, not one tittle of which she had denied, simply avowing her innocence. There was no flaw in that. He knew that it was only sentiment, not reason, that pleaded for her so powerfully. He had never for one second thought to take the wife who had so trampled his honor under foot back to his heart, and forgiveness and belief in her faith went so hand in hand together that it seemed impossible to give the one without yielding the other. What was it then his heart strove for?

And for this mental question Philip St. John—so clear, so accustomed to know and to weigh motives for his actions—had no answer.

He was tossed by contending passions once more. He would have swept her from his very memory if that had been possible, yet yearned with a passionate longing to clasp her to his heart. And day by day such conflict warred in his soul.

A week had passed since he had seen Erica, and there had come no rest, mental or physical—not even the hollow surface-calm he had obtained before; even that was not left him. Work, of which he had more to do than he could get through, was no barrier to thought; for even in work there was ever the dark background, and the very effort to concentrate his thoughts on his work was continual pain, and at times even that power deserted him.

On the evening of Poynter's meeting with Arnold, he sat writing in his study—writing, or trying to write, for the pen dropped from his fingers often.

He rose up, and began pacing up and down the room, as though in movement he could find some relief; thought was less of torture than when he was still.

His own name came in, and Philip looked up as he paused.

"I am not busy, Andrews; what is it?" he said.

"If you please, sir, there's a man below wanting to see you; he's very urgent, and insisted that you'd see him. Poynter's his name, sir."

Philip drew a quick breath, and the blood flushed for a moment redly to his cheek. What did this man want with him? Some sharp, sudden, wild hope leapt up and sank again in that second's pause, before he said quietly:

"I will see him; let him come up."

The man bowed and retired, wondering within himself what possible business a rough-looking seafaring man could have with the famous literateur. He preceded the man upstairs, however, in decorous silence, inwardly a little amused at his gingerly way of treading on the thick, soft carpets, and the somewhat wondering looks he cast on the statues and flowers in the ante-room.

"This door," said Andrews, and Nat Poynter found himself standing in what seemed to him a magnificent chamber, and more than all, in the presence of Philip St. John.

It was with mingled emotions that the writer scanned, for a brief space, the form and features of this man, whom he knew to have had some complicity in Erica's flight, and who had nevertheless lied to him; he saw that Nat was terribly altered and aged, and that he looked haggard and wan. Was there in this haughty nature some pity for this evidence of suffering?

Before he could speak, Poynter, who had stood silent and with drooping form where the servant had left him, suddenly sank down into a chair with a groan, and Philip sprang forward.

"Give me food, for pity's sake," he muttered, putting his hand to his forehead, and looking up with uncertain gaze into the dark handsome face.—"I've been sick; I ain't had nothin' this day——"

There was wine in an adjoining room, and St. John poured out some and gave it to Nat, who swallowed it eagerly.

If in Philip's stern heart there had been one second's turning from giving to this man of his charity it had never reached the definiteness of distinct thought.

Implacable, vengeful in some things to almost a sinister fault, there was too much nobility of soul to harbor for an instant such a shrinking.

Poynter rallied almost directly, and half rose, but Philip put him back in the arm-chair and bade him sit still.

"I asks your pardon, sir," said Nat, humbly—he was quite subdued under the continued effects of sickness, want, remorse, and awe; "I didn't oughter 'ave sat down in your presence, but I was took like all sudden faint like. I've come to tell you summat, Mr. St. John."

He said the last words in a low voice, and when he had said them, drew a quick breath and leant back, as though he dreaded the effect his words might have on his hearer.

But Philip only folded his arms and said, quietly:

"Say on. I am willing to listen."

If again that fierce thrill of an almost impossible hope—born rather of his own longing than of any reason—flashed through him, he suppressed all signs of it under these measured tones.

Yet that ready acquiescence, that direct challenge to plunge into his story, embarrassed Poynter.

He had thought that Philip perhaps would at once have demanded to know whether what he had to tell him concerned Erica, thus breaking the ice for him.

It is always a difficulty for the uneducated mind to go straight to the point, and to find language proper to clothe that point in.

He glanced up furtively and twisted his hat round awkwardly, and at last said, slowly:

"It's about Miss Erica, sir."

Philip had known that, had sought to prepare himself to hear her name spoken, and to endure the subject touched on. Yet, when the name so sweet, so bitter to him, passed the man's lips, it fell on him with a shock that struck like an actual blow. His armor was not proof against that spear-thrust after all.

"Yes; go on," he said, and he shaded his forehead with his hand, setting himself to endurance.

"I'm sorry now, sir," Poynter said, dejectedly, I didn't tell you afore, but Miss Erica begged and prayed me to keep dark about Mr. Arnold."

"Who is that?" Philip interrupted.

"That's her cousin, sir—Mr. Arnold Murray—they was brought up like brother and sister. It was him she went off with to get him off safe. He always was a wild, bad scamp, Mr. St. John, broke his aunt's heart—Miss Erica's mother that was. He was a deal o' trouble to missy, bettin' and gamblin', and the like. She's paid his debts many a time. She telled me, sir, the very day you came to Grayle that she didn't dare tell you about him, 'cos as how you wouldn't let her help him no more, and he was such a disgrace too. He used to come over and she giv'd him mopey. He was down to Rington for them races with—with"—he stopped, clearing his throat, and then went on—"with your brother, sir. They both had bets on Fenton, and lost, then they quarrelled about the money 'cos Mr. Walter said the other had led him on to bet, which he did, sir; an' after supper at the Crown, they both went out, an'—Mr. Arnold was that Stephen Masters as killed your brother."

"Great Heaven!" broke from Philip's white lips, and his right hand was clenched till the blood was forced from the finger-nails. "I see it all—all." His voice sank to a whisper, and for an instant he bent his face down in uncontrollable emotion on the cold marble mantel-piece. "Oh, Erica, Erica, what had I done that you should fear me so?"

Only a brief moment of giving way, the next he had rallied with strong self-control, his proud spirit chafing that he had shown even this much.

"Go on," he said, and resumed his former attitude, while Poynter told him how that he also having come from the races, was crossing the woods when he heard voices in the pathway. He concealed himself for a little while not wishing to get into any fray, and thus saw Arnold and Walter; they were both angry, and at last Arnold struck the lad a blow that knocked him down before Nat could prevent it.

"He was dead, sir; it wasn't no use stoppin', and then Mr. Arnold begged me for Miss Erica's sake not to say nothin', and help him, and I shouldn't never want. I hid him in my place, and then he went off to Miss Erica the night you left, sir, and she, to save him from the law, helped him to escape. She was afraid to lose sight of him, he was that shaky like, an' I don't think, 'pon my word, sir, the poor lass knew what she was a-doin'. I tried to tell her, I did indeed, but she wouldn't listen. She thought she'd get back afore you come, and didn't think of the servant's a-writin'. Well, I took them in my boat as far as Dalwood, and they got the train there. And I tell you, Mr. St. John, that brave lass, she went to London with that infernal scoundrel, an' she see him on board a steamer as took him to Amsterdam, and she hadn't never a minute's rest or sleep to her eyes for fear of surprise. An' when she come'd back, she was as white as a ghost, then she did cry, to be sure, poor lass!" He brushed away the tears from his own eyes, and his voice was quite husky as he finished. "An' that's all, sir. Mr. Arnold didn't do what he said, but I kep' on for Miss Erica. I got sick and out o' work, and wanting bread to my mouth, and I've just come'd up to see Mr. Arnold. He'd gone away from his lodgings, but he come'd across me in that there park there, an' he defied me, and bade me go to the workhouse. You see, Mr. St. John, I'd been sorry and worrited for missy afore, and I would give somethin' to see her happy, and so I got your address from a shop 'ere, and come straight off. And that's all, sir."

He leaned forward a little, seeking to see through the gathering gloom the dark face still in the shadow. He almost trembled as he remembered the passionate words Philip had uttered when he, Nat, had pleaded for Erica three years ago. He knew or could guess something of the fierce passion which must be roused at his story of wrong, and mistrust, and deception. He had not said, because he did not know, the reason why Erica had so trampled on the love and faith of her husband in order to shield her cousin, and it had not entered his mind at first to think that Erica might still not be innocent in Philip's eyes. In fact, that to shield through thick and thin her cousin, though in doing so she deeply wronged her husband, must bear the suspicion of guilt. But it came to him now, when no voice or movement of Philip's broke the silence, and he rose hastily and came forward a step, leaning on the table.

"Sir," he said, eagerly, trembling with excitement, "you will believe now Miss Erica ain't what you thought. It wasn't for Mr. Arnold she done it all, I swear, but 'cos her mother was so set on him, loved him better nor Miss Erica, she did."

Reader, if you want business at which persons of either sex, young or old, can make great pay all the time they work, with absolute certainty, write for particulars to H. HALLETT & Co., Portland, Maine. 38-1y

VARIETIES.

A cook and housemaid had a little difficulty in the kitchen the other day, and precipitated matters became so quiet that you could hear a rolling pin drop.

If you have a cough, do not neglect it; buy at once a bottle of Allen's Lung Balsam. See Advertisement.

A girl wrote to a locomotive manufactory saying that if it didn't cost too much she would like to buy one of their new spark-arresters and see how it worked.

For a mild cathartic and efficient tonic, use Baxter's Mandrake Bitters. Every hostle warranted. 38-4t

"John, what is the best thing to feed a parrot on?" asked an elderly lady of her bachelor brother, who hated parrots. "Arsenic!" gruffly answered John.

Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap is highly recommended for all humors and skin diseases. 38-2ins

Pittsburg is said to have the largest variety, as well as some of the handsomest bridges in the country, representing all styles of architecture and material.

Freeman's Worm Powders are agreeable to take, and expel all kinds of worms from children or adults. 38-2ins

One of the sufferers by a late railway accident was rushing wildly about, when some one asked him if he was hurt. "No," he said, "but I can't find my umbrella."

The tenacity with which people abide by their early faith in Ayer's Sarsaparilla can only be explained by the fact that it is the best blood medicine ever used, and is not approached in excellence by any new candidate for public favor.

A patent electric clothes line has been invented. Upon an attempt to remove the clothes an alarm is sounded, four dogs set loose, a gun is fired and the thief drops.

☞Keep this in mind. In the Diamond Dyes more coloring is given than in any known dyes, and they give faster and more brilliant colors. 10c. at all druggists. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. Sample Card, 32 colors, and book of directions for 2 cent stamp.

A citizen was told by three different doctors that he would not live the week out. That was five years ago. Last week he attended the funeral of the last of the three.

NATIONAL PILLS are a mild purgative, acting on the Stomach, Liver and Bowels, removing all obstructions. 38-2ins

A farmer was once asked why he did not take a newspaper. "Because, said he my father, when he died, left me a good many newspapers, and I have not read them through yet."

No Such Word as Fail.

A failure to relieve or cure summer complaints can never be truthfully applied to Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. All dealers sell it. 38-2t.

Down in Dixie.

The wife of Mr. J. Kennedy, dealer in drugs in Dixie, was cured of a chronic cough by Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam. The best throat and lung healer known. 38-2t.

Good the Year Round.

At all seasons, when the system is foul and the digestive powers feeble, or the liver and kidneys inactive, Burdock Blood Bitters are required. 38-2t

A young lady who lately received a bouquet of roses was somewhat amused to find the donor's visiting card attached to it, and written on the wrong side these words: "Not to exceed $1."

Livery stable keepers should always keep Araken & Oil Liniment in the stable, nothing like it for horses. 36-4t

They have a two-tongued girl at Amsterdam. As she is only two years old no particular harm has yet been experienced from her redundant development, but if she lives to grow up she will probably be a terror.

Respect Old Age.

An old favorite is the remedy known as Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry. Thirty years reliable for cholera morbus, diarrhœa and summer complaints. 38-2t.

Great Negligence.

There is a great neglect with most people to maintain a regular action of the bowels, which causes much disease. Burdock Blood Bitters cure constipation. 38-2t.

Some people have no luck at all. Here's an old woman for the last forty years been pasting about 5,000 medical recipes in a book and hasn't had a day's illness in her life. She is going to give up collecting.

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second; It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

"Let me see," thoughtfully said a man who was looking at an old well; "the windlass needs repairs, the bucket leaks, the rope is rotten and the curbing is defective; but, considered as a hole, I think it will do."

Female Troubles.

Ladies are benefitted more by Norman's Electric Belts than by all the science of medicine. They are comfortable and durable. Guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 37-4t

We were dining together at a restaurant, and spied to our intense disgust a fly in the soup. "Waiter! I cried indignantly. My friend interposed. "Whatever you do, don't mention the fly, they'll charge it extra in the bill!"

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, IN CONSUMPTION AND SCROFULA.

Dr. J. R. Burton, of Valdosta, Geo., says: "I have for several years used Scott's Emulsion, and find it to act well in Consumption and Scrofula and other conditions requiring a tonic of that class.

"Why don't you give us a little Greek and Latin occasionally?" asked a country deacon of a new minister. "Why, do you understand those languages?" was asked. "No, but we pay for the best, and we ought to have it."

Color Your Butter.

Farmers that try to sell white butter are all of the opinion that dairying does not pay. If they would use Wells, Richardson & Co's Improved Butter Color, and market their butter in perfect condition, they would still get good prices, but it will not pay to make any but the best in color and quality. This color is used by all the leading creameries and dairymen, and is sold by druggists and merchants.

A BRAVE GIRL.

They were strolling in the green field, and he was telling her of his love.

Just as he was on the point of asking her to marry him, a cow, which was concealed by a bush a few feet away, moaned long and loud.

Did the girl faint away, or run away or scream? No. She gave one little imperceptible start and simply remarked:

"Go away, cow. As you were saying, George——"

Don't forget to read the Crowfoot Indian Bitters' advertisement in this paper, it may benefit you.

Given Satisfaction for Liver Complaint.

I find the Crowfoot Bitters sells well and gives universal satisfaction to all suffering from Liver and Stomach Complaints.

Yours truly,
ROBERT WALKEDEN,
Druggist, Owen Sound.
Sold by J. D. Tully, Druggist. 36-4t

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a receipt that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City

In The First Stage.

Her lips are like a rosebud steep'd in dew,
What time Aurora blushes in the skies;
And there is such a sparkle in her eyes—
Her large black eyes—that when they pass on you
Your heart awakes to love, a captive, too.

A single glimpse of beauty: Cheeks whose dye
The crimson rose of June to imitate
Would gain a fairer color; and a brow
Where reason sits with beauty tete-a-tete—
All these are here—all these and more—and yet—

Altho' to see her is to love her, even now
I would that I had never seen her face
For Love has fall enfrom his lofty place,
And has become the slave of a coquet.

Sing, sing, ye birds that to the forest throng,
And make the woodland ring with boisterous glee,
Till solitude shall wed with melody
And nature seem one long unending song!
And you, ye brooks that speed your way along
To join the waters of the purple sea!
O, fill the air with music! For to-day
She met me as I passed, and smiled on me,
Till I forgot her heart could e'er grow cold;
Forgot the gay coquet of yesterday—
A deeper green the spreading fields unfold,
A deeper azure decks the cloudless skies,
For Hope has colored all with brighter dyes
And Love rewakens to a fairer world.

Modern Newspaper Work.

The aspirant for an editorial career should consider the matter carefully. The compensation to newspaper men is, on the average, not large. Their hours are irregular; their work frequently hard; their disappointments great; their temptations very numerous; their associations such as require constant watchfulness to prevent contamination. Brilliant newspaper men, as a rule, "burn the candle of life at both ends," and if they have to do night-work and use stimulants, we may complete Adam Clarke's strong expression, and say that in addition to burning the candle at both ends, they put a red-hot poker in the middle.

Nevertheless, some have made a magnificent success, and have preserved moral integrity and physical health down to the full term of human life. Many, too, whose success has not been conspicuous, have done as well as the average men in mercantile pursuits or in other professions. These successful men are dying and retiring, just as successful men everywhere are—one by one relaxing their grasp upon the work that has given them fame and money. No one need suppose that there is no room for him in his chosen profession. Disease, old age, and death are always making room. The door is ever open for the new generation, though the struggle to enter it may at certain times be greater than at others.

It is especially necessary in this case to ask whether the requisite natural gifts be possessed. A person may have great intellectual gifts united to oratory, statesmanship or commerce, and not be at all fitted for newspaper work. Journalism makes a peculiar demand upon the nervous energies, and requires a quickness of thought and action not elsewhere so essential. The resources must be well in hand. There will be no time for deliberate examination, but the thought, the decision, the language, must all be ready on short notice.—N. Y. Truth.

The French at Obock.

An Arden correspondent of Journal des Debats gives a flattering account of Obock and the taking possession of it by the French. It is but ten hours' voyage from Aden, and is described as having an excellent natural harbor, with two anchorage grounds having a depth at low tide varying from ten to thirty meters, and it is protected by cliffs from north and west winds. In this harbor French ships of war and of commerce will find the refuge and the revictualling that they have hitherto had to seek at Aden. The territory which has been ceded, apparently by the most conciliatory of sheiks, is about one hundred kilometers in length by thirty kilometers in breadth. Again French moderation is in the ascendant; for the amiable sheik of Aoussa and the chiefs who were with him said to the officers of the Infernet: "Why fix any limits? Pray take the whole. We are entirely yours." Whether the officers thought this to be in earnest or wisely judged it a mere ancient Oriental formula, they "did not abuse these good feelings." Nor did they concede the shiek's request to be allowed to put himself under a French protectorate. On the contrary, they have now to treat with him about the roads to Shoa. At present at every well on these roads exorbitant exactions are levied on the caravans. The French are now to prove the depth of the sheik's good feelings by trying to induce him to cede all his rights to these tolls, etc., and to accept for them a moderate fixed tribute per man and per camel for the whole way. For the moment they are very self-satisfied in their sense of moderation. They believe that the English are very indignant about this "modest" acquisition of theirs, and, in response, they contrast its small proportions with the large acquisitions which England "is about to make" in Egypt, "under color of defending the rights" of that country."

As the legend goes, a traveler on the old Milford turnpike in Pike County, Pa., one day after traveling a long way without seeing a human face, stopped before a hut, in front of which a man was making an excavation, in hopes of finding enough earth to make a little garden. The traveler remarked on the apparent poverty in that part of the world. "Now see here, stranger," said the man who was digging rocks, "I am not so dern poor as you think I am. I don't own but a half acre of this here land."

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philia., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52t

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

MANHOOD

HOW LOST, HOW RESTORED.

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.
☞Price in a sealed envelope, on 6c. or two postage stamps.
The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years successful practice, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

Baillieboro' Union Show.

The first annual fall exhibition of the united townships of South Monaghan, Cavan, Hope, Hamilton and North Monaghan Agricultural Society will be held at Baillieboro' on Wednesday and Thursday, the 1st and 2nd of October. This new Society is making extra efforts to make this show one of the most successful township exhibitions held in the Province, and with the liberal prize list offered we have no doubt that it will be a successful one. The Peterborough City Band will be in attendance on the second day, and other attractions will be offered the public to enable all to have a pleasant and profitable day. Don't forget the day and date, and be sure and go and see the show. The directors and officers are all live men, and you may depend that there will be no effort spared to ensure the success of the first Baillieboro' Union Show.

Lacrosse Club at Ottawa.

Last night the same team of the Peterboro' Lacrosse Club that played here on the 9th Sept., with the Mets. of Ottawa, took train for the Capital. They will play a match with the Metropolitains to-day, (Thursday) before the Marquis and Marchioness of Lansdowne, and we have no doubt they will do credit to the occasion.

New Process Flour.

The new Process Flour ground at Hilliard's mill is the best in town. The ladies should all give it a trial. Once used it will always be used. The bread and cakes are sure to be white and nice. Orders left at Miss E. Delany's Millinery store, 2 doors south of the Giant T, will be promptly delivered. Only $2.50 per hundred pounds. John Delaney, by the mills. 39-4t.

Ladies,

your happy expectation soon to be realized. Fair, VanEvery & Co.'s Millinery Parlour is being elegantly furnished and replenished with most artistic designs of Trimmed and un-Trimmed Millinery; the assortment will be large, varied and exquisite. They will soon announce their grand opening, and every effort is being made to make you comfortable and convinced that shopping at the "Golden Lion" is most profitable and enjoyable. 39

Sporting Events.

This season sport has been unusually rife in Peterborough. There has been a continual round of sporting events—foot and horse races, boat races, regattas, cricket and lacrosse matches, foot ball, base ball, etc., and now Harry Gilmour, the champion light weight pugilist of Canada, has taken residence in Peterborough—at the Oriental hotel. He will train here for his coming fight with Fulljames.

Midland Workshops.

The Port Hope Times is authority for the following:

"Mr. Douglas, foreman of the carpenter workshops, Midland Railway, has received orders to complete all the work on hand, as the shops will have to be closed in two weeks. The men have been offered work at the company's works near the Don station, Toronto. The other shops here will, no dor bt, soon follow in the wake of the carpenters."

A Pleasant Encounter

While Messrs. Harry Phalen, Harry Rush, James Dolan, John and Peter Corkery, were in Quebec on their holiday tour, they had a pleasant surprise of meeting Messrs. McDonald and Cressman, former residents of Peterborough, where they were in the employ of Mr. H. J. Beemer. These gentlemen showed the Peterborough boys that they had memories of former favours from their Peterborough friends, by showing them many kindnesses, not the least amongst which was the introduction to the ancient and historical hostelrie, of the "Chien d'Or," Baude street, to whose proprietor, Mons. Laforce, the party was indebted for the best entertainment to be found in the city.

Turnbull's Dressmaking Department under the charge of Miss Morgan, a thorough practical dressmaker is now in full operation.

Baptist Lawn Social.

A very pleasant social was last Thursday night, held on the beautiful grounds of Mrs. Gilmour, corner of Gilmour and Park streets. The grounds were beautifully illuminated by chinese lanterns, etc. Abundant refreshments were provided for the large number of guests, who, in spite of the chilliness of the air, were present. Of course great disappointment was felt at the absence of the Fire Brigade Band, but this was to a large extent excusable, owing to the absence of some of the members in Toronto, and the illness of others. Still a very pleasant evening was spent, and the cash proceeds—$67, were very creditable. The thanks of the congregation are due Mrs. Gilmour, in thus throwing open her beautiful grounds.

Boating Club Regatta.

The annual regatta of the Peterborough Boating Club was held on Thursday last on Little Lake course. The first event was the mile match paddle between J. L. Weller and George Fitzgerald. The men got off well together and kept company till the turning buoy, when Fitzgerald drew away from his opponen and maintained his lead amidst great excitement, coming in winner by almost a boat length. Time, 9.37. The entries for the other events were not up to the mark. In the double scull pull G. Lech and F. Adams were against F. G. Cox and W. Rutherford, but the former won the race without much trouble by three or four boat lengths. In single canoes, Messrs. A. Blade, F. Adams and H. Evans started, the latter getting an allowance of 15 canoe lengths. Blade won the paddle in 10.25.

Y. M. C. A.

The annual business meeting of the Y.M.C.A. of Peterborough was held on Thursday evening last in their rooms. Mr. W. J. Minore, one of the Vice-Presidents, occupied the chair. The reports of the different committees, which showed progress, were submitted. The financial statement showed arrears to the amount of $178.64. The report of the Permanent Secretary, Mr. G. E. Williams, indicated encouraging progress, a large increase of membership and other satisfactory information. The election of officers resulted as follows:

PRESIDENT—J. Frith Jeffers, M.A.
VICE-PRESIDENTS—Dr. Fife, D. B. Gardner.
TREASURER—J. C. Turnbull.
GENERAL SECRETARY—G. E. Williams.
COMMITTEE—G. M. Roger, I. Richardson, M. Cummings, Sheriff Hall, H. Rossiter, W. W. Johnson, A. W. Jones, W. A. Smith, J. S. Hall and Dr. Clarke.
AUDITORS—Messrs. J. D. Collins and J. W. Bennett.

The Peterborough Y.M.C.A. is going on quietly and unostentatiously and doing an amount of good, which could not be appreciated unless its influence for good were withdrawn.

Ready Made Clothing.

While in Toronto I bought at a big discount for cash, a large lot of Men's and Boy's Over Coats, Tweed Suits and Pants, some of which were slightly damaged by smoke, being part of a stock saved from a recent fire. These are all new sound goods, and will be sold much below regular prices. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 38 4in.

Mark Street Methodist Church.

Rev. Mr. Manning, B.A., will occupy the pulpit of the Mark-street Methodist Church, Ashburnham, on Sunday next, in the morning, and Rev. J. W. Butcher in the evening. Sabbath School in the afternoon as usual.

Cook, the Crook.

On Thursday last Frederick Cook, charged with stealing five silver watches from James Renton, was arraigned on remand at the Police Court. Mr. C. A. Weller appeared for the Crown, and secured an enlargement to procure further evidence, and Cook was remanded till to-day (Thursday).

Anniversary Meeting To-night.

The public are reminded that the Anniversary services of the Young Men's Christian Association take place this (Thursday) evening in the Charlotte Street Methodist Church. The programme includes addresses by Rev. I. Tovell and Mr. J. S. Cole, music by the choir of the church and Mrs. Chambers and Mr. L. E. Horning, a report of the last year's work &c. Mr. Heathfield will act as organist. The chair will be taken at eight o'clock. All are invited to attend.

The Strickland-Mercer Race.

This match single scull pull of two miles straightaway was rowed on Chemong Lake on Thursday evening. It was almost dark before the water became calm enough to row. Mr. Percy Myles started the men, who were soon lost to view in the darkness. How they came in nobody knows, Messrs. J.J. and R. B. Landy, the judges, being unable to tell. Strickland landed first, however, and soon Mercer emerged from the darkness and landed also. The decision was left to the men, and Mercer acknowledged that Strickland came in ahead. The race was therefore awarded to him.

The Temptation too Strong.

On Monday morning, W. H. Sibley, a young man engaged as a law clerk in Mr. E. B. Edwards' law office, was arraigned at the Police Court charged with converting to his own purposes the sum of $130.92, which he had received in the course of business for his employer. He had been left in charge of the office during Mr. Edwards' absence, and on such an occasion, in July, he received from a client the above sum, for which he failed to account. The case was enlarged for a week. We understand that the young man who is only about twenty years of age, denies that he appropriated the money without intending to replace it.

New Foresters' Hall.

The members of Court Peterborough, Canadian Order of Foresters, No. 29, have increased so rapidly that the present premises have become to small for the meetings of the Court. A commodious flat has been secured over Mr. H. Long's lower fruit store, George street, and is being fitted up and furnished in first-class style, and when completed will be as roomy, neat and handsome a court room as the order anywhere can boast of. On Tuesday evening next a grand inauguration concert will be given in the new court rooms, at which the cream of local talent will appear. The tickets, which are only 25 cents, are selling so fast that a large attendance is assured.

Field Day for the Sports.

The management of the Peterborough Driving Park are arranging for two grand days' sport, to take place at the Park on Thursday and Friday, Oct. 9th and 10th. The programme will consist of bicycle races, foot races, trotting races, exhibition of matched carriage horses, farmers' running races, exhibition of matched draught horses, farmers' trotting races, exhibition of single carriage horses, exhibition of saddle horses, and a free for all trotting race. The managers have shown their determination to conduct all races at the Park in a fair, square manner, and the public may expect on the above occasion a couple of days' genuine good sport, perfect good order and the best horse to win.

Two Days' Cricket.

On Thursday and Friday last a two day's bout at the crease, practically closed the cricketing season. The Duke of York Rangers, a strong picked team from Toronto, played Peterborough eleven. The Rangers only mustered five men, but by playing substitutes the match went on. The foreigners went first to the bat, and rolled up a score of 130. To this Ray contributed treble figures—101, Miles Hamilton, sub, 14, Edwy Stratton, sub, 17, Pelham, 19, W. H. Rackham, sub, 10, and H. T. Strickland, sub, 8. Peterborough followed with the splendid score of 216, the double figures being Rutherford 40, Grundy, 24, Norley, 19, Rogers, 46 and Tait of Campbellford, 61. This batsman's score was piled up without a chance, by neat, clean cricket. He also did good execution at bowling. The Rangers went to the wickets, and when the stumps were drawn at 6 o'clock, had run up 105, of which Ray made 53 and Pelham 33. The match was decided on the first innings, leaving the home eleven the victors by 26 runs.

A very choice range of Black Dress Goods in Cashmeres, Cashmere Coupe, Satin Soliels, Biarritz, Granite Cloth, Ottoman Cords, plain and fancy Ottomans, Foule Cloth and fancy Brocades, now in stock at Turnbull's.

Embalming.

We noticed in Mr. A. Clegg's window on George street, a diploma granted to Mr. S. Clegg, by the Rochester school of embalming. This diploma states that:

"Whereas Samuel Clegg has attended the full and regular course of the Rochester school of embalming, and has also upon examination by the faculty of the said school, given abundant proof of his proficiency in the science of embalming and preservation of bodies. Therefore, and in virtue of the above, we consider Samuel Clegg, of Peterborough, Ont., as a thoroughly educated embalmer, fully competent to practice successfully the art of preserving and embalming the dead."

This diploma is duly signed by the secretary and demonstrator of the school. Mr. Clegg is the only person in this part of Ontario holding a diploma of this kind. This counts one more for the enterprise and push of our town, and especially of Mr. Clegg who is sparing neither money or pains in his endeavour to make this branch of his business second to none in Canada. Mr. Clegg's show window displays also a beautiful child's casket. The mouldings are covered with pale blue silk. The handles and breast plate are also bordered with silk of the same colour. There was a large casket covered with black cloth very handsomely draped. The novelty of the window attracted a great deal of attention all evening. This knowledge of embalming enables the undertaker to preserve bodies for several days or weeks, as occasion requires, it also enables them to prevent discolouring of the face and hands, and to restore the natural colour even after they have become discoloured.

Dress Goods, Velveteens and Silks.

Ladies I can now show you a splendid range of the newest designs in dress material with trimmings to match, Black and Colored Velveteens; special value in black Silks. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 38-4ins.

Mason's Meed of Merit.

At the Industrial Exhibition Toronto, Mr. Frank Mason, seedsman and florist, exhibited collections of ten varieties of potatoes, and succeeded in securing second prize.

Temperance Lecture.

On Monday evening last, Rev. T. McMurray delivered an interesting address on temperance in the Baptist church, to an audience which was not as large as it should have been.

All orders intrusted to Miss Morgan Turnbull's dressmaker will be executed with promptness and finished in the most satisfactory manner.

To Prize Winners.

Those persons living out of town who received prizes at the recent Horticultural Society Exhibition, will receive their prize money by calling upon Mr. F. J. Lewis, Bank of Montreal.

Football.

The first match of the Ontario Rugby Football Union will take place in Peterborough on Saturday, Oct. 11th, between the Torontos, the present holders of the championship cup, and Peterboroughs. The home club is diligently practising for the event.

St. Andrew's Church.

On Friday evening last a most successful peach festival was held in the school room of St. Andrew's Church. Music, songs, readings, recitations, peaches and cream composed the programme. The proceeds were handsome.

Electric Light.

The Peterborough Electric Light Company are preparing to enlarge their circle of illumination. The pulp mill's building is being prepared for the reception of the dynamo machines, whose number will be increased to four, and a capacity of 100 lights. The incandescent, lights will be shortly introduced.

Every Department

in the "Golden Lion" is being made replete with choice new seasonable goods. The Dress and Mantle making department is very attractive, under the supervision of a lady of large experience, whom we can recommend as being competent to undertake all orders that may be entrusted to her care. 39

Big Improvement.

Mr. Belleghem, as might be expected from his enterprise, has had the brickwork of the front of his furniture store and dwelling adjoining, beautifully tuck-pointed. This adds a hundred per cent to the appearance of his premises, and is an example which we understand, the proprietors of adjoining buildings on the same street intend following.

Lake Street School Entertainment.

On Monday evening a most successful and enjoyable entertainment was held in the Lake street Separate School building, in aid of the funds of the St. Peter's Cathedral bazar. There was a large attendance and an excellent programme of vocal and instrumental music was presented, followed by dancing. The net cash proceeds was about $50.

St. Luke's.

The annual harvest festival services in connections with St. Luke's Church, Ashburnham, will be held to-day (Thursday). A tea meeting will be held for members of the congregation and the public generally, from five o'clock, in the Town Hall, Ashburnham. The special service will take place at 8 o'clock, in St. Luke's Church, this evening, when the sermon will be preached by the Rev. S. Weston Jones, of Lindsay. The public are cordially invited to attend.

The Saved Army.

This evengelizing organization is still pushing the work in Peterborough. Meetings are held nightly at the Gospel Hall (old Music Hall) and though during the warm weather the attendance might have been better, yet the Army has not only held its ground, but made many additions to its ranks. As the longer nights come on, the attendance as well as the interest in the meetings is increasing. The Friday evening Bible class is well appreciated by the soldiers. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Torrance, Rev. Mr. Butcher has had charge of it, but with the return of the latter he will resume charge of these classes. Through the Christian liberality of Mr. G. B. Sproule, a Book and Tract Depository has been established, which has been much appreciated by and blessed to the army and its soldiers in Peterborough. Capt. Gibson, in charge of the station here, exchanges duties with Lieut. Mason, who comes from the Lakefield and Warsaw district. Lieut Rush also has returned to town from Port Perry.

The sort of Blood from which the constituents of vigorous bone, brain and muscle are derived is not manufactured by a stomach which is bilious or weak. Uninterrupted, thorough digestion may be insured, the secretive activity of the liver restored, and the system efficiently nourished by the aid of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. It is the greatest blood purifier ever introduced into Canada.

IT PAYS WELL TO BUY GOOD!

You have heard of the smartness of the old lady's sons. She shut them up in a room together, and they both made their fortunes trading jack-knives. You remember the joke and you get the idea.

On the edge of the Fall Season's Trade, we part to say a something to you about business—your business of buying what you need—and now is as good a time as any.

This season we come before you as Direct Importers. Is there anything in that for us? Is there anything in that for you?

Read on a little further and we'll tell you.

Our buyer, when in England, found Wholesale Merchants and Manufacturers, both holding great lots of almost everything in our trade; holding—not for better prices—but for buyers. Buyers were scarce. There was stagnation.

Now our buyer bought freely, judiciously, and bought well. He bought good.

We were not burdened with goods. We had the requisite outlet in our large trade to handle a directly imported stock. Our buyer bought to undersell the retail market here and make a profit.

Our sales are going to be more—not less—than last year, for we adapt our buying and selling to the times we are in.

We offer you a stock bought to sell. This we know, and it's for you to prove it.

We shall not try here to enumerate the lines of goods in which we can offer you exceptional good value. You'll hear of them presently. We'll finish our business talk by saying:—

Our Stores are full of Goods—our own importations—and our prices are what our view of the opportunity makes them. We won't ask you to buy the things of fashion. It's a time for getting almost all the substantial staple things to wear, and to keep home with.

It's a time for you to make your money by your spending of it.

It's a time for caution, but the caution is to be shown in choosing where and what you buy, and the bargains you make.

And surely when by our trade policy the bottom is reached in goods, and we offer to you the top of the purchasing power of money, you'll neglect your own interests if you fail to buy from us.

FINE FARM FOR SALE.

That beautifully located Farm,

The West half of lot 26, in the 12th Concession of Otonabee.

Situated east of the old Cobourg Railway. The property comprises 88 acres more or less. The soil is excellent and well adapted to gardening purposes. Its situation is very desirable, it being only one mile from the market square, and commanding a fine view of the town of Peterborough. Since the property came into possession of its present proprietor, over $3,000 has been spent on its improvement. It is one of the best watered farms in Ontario, being supplied by a never-failing spring well, so situated as to provide ten feet head. From this are laid nearly 700 feet of iron piping. At a distance of 240 feet from the spring this pipe rises to a watering trough in the barn. A continuation of the pipe carries the overflow from this, 440 feet further to another watering trough into another field. From the latter the overflow passes into a tile drain on the road side, and thence away. This pipe is provided with two taps, by which the water supply to the stock may be regulated. This water supply makes the farm eminently fitted for grazing purposes; stock can be supplied with continual access to an unlimited supply of pure living water. Or for market gardening the facilities for irrigation would admit of setting dry seasons at defiance, this together with the proximity to a first class market (only one mile) makes this farm unequaled for this purpose.

For either a gentleman of leisure who wishes to devote his retirement to agricultural pursuits, or for a pushing man who desires to make money, this farm for fertility of soil, water supply, beauty of situation and convenience to town, can have no superior.

TERMS: One thousand dollars to be paid down when deeds are handed over, the balance may remain on the property at 6 per cent interest for any term agreed upon.

For further particulars apply to JOSEPH RICHMOND,

40 OTONABEE.

LACROSSE AT OTTAWA.

A Brilliant Victory for the Home Team.

From the fact that three of the best players were off the team—Sheehy, Rudkins and Yelland—the Peterborough lacrosse team felt inclined to be blue on their trip to Ottawa to to meet the Mets, in the presence of Vice-Royalty, but the outcome shows that the event only nerved them to greater exertions. At 10.45 on Thursday morning His Excellency the Marquis of Lansdowne, Governor-General of Canada, proceeded to the Rideau Hall lacrosse grounds. He was received by both Clubs in open file; they gave him three ringing cheers, and sung "God Save the Queen." Immediately His Excellency faced the ball for

THE FIRST GAME,

Kelly playing centre for the home team. He won the draw, and the ball at once sped to the Mets' goal. It was, however returned, and after 3½ minutes brilliant play, Dunn, of the Mets, put it through for game.

THE SECOND GAME.

Kelly, who in this respect is a worthy disciple of "Jimmy," again won the draw, and play was at once all over the field. After four minutes play a home player captured the ball, and Kit Rutherford taking it in charge passed it through in brilliant style.

THE THIRD GAME.

Kelly was too quick again on the face for his opponent, but his securing the ball was not a prestige of victory, for, after seven minutes play, Perkins, of the Mets, sent the sphere between the flags, scoring second game for his team.

THE FOURTH GAME.

At the face Kelly led off again and started a harder fight than any that had yet taken place. The play on both sides was determined and brilliant, but Peterborough pluck and persistence won the day, and Kit Rutherford had again the honor of winning the second game for his team, after thirteen minutes play.

THE FIFTH GAME,

being the "rubber," was started amidst great excitement. The danger was a good deal of the time on the goal of the Peterboroughs, but the defence was equal to the task and repelled the vigorous attacks of the Mets in brilliant style. Indeed, so vigorous was the attack of the Mets that they weakened their own defence, and at length, after a red-hot fight, Scott secured the sphere in centre-field and made a bulls-eye on the enemy's goal. So strong was the shot that the ball went through the 'crosse of the goal—O'Connor—and, amidst great applause, Peterborough won the third game of a most brilliant exposition of lacrosse.

Throughout the whole match there was not a foul nor rough play made, nor an unkind word given. The best of good feeling marked the demeanor of both teams. The home team was delighted with the treatment it received. Though the spectators were all Ottawa people, good play of either side was impartially applauded. The man who received the most enthusiastic applause for individual brilliance of play was Henderson, surnamed "Jumbo." He seemed to make two or three of himself, and his frequent success in capturing the ball from two or three of his opponents was greeted with wild cheers. The Mets did all they could to make the stay of the Peterborough boys pleasant. They entertained them at the best hotel in the City—the Russell House—and in every way made things pleasant for them, so that both as lacrosse players and individuals the home team will cherish nothing but delightful memories of the trip to Ottawa and the return match with the Metson Sept. 25th, 1884.

The Ladies are invited to visit Hall, Innes and Co's Millinery Rooms, on Tuesday and Wednesday, 7th and 8th October, opening days.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

THE LATE JAMES DAVIDSON.

A Veritable Land Mark Removed.

On Tuesday last one of Peterborough's very oldest pioneers, in the person of Mr. James Davidson, was called away by death, at the ripe old age of 83 years, from the scenes in which he has been an active participant for 61 years. Since the beginning of the present year Mr. Davidson's bodily powers have been declining. It cannot be said that his health failed—his physical strength simply diminished by slow degrees, till on Tuesday last the weary wheels of life stood still. The vital force was gradually withdrawn from the machinery of life till it ceased to move. He died simply from old age.

The deceased was a native of the County Down, Ireland, where he was born in 1801. His father was Hugh Davidson and his mother was a daughter of John McKibbon. He was the second of a family of nine children. Together with his sister he came to Canada in 1823 and settled in the township of Smith. After working on a farm for two and a half years—for his uncle, Mr. Walker and Sam'l McKibbon—he took up land (200 acres), the place he lived and died on, lot number 20, in the fifth concession. He went vigorously to work and cleared the farm himself. The same year he took up his land he also took a helpmate, marrying the daughter of the late James McConnell, of Cavan township. His wife bore him fourteen children, of whom eight are living, four sons and four daughters. Mr. Davidson performed active service in the Rebellion of 1837. In religion he was a Presbyterian, and in politics a consistent and staunch Reformer. In the passing away of Mr. Davidson the country loses one of its typical pioneers, that hardy class that by hard and unremitting toil, not unattended with many privations and hardships, turned the trackless forest into fertile fields. His bodily and mental vigour were extraordinary. The former, especially, he retained in a remarkable degree. As an instance in point, in the harvest of 1883 he cut with a reaper fifty acres of wheat and showed the vigour of a man of thirty-five years. His bodily strength he retained till within a short time of his death, and he held his mental faculties clear and unimpaired up to the time of his demise. Mr. Davidson's was of a long-lived family, his grandfather reaching to the age of 103 years. In Mr. Davidson's death the country loses another of that fast decreasing class of hardy pioneers, to whose hard toil, persistent pluck and energy we owe the wide fields of waving grain and agricultural improvement that have replaced the howling wilderness of half a century ago.

The funeral of Mr. Davidson will leave the family residence, "Spring Valley," Smith, to-day (Thursday), at 2.30 p.m.

Hall, Innes & Co's Millinery and Mantle Show Rooms will be open on Tuesday and Wednesday, the 7th and 8th October.

Obituary.

THREE OLD RESIDENTS CALLED AWAY.

Within the past few days three of the well known pioneer citizens of Peterborough have been removed by death:

MRS. DIXON.

On Wednesday, Sept. 24th, Mrs. Dixon, relict of the late William Dixon, died at her residence. The deceased was a native of Scotland. She came to this country in 1824, when Peterborough was a mere camping place in the forest primeval. In 1829 she was united in marriage to William Dixon. The union was blessed with six children, of which only two survive. Mrs. Dixon had passed the Psalmist's limit of human life by 13 years, having died in her 84th year.

GEORGE LANGFORD

Passed away on Sunday at the age of 79 years. He was one of the oldest citizens of Peterborough. He was a native of Queens County Ireland, and came to Canada in 1835. He has resided in Peterborough twenty-five years, and was widely known. He was a member of the Methodist Church. He was twice married, and leaves behind him two sons and one daughter, all residents of Peterborough.

MRS. N. SHAW.

This lady was another of the well-known and much respected residents of the town, having lived here thirty years. She was a native of Warren county, New York State, and came to Canada in 1854, in company with her husband, Mr. N. Shaw, who erected at that time what is now known as the "Red Mills," the first saw mills of any size erected in this district. Mrs. Shaw's last illness was of about two months duration, and up to the morning of her death was not of so serious a nature as to give her friends alarm. On Sunday morning she was at breakfast with the family, but from that time she began to sink, and at eleven o'clock at night passed painlessly and peacefully away. It can hardly be said she died, she seemed merely to cease to live. Her remains were interred in Little Lake Cemetery. Her husband, Mr. Shaw, desires us, in this connection to express his thanks to the many of his friends whose expressions of sympathy and kind offices comforted him on the occasion of the great bereavement of his life

POLICE COURT STATISTICS.

Record of the Reprobates.

The total number of cases heard before Police Magistrate Dumble during the Government year, which ended on the 30th September, 1884, was 373. This includes county cases and cases which were withdrawn. This is the largest number ever returned from the local Police Court. The number last year was 333. Some statistics may be interesting to our readers.

The youngest prisoner was 7 years old, charged with assault, and the oldest, a female drunk, who had seen 86 summers and winters.

The number of previous convictions recorded against those brought up during the year varied from 1 to 15, Patrick Handrigan, a well known vagrant, having spent 15 terms, of six months each, in the county gaol and Central Prison. Others with 11, 12, 14 and 15 bad marks against them on the books were not far behind.

The male prisoners numbered 338, while the weaker sex only mustered 29, a considerable decrease when compared with the preceding year.

177 claimed to have been born in Canada, 110 in Ireland, 47 in England, 16 in Scotland, 12 in the United States and 11 in Italy.

As to the religious denominations to which the prisoners belonged, the Roman Catholics headed the list, Episcopalians, Presbyterians and Methodists following in the order named. The Baptists and the Bible Christians were few in number, while three belonged to no church at all, and two were infidels.

The most serious case was one of rape, and the heaviest sentence one year in the Central Prison.

Wallace of Lakefield

Has returned from the wholesale markets, where he succeeded in getting a beautiful assortment of new goods for the fall and winter trade, many lines will be offered much below regular prices. 38-4ins.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet. 18-tf

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS AT THE TORONTO EXHIBITION.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—I noticed a paragraph in the Review of the 25th inst., stating that the Dominion Organ and Piano Company "won the highest awards at the Toronto Exhibition."

Now, I think, Sir, this statement demands an explanation, in order that people may not be misled into giving greater credit than is due one company over another. I beg therefore to state that no prizes were awarded to musical instruments at the recent Toronto Exhibition. The following paragraph, taken from a report of a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 22nd September, reported by the Mail, will corroborate what I say:—

"The manager was instructed to advertise that no awards had been made at the recent exhibition for musical instruments."

Yours truly,
D. SMART,
Agent for Williams Piano Co. and Bell Organ Co.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS AT THE TORONTO EXHIBITION.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—In reply to the letter of Mr. J. J. Irwin, which appears in an issue of the Review, I beg to state that, having good instruments to offer to the public, we do not have to stoop to any means of deception, as is the case with vendors of inferior instruments. The agent of the Genuine Bell and D. W. Karn organs has no reason to feel agrieved at any honors which other manufacturers have won, as none can successfully compete with them. The improvements which the Dominion Company are boasting of have been used in our instruments for years! It is a very Green trick of Mr. Irwin to try to palm off the report he published as a report of the musical judges at the Toronto Industrial Exhibition, as no judges of musical instruments were appointed by the directors of that Exhibition. Such tricks could only be resorted to by those who have inferior instruments to offer and need something to bolster them up. To show that I am only stating facts, I will quote the following official notice from the Toronto Mail of Saturday, Sept. 27th:—

INDUSTRIAL Exhibition Association,
OF TORONTO, 1884.

NO AWARD FOR MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

Whereas there appears to be a misapprehension as to awards being made for musical instruments at the Annual Exhibition of this Association for 1884, this is to give notice that no judges were appointed and

No Prize was Either Offered or Awarded

To any musical instrument exhibited at the said Exhibition.

J. J. WITHROW, President. H. J. HILL, Manager and Secretary.

This, Sir, is proof that what I stated was strictly true, and I leave the public to judge of the high order of an instrument which needs such tricks as those resorted to by the agent of the Dominion organs to make them have faith in its qualities.

D. SMART,
Agent for Karn's and Bell Organs.

A very choice range of Black Dress Goods in Cashmeres, Cashmere Coupe, Satin Soliels, Biarritz, Granite Cloth, Ottoman Cords, plain and fancy Ottomans, Feals Cloth and fancy Brocades, now in stock at Turnbull's.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were ill adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

NOTHING

can beat the new Wanzer C. and the High-Arm Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machines. Prices legitimate. Sold at my store only.

Needles and Oils constantly on hand. Repairs promptly attended to.

All orders intrusted to Miss Morgan Turnbull's dressmaker will be executed with promptness and finished in the most satisfactory manner.

Terrible Excitement.

Over $100,000 worth of Accident Insurance tickets sold. How is this? The reason is, Bakers, Boat Builders, Boot and Shoe makers, Brewers, Carriage makers, Cabinet makers, Harness makers, Hotel keepers, Machinists and Tinsmiths, can procure an accident policy good for one year for $6.00. A saving of $1.50 on regular rates. How is this? Opposition answers how. $2,500 to lend.

Light for All.

China Hall has the largest and best assortment of lamps and chandeliers in Peterboro', consisting of 2, 3 and 4 light chandeliers, polished brass and bronze. One light hanging lamps. Parlor, kitchen and bedroom lamps at any price. China Hall pays particular attention to the lamp and coal oil part of its business, and will undersell all other dealers. If you want variety, cheapness and durability in the above goods buy at China Hall.

New Process Flour.

The new Process Flour ground at Hilliard's mill is the best in town. The ladies should all give it a trial. Once used it will always be used. The bread and cakes are sure to be white and nice. Orders left at Miss E. Delany's Millinery store, 2 doors south of the Grant T, will be promptly delivered. Only $2.50 per hundred pounds. John Delaney, by the mills. 39-4t.

Money.

Mr. John A Bennett, of Otonabee, is prepared to make loans on real estate and to purchase mortgages. Loans will be made at the lowest rates of interest, payable when the borrower deems the most convenient time, the principal, being payable at such times as may be agreed upon. Expenses are very light. 12-tf

Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage.

ABUSE OF TRUST-FUNDS.

"In one hour so great riches is come to naught."—Revelation, xviii., 17.

The columns of our custom houses and of the State and national capitals swathed in black, and all the flags at half-mast for the dead United States Treasurer. At 66 years of age he dies without a spot upon his reputation, although much of his life had been spent amid temptations which have flung a vast multitude flat in the dust. Amid all the allurements of the legal profession, and amid the opportunity for bride-taking on the judicial bench, and for three years holding the purse of the nation, yet not a half-penny sticks to his hand. And in his dying hour he asks his attendant to take from the left pocket of his coat a check and get it cashed immediately, so that he meets the expenses of his own obsequies with his own hand, and after paying his way all through life by hard word, pays his own admission fee at the door of the sepulchre. All his accounts square with the United States Government, square with the world, and, I hope, square with God. What a glorious background to the picture of present epidemic of swindle amid trust funds. There has not been a time in my memory, or in yours, where there has been such utter, black irresponsibility demonstrated among those who have in charge the finances of others. This unroofing of banks, this disappearance of administrators with the funds of large estates, this disorder in post office accounts, this deficit amid United States officials have made a pestilence of crime which solemnizes every thinking man and woman, and leads every philanthropist and Christian to ask: "Can this plague be stayed?" There is abroad this hour a simoon, a typhoon, a sirocco. Things in this regard are worse and worse. I have sometimes asked myself if it would not be better for men making wills to bequeath their money directly to the executors or the officers of courts, and then appoint the widows and orphans as a committee to see that the officers and trustees refund all that does not belong to them! There are men—you know them and I know them—who are sailing yachts and driving fast horses and holding membership in expensive clubs, and owning country seats, who would not be worth one dollar if they returned to others their just rights. A crash comes, and there is a reverse, and the man fails, and he retires from the world, and seems about to go into monastic life, but in two or three years he blossoms out again, having compromised with his creditors—that is, paid them nothing but regrets; and the only difference between the second chapter of prosperity and the first chapter of prosperity is that in his picture gallery now he has Raphaels and Murillos instead of Kensetts, and his horses go the mile twenty se onds sooner than their pedecessors, and instead of one country seat he has three. I have watched, and I have noticed that nine out of ten of the failures in what is called high life leave men with more money after the failure than they had before, and that their failure is only a stratagem to get rid of the payment of honest debts and to put the world off the track while they introduce a more stupendous swindle. It is, my Christian friends, most appalling that such things are possible. I blame, first of all, directors of banks and boards having in charge great financial interests. It ought not to be possible for the president of a bank, or the cashier, or any officer, to carry on a swindle in an institution year after year without detection. If a swindle go on one year, two years, three years, four years in a moneyed institution, the directors either have part in the infamy and pocket their share of the theft or they are guilty of a negligence for which God will hold them as responsible as he holds the acknowledged defrauders. What right have our large business men to allow their names to be advertised as directors so that the unsophisticated put their money in the institution, or buy scrip thereof, when they, the directors, are doing nothing for the safety of that institution? It is a deception appalling and monstrous, and in the name of God and the rights of men I denounce it. Many with small surplus and with money not needed for immediate use, but which will after a while be indispensible, have no friends capable of advising them, and in consequence they take the moral character of men advertised as directors. And there are people who say: "I don't know anything about these things, but there is a man who is on that board of directors, and there is a man, and I know they are all good men and prosperous business men, and they would not have anything to do with that which is dishonorable." When the bank goes over, when the small earning and the fortunes of widows and orphans and the helpless aged go with the bank, and the directors stand with idiotic stare, and when the enquiry is made by the frenzied depositors and stockholders, and when the community, outraged community, arraigns them, the directors say: "Oh, I thought it was all right; I didn't know there was anything wrong." They ought to have known. They stood in a position where they deluded the public with the idea that they did know, and that they were carefully observant of what was going on. Advertised as directors, they did not direct. They had all the account books open before them, and they could have audited the accounts for themselves, or they could have taken in some expert and had the whole thing explored and understood. There are, it seems, a great many business men who have a pride in being directors in a great many institutions, and they know nothing about some of these institutions, except whether they get their dividends or not, and their name is used as a decoy duck to get other people to come near enough to be made game of. Just as long as fraud is so easy in business life, there will be plenty of it. When you arrest the president of a bank and the cashier of a bank for embezzlement, you want plenty of sheriffs out that day to arrest all the directors. They are not guilty either of neglect or of complicity, if an embezzlement be going on three or four years. "Oh," say some one, "you had better preach the gospel and let business men go.' My reply is, "If your gospel does not inspire common honesty in dealing among men, the sooner you close up that gospel and throw it into the depths of the Atlantic ocean the better." An orthodox swindler is worse than a heterodox swindler, and your recitation of creeds and catechisms and a sip out of every communion chalice that ever glittered in Christendom will not save your soul unless your business life corresponds with your Christian profession. The purest institution on earth is the church, and there are more men and women of elevated character in a Christian church than in any fifty institutions the world has ever seen; but I declare what everybody knows when I say that some of the greatest scoundrels in the world have belonged to the church. That time must cease when men practising dishonesty all the week can sit in church and get fat on sermons about heaven, when the pulpit ought to preach that which would either bring them to repentance for their sins or thunder them out of the Christian communion where their presence is a sacrilege and an infamy.

Recent events are very much to be deplored, because they seem to fly into the face of that divine goodness which seems determined to bless this land. Here we are in the fourth great national harvest, the last greater than all. The sheaves have hardly got into the garner. The wheat gamblers get hold of the wheat, corn gamblers get hold of the corn, and the greatest excitement last week in Wall St., I was told, was in regard to this crop of corn, the fate of it depending upon the heat or the frost of the next eight or ten days. The great ocean tide of God's mercy put back by these dikes of dishonest resistance. When God provides enough food and clothing to feel and apparel this whole nation like princes, dishonest men grapple for more than their share and run all hazards and keep everything rocking with uncertainly. And good people say, "What next?" Every week has a new revelation of business crime. It is an epidemic; and how many presidents of banks and cashiers of banks and gambling with other people's money and how many bank directors are sitting in imbecile silence, letting the perfidy go on, a great and patient God only knows. My opinion is that we have nearly touched bottom. I think that last summer was the most valuable summer we have had in ten years. The wind has been pricked out of the bubble of American speculation. People who thought that the Judgment Day was at least 5,000 years off from the summer of 1884. This nation has been taught as never before; people had better keep their hands out of other people's pocket. Great businesses founded on borrowed capital have been obliterated, and men who had nothing lost all they had! At 10 o'clock on the first Wednesday in next November this nation will begin the ascent into higher prosperity and for a grander career than it has ever run, if—and if—and if! "If," the first; if men, and especially Christian men, will stop speculating with borrowed money. If you want to take your own money and put it into kites to fly on the commons, or into pipes to blow soap bubbles, you may do so without wronging society especially, unless your helpless children are tumbled into the poor-house to be taken care of by the public, and they probably will; but you have no right to take the property of others, and turn it into kites to fly and soap bubbles to blow. There is one word that has dragged down more people into bankruptcy and State prison and perdition than any other word in the commercial world, and that is the word "borrow." That word is responsible for nearly all the defalcations, embezzlements and financial consternations of the last four months and of the last forty. When an executor takes money out of a large estate to speculate with it he does not purloin it, he only "borrows." When a banker makes an overdraft that he may go into speculation, he does not commit a theft, he only "borrows." When some man of a large financial institution, through flaming advertisement in some religious paper or gilt-edged certificate, gets country people to put their money into some enterprise for carrying on an undeveloped nothing, it is not fraud; he only "borrows." When a young man having easy access to a money drawer, or a confidential clerk having easy access to the books, take a certain amount of money, and with it makes a Wall street excursion, he is going to put it back, he is going to put all back, he is going to put it back pretty soon; he only "borrows." What is needed is some one with giant limb to stand at the curbstone at the foot of Trinity Church and at the head of Wall street, and when that word "borrow" comes bounding along, kick to clear to Wall street ferry, and if it strikes the deck of the ferry-boat and bound clear over to Brooklyn Heights and Brooklyn Hill, all the better for the City of Churches.

Ah, my friends, it is high time that people learn that it is death to borrow for speculative purposes. We all sometimes borrow. We borrow legitimately and we borrow with the divine favor. Christ in His sermon on the mount enjoined "from him that would borrow of thee turn thou not away." A young man borrows money to get his education; all right. A man purchases a property and cannot pay all down in ready cash, and rightly borrows on mortgage. There are crises in business when it would be wrong not to borrow. But here is a warning I roll through these aisles and over the backs of these pews: Never speculate on borrowed money—not a dollar, not a cent, not a farthing. Young men, young men, I warn you by your worldly prospects and the value of your immortal soul, do not do it. There are breakers distinguished for their shipwrecks—the Hanways, the Needles, the Caskets, the Denvers, the Andertos, the Skerries—and many a craft has gone to pieces on those rocks, but I have got to tell that all the Hanways and the Needles and the Caskets and the Skerries are as nothing compared with the long line of of breakers which bound the ocean of commercial life north, south, east and west, with the white foam of their despair and the dirge of their damnation. The breakers of Borrow. If I had only a worldly weapon to use on this subject I would give you the fact fresh from the highest authority that 90 per cent.—90 per cent.—of those who go into speculation in Wall street lose all; but I have a better warning than a worldly warning. From the place where men have perished body, mind and soul. Stand off, stand off! Abstract pulpit discussion must stand aside on this question. Faith and repentance are absolutely necessary, but faith and repentance are no more doctrines of the Bible than commercial integrity. Render to all their dues. Owe no man anything. And while I mean to preach faith and repentance, more and more to preach them, I do not mean to spend any time in chasing the Hittites, and Jebusites, and Gorgesites of Bible times, when there are so many evils right around us destroying men and women for time and eternity. The greatest evangelistic preacher the world ever saw, a man who died for his evangelism, peerless Paul, wrote to the Romans. "Provide things honest in the sight of all men;" wrote to the Corinthians, "Do that which is honest;" wrote to the Philippians, "Whatsoever things are honest;" wrote to the Hebrews, "Willing in all things to live honestly." The Bible says the faith without works is dead, which being literally translated means that if your business life does not correspond with your profession your religion is a humbug. Here is something that needs to be sounded into the ears of all the young men of America, and iterated and reiterated. If this country is ever to be delivered from its calamities, and commercial prosperity is to be established and perpetuated, live within your means. I have the highest commercial authority for saying that when the trouble broke out in Wall street last May, there were $225,000,000 in suspense which had already been spent. Spend no more than you make. And let us adjust all our business and our houses by the principles of the Christian religion. Our religion ought to mean just as much on Saturday and Monday as on the day between, and not be a mere periphrasis of sanctity. Our religion ought to first clean our hearts and then it ought to clean our lives.

The keen business man will put on his spectacles and he will look clear through to the back of your head, and will see whether your religion is a fiction or a fact. And you cannot hide your samples of sugar or rice or tea or coffee if they are false; you cannot hide them under the cloth of a communion table. All your prayers go for nothing so long as you misrepresent your banking institution, and in the amount of the resources you put down more specie and more fractional currency and more clearing-house certificates and more legal-tender notes and more loans and more discounts than there really are, and when you give an account of your liabilities you do not mention all the unpaid dividends and the United States bank-notes outstanding and the individual deposits and the obligations to other banks and bankers. An authority more scrutinizing than that of any bank examiner will go through and through and through your business. Let me also have a word of comfort for all those here who have suffered by the malfeasence of others, and that is all of you—that is all the honest men, women and children in America. Society is so bound together that nearly all the good people suffer from the bad behavior of bad people. Now, my brother and sister in Christ, bear up under the pressure; though your misfortunes be complicated, bear up under these misfortunes strong in God. Philosophers say that a column of air forty miles in height rests upon every man's head and shoulders; but that is a very small pressure compared with the pressure on multitudes of these business men: God made up His mind long ago just how many dollars or how few dollars it was best for you to have. Trust His appointment. The door will soon open and you will be let out, and you will be let up. What a shock of delight to a man who has been twenty or thirty years under the harrow when he suddenly awakes in everlasting holiday. On the map of the Arctic regions there are two places with peculiar names—names, I suppose, given by Polar expenditions: Cape Farewell and Thank God Harbor. At that harbor the Polaris wintered in 1871 and the Tigress wintered in 1873. But many ships have gone by the cape and have not reached that harbor. Now, I have watched many of you, and I have come to the conclusion that while your voyage of life may be very rough, and an iceberg crashes in on this side and an iceberg in on that side, in God's good time you are going to reach Cape Farewell and bid good-bye to all annoyances, and soon after you are going to drop archor in the calm and imperturbable waters of Thank God Harbor. "There the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1870 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 67 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 126th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 8, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRADDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

On the Advertising Power of a Good Name.

An editorial under the above title in the July Century closes as follows:

"For years we have watched the workings of this system of patronage—of advertisement by means of good names—here in the city of New York; and we must say that we have seen great harm come from it, in many directions. The persons are not as numerous as they should be who resolutely refuse the use of their names to every movement, to every institution, to every committee, to every board of management, to which they are unable to give the necessary time and attention, or in whose affairs they are not competent to deal with full intelligence and with fitness of taste and education. We say that such scrupulosity seems to be exceptional in New York, and yet events are constantly occurring to show the danger, even the immorality, of allowing the use of one's name where one's care and attention do not follow.

"We have barely alluded above to the reprehensible course which some pursue of using their own good names as an investment, for profit, in connection with financial corporations, or schemes of various sorts, which they do not in reality control. Of the impropriety of such action there can be no question. Recent events have made the danger and wrong of such an act lamentably conspicuous, and we do not need to dwell upon this phase of the subject. What we wish to do now is to call especial attention to the loose manner in which good names are constantly being used by way of advertisement, in charitable, social, educational, and other praiseworthy lines. We ask our readers if they cannot each recall some instance where the public has been misled, or where honored reputations have suffered? The fact is that, when any scheme or institution, however proper or even virtuous its objects, wants from any respectable person, 'nothing but his name,' his name is the very thing he should stoutly refuse to give."

She Needed No Male Protector.

Thomas Pennant, in his "Tours in Wales," speaks of a Welch Amazon named Margaret Evan, who lived at Pentlyn. She is at this time above 90 years of age. She was the greatest hunter, shooter and fisher of her time. She kept at least a dozen dogs, killed more foxes in a year than all the confederate hunts do in ten; rowed stoutly and was queen of the lake; fiddled excellently and knew all of our old music; did not neglect the mechanical arts, for she was a very good joiner, and at the age of 70 was the best wrestler in the country, and few young men dared to try a fall with her. Margaret was also blacksmith, shoemaker, boat-builder and maker of harps. She shod her own horse, made her own shoes, and built her own boats while under contract to convey copper up and down the lakes. All the neighboring bards celebrated her exploits. She had many admirers, but gave her hand to the most effeminate of them.—Boston Journal.

Looking Into the Future.

"Yes," said the father stroking his son's head fondly. "James is a bright, intelligent boy, and some day I hope to see him occupying an exalted position in politics."

"He is certainly a fine lad," acquiesced the visitor. "What do you expect to do, James, when you are a man?"

"Well," answered the boy, "I hardly know. My ambition now is to be honest and truthful and manly, and treat people fairly and squarely and study hard and be respected by everybody."

"Well said, my boy, well said." Then the visitor added in an undertone to the old gentleman:

"What do you think now of James occupying an exalted position in politics some day?"

"Well, I think," whispered the father, rather crestfallen, "that if he carries out his present intentions he is likely to get left."—New York Sun.

Cotton factors at St. Louis find that the system of handling cotton is undergoing a marked change. Until recently the commission merchant, by making early advances, held a lien on the entire product of the plantations tributary to St. Louis; but now English and Eastern spinners go direct to the planter in the autumn and contract for the bulk of his forthcoming crop.

PLAIN DIRECTIONS.

The late Dean Stanley was once travelling in a railway carriage, when a blustering man exclaimed, "I should like to meet that Dean of Westminster. I'd put a question to him that would puzzle him." "Very well," said a voice out of the corner, "now is your time, for I am the Dean." The man was rather startled, but presently recovered, and said, "Well, sir, can you tell me the way to heaven?" "Nothing easier," answered the Dean, "you have only to turn to the right and go straight forward."

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

Dr. George Seymour, of Utica, N. Y., says: "I have used Dr. Wheeler's Elixir of Phosphates and Calisaya quite extensively in my practice in a large number of cases for which it is recommended, and I am happy to state that I find it a remedy of great value and efficiency as a tonic in the treatment of chronic diseases.

A SURPRISE.

It was at a church oyster supper, the merriment was at its height, when suddenly an appalling shriek from the pastor's study (the kitchen) rent the air. Confusion worse confounded reigned supreme, when a bevy of excited beauties rushed frantically with dishevelled hair and distorted features into the room. "What is it? what is it?" eagerly demanded the trembling guests. "This is the matter," said one of the girls, who, more bold than the rest, had forked out of the soup a slimy thing, which she bore gallantly aloft. "This awful thing was in the soup." It was an oyster.

An Answer Wanted.

Can any one bring us a case of Kidney or Liver Complaint that Electric Bitters will not speedily cure? We say they can not, as thousands of cases already permanently cured and who are daily recommending Electric Bitters, will prove. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Weak Back, or any urinary complaint quickly cured. They purify the Blood regulate the Bowels, and act directly on the diseased parts. Every bottle guaranteed. For sale at 50 cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

A BASE FABRICATION.

"He's got 'em on! He's got 'em on!" triumphantly exclaimed young Johnnie Jarphly at the breakfast table.

"Got wot on?" asked his mother in surprise. "What ails you, Johnnie! What are peeping under the table so for? Why don't you sit up straight and eat your meal?"

"Pa's got 'em on! I see 'em!" emphatically asserted the Jarphly's heir.

"Got wot on, sir? What are you talking about?" sternly asked the father.

"Why, you've got your pants on, and I heard Mr. Smiff say he thought Ma wore 'em."

Don't You do it.

Don't suffer any longer with the pains and aches of Rheumatism, which make life a burden to you. Relief, speedy and permanent can be procured at the nearest drug store, in the form of Kidney-Wort. Elbridge Malcolm, of West Bath, Maine, says: "I was completely prostrated with Rheumatism and Kidney troubles, and was not expected to recover. The first dose of Kidney-Wort helped me. Six doses put me on my feet, it has now entirely cured me and I have had no troubles since."

INK AND PENS.

A simple mode of preventing ink from damaging metallic pens, it is said, is to throw either into the inkstand or the bottle in which the ink is kept, a few nails, broken bits of steel pens (not varnished) or any other piece of iron not rusted. The corrosive action of the acid contained in the ink is expended on the iron introduced.

An Enterprising Reliable House.

Taylor & McDonald can always be relied upon, not only to carry in stock the best of everything, but to secure the agency for such articles as have well-known merit, and are popular with the people, thereby sustaining the reputation of being always enterprising, and ever reliable. Having secured the agency for the celebrated Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will sell it on a positive guarantee. It will surely cure any and every affection of Throat, Lungs, and Chest, and to show our confidence, we invite you to call and get a Trial Bottle Free.

HARD ON THE LAW.

Said Jones: "We're going to run Blifkins for Judge this fall." Said Smith: "Blifkins! What does he know about law?" "Nothing at all. He never saw a law book. That's the reason we are going to run him. We think that if he is ignorant of law we may get a little justice."

A Splendid Dairy

is one that yields its owner a good profit through the whole season. But he must supply the cows with what they need in order for them to be able to keep up their product. When their butter gets light in color he must make it "gilt edged" by using Wells, Richardson & Co.'s Improved Butter Color. It gives the golden color of June, and adds five cents per pound to the value of the butter.

DIDN'T KNOW HIS BUSINESS.

"What are you doing there?" demanded the grocer of the new clerk. "I'm putting a little sand in the sugar. Ain't that right?" "Great Scott! No. You take a little of the sugar and put it in the sand."

Few are the remedies whose beneficial qualities and real merits have made them so popular with the public, and increased from year to year their consumption, which, whilst possessing the most valuable remedial properties, are yet so simple in their compound, and so easy to take, as The Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman of Toronto. This article is prepared from the pure sulphate of Quinine, combined with fine Sherry Wine, and choice aromatics, which relieves the Quinine of its bitter taste, and does not impair in the least degree the efficacy of its action upon the patient; while small doses, frequently repeated, strengthen the pulse, increase muscular force, and invigorate the tone of the nervous system, and thus, which by the general vigor which it imparts, creates an appetite, which gives to the stomach tone and energy, and fortifies the system against all infectious diseases. Ask for Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine; sold by all druggists.

WHY SHE WASN'T BURIED.

Old uncle Ben, the veteran stage-driver, was an inveterate joker, and was fond of practising his art upon his passengers who shared the driver's-box with him. One day his horses were toiling along a lonely country road and just at night they passed a solitary farm-house, a mile distant from any other and bearing an appearance of a lack of thrift.

"There," said Uncle Ben, pointing with his whip, "there's a woman been lying in that house for more'n a fortnight, and she isn't buried yet."

"Dreadful," said a passenger. "The authorities ought to attend to it. Hasn't she any friends, and why don't they bury her?"

"Got friends enough, but she ain't dead."

Pale, Poor, Puny, & Pallid.

Considering all the ills that attack little children, it is a wonder that any of the poor little youngsters live to grow up.

There are children who are truly objects of pity. They seem almost bloodless. Their cheeks are thin and pinched; their eyes are hollow; and their skin is tightly drawn over their foreheads. There is nothing hearty about them. They do not enjoy their lives. They are suffering from the debility that leads to marasmus. Poor things!

Do a good deed for the pale, poor, puny, and pallid child. Hand its mother a bottle of The Shaker Blood Syrup. Here is life even for the most delicate, the most debilitated; for the child almost given up for dead. Pure blood is what the child needs, to bring it up. The little digestive apparatus will recover. The pale cheeks will fill out. The weary groan of the child will be exchanged for the merry prattle of infantile gladness. Your druggist will tell you what wonders The Shaker Blood Syrup has done for very sick children. For sale by Ormond & Walsh.

WHY THE CHILD CRIED.

The other day, on an Arkansaw railroad train, two handsomely dressed gentlemen were much annoyed by a little girl that kept crying for water. The girl and her mother occupied a seat just behind the gentlemen.

"I don't see why in thunder she don't give the child water," said one of the men.

"Too lazy, doubtless," the other one replied. "Here, porter, take that child a cup of water."

The porter brought the water, and the man turned around and glared at the woman. When the train stopped at the next station a man entered, and, taking the woman in his arms, carried her out. The poor creature was paralyzed.

Costiveness is the cause of the intolerable "bad breath" of multitudes. Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters remove the cause and prevent the evil, and cost only 25 cents. 40-4t.

To Printers, Reporters, &c.

25 CENTS will get you a copy of "OUR JOSHUA AS A REPORTER," and the person who discovers the largest number of typographical errors in the first three chapters and will forward the list to the undersigned before 1st Oct. will receive an OIL PAINTING size 22 x 26 in. 5 in. gilt frame, and the two who find the next largest number will each receive OIL PAINTINGS size 18 x 24 in. heavily framed. The book is just what every one having anything to do with newspaper work should have. The Scottish American Journal, New York, says of it:—

"Our Joshua as a Reporter" is a new book by the author of "Brother Jonathan Sketches." It is a humourous description of the trials and troubles inherent to a newspaper office, and follows the hero from the time he enters as a novice until he becomes a full fledged reporter. Many of the incidents and are intensely amusing, and the work is evidently written by one who is thoroughly acquainted with the practical details of a newspaper office. Address

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 2, 1884.

Judicial Appointments.

At one time, when the admirers of Sir John Macdonald were challenged to mention one redeeming qualitity in his character as a statesman, the sole answer was that his appointments of judges were always made without political considerations—the fitness of the appointed for the position was the only one. But his recent appointments have deprived them of even this "stock" answer. The Premier has jumped to the other extreme and prostituted the judicial bench to the promotion of party ends. Merely to redeem his promise of Irish Roman Catholic representation for Ontario in the Cabinet, Sir John took in Mr. O'Connor. He was soon shifted. This free and easy redemption of a promise did not satisfy Mr. O'Connor; he still stuck -had to be provided for. There were several candidates for the vacant judgeship, many of them eminently fit ones. but to serve a political end, the poorest, in legal qualifications, was selected, and Mr. John O'Connor was appointed a judge of the Superior Court, while a dozen of eminent lawyers with superior claims in respect of ability but not so troublesome politically, were overlooked. Referring to this appointment, Goldwin Smith, in the Week, says:

"Unless some change be made we shall before long see the Superior Courts in possession of men greatly inferior in a knowledge of the law to the counsel who habitually plead before them; appeals, which have already become far too numerous, will become still more frequent; and respect for judicial decisions from which all certainty and stability have departed, will suffer a serious decline." * * * "The appointment marks another step in a descent from which nothing but evil can come."

But the Mousseau appintment is even worse. At the time we pointed out that not only was the appointment equivalent to a distribution of party spoil, but that a man over whose head hung a charge of political corruption, was unfit to be placed in a position to pass judgment on other criminals. In respect to the charge of corrupt practices in the Jacques Cartier election, Judge Mousseau, —yes, "judge", appointed by Sir John—has confessed that he was "guilty, my Lord." There is no defence of such an appointment, and there is a possibility that he will be impeached at the next session of parliament. It is time that the people took the alarm. The political aspect of the mode of making judges in the United States where any jackanapes or scoundrel, who has political influence enough to be elected, is eligible for a judgeship, is one of the worst, if not the worst and most dangerous, features of their political system and is one which Canadians, it is safe to say, will, no matter how much the franchise is broadened, never adopt. Yet it is not one whit worse than making, as Sir John Macdonald has done, judicial appointments to serve political and party ends.

Grand Trunk Railway.

Lord Claude John Hamilton, (brother of Lady Lansdowne) a director of the Grand Trunk Railway and M. P. for Liverpool, has just completed a tour of inspection over the company's lines, and expresses himself as quite satisfied with the condition of the railway. Everything appertaining to the road has been greatly improved during the last ten yeas and it is well equipped and managed. In an interview he said that the company intended erecting a half million dollar station in keeping with Montreal, and that the traffic on the road is so great that a double track between Montreal and Toronto was an absolute necessity, and the Company were pledged to lay another track as soon as possible. He believed also that the kind of rails now in use on the parent line would have to be replaced by heavier ones. The present rails seemed to be too light to bear the heavy locomotives and trains passing over them from West, and larger engines were coming into use everywhere. Keen competition and general decline in trade in Canada had reduced their receipts enormously, and great prudence and economy had to be exercised, for unlike the Canadian Pacific the Grand Trunk could not make up its losses or replenish its exchequer by cash obtained from the Canadian Government. The Grand Trunk Company was anxious to see the Canadian Pacific completed, because it would add to the general railway traffic of the country in which the Grand Trunk would share. The general impression, however, was that the Canadian Pacific would have to be taken over and operated by the Government. The Grand Trunk stockholders had invested enormous sums of money in Canada with practically no return. This year none but the preference shareholders received any dividends, and it was inquitous for the Dominion Government to allow the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to use the money granted by the public to build the main Pacific line in establishing a competing railway system in the older provinces. Such a thing would certainly not have been permitted in England or even, he thought, in the United States. The Grand Trunk did not object to the construction of other railways, even those competing with them, but they surely had cause to complain when the Government of Canada entered the lists against them, and used the public treasury to aid their rivals. The crusade of the Canadian Pacific Company against the Grand Trunk was suicidal, resulting only in injury to both. The Grand Trunk was entitled to some consideration from the people of Canada. It was the pioneer railway of the country, and its construction had made the building of other railways comparatively cheap."

The Test of Right.

The startling frequency with which, in the present day, we hear of crimes committed by men occupying positions of trust and in whom the fullest confidence is placed, is, it must be confessed, somewhat alarming.

To find out some of the causes which underlie this very unsatisfactory condition of affairs is a theme of interest, and in the light of recent events, must appear a seasonable topic.

That gigantic frauds are common, even among those occupying "the highest seats in the synagogue;" that the lack of common honesty and truth in business circles is deplorable; that peculation, swindling and unfair dealing surround much of the so-called business of the present day, these things are, alas! undoubted truths. We read constantly, almost, indeed, daily, of men high in the world's esteem, occupying very respectable positions in society, honored and valued by their fellow-men, resorting to the most questionable methods of making money, and suddenly involving themselves and others in utter and irretrievable ruin. Their sense of right and wrong, judging from their actions, must be very obscure, and the question naturally arises, how is this brought about? What fallacy misleads these victims of their own greed? What ignis fatuus do they take as their "guide, philosopher and friend?" We will do well to inquire for this cause if possible, and in order to do so, we will take an imaginary case.

Here is a man who holds certain moneys or securities in trust. He has the control of a savings bank, or he is engaged by others, who place implicit confidence in him, to look after monetary affairs. He is the executor of an estate, or a trustee for a widow or minors, or he is the confidential clerk of some financial institution. For the safe-keeping of the securities in his possession he is, of course, held responsible. He can, for a time, manipulate these funds without the knowledge of the owner. For months he can use money that is not his own, by a clever system of falsification. He does not intend at first to to appropriate cash or securities to his own use. Nor would he risk them altogether in any venture. But he sees a plan by which money can be made almost without risk. He knows before he is called upon to deliver up the securities, the speculation of which he is constantly dreaming, will have turned out successfully. He can, by investing now, receive the profits himself and return the securities to the safe. The owner will not suffer, and the speculator will be enriched. It is easy to see how such reasoning will result. Scruples of conscience will soon be overcome and the thought, which was at first put away as something too horrible and too dreadful, will at once be carried into action.

It is of little consequence whether his project succeeded admirably or was quickly blasted. Of the one case, the world may know nothing, and the man may carry himhimself proudly in fashionable circles, live most sumptuously and contribute like a prince to charitable purposes—all owing to his ill-gotton gains. When the man loses (and this is not always the case), he is at once consigned to prison, unless, indeed, he escapes by the connivance of sympathizing friends. If tried, he loses his position, his credit, his reputation; and his family is involved in his own disgrace. He is branded as a dishonest man and one unworthy of confidence.

And rightly so, no doubt; but if one is dishonest, so is the other. The successful and the unsuccessful speculator or peculator are alike. The acts and the motives are precisely similar, and even if public opinion condones the offence in one case and the issue of the one, is society and troops of friends, while that of the other, is poverty and the prison, the difference is only in the consequences. Such conduct, no matter how it turns out, is dishonest and dishonorable, and it is high time the world would emphasize this statement. Not what that or this person thinks is harmless or right, but what the Divine law commands, this is the standard up to which we must educate our young men, if the world is to become more truthful, honest and honorable than it is now.

There is a higher authority than the promotion of our own pleasure, or the following of our own desires. Even if no harm is done, even if the act is committed with no wrong intention, it is not necessarily right. The infliction of damage of any kind by word or deed, is, of course, strictly forbidden. But the person who seeks an advantage and who has no desire to cheat or wrong others, but whose methods are not absolutely right, he, too, is prevented by the same divine law. If this authority were fully recognised, then public and private morality would stand secure. Without it, fraud and swindling and dishonesty will continue to flood the earth, for the temptation which offers advantage robed in the garb of innocence, will be met with the words: "Oh! there is no harm in it," and so cupidity and a godless utilitarianism will win the day. May our loved Dominion ever be preserved from this menacing and stupendous evil!

Speaking of the solid advantages Ontario derives from what it calls Mr. Mowat's "splendid victory," the Montreal Star says: "She has come into possession of the finest and largest pine land on the continent. The treasury of the Province, for years to come, will find solid backing in unlimited real estate."

Trent Valley Canal.

Mr. A. P. Cockburn, of Muskoka, is a most sanguine individual. He really seems to believe that it is the intention of the Dominion Government to build the Trent Valley Canal. To be in time, he has written to the Muskoka Banner, advocating the claim of Muskoka, and its lakes to be incorporated into the "mixed canal," which he assumes the Trent Valley Canal will be. He mentions the fact that "the distance across from the foot of Lake Muskoka to the Severn River is less than seven miles, and, further, that a cut of only one mile from Gravenhurst will tap the Severn waters at Log Lake—thence into Morrison Lake and Severn River. Our lakes being the highest can act as feeders for the short canal."

The merit of Mr. Cockburn's claims for Muskoka are not to be gainsaid, but it is possible that he is a little premature in suggesting his part of the route. At the rate the canal is progressing, or likely to progress, under the management of the present Government, it will be far into the next century before it will be necessary to consider the terminal waters of the canal. Several years have elapsed since Sir Charles Tupper took the project under his wing, and what progress has been made? What earnest has this district received of the intention of the Government to push on this work, which is not only of the last importance to this district, but one of the greatest [national importance? A little patching only has been done, and a little spurious energy has been shown in buying up right of way in order to give "Big Push" a job, in the intervals of his bribery engagements. What money was voted and re-voted last session is only a drop in the bucket, compared to what is required if the work is to be prosecuted to completion. Last session of the Dominion Parliament passed by, and batch after batch of the supplementry estimates was passed, yet not a cent was put down for this great and important work. It is no wonder that the feeling in this district is growing that the Government is breaking faith with the Midland District in this matter. The indignation, which party loyalty on the Conservative side, at least, subdues, will find expression at the ballot box, unless, as will probably be the case, before the next election a new splurge is made, a little peddling appropriation voted and the people of this district made to believe that the Ottawa Government really intends to build the Trent Valley Canal. But the Government is too busy with its own political schemes—with cabinet repairs—to look after the interests of our great public works. Since Sir Charles Tupper resigned the Ministry of Railways and Canals, months ago, this Department has been practically without a head and its affairs most villainously neglected. That great public work, the Welland Canal, which has absorbed millions of public money, is, through the culpable negligence of the Government, losing its reputation. So greatly are its affairs neglected and mismanaged that one large line of boats is compelled to contemplate taking their steamers off the Welland Canal and putting them on another route. By its neglect and indifference the Government is doing all it can to ruin the reputation of this national highway. If the Government, instead of seeking to annex Jamaica, would attend to the public interests that affect the whole Dominion, like the Trent Valley and the Welland Canals, it would do something to justify its retention of office. While Tory politicians are squabbling for the portfolio of the Minister of Railways and Canals, the canals, left to the charge of indifferent subordinates, are being ruined not only in efficiency, but also in what is equally, if not more gravely, important, their reputation. But we can expect nothing from an Administration, whose members—those of them who are not seeking to feather their own nests and those of their political friends—care more for the success of their party that the interests of the country.

Anxious to aid the celebration of Sir John Macdonald's fortieth anniversary, the Winnipeg Free Press furnishes the following suggestions for mottoes: "These hands are clean;" "Send me another ten thousand." To show the stamina of the "old war-horse our contemporary also might have added something about "slapping his chops."

Opening Anniversary.

On Thursday evening last the first anniversary of the Young Men's Christian Association in Peterborough was celebrated with very encouraging success in Charlotte Street Methodist Church. There was a large attendance of the public interested in and friendly to the important work of the Association.

In the absence of the Chairman, Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, Mr. D. B. Gardner, 1st Vice-President, occupied the chair. The interesting programme of exercises began by the singing of a hymn by the choir. Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Baptist Church, then offered prayers, and Rev. Mr. Torrance, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, read the Scripture lesson, the 37th chapter of Ezekiel.

This was followed by an address by Mr. Gardner, who gave a general sketch of the work of the Association, which had been broadened and extended, but which had also been crippled from lack of means. As to rooms, the Association was under a burden of gratitude to Mr. Geo. A. Cox, who gave the Association the rooms free of rent. He had not only done this, but he had given his assurance of assistance in the attempt to procure larger and more suitable accommodations. The work the Association had undertaken was not an easy one, and the sympathy and help of the churches was needed, for the work was one that did not compete, but co-operated with the churches. He referred to recent events as showing the necessity of especial watch being kept over young men. It was to the interest of business men to promote the success of the efforts of the Association.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

Mr. G. E. Williams, Permanent Secretary, then presented his first annual report, an exhaustive document, prepared with great care and written in modest but earnest and hopeful language. After a general sketch of the rise and progress of the work of the Association, the report gave detailed statements of what had been accomplished in Peterborough. There had been held during the past year 399 religious meetings under the auspices of the Association. The most of these meetings had been marked by the great interest taken in the exercises by those who attended them. A few conversions had followed these efforts. The work of the Association had been of benefit to the church, by bringing the members of the different churches (for all members of the Association were members of some one of the churches) into spiritual activity.

The Bible classes, conducted by Rev. A. H. Munro, had been attended by most cheering results and had aroused a great desire for Bible study.

The work of the several committees was the subject in the report of more or less detailed reference, and showed how complete and far-reaching were the agencies at work for the regeneration and preservation of young men. During the year the voluntary signatures to the temperance pledge, placed in in the reading rooms of the Association, amounted to 88, of which 28 were those of boys. Assistance in procuring employment had been given several young men. The departure of two zealous workers, Messrs. Wm. Best and O. G. Langford was noted. Association Notes, a monthly periodical, was the local organ of the Association. The reading room was well supplied with newspapers and periodicals and was well patronized, an improvement being noticeable in this respect, but the rooms, both for reading and devotional purposes, were altogether too small for the needs of the Association. In addition to giving these rooms rent free, Mr. Cox had promised $1,000 as the nucleus of a fund for new buildings. The report concluded with warmly expressed thanks to the local newspapers, which had devoted so much space to the affairs and interests of the Association, and to the pastors and trustees of the churches, for their sympathy and active co-operation.

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

The Chairman presented the financial statement, which showed that the receipts had been $636.70, and the expenditure $654.18, leaving an adverse balance of $17.48. There was also a debt of $178 64 to be provided for.

Mr. T. S. Cole, Travelling Provincial Secretary, then addressed the meeting. Forty years ago the 6th of June the first Young Men's Christian Association was established in London, England, by George Williams. Eight years after the system found its way across the ocean, and to Canada belonged the honor of starting the first Association on this continent—on Dec. 9th, 1852, in Montreal. Within forty years two thousand or more Associations have been formed, and there had not been a single case where the fear was realized that any association would develop into a denomination. The Association was undenominational, and instead of being an opponent, had been and was a feeder to the churches. The work was distinctively one for young men. The speaker vividly pictured the temptations to which young men were exposed, and pointed out that in the town of Peterborough there were twenty-one saloons and six billiard rooms whose doors were open to young men. These were made as brilliantly attractive as art could make them, while the rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association were "poky" little premises, utterly unfit for the purposes of the Association. These saloons and billiard parlours were chiefly kept up by young men. These young men often got $7 wages per week and spent in these places $12, and the difference must be the money of employers. Therefore, it was to the interest of business men to assist the Y.M.C.A., whose object was to provide wholesome counter attractions and keep young men moral and honest. The object of the Association toward young men was fourfold—to improve their mental, social, physical and spiritual condition. The progress of this work was briefly outlined, and the speaker pointed out that it was the best and brightest young men that went astray, and called upon all Christian people to lend a helping hand.

A collection was then taken, the choir at the same time singing an anthem.

Rev. I Tovell then addressed the meeting. His principal theme was the securing of suitable buildings, and he presented a scheme, which he had devised, by which a building suitable and worthy of the importance of the Association could be erected. He adduced several sterling arguments to show that the churches had an interest in promoting the work of the Association. His eloquent and forcible remarks were listened to with the closest attention and did much to stimulate in Christian hearts renewed interest in the objects of the Young Men's Christian Association.

During the evening the choir sang several excellent choruses, Mrs. Chambers and Mr. L. E. Horning rendering solos in a most acceptable manner.

The first anniversary services of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. was a most encouraging success.

My how very cheap! is the exclamation. Turnbull's clerks hear every day about their plain and fancy winceies.

SOUTH MONAGHAN AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The twentieth annual exhibition of the South Monaghan Agricultural Society will be held at Centerville on Thursday, October 9th. In addition to the features that ordinarily mark the excellence of this exhibition, there will be special attractions this year. Amongst these is a prize for a band competition, in which it is certain that several first-class bands will take part. The directors and members of the society have been making the most strenuous endeavors to make this exhibition superior in success and attractions to any of the preceeding ones. The exhibit on will be held in the recently erected hall. We have no doubt that the coming show will be in every way a fine success. To this end it has our best wishes.

Do not fail to see Hall, Janes & Co's display of Millinery and Mantles, on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 7th and 8th.

NORWOOD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SAD ACCIDENT.

An unfortunate accident occurred on Friday last at a shingle mill belonging to Mr. C. Calder, at work on the 8th line, Dummer, by which a young man named Fred Rattle, about 18 years of age, received such injuries as to place his life in imminent danger. He was engaged in working the mill for Mr. Calder, and while passing near the main shaft of the machinery his coat-tail was caught by the shaft and he was whirled around with tremendous velocity, every stitch of his wearing apparel, with the exception of one boot and one stocking, being torn off his body. His right arm was terribly shattered near the shoulder, and the scalp torn from the neck to the top of his head, making a very serious and unsightly wound. Medical assistance was at once procured, when it was found necessary to amputate the arm, which operation was successfully performed by Dr. Ford, assisted by Dr. Pettigrew of this village. The scalp wound was also successfully operated upon by these gentlemen, but they still fear that this injury result fatally.

STUCK BY A PITCHFORK.

On Friday last a peculiar and distressing accident happened to a young child, about 4 years old, of Mr. James Welch, of Havelock. While unloading hay, the child happened to be near one of the men unloading, when in the act of taking up a fork full of the hay, the fork missed the latter and entered the left side of the child, inflicting a severe and painful wound. Dr. Ford of this village was at once summoned and rendered the necessary medical assistance.

ROAD WORK.

Our village magnates have undertaken to do some road work at a very important entre of our village, and whether they intended an improvement in the condition of the road by what work they have already done, it is quite certain that results so far attending their indomitable efforts have not proved their wisdom. The road heretofore was in good condition, but required suitable drains to carry off surplus water during the spring and rainy seasons. Now, however, the road bed is in a horribly impassable condition, and, as far as the surplus water is concerned, is no better a state than before the "improvement." Such a deep gully has been formed, that quite a big jump has to be taken from intersecting roads, to the great risk of damaging vehicles passing this part of our main throughfare. Already a number of vehicles have come to grief through the "improvements," and bills of damages to no end are to be served upon our council for breakages incurred at the jumping off place, at the corner of Colborne and Peterborough streets. To make matters worse it is said that all the money allotted for these "improvements," has already been swamped in the removing of the much needed gravel from the road, and it is feared it is to remain a clay pond-hole till jack frost or the snow comes to put it in a better condition than our councillors seem competent to do.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

A Board of Health composed of the Reeve, the Township Clerk, and Messrs. Robert Wilson, A. R. Anderson and Thos. Fraser, has been organized for this village. All good men and fully competent for the discharge of their duties devolving upon them. On Wednesday last the Board inspected their several divisions of the village, and with but few exceptions, found the premises of our citizens in a remarkably commendable state of cleanliness. Previous to this visit, however, our people, aware of the scrutiny about to be made upon their domiciles, set to work to put their houses in order, and consequently on the appearance of the officials their visit was short and sweet. It is to be hoped that the Board will not be satisfied with an official inspection, but will insist upon the removal from within the corporation, of every nuisance injurious to the health of our villagers.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

On Monday afternoon an old man named Patrick Mellon, a railway car-repairer, residing at the round house, was severely injured by a freight train near the Indian river. Mellon, it appears, was up at the river attending to the repairs of some cars, and was in the act of getting out of the way of the train when he was caught by the pilot of the engine. He was severely cut and bruised about the face and forehead, several of his ribs were broken, and he sustained it is thought, internal injuries as well. He was brought to Norwood in an exhausted state, and Drs. Ford and Pettigrew both promptly attended to his ailments. He is now progressing favorably.

ORANGE FESTIVAL.

The Orange Lodge of this village hold a grand festival in the drill shed here on the first of October. It is expected that Mr. J. White, M. P., and several high dignataries of the Orange order will address the meeting. As the brethren are making every effort to make the festival a successful one, it is expected that there will be a large attendance from the surrounding villages and townships.

Orion Catlin, 49 Pearl street, Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I tried various remedies for the piles, but found no relief until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which entirely cured me after a few applications." Since Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has become celebrated, unprincipled persons are imitating it. Get the genuine.

Sanitary Matters.

It will be rembered that at the last meeting of the local Board of Health, a resolution, moved by Mr. Cox, seconded by Mr. Stapleton, was adopted directing the vault privies in the district embraced between Charlotte and Brock streets from Aylmer to Water street, to be replaced with dry earth closets. It is the intention of the Board to see that this regulation is rigidly enforced, so important is the matter considered from a sanitary point of view. The dry earth system is a subject of the most vital interest—in view of Peterborough being without a system of drainage. In the dry earth system the deodorization is complete, the earth entirely assimulating and rendering perfectly inodorous and inoffensive, all fecal and other matters subjected to its influence. So thorough is the deodorization that it is practicable to use the same earth several times in succession, as has already been done in this town. The earth used is a loam or a friable clay, both thoroughly dried and well pulverized. Persons contemplating setting up dry earth closets must bear in mind that mud—being as it is, rock in a finely divided state—is utterly useless, because it possesses no absorbing power beyond a merely interstitial one, and has no power of assimilation. Now that the dry earth system by the action of the Board of Health, must come largely into use, a new branch of industry, that of providing suitable earth, is open for some enterprising man. The subject is one of the very gravest importance, and forces itself upon public attention. The abundent presence of cess pools, and the absence of drainage have so thoroughly saturated the soil in the neighborhood of George street, especially, that the water in the wells, through the absorption of animal matters, is utterly unfit for use. The same condition that obtains here will obtain in time in other portions of the town. When the porous soil reaches the maximun point of saturation, offensive matters must flow into our wells, and pollute the water used for drinking and domestic purposes. The general adoption of the dry earth closet system will remedy the evils which the presence of cess pools and the absence of drainage are sure to produce.

Read our Advertisements.

This is the time of year when the public pay special attention to the advertisements to be found in our columns. Business men are therein sending each consumer a letter of personal importance. It announces what stock he has for sale and what inducements he offers the buyer. It costs him considerable money to advertise, he means what he says and expects the people to read the advertisements. And the people do read them. A farmer's wife needs a bolt of cotton, she consults the local paper and goes to the shop whose advertisement offers the best bargains. In a local paper the advertisements are the most interesting matter to many readers, something like the postscript to a woman's letter, the most important part of it.

SMITH.

MRS. MOODIE'S DEATH.

Mrs. Moodie, the well known Canadian authoress who died in Toronto, Friday, at the age of 82, wrote "Roughing it in the Bush." One of her last weaks was "Dorothy Chance," published in serial form in the Montreal News.

COBOURG.

The petition for the submission of the Scott Act was deposited with the Sheriff on Saturday afternoon. It contained 4,700 names over five hundred names more than was necessary. The temperance people calculate to carry the Act by over 1,000 majority.

Sufferers from the effects of quinine, used as a remedy for chills and fever, will appreciate Ayer's Ague Cure, a powerful tonic bitter, composed wholly of vegetable substances without a particle of any noxious drug. Its action is peculiar, prompt and powerful, breaking up the chill, curing the fever, and expelling the poison from the system, yet leaving no harmful or unpleasant effect upon the patient.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 1st, 1884

The movement in grain is considerably larger. Barley is the principal grain moving. Prices have run up and it has sold from 50c. to 65c.; very little going at the latter price. Spring wheat has been bringing 80c. to 82c. Fall wheat 75c. to 78c., an extra quality would bring 80c. A few loads of peas sold from 62c. to 64c. Rye, 50c. Oats 30c. to 32c. On the Market:—Butter is more plentiful and easier, selling in crocks at 18c. to 20c., in rolls at 20c. to 23c. Keg butter brings 16c. to 18c., a few tubs have been sold at that. Chickens, 35c. to 45c. Ducks, 55c. to 60c. Geese, 50c. to 60c. Eggs less plentiful, selling at 16c. Lamb plentiful at 6c. to 7c. Potatoes 40c. to 50c. per bag, mostly 40c. Apples, 60c. to 90c. per bag. Other commodities unchanged.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Isaac Sherin of Winnebago City, Minnesota, is in town visiting friends.

Councillor Allen is prostrated with a severe attack of fever, but we are pleased to learn, not of a dangerous type.

Mr. Geo. Edwards, who first introduced the telephone in town, and who has been sojourning in the North-West, is in town on a visit.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, St. Luke's, exchanged pulpits with the Rev. John Farncomb, Lakefield, on Sunday last.

Mr. John McClelland was one of the judges on Poultry, at the Dominion Exhibition, Ottawa.

Mr. James Walton, formerly an E flat cornet player in the Fire Brigade Band, has returned to Peterborough after a considerable residence in the Northwest.

The president and officers of the Peterborough Boating Club have received an invitation to the fall regatta At Home of the Argonaut rowing club, Toronto.

A party, composed of Messrs. Wm. Bresley, Wm. Brownscomb, W. G. Yelland and R. Chowen, are off to Deer Lake on a ducking expedition.

M. Bird of this town has, through the sporting columns of the Mail, issued a challenge to Williamson of Midland, to run a one mile foot race on the Driving Park here, on Oct. 9th, for a purse of $50 a side.

Mr. Orm. Dixon, Peterborough's ventriloquist, is in town, looking blooming. He has just returned from a professional tour on the Pacific coast and in the west, and will remain in town a few weeks before entering upon a season's engagement in Cincinnatti.

Mr. J. J. Sheehy returned home on Tuesday from his holiday jaunt to New York. He is very sorry that he did not have a chance to show his "face" at the Ottawa Lacrosse match on the 25th, but he thinks his mantle fell on worthy shoulders, and he is as proud as a pet peacock over the result of the match.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"Silence!" Philip said, so low, so sternly, his voice so shaken with the passion that almost defied his will, that Nat flushed and grew pale. "The man is my brother's murderer; is not that enough? For you, miserable dog, I could find it in my heart to lay you dead at my feet for the part you have played in all this. But that you are necessary to me, I would cast you off without pang or pity, to starve in these streets of London. Were you man or devil to see that poor girl suffer under the vile charge for the guerdon of a little gold? Death! The thought is madness!" He paused abruptly and walked with quick strides to the other end of the room.

"My very life reels," he half whispered, looking upwards. "Ah, blood for blood, and for every hour of her suffering his shall be counted drop for drop."

He was outwardly calm when he came back to Poynter's side, and his voice had not lost its sweet measure as he spoke.

"You will," he said, give all this story you have told me as evidence against Murray?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you know where he is now?"

"No, sir, I don't; he went off so quick I couldn't follow him, bein' weak like."

"Weak! Ah, yes, I had forgotten." Philip swept away the silky wave of hair from his forehead and stood in thought for a moment, then he said:

"You know his last address?"

"It was 12 Gilbert-street, Pimlico, and he was called Righton there, sir; the police would be able to find him, I daresay; and he used to be well known, sir, in London, used to be great friends with the officers in Mr. Walter's regiment—I don't know the name."

"The Lancers, I know. There is no time to be lost." He touched the bell and Andrews came up. "Take this man downstairs," he said, briefly, "and see that he has food, and get me a hansom, and, Poynter, see that you keep silence."

Andrews retired with his charge more and more perplexed, and Philip remained for some time in deep grave thought; he must put aside for a time all emotion of joy, or sorrow, or remorse; he had stern work to do first. As soon as Poynter was refreshed he drove with him to Scotland Yard, and there the boatman repeated such part of the story he had told Mr. St. John as was necessary to establish the charge against Arnold Murray, alias Stephen Martin; and Philip thought that Erica would know where Arnold was, and though his heart was bleeding for her, he never shrank from the steadfast purpose to which he had set himself—he would yield no mercy to his brother's murderer, and to the man who had suffered Philip St. John's wife to bear the reproach of a dishonored name.

The sun was not yet sunk when Philip came out again into the soft warm air—there was a deep, steadfast light in the dark eyes, a light that had never shone there from the first shock of that terrible night three years before. Some crushing weight was lifted from his heart, and yet there was still a trembling doubt of expectancy, hope and fear. He glanced up at the sun, quite low in the heavens, and looked at his watch; every pulse throbbed and burned with the longing that could not be controlled—to see her once more face to face, to plead for forgiveness as she had once pleaded to him, to hold her in his arms, to claim, to keep her as his own forevermore. He could not wait for another day, he could not live through the agony of a night that left her in suffering.

"I cannot," he muttered, passionately, "I will not. Erica, my life! each minute that holds me from your side is a lifetime."

He hailed a passing hansom, and sprang in, telling the man he should have extra fare if he drove quickly. And the man obeyed and never slackened speed till he drew up his horse, all foaming and wet, at the gateway of the little Hampstead villa.

"You need not wait," Philip said, laying a sovereign in the man's hand; and he drove off well pleased with the liberal interpretation of extra fare.

CHAPTER XVII.

CAN LOVE ATONE?

The servant Mary looked a little surprised as she ushered the savior of Kenneth into the drawing-room.

"My mistress is in her boudoir, sir," she said, rather stiffly, "I'll tell her you wish to see her; but she gave orders that she wouldn't see no one."

She retired and went upstairs, returning in a moment or two.

"My mistress cannot see you, sir," she said; "she ain't well."

"She must and will see me," Philip said, quietly, and went out into the hall.

The girl threw herself in his way in some alarm.

"You can't see her, sir," she cried.—"You mustn't go up. Who are you?"

"Stand aside, girl," and Philip put his hand on her shoulder and swung her with gentle force out of his way, speaking sternly; "I am in no mood to be trifled with. I am Philip St. John."

He did not wait to see the effect of his words, but sprang lightly up the stairs, and paused, uncertain, with wildly throbbing heart.

The door before him was a little open, and yet in this last moment when the next few seconds might give him back again the short-lived joy of the past, a trembling fell on his spirit, a great fear.

What if with stern accusing eyes she met him? What if she yielded not the pardon he had so relentlessly withheld? Would she if she loved him? Surely no.

But he could never long linger in suspense. If the next moment must dash the cup of joy from his lips, why, let it come, and he could meet it.

He softly opened the door and entered.

She was kneeling down by the couch, her face bent down on her hands, her bright hair streaming like a mantle about her, every line of the drooping figure eloquently speaking of the utter despair and sorrow that made her daily life a burden; but she heard the step, the closing of the door, and with a cry bounded to her feet, flinging back the tresses from her forehead, looking at him like some wild, hunted creature.

Impulsively he sprang forward, stretching out his hands to her, but stopped abruptly.

It seemed then to come over him with an overwhelming force how the wrong he had done her stood between them yet—forbade a nearer approach—and with that sudden revulsion he bent down his head low with a deep humility, folding his arms tightly over his breast, striving to suppress the bitter remorseful agony that trembled in the half-whispered words:

"You asked pardon and mercy of me once, Erica, with tears and prayers. I turned from your prayers, I spurned your anguish——"

The sweet voice failed, faltered, stopped. He bowed his head yet lower; his lips could frame no more.

It seemed as though the girl scarcely understood his words, or felt vaguely, as through a dim dream. They fell on her senses. She knew that Philip stood before her. That was her husband speaking to her. What was it he said? Pardon, mercy!" Was he come to forgive them?

"Philip!" She put her hands out dizzily, tremblingly, and sank down on her knees before him. "Philip, you will not leave me again; you will have mercy!"

He bent over her, lifting her to his breast, wrapping her close in his arms, bowing his forehead down to hers.

"My darling, my heart's life," he said, with trembling passion, "rest here, my own wife; forgiveness is not mine—yours only. Oh, Erica, Erica! what atonement shall I make for the past? I have no more love to give. I know all now, my darling. Hush, hush, child; these tears are my punishment."

Erica was weeping convulsively in Philip's arms, drawing long racking sobs that seemed torn up from the roots of her heart. She was conscious that Philip's clasp held her; that his voice was speaking those sweet gentle words; his lips were pressing her brow with such passionate caresses. Ah, it was but a dream. Such idle, beautiful dreams she had had, and woke to such fresh bitterness that she feared sleep now. He tried at first to soothe her, but the loving touch only seemed to increase her emotion; and then he held her silently to his heart, waiting, whispering at last in bitter pain:

"My heart, these tears are my reproach. They tell me all I have made you suffer. Tell me, darling, tell me, whisper you forgive me."

"Oh, no, no." She strove and in part succeeded in stemming the tide that would have its way till then. "It is I who have need of forgiveness. But it is not real; only a dream. Philip, Philip, oh, hold me close; don't let me wake."

She clung to him almost frantically, and only his tender touch and voice soothed her back to something like quiet. She had not comprehended yet why he had come, or that his so coming implied a knowledge of the whole past. She had no distinct thought; nothing but a sense of being once more surrounded as with loving protection. She scarcely knew whether this was reality yet.

And he watched her with an almost trembling anxiety as she lifted her head, and her large eyes wandered with a half-perplexed, half-inquiring look round the room, then up to his face, meeting his eyes. How instantly the expression changed!

"Philip," she said, softly, and he put back the hair from her forehead in silence, looking into those beautiful eyes, meeting their pure, tender light with such bitter regret in his own.

"Oh, child, child" he said, brokenly, and turning his face aside, "what can atone to you? I cannot meet your eyes unfalteringly, for the bitter wrong I have done you."

Erica had remained for a moment, as he turned from her, standing there with quivering lips, and anguish creeping again over her features. It was going from her then—it was not reality after all!

But as he spoke those sorrowful, self-condemning words, as the mists vanish under the warm lights of the sun, so the half-bewildered, dream-like expression gave way to one of earnest comprehension. She put her hand to her forehead, and her brows were contracted; a shrinking terror for a moment quivered through every limb; and then, like a flash it all came to her—her heart bounding at once to the bright joy, and sinking with dim foreboding at the inevitable conclusion. There was only one thing that could have brought Philip to her side.

She came to him, and her soft, slender fingers were clinging to his hands, drawing them down.

"Philip, oh, Philip, my husband!" she whispered, entreatingly, "for me it is to atone, for me to pray forgiveness. I did not quite understand before, sorrow had dulled me; and—and I only knew that you held me again, that you loved me. But it has come back to me now—now you know all, Philip, all!"

He lifted his head and drew her within the shelter of his arms.

"I know all, my child," he said, gravely and quietly, his hand clasping hers closely, "I know all you have done and suffered, and sacrificed. Hush, dear one, and listen."

For she bent her head down on his arm, shivering from head to foot, with a burst of agony that she tried in vain to control.

"Philip, Philip, though I prayed for it with tears, your love crushes me! Oh, if it had been only myself who suffered—only my name dishonored, but to you, for whom I should have died to save from a moment's anguish, to you I have brought such suffering as I can never, never wipe out. You have done me no wrong, Philip; how could you deem me innocent? But that vow—that awful vow——"

She stopped, her voice choked for a moment, but she mastered herself and went on in the same way, unheeding his quick, staying touch.

"I have known it was wrong, questioning with myself in what terrible conflict I cannot tell, but that oath bound me——"

"What vow, what oath, my child?" Philip asked, softly. "I know all but the motive which could have forced you to do so much for this man."

"It was a vow made to the dying," said the girl, low and quiveringly. "I swore to my mother on the cross I wore and on the Holy Bible, that I would protect and shield Arnold throughout his life. He was weak and wild, and my spirit was stronger than his. Philip those words are burned into my brain, they have been with me waking and sleeping: 'To love and protect him through evil report and good report, in honor and dishonor, to shield him from all danger however incurred; to do this, not counting the cost to myself or to others; to suffer loss, shame, misery, in his place!' I brooded over that trust till my brain grew morbid. Yet was it wrong to keep that vow, Philip?"

"It was an iniquitous trust to lay on a child of sixteen, Erica," Philip said, sternly. "Such an oath could never be binding on you, for its very foundation was wrong. No power of earth or heaven could lay it on you to wrong another, or in shielding an assassin.—Could you think it right, my poor child?"

"I did not know. I thought I was bound," she whispered, brokenly. "He trusted me, he threw himself on my mercy. Oh, Philip, it was agony to know that my hand was against you, that my protection baffled your just vengeance; it was agony to live in your presence, deceiving you. I know that you saw a difference in me after that letter came. O, if then I had told you."

"Was I so stern, so cold, my child?" Philip said, sadly. "Ah, Erica, why did you so fear me?"

She lifted her face to his, and stretched her locked hands to him.

"No, no!" she gasped, and his heart smote him for the reproach. "Philip, I loved you, it was only—only——"

"Hush, dear one, I know," he drew her again to him in a loving clasp. "Forgive me that cruel reproach. It was my fault. I was ever too stern and strict where honor was touched, and you feared that I should part you from your cousin. Am I right?"

"Yes," she whispered, and then added falteringly; "I feared you a little, Philip. I should have told you about Arnold before you made me your wife. But oh, it was hard, Philip, to say what might have parted me from you. It was wrong; my whole life has been wrong, has it not?"

He turned aside, covering his eyes with his hands.

"It is a hard thing to be your judge," he said, hoarsely. "Spare me, Erica. In this first hour of reunion, I can only feel that you are mine once more."

"That is what breaks my heart," the girl said, passionately. "You will not condemn, surely, surely you must; there must be some root of bitterness. Oh, Philip, I could bear rebuke, I could bear your stern anger——"

"There is no anger in my heart, my poor child," he said, gently, and kept both her hands in his strong, tender clasp. "Not anger, only pain and regret, so bitter that I cannot give it utterance. For it was not your own name, your own honor alone, Erica, you cast behind you; you held these in trust. No vow could or ought to have bound you to trample on your husband's honor—and that was to shield your husband's enemy. Did you ever think, my child, of the future? Do you know how hard it is to live down the world's condemnation; how hard to win back a name lost? Even when this sorrowful story, and will that not be an agony to hear, is told before the world, there will be some found to sneer, and to doubt its truth. And it is a stainless name you bear, Erica."

The sweet, soft voice faltered a little, and he paused, bending down over the stricken form bowed at his feet. She raised a white, haggard face to his, and he almost started back to see the anguish that spoke in the large eyes all dim now with pain; they met his now for a second, then drooped, and she covered her face with shaking hands.

"I have brought shame on you," she said, hoarsely. "It is my hand that has drawn stain on your name. Oh, God, help me! I will go away and never trouble you more. The world shall never know me for the wife who sinned to wrong you. Let me go, Philip. You have forgiven me; I ask no more."

She strove to draw herself from his clasp, but he only held her closer.

"Only death shall part us now," he said, pressing passionate kisses on brow, and eyes, and lips. "My darling, if all the world scorned thee, this breast should shield thee, this arm defend thee, this heart deem thee true and pure. Have I passed through these years of torture to part after all? Won thee back, white as snow, to yield thee to sorrow? No, no, child; this is wronging me, that is doubting my love, my honor. Oh, when, when may I win a perfect trust?"

Awed, almost terrified, by this passionate vehemence, the girl lay passive in his arms; in her self-humiliation she had striven to spare him; but ah! it was sweet to know that he would not accept the sacrifice, sweet to feel still he owned—would own her—his darling, his wife; sweet to hear his dear voice whisper over her gentle words of love, to feel his lips touch hers again and again.

"Philip," she murmured, "forgive me; I trusted your love. I only would have borne the punishment, I would have spared you."

"I know it, darling. Forget my last words, they were only wrung from me by my own dark distrust. You know my life—so barren of love and faith; only you are true, I know that now."

He drew her down to the couch and sat softly smoothing back the bright, clustering curls from her brow, and after a long silence she said, shivering a little:

"Who told you, Philip?"

"This evening Poynter came to me and told me all. He seemed partly actuated by remorse, more by the fact that Murray had not kept his word with him. He had met Murray that day, he told him with insolence he should have no more money from him. Poynter has been ill, and was almost starving when he found me out."

"And Arnold," the girl interrupted, quickly, catching her breath, "is he taken?"

"He will surely be, Erica."

"Philip," she said, convulsively, "you will not follow this to the bitter end? Spare him, forgive——"

His brow grew dark, the firm lips stern, the old hard look she had seen, that made her shrink now.

"Do you know what you ask, Erica?" he said. "Spare him—a man doubly cursed—the man who took from me the only beings I loved. No, I will neither spare nor forgive—forgiveness here would indeed be dishonor. Unless this be all told to the world, your name—my name—stands dishonored."

He rose up, and began pacing up and down the room; he was deeply moved. Ever passionate and impulsive, even now for a moment he was touched to something like anger.

"Has he been to you, here?" he said, after a moment, scarcely noticing her drooping form and sorrowful attitude.

"Yes," she answered him, her lips quivering, the tears springing to her eyes.

"He has dared——"

He stopped abruptly and added:

"You know where he is then?"

"Yes," she said again.

And then he came to her and laid his hands on her shoulders.

"You must tell me everything, Erica," he said, quietly. And she gave him one swift glance into his face and recoiled.

"No, no, I cannot. Philip, spare me! He trusts me—my oath!"

"Your oath!" He set his teeth hard, crushing down words that would have been cruel, but when he spoke it was still quietly, but perhaps a little sternly; "Enough has been sacrificed to that, Erica. It is hard to lay this on you, but there is no help for it; in this you must obey me!"

She struggled for a moment with herself. She knew he would not yield, and that this was the only atonement she might make. Then she turned, and went silently to the table and took from her desk a paper and laid it in his hand, half hesitated, and then with a sudden impulsive burst of sorrow, threw herself on his breast.

"Oh, Philip, Philip! speak kindly to me; I cannot bear your anger now."

His lip quivered and lost all its sternness, the dark eyes softened as he drew her close in his embrace.

"My heart's dearest," he said, low and tenderly, "forgive me! Nay, I was cruel to try you so; to you my voice should be ever soft. Ah, my poor child," with what intense bitterness he spoke, "it is but the wreck of a life that I bring you now. I have been weary, and my heart has been sick with longing and suffering, and this suffering has not passed me by scatheless. Try to bear with me, Erica, till your gentle hand shall lead me to softer moods, your voice shall soothe this haughty spirit!"

"Dear Philip," she looked up for the first time with something of the old, sweet smile, "my task—no, my joy it shall be to smooth away the rough places and plant flowers where there have been thorns—for the thorns were of my sowing, Philip."

"Hush, dear one, not that," he said, lightly touching her lips; "that shall be all forgotten." He was silent a moment, and then added, with some effort: "And now, my child, it is hard to part from you even these few hours, but necessity is laid on me. To-morrow I shall take you from here; you will come to me——"

She shrank a little.

"Not till—not till that is over," she said, wistfully; "till the world will know the truth, Philip."

"Yes, Erica—at once," he answered. "I do not wait for the world's fiat.—Trust yourself to me, my darling, be at rest."

"I will, Philip, for your sake."

He folded her in his arms, and kissed her forehead with a long, lingering kiss, and then smiled down into the upturned face so sad, yet with a dawning brightness, the dark eyes so wistful and tender.

"Only a few hours," he said, still clasping her hand as though even then he could scarcely bear to let her go. "To-morrow's sun shall light you to joy, dear one. You shake your head. Is there any sorrow for you that I may not lighten?"

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

VARIETIES.

There are said to be more than a quarter of a million women in London who work with their needles for a bare subsistence.

Arnica & Oil Liniment is the best remedy known for stiff joints. 40-4t.

There is said to be not a single instance on record where employes of railroads have stolen tickets from their respective companies and escaped arrest.

Coughs and Colds.—If everything has failed, try Allen's Lung Balsam and be cured. See Advertisement.

The yield of potatoes in Canada, the New England States and New York state this year will be about a third less than last year.

"My daughter has taken the medicine faithfully, according to directions, and her health and spirits are now perfect. The humor is all gone from her face. I wish every anxious mother might know what a blessing Ayer's Sarsaparilla is in such cases."

It was a Massachusetts jury that rendered the verdict: "Died by the hereditary visitation of God." The man had broken his neck when drunk, and a similar mishap had befallen his grand-father.

Freeman's Worm Powders are safe in all cases. They destroy and remove Worms in children or adults. 40-4ins.

If a man empties his purse into his head, no man can take it away from him. An investment in knowledge always pays the best interest.

Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap—Healing, soothing, and cleansing for all eruptive diseases of the skin. Delightful for toilet use. 40-4ins.

Every individual has a place of usefulness to fill in the world, and it is important in some respect whether he chooses to take his place and act or not.

The population of the United States increases at the rate of 22 per cent. every ten years. At this rate there will be 88,000,000 inhabitants in 1900.

A Firm Opinion

The firm of Ormond & Walsh, druggists, of Peterborough, say Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is one of their best standard Medicines for Summer Complaints. 40-2t.

Who first introduced walking sticks? Eve, when she presented Adam with a little Cain.

If you suddenly saw a house on fire, what three celebrated authors would you feel inclined to name? Dickens, Howitt, Burns.

A Good Time.

When is the best time to take a blood purifier? Whenever the blood is foul and humors appear, or when the system is debilited take Burdock Blood Bitters. 40-2t.

It may be said, greatly to the credit of women, that, although thousands of the sex hold positions of financial trust, we rarely hear of one of them being guilty of forgery, embezzlement or defalcation.

National Pills are unsurpassed as a safe, mild, yet thorough, purgative, acting upon the biliary organs promptly and effectually. 40-4ins.

New York girls are said to spend their pocket money in buying jeweled garter-buckles at $200 and upwards, smelling bottles at $350, gold-headed silk umbrellas for $150, hairpins at $50, and jeweled opera glasses at $500.

Great Fatality.

The ravages of Cholera Infantum and Summer Complaints among children is truely alarming. The most reliable cure is Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. Every bottle guaranteed to give satisfaction. 40-2t.

Fussy Old Maid (entering baseball grounds)—Why, what did they all begin to yell "Fowl!" for when I came in? Do they mean me? Polite Gatekeeper—"Oh, no mum. You ain't no chicken.

The history of Downs' Elixir is identified with the history of New England for the last fifty years. It cures coughs and colds. 40-4t.

Application will be made at the next session of the Ontario Legislature for an Act to incorporate Stratford as a city.

Remarkable Restoration.

Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of Buffalo, N. Y., was given up to die by her physicians, as incurable with consumption. It proved Liver Complaint, and was cured with Burdock Blood Bitters. 40-2t.

In excavating a well at York, Me., the roots of neighboring oaks and hickories were found embedded in the rock 40 feet below the surface. From either pressure or absorption they had in many instances formed cylindrical channels in the stone.

Mr. H. McCaw, Custom House, Toronto, writes: "My wife was troubled with Dyspepsia and Rheumatism for a long time; she tried many different medicines, but did not get any relief until she used Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure. She has taken two bottles of it, and now finds herself in better health than she has been for years."

Great Britian is better supplied with newspapers than any other country in the world. Belgium comes next, and the United States is third. There are 34,000 newspapers published in the world, of which 32,000 are published in Europe and North America alone.

A Sudden Attack.

All people, and especially travellers, are liable to a sudden attack of Cholera Morbus, Colic, Diarrhœa and Dysentery. Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is the most prompt and reliable remedy known. 40-2t.

Jones—"Hello, Smith, haven't seen you for a week. Been sick? You ought to take a vacation." Smith—"Just got back from one, and feel exhausted, of course. A few days work in the office will set me all right again."

Modern Magic.

The magical power over pain that Hagyard's Yellow Oil possesses, out rivals the marvels of ancient times. It acts in a natural manner to subdue inflammation; cures Rheumatism, Croup, Deafness, Sore Throat, and painful injuries.

"Ma," said a thoughtful boy, "I don't think that Solomon was so rich as they say he was." "Why, my dear?" "Because the Bible says he slept with his fathers; and if he had been so rich, he would have had a bed of his own."

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second; It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

A racy story is told of an old lady who refused to be comforted by her pastor's assurance that when he left she would have a better pastor as his successor. "Na, na!" she said, "I have seen fourteen changes in the ministers since I attended the kirk, and every one has been waur than anither."

No Disappointment.

Disappointments of one kind and another crop up all along life's pathway, for unfortunately it is the unexpected that always happens. There is at least one article of acknowledged merit that never disappoints. Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor is sure to remove the worst corns in a few days, and as no claim is made that it will cure anything else, it cannot disappoint. If you have hard or soft corns just try it. Beware of the article "just as good." N. C. Polson & Co., proprietors, Kingston.

A minister travelling through the West some years ago asked an old lady on whom he called, what she thought of the doctrine of total depravity. "Oh," she replied, "I think it is a good doctrine if the people would only live up to it."

In the Hammock.

A drive or a stroll through the suburbs will show how generally the hammock has come into use as an adjunct of outdoor comfort. There is scarcely a dooryard or a piazza of any pretension without one or more of these swinging couches. Rightly placed and hung, the hammock affords the very luxury of repose, and our people have done well to borrow it from their summer neighbors, whose climate and temperament are so conducive to the cultivation of a "genius for repose."

But rightly hung does not mean suspended in a cramped situation, with both ends equally elevated. This is the way to put up a swing, but not a hammock, unless it be intended simply to sit in. For reclining purposes the head should be higher than the feet. A good rule is to fasten the hook for the head of the hammock six feet, three inches from the ground or floor, and the lower end three feet, three inches. The distance between the two should be eighteen or twenty feet, though fifteen feet will answer. The longer rope should be on the bottom end, as this makes swinging much easier and more agreeable.

For outdoor use, when two trees are not available, the hook for the head may be fastened to the tree or the rope tied to it, and a post set in the ground at the required distance at the lower end. In this manner, shade can be secured though the lounger be the possessor of but a single tree. The fastenings and the rope should be strong and secure beyond a peradventure; and if the hammock is to be used by young children, it should be hung very near to the ground, that the inevitable tumbles and spillings may be as harmless as possible. The closely woven hammocks are best, as they do not catch the buttons nor wear out so quickly.

For an enjoyable and healthful siesta, or for summer reading and day dreaming, this "conch in the air" is preferable to all others. For the purposes of flirtation or courtship—if the latter old-fashioned word be applicable to the modern fashion of wooing—we have not observed that any hints or directions are necessary. The hammock lends itself to the graces and natural wiles of woman, and adapts itself to a young man's fancies with a facility that suggests its origin in the land of languors and of love. Its utilitarian ends are many, but it is nevertheless essentially a thing of beauty and luxury.—Boston Herald.

The reporter of the Times yesterday inspected what is probably the largest strawberry ever raised in California. It was grown on the place of M. Welch, superintendent of the Southern California Packing company, and measures 7½ inches in circumference. The plant on which this extraordinary berry grew was planted last February and is of the Sharpless variety. Besides this remarkable specimen alluded to, there are seventy-three more berries on the plant, and at least twenty blossoms.—Los Angeles Times.

Don't Do It. Do not Wait.

If suffering from pain, but go at once to the nearest drug store and buy a sample bottle of Polson's Nerviline, the great pain cure. Never fails to give immediate relief. Nerviline is endorsed by medical men everywhere. Don't wait a single hour without trying Nerviline. The best medicine in the world to keep in the house in an emergency. Ten and 25 cents a bottle.

SILVER IN THE SELKIRKS.

Dr. Dawson has examined and pronounced a favorable opinion upon a quantity of specimens of silver ore brought into Calgary by Mr. Broderick and his party who went out prospecting in April last, and has lately returned. He has taken up, it is reported, a number of claims, which are alleged to be situated somewhere about twenty-two miles south of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, FOR WASTING, DELICATE CHILDREN.

Dr. Nysewander, of Des Moines, Iowa, says: "I have used Scott's Emulsion, and find it satisfactory in every respect. Children take it readily with excellent results."

They persist in calling the ex-Empress of Mexico "Poor" Charlotta, but since her residence in a madhouse her small expenses have permitted her enormous fortune to marvelously magnify, and she will leave several millions for her brothers, her only heirs, to inherit.

A man in Hamilton, Ga., has written for a divorce to the Governor of the State, because he says he doesn't wish to give a lawyer $25 for one. His letter closes as follows: "Please see about this rite off, and doant wate until after I am ded befoor you let me hear from you."

The cheapest medicine in use is Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, because so very little of it is required to effect a cure. For croup, diphtheria, and diseases of the lungs and throat, whether used for bathing the chest or throat, for taking internally or inhaling, it is a matchless compound.

A minister having preached the same discourse to his people three times one of his constant hearers said to him after service: "Doctor, the sermon you gave us this morning having had three readings, I move that it now be passed."

"No," said an old lady, "I'm not one to talk again my neighbors, or say anything behind their backs. Now, there is Mrs. Brown, she who lives over in the corner house. I may not like her very well, still there's no reason why I should run her down. But I do feel miserable sorry for poor Mr. Brown and the children."

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture like perspiration intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for $1.25. Address DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Cheap Milk.

The people of Welland are reaping the benefit of the deepening of the Welland Canal so as to admit in boundless supply the water of Lake Erie. We are pleased to inform the public that the Secretary of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows, Mr. W. J. Minore, has completed a correspondence that has resulted in the engagement of Rev. T. De Witt Talmage, of Brooklyn, N.Y., to deliver a lecture in Bradburn's Opera House, upon a subject and a date soon to be made known. The reputation of this noted divine renders commendation superfluous.

Highly Successful Social.

On Monday evening a delightfully successful social was held in the Town Hall, Ashburnham, under the auspices of the ladies of the village, connected with St. Peter's Cathedral. The musical programme was well carried out by Misses Archambault, Begley, Dunn, Delaney, and Laplante, and the Messrs. Picard and Le Grois. The excellent refreshments were highly appreciated. The financial outcome was very gratifying, the amount realized being about $100.

Presbytery of Peterborough.

The Presbytery of Peterborough met in Mill street church, Port Hope, on Tuesday. A large amount of important business was transacted. Partial arrangements were made for a separation of the congregation of Campbellford from Percy, the united charge having become too large for one minister. The Rev. Mr. Clarke of Lakefield tendered his resignation as pastor of that congregation. Deep regrets were expressed by all the brethren at the prospect of parting with Mr. Clarke, who is much beloved by all who knew him.

General Insurance Business.

We have much pleasure in referring the reader to the insurance card of Mr. W. H. Hill, to be found in our advertising columns. It will be observed that he has secured the agency for several wealthy and responsible companies. Mr. Hill, from his experience as a teacher in several parts of the county, is well and favorably known, while the extensive and respectable fire insurance business he has succeeded to will give additional weight to his agency. He is a reliable and trustworthy young gentleman, whose business statements may be accepted without question. We confidently commend him and his companies to the public who may require to transact business in his line. His insurance office will be in the Crown Timber offices, Water street, opposite the offices of Messrs. Pousette & Roger.

Interesting to the Ladies Only.

None of our departments is at present receiving greater attention than the Dress and Mantle Making. Ladies will be pleased to learn that we have engaged Miss S. Johnston to superintend this department, and her many friends here, who know her best as a Mantle Maker, will be glad to learn of her return to Peterborough, and accord to her the full justice she merits as a painstaking and successful Dress and Mantle Fitter Miss Johnston has had an experience lately in the western cities, where she has come in contact with Popular and Leading American Styles, and we are warranted in stating that her work cannot be surpassed. A trial will bear out this assertion. We have a rich stock of fabrics for dresses and mantles to select from, and our trimmings and other designs are elegant. A call respectfully solicted. Fair, VanEvery & Co., Sign of the "Golden Lion."

Important Sale of Real Estate

Public attention is directed to the auction sale of valuable real estate belonging to Mr. C. Young, Ashburnham, announced in our advertising columns. The date of the sale is Oct. 2nd, when will be offered for sale that eligible business stand on Elizabeth street, Ashburnham, consisting of a red brick store, 18x50 feet in size. Attached to this store is a good dwelling with all modern conveniences. A valuable hotel property situated on the same street will be offered for sale at the same time. The hotel contains thirty rooms, with first-class cellerage and stables, and it, as well as the shop, is excellently adapted for any one desiring to enter upon a thriving business in either line. The advertisement will furnish fuller information to intending purchasers. Mr. Young's reasons for selling are ill health, which renders it necessary for him to retire from active business.

Turnbull's Dressmaking Department under the charge of Miss Morgan, a thorough practical dressmaker is now in full operation.

Ready Made Clothing

While in Toronto I bought at a big discount for cash, a large lot of Men's and Boy's Over Coats, Tweed Suits and Pants, some of which were slightly damaged by smoke, being part of a stock saved from a recent fire. Lacrosse.

At a meeting of the Lacrosse Club on Monday evening, among other things it was decided to instruct the Secretary to send a challenge to the Ontarios, of Toronto, to play a match for the Intermediate Championship of Ontario, and accordingly a challenge has since been sent. A vote of thanks was passed to the City Band, for meeting the team on their victorious return from Ottawa on Friday morning.

Millinery Opening.

We invite the particular attention of the ladies to the advertisement of Miss Delaney's fall millinery opening, which will be held from Monday, Oct. 6th, till Saturday, the 11th, inclusive. Miss Delaney has made most careful and extensive preparations for this event, and the public may expect a rare treat in visiting her millinery rooms. She will show the very latest and tastiest styles in hats and bonnets. The other departments of her business will also present great attractions.

A Sudden Attack.

A man in the crowd listening to the liver pad orator on the market square on Friday night, was so terribly affected by the wonderful nature of the physiological facts—probably patented—ground out by the orator, that he fell down in a fainting fit. The suspicious suddenness with which the orator asserted that any person not wearing one of his pads was liable to drop dead in his tracks any minute, did not tend to deprive the fainting attack of a commercial aspect. The man was carried into the City Hotel, and soon recovered so much as to take in the "free show" that followed the lecture.

Mr. Byers Vindicated.

We are requested by the Peterborough Lacrosse Club to state that it was not in consequence of anything said by Mr. Charles Byers that the club did not send a team to Centreville on the occasion of the Harvest Home Festival. The club had two or three important matches on hand, to which they were committed; besides, most of the members being in the employ of business men, and not free to go and come, they found it almost impossible for twelve men to get the necessary leave of absence in addition to the absence for the two matches. These are the reasons the club did not send a team to Centreville.

Hall, Innes & Co.

The business aspect of the visit of Mr. Robert Innes, of the firm of Hall, Innes & Co., to Europe is abundantly reflected in the superb stock of goods, purchased by him abroad, which are now offered for public inspection. Not only are the staple goods and house furnishings exceedingly well represented, but the finer goods comprise a complete assortment. A large range of handsome German Pattern Mantles will be a temptation to the purse of the purchaser. A specially fine line of Carpets, in Tapestry, Velvet and Brussels, in newness of design and beauty of colouring are greatly to be admired. Handsomer goods it is hard to find. A fine stock of Tweeds and Cloths and Gentlemen's Furnishings make the facilities of this department unusually complete. The firm holds its fall opening on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 7th and 8th. The public are invited to see the handsomest and completest display in this department ever made by the firm.

Always Advancing.

Mr. D. Belleghem is continually pushing ahead his business. Not content with making the outside of his premises as neat as a new pin, he has made decided internal improvements. To make a suitable setting for his magnificent stock of furniture, he has had the walls and ceillings of his warerooms tinted by Watson, thus adding immensely to the appearance. In his undertaking department he has introduced a marked improvement. Heretofore his caskets, etc., have been exposed among his other furniture. All this is changed, and he has fitted up a room especially for holding his large stock of funeral appliances. Now when a nervous customer enters his shop to select furniture for the living there is no danger of her being shocked by being confronted with a display of coffins, caskets, etc., destined for the dead. The room mentioned is beautifully carpeted, handsome curtains adorn the windows, the walls hung with suitable pictures, and it is provided with seats. It contains samples of every kind of casket and of all funeral furniture required. The customer in transacting the melancholy business of providing for a funeral, on entering this room is entirely secluded and in no danger of being intruded on by the entrance of miscellaneous customers. In this new departure Mr. Belleghem shows his knowledge of his business and presents a still stronger claim to the public patronage. Sentiment and business do not go much together, but in this case Mr. Belleghem's deference to the feelings of his customer is worthy of recognition.

After Many Years.

The public will learn with general regret that Mr. W. B. Ferguson, after 28 years connection with railroading, is about to retire from a business in which his intimate knowledge of it, his courteous dealings with the public, and his competent and efficient management of the trust imposed in him, has won for him the respect and good word of the travelling public. Those doing business in that department of the Grand Trunk Railway, will hereafter miss his genial presence in the superintendent's office. In pursuance of a policy of retrenchment, Mr. Ferguson's services, whose value made a reduction of salary inadmissable, have been dispensed with. Mr. Ferguson has perhaps as intimate knowledge of railroad work as any man in the country. He began as a brakeman, and by virtue of attention to his duties, by becoming master or every detail, he has worked himself up to the position of superintendent—in every grade doing his duty with a thoroughness and conscientiousness that earned for him the promotion he successively received. His having been for some time appointed to the charge of the mechanical Department, showed that he was an "all round" railroad man, at home anywhere. As a conductor, the travelling public of several years ago will recall with pleasure the courtesy and obliging disposition that made him so exceedingly popular. The same qualifications and good qualities he carried into the other positions that led him to the appointment he has recently vacated. We are certain that we are only expressing public sentiment when we express the regret that circumstances have made it necessary to him to hand in his resignation. We hope that he will remain with us as a citizen.

The Embezzlement Case.

W. A. Sibley was arraigned before Police Magistrate Dumble on Monday morning. He asked an enlargement on the ground that he had not been able to secure the attendance of counsel. The prosecution assenting, the case was enlarged till Friday morning.

Turnbull's new four button Kid Gloves at a dollar, admit of no comparison.

Another Retirement.

We regret to learn that Mr. J. Duncan, assistant Superintendent of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk R. R., has resigned that position. Mr. Duncan is an experienced railroader, having begun the business 28 years ago, in 1856, in the employ of the Northern Railway. He spent ten years in the employ of the G. T. R., and was on the staff of the Toronto and Nipissing from '74 to April '82, the date of the amalgamation, when he became assistant Superintendent of the consolidated lines. Mr. Duncan has been a resident of Peterborough for over a year, in which time he has made many warm personal friends, and won the respect of all who knew him. He was an efficient officer, attentive to his duties and anxious to promote the interest of his employers.

Fall Races.

The management of the Peterborough Driving Park have prepared a fine programme of events for the fall meeting to take place on the 9th and 10th of October. The programme consists of a bicycle race, foot race, trotting race for a $200 purse, between Ed. Brown's Fanny B, and E. Thompson's "Indian Billy," farmers' running race, hundred yards foot race, farmers' trot, running race, and free for all trot. In default of an agricultural exhibition this year, the management will on these days offer substantial prizes for an exhibition of horses. Prizes will be offered for matched pair of carriage horses, matched heavy draught horses, single carriage horses and saddle horses. The Fire Brigade Band will be present the first day, and the City Band the second day. There is likely to be a large attendance at the races for arrangements will be made with the railways for reduced fares.

Illustrated Art Lecture.

On Monday and Tuesday evening, Oct. 6th and 7th, Mr. C. M. Caughy will deliver two of his celebrated art lectures, in Bradburn's Opera House. The subject will be the first night "Rome the Eternal City," which will be illustrated by 80 pictures, shown on a 30 feet canvas. The subject the second evening will be "Historic Paris," illustrated by 82 pictures. Seats, 25, 35 and 50 cents. Mr. Caughy comes highly recommended by the press. Of his lectures, the Toronto News says:

The People's theatre was filled with ladies and gentlemen last evening to hear and see C. M. Caughy's first art lecture. The subject of the lecture of last evening was "Rome, the Eternal City." Prior to reaching Rome views were given of Vesuvius and Venice. A column might be written, and yet convey no idea of the excellence of the entertainment. The views are grandly realistic, and as Mr. Caughy takes his audience to one after another of the grand old historic places of architectural magnificence and views of the triumphs of Michael Angelo and others of Italy's ancient sculptors and architects, frequent bursts of applause interrupt the lecturer. Mr. Caughy is a fluent speaker, and the different views are produced to keep pace with his descriptions, so that the utmost interest is maintained from beginning to end. There is much to be learned by visiting such art lectures; the young may learn a great deal of events of historic interest which will aid them greatly in pursuing their researches in ancient history."

The Foresters' New Home.

On Tuesday evening the beautiful new hall of Court Peterborough, Canadian order of Foresters, was duly set apart for the purposes of the order. At 8 o'clock the capacious room was crowded with auditors, and the solemn an impressive dedicatory services were conducted by Bro. Long, R. W. P. C. R., assisted by the officers of the court, Bro. H. W. Watson acting as grand marshal. After the dedication ceremonies were completed, the programme was opened by an address from Bro. Long, in the course of which he gave an interesting sketch of the history and objects of the order, and highly complimented the brethren of Court Peterborough on the beautiful hall they had secured. Bro. Lee also gave a sketch of the history of the local lodge which numbers 114 members, and brief outline of its operations. His statement that the new hall was dedicated entirely free of debt, without touching a cent of the vested funds of the court, was received with loud applause. Then followed a delightful programme, to which Misses Huston and Wells, Misses Logan and Galletly, and Miss Begley and Messrs. A.D. Brown and D. D. Galletly contributed songs, and Prof. Doucet a violin solo. Rev. I. Tovell pastor of George Street Church gave with excellent rendering a reading which was warmly applauded. The performances of club swinging by Mr. T. McNaughton were superb exhibitions of an art at which it is doubted if he has a superior in Canada. Miss Johnson played the accompaniments on a Williams piano kindly furnished by D. Smart & Son. The concert, as well as the whole ceremonies in connection with the dedication, was a most decided pronounced and gratifying success, and reflects great credit on the committee of managements. The new hall is a fine commodious appartment, excellently and richly furnished. The walls are tinted and relieved with an ornate stencilled border. The ceiling centre pieces are in red, white and green, the colors of the order. The chief and vice-chief chairs, as well as the side chairs, are of richly carved ash and walnut, upholstered in crimson rep, and all the appointments and furnishings of both main hall and ante-chambers are of the first quality. The hall is one of the finest and best furnished society halls in the town, and one that the members of Court Peterborough may well be proud of.

FINE FARM

FOR SALE.

That beautifully situated Farm,

The West half of lot 26, in the 12th Concession of Otonabee.

Situated east of the old Cobourg Railway. The property comprises 88 acres more or less. The soil is excellent and well adapted to gardening purposes. Its situation is very desirable, it being only one mile from the market square, and commanding a fine view of the town of Peterborough. Since the property came into possession of its present proprietor, over $3,000 has been spent on its improvement. It is one of the best watered farms in Ontario, being supplied by a never-failing spring well, so situated as to provide ten feet head. From this are laid nearly 700 feet of iron piping. At a distance of 200 feet from the spring this pipe leads to a watering trough in the barn. A continuation of the pipe carries the overflow from this, 440 feet further to another watering trough into another field. From the latter the overflow passes into a tile drain on the road side, and thence away. This pipe is provided with two taps, by which the water supply to the stock may be regulated. This water supply makes the farm eminently fitted for grazing purposes; stock can be supplied with continual access to an unlimited supply of pure living water. Or for market gardening the facilities for irrigation would admit of seeding dry seasons at defiance, this together with the proximity to a first class market (only one mile) makes this farm unequaled for this purpose.

For either a gentleman of leisure who wishes to devote his retirement to agricultural pursuits, or for a pushing man who desires to make money, this farm for fertility of soil, water supply, beauty of situation and convenience to town, can have no superior.

TERMS: One thousand dollars to be paid down when deeds are handed over, the balance may remain on the property at 6 per cent interest for any term agreed upon.

For further particulars apply to JOSEPH REDMOND, OTONABEE.

LITTLE LAKE CEMETERY

Constantly Improving.

The beauty of this beautiful last resting place for the dead is not only a continually increasing source of pride to the people of Peterborough, but it is every day receiving flattering encomiums from its many visitors from abroad. Under the care of Mr John Kelly, superintendent, aided by the liberal spirit of the directors, it is constantly improving. At this time of the year it is in perhaps its most attractive condition; the well kept sward, brightened into Hibernian greenness by the recent abundant rains, is thickly strewn with the constantly falling leaves, whose silent descent appropriately symbolizes the "race of man," who here find their last resting place, as expressed by Homer

Like leaves on trees the race of man is found,
Now green in youth, now withering on the ground.

The portions reclaimed from a state of nature are yearly widening. This year the last remaining portion north of Range avenue, a triangular spot on the shore of the lake has been wonderfully improved. The unsightly stumps have been removed, the trees skilfully trimmed and the ground levelled and laid down to grass. Range avenue, beginning at the east of the chapel and extending to the lake shore, is with its surroundings one of the finest in the grounds.

Where the high bank, south-east of the chapel, dips into the valley, other improvements have begun. The large pine trees have been removed by the roots, and a large number of huge boulders broken up and taken away. This is preparatory to the probable extension of the drive around the base of the hill south-westwards.

We are glad to note that the advice of THE EXAMINER has been taken in the erection of a neat and tasty building north of the chapel to enclose and conceal the tanks of the water system. The building was built from plans prepared by Mr. Ranney, by Messrs. Carveth & Hoolihan, at a cost of $300. It is a decided improvement.

Mr. Kelly has also cleared the grove north of the lodgeon the lake shore and put it down to grass. Stables and ice house, screened from the grounds by a high fence have also been erected.

We have before mentioned the fountain in front of the entrance gates, but not the filter connected with its wastepipe, which supplies the drinking fountain at the side gate. The water is doubly filtered and in hot weather ice is used to make it cool.

A number of rustic seats of excellent design have been placed in the grounds, and numerous other minor improvements introduced too numerous to mention, but all corresponding with the general plan of adding in every possible way to the beauty of the grounds, which it seems the directors keep steadily in view. Too much praise cannot be given Mr. Kelly for the neatness and well kept nature of the grounds in every way. Visitors from Montreal and Toronto, and monument dealers, whose business takes them to every cemetery in Ontario, all testify to the fact that the grounds of Little Lake Cemetery are the best kept of any in Ontario.

Turnbull's unshrinkable Gray Flannel at 20c. a yard, is decidedly the best article in the market, at present.

Approaching Provincial Convention.

The opening session will take place on Thursday, the 23rd of October, at 2.30 o'clock, p.m. The afternoon will be devoted to organization and reports from local Associations. In the evening a short welcome meeting will be held, words of welcome to be given by Rev. E. F. Torrance, Messrs. Geo. A Cox and J. F. Jeffers, on behalf of the churches, the business men, and the Association, respectively. The Convention will then immediately proceed to take up the following topics, discussion of which will occupy the time till Saturday night:—Why should our work continue to be especially for men? What can we do for young men socially? (D. A. Budge, Montreal). Discussion on Executive Committee's Report. College work (conducted by L. D. Wishard, College International Society, New York—Papers from Toronto, Queen's, and Montreal Universities). How can Secretaries assist Associations already existing in their neighborhood, and in organizing new ones? To what extent have secular agencies been helpful in Association work? Work for Boys (W. H. Sallman, London). The Young Men's Bible Class: why should there be one in every Association? (W. H. Howland, Toronto). Railroad work, (W. J. Orr, St. Thomas.) How can local Associations assist the Executive Committee? (R. C. Morse, Secretary International Committee, New York). The Sustentation of Associations in small towns, (J. F. Jeffers, Peterborough). Interspersed with the topics will be frequent devotional exercises and Bible readings. On the Sabbath, 26th October, a Consecration Meeting will be held at 9.30 a.m., a Young Men's Meeting at 4 p.m., and the Farewell Meeting at 8.30 p.m. The places in which these three meetings will be held will be announced later. It is to be hoped that the public will take that interest in the affairs of the Convention which its importance deserves. It is worthy in its aims, objects and methods of cordial public support.

It is also to be hoped that Lindsay, Omemee, Lakefield, Millbrook, Campbellford, and similar places near us where no Association exists, will be represented at the Convention, and that it may be the means of starting Associations in some of these places. Lindsay, especially, is large enough to have a good organization.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Peterborough Real Estate Investment Company.

The annual meeting of the directors of the Peterborough Real Estate Investment Company was held in the offices of of the solicitors, Messrs. Poussette & Roger, Water street, on Tuesday, Oct. 7th. There were present the president in the chair, Messrs. John Walton, A.C. Dunlop, G. A. Cox, John Hall, Dr. Fife, Rev. V. Clementi, Jonathan Mann, A. P. Poussette and G. M. Roger.

The president read the annual report for the year ending 31st of May 1884. Mr. Poussette reading the annual statement:

SIXTH ANNUAL REPORT.

The Directors have pleasure in being able to present to the shareholders a satisfactory and encouraging report of the Company's business, during its last financial year.

As will be seen from the statements appended, the gross profits for the year amount to $30,434.34, and the charges of management, debenture, interest, etc., amount to $31,355.60, thus leaving the net profit for the year, $29,078.74, out of which has been paid Dividends Nos. 11 and 12, at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, $26,138.00, leaving a balance of $2,940.74, to which add the amount brought forword from last year, $2,442.17, making the total surplus $5,382.91, of which has been transferred to reserve $5,000.00, leaving at credit of profit and loss account, to be carried forward, $382.91. The new loans for the year amount to $215,497.80. The repayments of principal amount to $97,710.77, leaving a net increase of $117,787.03.

Payments have been received on account of interest to the amount of $49,907.56, which is nearly equal to a year's interest on the total amount of investments held on the 31st of May, 1883.

The first issue of the Company's debentures, amounting to £20,000 stg., matured on the 1st of December last, the holders of these to the amount of £18,000, were willing to renew for further periods, extending from five to seven years, and new debentures were issued during the year amounting to £34,852, making the net increase £32,852 ($159,879.73).

The usual statements, certified by the Auditors, are submitted herewith.

F. M. HAULTAIN, President.

POUSSETTE & ROGER, Managers.

Peterborough, May 31st, 1884.

The auditors, Messrs. Edg. Pearce and C. D. Macdonald, reported, certifying to the correctness of the accounts.

The report as read was, on motion of the president, seconded by Mr. Dunlop, adopted and ordered to be printed.

DIRECTORS.

On the subject of directors coming up, Rev. Mr. Clementi stated that on account of the loss of his eyesight he was compelled to withdraw his name as a nominee for the directorate. The election resulted in the selection of General Haultain, Messrs. Walton, Cox, Dunlop, Poussette, Hull, Hazlitt, Lefevre, and Rev. V. Clementi.

At a subsequent meeting of the directors, General Haultain was elected president, and Mr. John Walton vice president, and Messrs Cox, Hall, and Walton the Investment committe.

AUDITORS.

Messrs. Edg. Pearse and C. D. McDonald were appointed auditors.

After the usual vote of thanks the meeting adjourned.

If you want a suit of genuine Irish Tweed, Mahony's make, Shamrock stamped on every yard, go to Turnbull's.

Money.

Mr. John A Bennett, of Otonabee, is prepared to make loans on real estate and to purchase mortgages. Loans will be made at the lowest rates of interest, payable when the borrower deems the most convenient time, the principal, being payable at such times as may be agreed upon. Expenses are very light. 12-tf

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

Regular Meeting.

The members met in regular session on Tuesday evening, all present except Mr. Deane.

After routine,

Dr. Tassie was heard, and, in answer to questions put by Mr. Sproule in reference to the curriculum of High School studies, said that all the subjects required for third class certificates and more were taught in the school. The regulations of the Department in reference to optional subjects, and, indeed, all the subjects prescribed, were carried out in their entirety. The school had been open so short a time that the classes in drawing, physics and book-keeping had not yet been organized. These subjects, however, were only delayed, not abandoned. The book-keeping class would be organized at once. He also gave an outline of the way in which the staff was employed daily. In the further discussion of the matter, Dr. Tassie stated that the present attendance was 100 compared to 75 at the same time last year.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From the Educational Department, in reference to Entrance Examinations.—Received.

From Mr. A. Hutchinson, Norwood, in reference to payment for his services in connection with the Intermediate Examinations.

From John Campbell, making application for the refund of salary, which he claimed was due to him up to the end of the term, Oct. 1st.—Referred to Finance Committee to report.

From the Educational Department, notifying the Board that the Legislative and Meteorological grant was for the half year, $786.—Received and referred to Finance Committee.

From Mr. J. Coyle Brown, I.P.S., submitting accounts for Intermediate Examinations.—Finance Committee.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE.

The following report of attendance for September was submitted:

	On Roll.	Av. At.
Central School	397	346
West Ward School	169	134

SOUTH WARD SCHOOL.

Mr. Dumble, from the Committee on Appointments, reported that Mr. Kidd's resignation had been accepted, and that Mr. Jones had been appointed in his place at the same salary.—Adopted.

ENTRANCE EXAMINATIONS.

Mr. Stratton moved, seconded by Mr. Wrighton, that a fee of $1.00 be charged for each pupil writing at the Entrance Examinations, to assist in defraying expenses of examinations.

Mr. Stratton remarked that this fee would diminish expense by preventing unprepared pupils writing merely for practice and with no hope of passing.

Mr. Sawers moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Kendry, that a fee of $2 be charged for county pupils applying for Entrance Examinations.

After discussion, Mr. Stratton amended his motion by adding that the fee of $1 be refunded to the successful pupils belonging to the town.

Mr. Sawers amendment was put and declared carried.

Mr. Dumble moved, seconded by Mr. Millar, that in the opinion of this Board writing should be taught in all the rooms of the Public School.—Carried.

PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

Mr. Kendry called attention to the unsuitable condition of the room for the preparatory department, and moved, seconded by Mr. Sawers, that the Property Committee consult with Dr. Tassie and see if different arrangements could be made for the preparatory department.

Mr. Cox moved in amendment, seconded by Mr. Errett, that the Chairman of the Board be requested to confer with Dr. Tassie with a view of securing better accommodation for Mr. McKee.

The amendment was lost on division, but vertually carried, for the Chairman agreed to act with the Property Committee in the matter.

The Board adjourned.

The Ladies are invited to visit Hall, Innes and Co's Millinery Rooms, on Tuesday and Wednesday, 7th and 8th October, opening days.

BOYS.—Percy Price, James Hogan, Dannie Holland, Bertram Lawrence, Albert R. Price, Andrew Rennie.

Amos Hudgin, Toronto, writes: "I have been a sufferer from Dyspepsia for the past six years. All the remedies I tried proved useless, until Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure was brought under my notice. I have used two bottles with the best results, and can with confidence recommend it to those afflicted in like manner."

Near-sighted old gentleman (entering a store)—Have you any linen dusters? Young Snobson (with his most sarcastic manner)—I am not a clerk in this establishment yet, sir. N. S. O. G.—Not yet a clerk, eh? Errand boy I presume? Well, legs are as good as brains in some departments.

Many forget that the hair and scalp need cleansing as well as the hands and feet. Extensive use of Ayer's Hair Vigor has proven that it is the best cleansing agent for the hair—that it prevents as well as removes dandruff, cools and soothes the scalp, and stimulates the hair to renewed growth and beauty.

There is one thing which can be said to the honor of the spoiled child. He realizes that too much kindness has spoiled him, and he heroically determines that he will spoil nobody else in the same way.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 9, 1884.

Editorial Notes.

The difference between Sir John and Mr. Mowat. One is a "rum'un to go," and the other is a "rum'un not to 'go.'"

We most respectfully suggest to Her Majesty that when Sir John Macdonald is raised to the peerage, as intimated recently, it be, suggests the Free Press, as Lord Gerrymander.

By all means give Sir John a banquet. As the persistent yet badly worsted enemy of provincial rights, he is the enemy of confederation. Even cold "crow" must begin to pull on the chieftain's palate. Give him a change.

Lord Lansdowne is said to have stated that he had never even in England witnessed a demonstration to any public man equal to that accorded Premier Mowat at Toronto. He is probably a better authority on this point than the Mail.

The Mail is superlatively loyal and agonizingly anxious for the maintenance of British connection—when it can make a little political capital against Reformers. But, when it stands in the way of a Tory policy—"so much the worse for British connection."

Sir John Macdonald did not compare to Governor-General Lansdowne as a card for drawing at the Dominion exhibition at Ottawa. Three thousand only hailed the Dominion Premier, while over twenty thousand greeted the Governor-General.

It is stated that Mr. Farrar, of the Winnipeg Sun, is to replace the poetical Griffin as editor of the Mail. It seems pretty plain that Griffin must go, and that Conservatives are beginning to desire a little respectability in the party organ.

Hon. Mr. Mercier will be entertained to a public dinner by the Liberals of St. Martin on the 4th of October. Hon. Mr. Blake has promised to attend, and among the others are Hon. Oliver Mowat, Mr. Edgar, M. P. for West Ontario, and Mr. Glen, M. P. for South Ontario.

Where would Ontario have been if the Tory conspiracy to supplant Mr. Mowat by the spineless Meredith had succeeded? She would have been out 100,000 square miles of territory. Sir John could have then carried out his threat that Ontario should not have one acre of the disputed territory, for Mr. Meredith would have wilted to his will like a caterpillar touched with a walking stick.

The Belleville Intelligencer takes a column to show that while the attendance of the Mowat banquet was strong in point of numbers, the supply of food was insufficient. Our Tory friends, remarks the Ottawa Free Press must have consolation somehow, but even deficient as the supply of food may have been, it was superior to the ordinary diet of the Tory party during the past twelve months—Crow!

A petition was filed Wednesday morning at Osgoode Hall, by Messrs. Wells, Gordon & Sampson, against the return of Mr. G. D. Hawley, the Reform member for Lennox in the Local House. The petitioner's name is Andrew Gordon Hamilton, an insurance agent, and the usual charges of bribery are made. A bribery hunt on the Reform canvassing grounds in Lennox will prove to be a dry one.

It is stated that work on the Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, Post office is suspended. The Queens county election is over. It is only by an election that we can hope to get work on the prodigally promised Peterborough post office begun. Will the member for the west Riding be patriotic enough to resign? We might then, at least, have the site selected before the ensuing election resulted in the return of a Grit representative.

Even the most obstinate of Conservatives, says the Pall Mall Gazette, must admit the genuine character of the extraordinary outburst of enthusiasm which has overflowed all bounds at every point in Mr. Gladstone's northern progress. The tumultuous cheering that rolled in the almost unbroken volume from the Forth to the Dee, has been far more effective than any arguments in silencing the Tory nonsense concerning the existence of a great Conservative reaction, so far at least as north of the Tweed is concerned.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Regular Session.

The council met in regular session on Thursday evening, Oct. 2nd, his Worship, Mayor Cox in the chair. The following members were present, Messrs. Cahill, Kelly, Millar, Yelland, Douglass, Rutherford and Hartley.

After routine

COMMUNICATIONS

were received

From George Kingdon asking leave to make building repairs on the corner of Aylmer and Simcoe streets. Referred to Building committee with power to act.

From John Garvey with a similar request. Similarly referred.

From the Curling and Skating Rink Company, asking leave to re-erect rink building on Charlotte street.—Received.

From W. Cluxton and others, recommending Florence McAuliffe as a fit person for night watchman.

From Messrs. Hatton & Wood, on behalf of the O. & Q. R. R., asking the council to pass a by-law for the closing of a part of Wolfe street.

From John Burnham on behalf of Mr. R. Z. Rogers, calling the attention of the council to the delay caused to the latter's building operations on Hunter street, caused by neglecting the building of the Hunter street bridge—Received.

From Warren Taylor tendering the council a copy of the vote of thanks passed at the last meeting of the Cheese Board, for the use of the council chamber.

From R. Playter, secretary of the York Pioneers, inclosing a copy of a resolution of thanks for the generous reception accorded the York Pioneers by the council, on the occasion of the late visit to the town of that body.

From Joseph Brault, complaining of water flowing into his cellar—Street and Bridge committee.

From R. Kingan respecting the lowering of the grade on Chambers street, in view of his building a large block abutting on that street—Grade ordered to be struck.

From John Smith offering his services as a policeman.—Committee of appointments.

From George Johnston, Chief of Police, asking two weeks leave of absence.—Granted.

From A. White respecting lighting the principal streets by electricty.—Fire, Water and Gas committee.

From L. F. Carpenter forbidding the council to pay any accounts incurred through entertaining the York Pioneers.—Sat on.

A large number of accounts were presented and referred to the Finance committee, except accounts for services in entertaining the York Pioneers, amounting to $33, and that of the Times Printing Co., $54.10, which were ordered to be paid.

Mr. Kelly, chairman of the committee on Appointments, presented the following report:

Your committee on Appointments begs leave to report and recommend that John Horland be appointed night watchman along with one of the present constables, and that they be required to go on duty every night at 9 o'clock p. m., and continue on duty until 6 o'clock the following morning.

Mr. Rutherford took exception to the report. He asserted that the recommendation of the report was not agreed to by a majority of the committee.

Mr. Kelly said that he had called several meetings, and on the last occasion, there were only three members present, and the majority had assented to the recommendations of the committee.

The report was not received.

THE SMOKE NUISANCE.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman of the Fire, Water and Gas committee, reported respecting the complaint of Richard Hall and others in reference to the nuisance caused by the smoke from the smoke stack of Baptie's planing mill, recommending that Mr. Baptie raise his smoke stack thirty feet higher. Report adopted.

SKATING RINK.

Mr. Ferguson was heard in reference to the matter of removal of the skating rink building. He said it was the intention of the company to remove the skating rink building to Charlotte street, within the fire limits. The company proposed to put a wooden wall and veneer it with brick, and lay the shingles of the roof in mortar, which he thought would make the building as fire proof as any other. The property owners on each side were in favor of the proposed building.

Mr. Millar urged that the erection of the building would be in the public interest. The chief part of the building was the roof, and the substitution of brick for brick veneer would make little difference.

Mr. Hartley said that the walls were so low that it did not make much difference as to the fire risk, whether they were brick or brick veneer.

Mr. Cox, mayor, suggested that it was cheaper and much more safe to put up brick walls. He did not at all oppose the removal; he had taken stock in the company, and he would double his subscription if a brick building be erected.

On motion of Mr. Kelly, seconded by Mr. Millar, the petition was referred to the Building committee with power to act, Mr. Green being appointed chairman, pro tem.

HUNTER STREET BRIDGE.

Mr. Cahill made explanations in reference to the building of the Hunter street bridge. Tenders had been received and the contract awarded, but owing to some difficulty as to sureties and conditions, the contract lapsed. This portion of the street had been a long time in a neglected condition and it should be repaired. But it was too late to do the work satisfactorily this year, and he moved, seconded by Mr. Douglass, that in view of the lateness of the season, the height of the water, and other causes, it was not expedient to build the bridge this year, but that $1,000 be taken of the $3,000 appropriated for the Hunter street bridge, and devoted to the repairing of the Hunter street bridge and the Simcoe street bridge, and other street improvements, and that the clerk be instructed to prepare a by-law to give effect to this resolution.

Mr Rutherford objected to the delay. He thought the town would be responsible for damages that might be caused by neglecting the rebuilding of the bridge. It was improper to devote any part of the appropriation for building the bridge to any other purpose. He urged the building of the bridge this season. The contract might be awarded the next highest tenderer.

Mr. Hartley thought the lateness of the season was not worth while taking into account. He was in favour of doing the work this fall. It was not a very heavy undertaking.

Mr. Cahill pointed out that other street improvements were needed and that the work was hampered by lack of funds. It was for the Council to decide respecting the building of the bridge this year.

Mr. R. Z. Rogers, in answer to Mr. Kelly, stated that he intended to build over the creek, and he had let the contract for a building, but had been greatly inconvenienced by the delay caused by not taking action in the building of the Hunter street bridge. The delay had subjected him to loss.

Mr. Kelly favored going on with the new bridge at once and raise the money for repairs some other way. As the matter stood a great injustice was being done Mr. Rogers.

Mr. Yelland said Mr. Rogers should look out for himself if he proposed building, and the the town was not required to assist him.

Mr. Kelly replied that Mr. Rogers, as a ratepayer deserved to have his interests protected. He had leased his hotel, but, owing to the neglect of the town, he had no entrance to the rear of the property, and it was the duty of the town to remove the impediments.

Mr. Cahill said Mr. Rogers might be relieved and allowed to go on with his building by the Council adopting the plans prepared for the proposed bridge.

The Mayor favored the expenditure of the amount appropriated, at least. Any amount over that sum could be carried over to next year.

Mr. Cahill agreed with the suggestion of the Mayor, but he was doubtful if the contractors were willing to go on with the work.

Mr. Rutherford thought there was no doubt that the work could be carried on.

Mr. Cahill said he did not oppose the construction of the bridge, he had been urging it all summer, but the question of money was to be considered; there were other improvements that could not de neglected.

In answer to Mr. Cahill, the Clerk explained that there was a balance of $400 of the amount appropriated for street purposes unexpended.

Mr. Cahill withdrew his motion, and, on motion of Mr. Hartley, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, the matter of building the Hunter street bridge was referred back to the Street Committee, with instructions to proceed at once with the work.

FIREMEN'S EXPENSES.

Mr. Rutherford pointed out that the Firemen and Fire Brigade Band had attended the firemen's competition in Toronto, at great expense, which they bore themselves. The practice they had preparing themselves for the competition had fitted them for better service to the town, and he moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the corporation pay the firemen the sum of $90, the amount of the travelling expenses of the Fire Brigade and Band to Toronto. The motion was referred to the Finance Committee to report.

STONE BREAKING.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Yelland, that the Street and Bridge Committee be authorized to receive tenders for breaking the stone on the north side of Central Park, and report to the Council.

Mr. Kelly suggested that the stone be kept till winter, when applicants for charity may be provided with work.

The motion was lost, only the mover and seconder voting for it.

CHARITY.

The matter of the payment of Mr. Hope for keeping the boy Manning was referred to the Charity Committee to report.

Mr. Millar inquired if there had been any money appropriated for a sidewalk from the Skating Rink to London street.

The matter was referred to the Street Committee, along with a motion of Mr. Hartley's for a walk on Antrim street.

HYDRANTS.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the petition of the ratepayers on George street, asking for hydrants, be referred to the Clerk, he at once to notify the Water Company.—Carried.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the Fire, Water and Gas Committee be empowered to inquire of the Electric Light Company on what terms they will supply three lamps, to be placed: one in the Central Park, one on the Market place, and one in the Council Chamber.—Referred to the Committee.

WOLFE STREET CLOSURE.

Mr. R. E. Wood, of Hatton & Wood, was heard on behalf of the O. & Q. Railway, asking the Council to pass a by-law to close a portion of Wolfe street. The Company was willing to pay the expense of passing the by-law and also the costs connected with the quashing of the first by-law. The proposed closure would not interfere with the access to any private property. The request was understood to be assented to.

TOWN CLOCK.

Mr. Kelly called attention to the useless condition of the town clock, on account of the pigeons using it for a perch, and a motion of his, seconded by Mr. Millar, was adopted, instructing the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee to have the face of the clock properly protected and report to the Council.

Council adjourned till Oct. 20th.

A very choice range of Black Dress Goods in Cashmeres, Cashmere Coupe, Satin Soliels, Biarritz, Granite Cloth, Ottoman Cords, plain and fancy Ottomans, Foule Cloth and fancy Brocades, now in stock at Turnbull's.

Negligent, Not Unwilling.

Every man who owes the publisher of a newspaper a dollar or two for the paper is apt to think that the payment of his little bill is a matter of small importance to the publisher, and, therefore, he neglects to pay the amount—not because he is unwilling to do so, but because it is so small a matter that a few days delay is of no account. But the days stretch out into weeks, the weeks lengthen into months, months becomes years, and the bill grows accordingly. Yet a thousand subscribers thinking thus and acting thus, make a sum total of thousands of dollars, the non-payment of which, through carelessness, often causes great inconvenience to newspaper publishers, who, we assure the reader, contrary to popular ideas, are not quite "made of money."

Shall We Let the Child Die?

A hard-hearted political economist, looking at a pale and puny child feebly gasping as it lies upon a pillow, says that the child might as well die. It is so weak and poor that its life will never be worth much anyhow. There are already a good many people in the world who are of not much account anyhow. And what's the use of adding to their number another weakling, who has but slender chance of ever amounting to anything?

Now ask that child's mother what she thinks about letting the child die. About this time the hard political economist had better get out of the way. "Let my child die? No! No! As long as there is a remedy to be found that will save that child, the child will not die! I'll spend my last dollar to save the child!" Well, try a bottle of Shaker Blood Syrup on that child. See the poor little fellow pick up strength. He revives. He will live. Hosts of other children have been brought almost from death to healthy life by The Shaker Blood Syrup. Ormond & Walsh sell it.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "32 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 72 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1883. Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

EAST RIDING SHOW.

Held at Keene—Large Attendance—A Good Exhibit—But Short in Grain.

The sixteenth annual exhibition of the East Riding of Peterborough Agricultural Society, according to its itinerant system, was held this year at Keene, on Thursday and Friday, October the 2nd and 3rd. The number of entries was about seven hundred and fifty, and the general exhibit all round, with the exception of grain, was up to its usual standard of excellence. In horses, cattle and sheep, some very fine animals were to be seen. The show of roots was good, but there were very few entries in grain. The price for grain being so low, we suppose our agricultural friends think it hardly worth the trouble of threshing. The display inside was tastefully arranged, and was much admired. Mr. James Whyte exhibited his famous plough, and Mr. R Jackson again appeared upon the scene with his Pea Harvester. Messrs Walker and Sargent each showed samples of their hay and grain lifters. Mr. Owens had two of his new patent force pumps occupying a prominent position, and Mr. Martin made a fine display of buggies, both covered and open. The Bell and Karn organs on exhibition by Mr. D. Smart were disposed of during the day, and the Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machine Co., in Mr. G. A. Mitchell, have a regular talking machine, who never fails to attract the attention of the ladies to the excellence of the Wheeler & Wilson "over all others." The Keene Band was in attendance, and showed marked signs of improvement under the leadership of Mr. A. Freeman.

BETHANY.

There was a large attendance at the Orange demonstration held at Bethany on Wednesday of last week, Peterborough, Lindsay, Toronto, Port Hope and the country in the vicinity being well represented. Messrs. J. Batton, W.M. of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 40, Richard Waram, D.M.C.P., and George Hall, D. of C., C.P., had seats on the platform, occupied by several prominent members of the order. The latter delivered addresses suitable to the occasion, which were well listened to. The demonstration was successful as such, and in promoting the more substantial object of it—raising funds for the erection of an Orange Hall at Bethany. A handsome sum was secured.

The Summer is Come.

The birds with us once more. Nature garbed in the brightest green brings joy to those who hate the cold and dreariness of winter. But summer brings with her many other things besides green fields and singing birds. Corns sprout and grow just as if mother earth had a share in nurturing them, and no person wants them. Go, then to the nearest drug store and buy a bottle of the great and only sure corn cure—PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR. A few days will relieve you of them. N. C. Polson & Co., proprietors, Kingston.

DUMMER.

It is our sad duty, says the Register, this week to chronicle the sudden death of a very estimable young lady, well known and highly respected in this village, in the person of Miss Mary E. Lewis, of Dummer. She was visiting friends in Port Perry when suddenly prostrated by a paralytic stroke. On Wednesday of last week she was brought home and all that medical aid could do to relieve her sufferings was done, but in vain. On Saturday morning she quietly passed away, surrounded by sorrowing friends and relatives. The funeral took place on Monday, and was largely attended. We tender our sincere sympathy to the bereaved parents and relatives.

A Wonderful Discovery.

Consumptives and all who suffer from any affection of the Throat and Lungs, can find a certain cure in Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Thousands of permanent cures verify the truth of this statement. No medicine can show such a record of wonderful cures. Thousands of once hopeless sufferers now gratefully proclaim they owe their lives to this New Discovery. It will cost you nothing to give it a trial. Free Trial Bottles at Taylor & McDonold's Drug Store. Large size, $1.00.

FOUR MEN LYNCHED.

Saturday night forty men visited Franklin county jail Mississippi, overpowered the jailer, took out four negro prisoners and lynched them to a tree in the court-house yard. One was charged with an attempt to rape a white girl, two with the murder of other negroes, and the other with arson and robbery. The mob left word that if the circuit judge did not clean out the jail at the present term they would return and make a clean sweep. Six men have been lynched in Franklin county within eighteen months.

Come, Gentle Spring, and bring malaria, dyspepsia, billiousness torpidity of the liver and a train of kindred maladies. Fortunately Kidney-Wort is at hand. It may be had of the nearest druggist and will purify the system, correct the stomach and bowels, stimulate the liver and kidneys to healthy action, remove all poisonous humors and make you feel like a new man. As a spring medicine, tonic and blood Purifier it has no equal.

LOVE AND THE CHOLERA.

In Naples a young woman was seized with cholera. Her lover, anxious to be by her side attempted to enter the room. The girl's mother prevented his entrance. The young man then shot and killed the mother, sent a bullet into the girl's forehead and attempted suicide.

Let the World Know It.

You can purchase a bottle of Polson's NERVILINE, the greatest pain remedy in the world. Nerviline cures headache, neuralgia, toothache, pains in the side or back, rheumatism, &c. As an internal remedy, Nerveline is prompt, effective and pleasant to take. Nerviline has no equal as a pain-subduing remedy, and a test bottle costs only 10 cents. Call on your druggist and invest 10 cents. Nerviline, Nervilline, nerve pain cure.

NOT TO BE FOOLED.

"Where in the world have you been?" demanded a wife of her husband. "It's nearly 3 o'clock in the morning." "I know (hic) is my dear. But I cannot tell a lie. I've been working at the office." "Well, I can tell a lie," she replied sharply, "the moment I hear it, and———" Then the fur flew.

Very Remarkable Recovery.

Mr. Geo. V. Williug, of Manchester, Mich., writes: "My wife has been almost helpless for five years, so helpless that she could not turn over in bed alone. She used two Bottles of Electric Bitters, and is so much improved that she is able now to do her own work."

Electric Bitters will do all that is claimed for them. Hundreds of testimonials attest their great curative powers. Only 50 cents a bottle at Taylor & McDonald.

WORSE THAN BRUTAL.

On Tuesday night Michael Shay, living in a hovel on Clarke street, Chicago, went home drunk, and with the body of a dead infant, to which Mrs. Shay had given birth during the night, beat her to death. He was arrested.

A TRINITY OF EVILS. Biliousness, Constipation and Dyspepsia usually exist together. By disciplining the liver and toning the the stomach simultaneously, they can be eradicated. The promptitude and thoroughness with which Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and great blood purifier removes this trinity of physical evils is a fact widely appreciated throughout Canada.

A young widow, in erecting a monument to the "dear departed," cleverly availed herself of the opportunity to inscribe upon the tomb: "Sacred to the memory of Mathusin Bexuchet, who departed this life aged sixty-eight years, regretting the necessity of parting from the most charming and best of women."

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the REV. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 9, 1884.

Wheat, the N. P. and the Farmers.

Now that it is proposed to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of Sir John Macdonald's entrance into political life, it may be interesting to recall the reasons why the farmers should enter heartily into such a demonstration. In 1878 Sir John made, and reiterated in 1882, the most resonte promises of what the N. P. was to do in advancing the price of wheat and other grains. He promised that the N. P. would shut out American grain, and make it comfortable for the Canadian farmer, a home market would be created, and perennial high prices maintained. Farmers were told by Reform politicians that these promises were absurd—that "protection" would not benefit the farmer in the matter of prices—that prices were controlled by the Old Country markets. Sir John and the Tories declared that the foreign market had nothing to do with the price of grain, and that all the farmer had to do was to vote for "protection," and he would have high prices. A sufficient number of farmers were deceived into supporting the N. P., and what is the result? It has been in operation between five and six years and the price of wheat and barley is lower than it has been for a dozen years. Now Sir John and his followers have the heartless impudence to tell the farmer that it is unreasonable to expect the N. P. to affect the price of grain—the foreign market controls all that. Now the farmer can see how he has been deceived. What is 75 cents per bushel, and barley 50 cents, while the taxation policy which Sir John duped the farmers into voting for, on the ground that it would increase the price of grain, takes thirty-five million dollars a year from their pockets. And all this when wheat and other grains is so low, that farmers hardly seem to consider the grain worth threshing. The exhibits of grains at our fall shows are exceedingly light, because the N. P. prices of grain are so discouragingly low that they have not the heart to thresh, much less market it. Now a farmer goes to market with 50 bushels of wheat, and takes home in his pocket about thirty-five dollars. In 1873, when there was no N. P. to make high prices, he would have had in his pocket for the same load of wheat over $60! And yet Sir John and the Tories said to the farmers, only vote, to tax the country to the extent of about thirty-five million dollars a year, and you will get high prices for your wheat, barley, etc. This was distinctly promised, yet the prices are lower than they have been for years, and there is no prospect of an advance. Owing to an immense crop everywhere the foreign demand is light, and the farmer who sells earliest will make the most money. There will be, by keeping grain on hand, great loss by shrinkage, by vermin, and in other ways. Merchants and business men who have supplied the farmers with goods, expect to be paid after harvest. True the price is discouragingly low, but Sir John Macdonald, not the merchants, is to blame for that. He said the N. P. would make high prices for grain. It has not done so. Sir John has deliberately and knowingly deceived the farmer, and when the latter is approached and solicited to subscribe to the Sir John testimonial he can make the liberal offer of contributing the surplus in price which a hundred bushels of wheat will bring in 1884 over the amount it would bring before the N. P. came into force. This amount will represent pretty accurately the measure of the "chieftain's" deserts.

The Bribery Commission.

The proceedings of the Bribery Commission, Toronto, have advanced another stage, and the result is that the last state of Mr. Meredith and his plotting friends is worse than the first. The first sittings of the Commission brought out in unmistakable clearness, to an unprejudiced mind, that Wilkinson, Bunting, Meek and Kirkland were the visible members of a band of conspirators working with and on behalf of the Tory party, for the overthrow, by bribery of the supporters, of the Mowat Administration and the substitution of a Tory Cabinet, of which Mr. Meredith was to be leader. That such a plot, so well matured, so well contrived that the honesty and loyalty of Mr. Mowat's supporters was the only cause of its not succeeding, was hatched, developed and worked without the knowledge of Mr. Meredith, in whose interest and that of the Tory party it was alone concocted, is highly improbable. No man would poison his neighbor for the purpose of marrying his widow unless he knew beforehand pretty certainly that the widow was, like the immortal Barkis, "willin'." And, no doubt, the "poor weak sister "was willin'," also.

Mr. Meredith made a terrible mistake in the matter when he brought before the Commission a charge against Messrs. Mowat, Pardee, Fraser and Hardy, of inducing members of the Legislature to approach those innocents, Bunting, Big Push, Meek and Kirkland, and coaxing them to commit bribery. The members of the Government charged were rigidly examined, and not only were they most positive in denying the truth of the charge, but there was not a title of other reliable evidence shown to make good the accusation. If Mr. Meredith had had a hundredth part of the cunning of Sir John he would have kept the charge in its misty condition, to serve as stumping stuff; but by bringing his malignent accusation against the Government, it has been so thoroughly exploded and killed that it is dead forevermore.

Editorial Notes.

Not only in solid and substantial progress, but in political reform, is Ontario a beacon light to the other Provinces of Confederation. The example she has set in maintaining her provincial rights has fired the other Provinces, and now Sir John finds that Federal interference in purely provincial matters is not only being universally resented in the Dominion, but that it may provoke an agitation that will affect the stability of his lease of power. That "honesty is the best policy" is a lesson that Sir John is slow to learn, if, indeed, he is not "constitutionally" unfitted to entertain such a sentiment.

What a hearty contempt the Tories have for the people—in this respect they fill Dr. Johnson's bill of a "good hater." When they find in England, that they cannot wheedle the people into fighting against Gladstone's Franchise Bill, they declare that "the mob" is not to be the final court of appeal. Toryism in Canada is the same as in England. No respect is paid the popular will; if the gerrymander won't overcome it, a bribery brigade is put into the field; if that fails the legislators, themselves, chosen by the people, are conspired against and sought to be bribed. Anything to promote the success of the party.

Hon. Mr. Mowat was given a magnificent reception at Woodstock, the capital of South Oxford, his constituency, on Friday last. The procession was three miles in length, and there were 20,000 people to listen to the addresses of prominent liberals who were present, Hon. Mr. Blake, Hon. Mr. Mercier, opposition leader, Quebec, and others. Hon Mr. Mowat was presented with an address, and the freedom of the town of Woodstock was conferred on Hon. Messrs. Mowat, Blake, and Mercier. Mr. Mowat received the banner ovation from the banner Reform riding of the Dominion.

It is true Sir John A. Macdonald talked for some years about referring the boundary question to the Privy Council, but never consented to it.—Brockville Recorder: [Certainly he "talked" about it, but it was nothing but talk and very bombastic talk at that. He took good care, however, not to suggest a reference to the Privy Council; nor would he consent to it when appealed to by Mr. Mowat, although his own Minister of Justice, after conferring with Mr. Mowat, recommended an appeal. His claqueurs may assert as often as they choose that Sir John favored and suggested a reference to the Privy Council, but the facts are against them—he never did.—Stratford Beacon.

Still the talk goes on of annexing the Crown colony of Jamaica to the Dominion of Canada. This is a little Jingo dream of Sir Charles Tupper, which has only the commercial aspect of the proposed union to recommend it. As a political union it could not hope to be successful to any great extent. The political amalgamation of the people of Jamaica, as they are at present constituted, is impracticable. Perhaps Sir John may have some ulterior project in view for the purpose of strengthening his political support. A new Province, with a population largely composed of persons once in an enslaved condition, would afford a fine field for the exercise of that over-riding of provincial rights which the other Provinces have so vigorously resisted.

Manitoba is, like the dog in the fable, now reaping the results of keeping bad company. She joined with Sir John in robbing Ontario of her territory and annexing it to Manitoba. She has gone down with Sir John in his defeat by Mr. Mowat, and she now has to shoulder a huge bill of costs—$25,000. Besides, her Attorney-General, Mr. Miller, can now appreciate the beauties of the gerrymander. Sir John (if he has not done it by intention, has done it by failure,) has gerrymandered Mr. Millar of his constituency. Of this there is left, from the territory awarded to Ontario, the land of only one man; so that Mr. Miller is facetiously referred to by the Globe as the member for Mr. Corregan, the sole remaining constituent of Mr. Millar not absorbed by Ontario. Manitoba is served righteously for abetting the attempt of Sir John to rob Ontario

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hall returned home from their wedding tour on Tuesday evening.

Messrs. R. E. Wood and C. A. Weller were at Albany, N. Y., to attend a banquet given by Gen. Oliver, Commodore of the American Canoe Association. It has been decided to hold the camp of the association on Grindstone Island, in the Lake of the Thousand Islands.

The Calgary Herald says, "Mr. F. W. Haultain, barrister of Peterborough, arrived in town last Wednesday en route to Fort MacLeod, where he will enter into partnership with Mr. McCaul. Mr. Haultain is a rising young man, and we feel sure he will make his mark in his new home."

A New Westminister, British Columbia journal says of two former residents of this vicinity:

"Messrs. Coulter & Co. have taken the premises adjoining C. McNaughton's, and fitted up a very handsome drug store, which will be fully equipped in a few days."

Turnbull's Millinery and Mantle Show Rooms are now open, all the latest novelties are on display, intending purchasers will find it to their advantage to look through the stock.

TWO WAYS

To Win Trade!

There are two ways to win trade—as of old. One to deserve it and wait; the other to advertise—and get it. Not all who wait deserve it! not all who wait get it. But in our case publicity helps what ought to be helped. We've hitched our cart to the newspaper, and it is bound to go. Our local newspapers are enterprising, and we're part of the benefit of their success.

We're ready with the largest, and in every way the best stock, that we've ever packed in for the Fall and Winter trade.

It's divided in proper proportion into goods for Men's, Youths, and Boys wear, for Ladies', Misses and Girls garniture.

Our whole stock is well selected, and has many admirable features—features that add to the beauty and use of the goods, without adding to their cost.

If you're a masculine, let us make your clothing; you'll find that our styles are faultlessly correct, our Tweeds and Cloths, reliable in quality; our work is perfect in fit and excellent in finish.

To these we add other points, all esteemed by admirers of Good Clothing.

Dress Goods.

About our Dress Goods Stock, we wish to say in general that nothing can at all approach the superb exhibition of these goods, as we display them. It's not only the largest to which we've ever called your attention but is in range of colors and qualities, the most perfect, not one of the many classes of goods in public favour being wanting to complete our list.

Whatever we do we mean to do well, we try to do well. If our functions are only that of tradesmen we mean to make it good by doing it well. Ours is the old homely rule: "do as you'd be done by," set up in general trade.

And our prices are as low as elsewhere—and lower in many lines.

DOMINION ORGANS AND PIANOS AGAIN VICTORIOUS.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

SIR,—The Dominion Organs and Pianos were again awarded the first prizes at the Central Fair held in Lindsay ending on Friday over all competitors, including Mr. Smart's would-be-famous Bell organ. I only returned from there last night and learned this morning that he was again in a state of ebullition, and instead of answering my former letter was wriggling and writhing, as appeared by his third letter of the 1st instant in Wednesday's Review. True to his instincts, he does not deny one allegation in my letter in a straight-forward manner, but as usual makes incoherent statements and calls them proofs. He does not and dare not say that his instruments are superior to the Dominions. Then if by his silence, evasion or otherwise, he admits he can not do so, he must also admit that he falsely and fraudulently represents his to be superior to intending purchasers to induce them to buy where there is no opportunity to controvert his statements. As to the copy of the judges' report taken from the Mail he would like to make a mountain out of a mole-hill. He says it is my statement. I have denied that it is mine, and have referred him to the Mail as my authority, which is also his authority. If it exercises him too much he can settle with the Mail. One drop in bucketful of honors conferred on the "Dominions" does not materially affect it. He says he has no need to blow about diplomas and awards. I agree with him that he has no diplomas and awards to blow about, but he has the "blow." He talks of wit. His attempt is far fetched. He also speaks of vulgarity. Whatever may be in the man, I can see nothing in the name implying vulgarity. If he sees so much hollowness in prizes, why does his company try so hard to get them. They also tried at St. Catharines the other day, where, as usual, they took a back seat, the Dominion taking first prizes in cash on both organs and pianos over all competitors. I can still mention other cases, but the thing is getting monotonous, and this is why he raves.

Yours, &c.,

J. J. IRWIN,
Agent for the Dominion Organ & Piano Co.

Do not fail to see Hall, Innes & Co's display of Millinery and Mantles, on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 7th and 8th.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

Ready Made Clothing.

While in Toronto I bought at a big discount for cash, a large lot of Men's and Boy's Over Coats, Tweed Suits and Pants, some of which were slightly damaged by smoke, being part of a stock saved from a recent fire. These are all new sound goods, and will be sold much below regular prices. W. J. Wallace, Lakefield. 38-4in.

Coal Oil.

Owing to a "combination" having been formed among the oil refiners, coal oil is advancing in price every week. Consumers should take their cans to CHINA HALL and get them filled at once, and thereby save money. China Hall has the best quality of oil in town. Try it once. 31-tf

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were illy adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

Fifth class, total marks obtainable, 420.—1, Hulda Weir, 341; 2, Lena Long, 298.

Fourth class, total marks obtainable 420.—1, Lottie Lang, 304; 2, Ella Hooten, 266; 3, George McBain, 242; 4, Emma McBain, 237; 5, May H. Morrow, 232.

Third class, total marks obtainable 280.—1, Rosy Sutton, 189; 2, Geo. Hooten, 169; 3, Emma McIndoo, 158; 4, Lizzie Johnston, 144.

Second class, total marks obtainable 90.—1, Birdy Maxwell, 63; 2, Lizzie Elsom, 61; 3, Libby Wilson. 59; 4, Lettie Meharry, 53; 5, John A. Fair, 42.

Junior second class, total marks obtainable 90.—1, Robert G. Johnston, 56; 2, Fred McBain, 45.

All classes below the second were not examined. For the information of the parents and others interested we would state that, David Keyes, Joseph Sanderson, and Annie Meharry of the fifth class, and Richard Sutton, and Robert Robertson of the fourth class, and Maria Gibson of the senior second class, for unavoidable causes, did not write at this examination. Our school for the first half year of 1884, averaged a daily attendance of 23, and during the same half year, six pupils passed the Durham promotion examination from the third to the fourth class, one pupil from the fourth to the fifth class, and four passed the entrance to the High school at Peterborough. Owing to promotion examination for juniors being held in this county shortly before Christmas last year, and the next one being held in March following, no pupils in this school wrote for promotion from the second to the third class this year, but without enlarging on the above report it will be seen that our school is in a progressive condition.

WEATHER NOTES.

September has again seen the ingathering of a good harvest completed, with almost everything a full average crop. Up to the 10th the month was warm, on several days the thermometer rising to 90° and two days to 91°, after which a colder change took place, and on the morning of the 14th it dropped to 2° below freezing point, sharp frost and the first ice of the season. The average of the month was 59°. Rain fell on 17 days to the depth of 3 and 17-100 of an inch with thunder on four different days. Taking the month as a whole it has been good for farming operations and fall ploughing.

HAMILTON TOWNSHIP.

On Thursday last a robbery was committed at the residence of Mr. James Byers, situated on the gravel road between Bailliebourgh and Bewdley. The family were all absent at the exhibition at Bailliebourgh. Tramps were seen to enter the premises, showing they were the guilty parties. The property stolen consisted of an unlimited quantity of eatables, two pairs of pants, one vest, an over-coat, an under-coat and other clothing, including a new pair of lace boots. The hired man also had his trunk broken open and clothing stolen. The thieves used the barn as a dressing room, where the put on the stolen clothing and left their own rags behind. The loss amounts to over $50. The thieves were coming towards Peterborough, and the police are looking out for them.

EXHIBITION AT LAKEFIELD.

A Fair Success.

The annual exhibition of the Smith, Ennismore and Lakefield Agricultural Society, was held at Lakefield, on Tuesday and Wednesday last. The first day was devoted to arranging the exhibits and judging the inside display. In the evening the hall was thrown open to the public and visited by large numbers. The entries this year showed a falling off, being 660, as against 970, in 1883. The principal falling off was in grains and ladies' work. On the second day, in spite of the rain, the attendance was fair, and with bright weather, would have been the largest of any exhibition of the Society, owing partly to their being no show at Peterborough this fall. The exhibit of horses—carriage and draught and blood mares and foals, was good, and the cattle made a better display than that of any local exhibition held this year. Mr. Graham, of Peterborough, had several agricultural implements on exhibition. Mr. D. Smart, exhibited one each of the Bell and Karn organs, and Mr. J. J. Irwin showed two Dominion organs. The other departments, with the exceptions noted, were of average merit. We shall publish the prize list in the next issue.

FRASERVILLE.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The following is a report of pupils who obtained the highest number of marks in each class for month of September:—Senior 4th.—James Laing, 1st; Hannah Campbell, 2nd. Junior 4th.—Ada Rae, 1st; Helena Emerson, 2nd; Jane Emerson, 3rd. Senior 3rd.—Ida Dunlop, 1st; Mary Latimer, 2nd; John Clark, 3rd. Junior 3rd.—Annie Magee, 1st; Jane Bothwell, 2nd; Wm. Halloran, 3rd; Annie Cunningham, 4th. Second Class.—Minnie Clark, 1st; David Cunningham, 2nd; Elsie Patterson, 3rd; Wm. Cunningham, 4th. Part II.—Martha Atchison, 1st; Maude Laing, 2nd; Bessie Goodfellow, 3rd; Bertie Elliots, 4th. Average attendance, 38.

For a number of years Mr. John Bothwell has received for his colts 1st prize wherever exhibited, and this year he has in his possession one of the finest colts, if not the best in either Durham or Peterborough counties. He has been offered $150 cash for a colt five months old, but refused. At the Union Exhibition at Bailliebourgh he took the special prize (1st) given by Fair & Graham.

Mr. Thomas Bowles purchased from Mr. Armstrong the farm which has been worked by Mr. Halloran for some time. As Mr. Bowles is an exceptionally good farmer, we have no doubt in saying that ere long it will be one of the best farms on the 9th concession of Cavan. As a neighbor, we welcome him, at the same time pleased to learn that Mr. Halloran does not intend to leave the neighborhood.

Mr. Touzeland, of Keene, occupied the pulpit in Fraserville church last Sunday.

Fatal Accident.

A fatal accident occurred on the Ontario & Quebec railway on Monday morning last, shortly after 7 o'clock, by which a man named Thos. Brennan was instantaneously killed. The deceased, who was foreman of a section on the above railway a few miles east of Peterborough, was proceeding east ward on a hand-car with his gang of men to his usual employment, and left Indian River expecting the track was "all clear," but he had only proceeded a short distance when the mixed train going west suddenly came upon his lorry around a curve, and almost without warning collided with it. His four companions as soon as they saw the approaching train, immediately jumped from the lorry, but Brennan, it seems, who was determined to stick to his post, as soon as the lorry was struck, received the full force of the concussion, and was instantly killed, it being found on the examination that his neck was broken. Mr. Brennan had been on the Ontario & Quebec railway in Norwood and recently since the commencement of the construction of the line, and was well respected by all who knew him in the community for industry and geniality of his disposition. He was about 40 years of age, a married man, and had been previous to his death, a resident of Georgetown. His eldest son, who was a member of the section gang of which Mr. Brennan was foreman, was an eye witness to the fatal occurrence which deprived him of a kind and affectionate father.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 8, 1884

The movement in grain as yet is not by any means large. Prices continue steady in all grains. Spring wheat is selling from 80c. to 81c. Fall, 75c. to 78c Barley is moving to some extent, prices running from 50c. to 65c., the bulk selling from 55c. to 62c. Expect heavier receipts next week. We think farmers will not make anything by holding it back at present at ruling prices. In rye, peas and oats nothing doing. Rye sells at 46c. Peas, 62c. to 64c. Oats, 31c. to 32c. On the market, there is no particular change in prices. Roll and print butter selling at from 20c. to 22c. Crock, 17c. to 19c. Keg butter, 15c. to 18c., few offering. Eggs are getting less plentiful, selling from 16c. to 17c. Chickens plentiful at from 30c. to 45c. per pair. Geese, 40c. to 50c. Ducks, 50c. to 60c. Lamb, 6c. to 7c.; plentiful. Potatoes abundant, and slow at 40c. per bag. Apples rather dull—prices unchanged.

A CHANGE.

An Austin youth has been paying his addresses to a young lady, under the impression that she was wealthy. Finally she told him promptly that the bank had failed, and she was penniless, after which his attention slackened up. A few days ago she said to him:

"Dear George, it seems to me that since you found out I am only a poor girl you have ceased to love me."

"You don't say so!" rejoined the candid youth; "do you know that the very same idea has occurred to me?"

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"I shall be stronger when I am with you," she said, turning a little aside, and he knew that there must be grief and suffering yet for her. "You understand me, Phillip?" very wistfully.

"Yes, my own darling, and for your sake"—he stopped and added resolutely—"for your sake, I could school myself to yield up vengeance; but for your sake I may not yield up what is dearer than vengeance, or love, or life."

Once more he bent and kissed her, and went out softly, but the light of his presence lingered behind.

CHAPTER XVIII.

TO REST AND REFIT.

The murder of Walter St. John was the great sensation of the season; it was discussed in all its bearings in club and salon, and the aspect of the affair as a murder case was almost lost sight of in the deeper interest excited by that other aspect touching the position of Philip St. John's wife.

Arnold Murray had been committed, and the trial was to take place in London in about a fortnight. People wondered, in the face of such evidence, what defence he could possibly make. That of mistaken identity could scarcely hold water, for the landlord of the Crown at Rington, and half-a-dozen others who had known him there, could testify to his identity with Stephen Martin.

Poynter had recognized him at once, and Erica's momentary hesitation had been due less to a want of instant recognition than to the shock of the change wrought in her cousin.

Expectation was at its height, and the general feeling of the public gave credence to Erica. The mere fact that Philip St. John believed her, and that she was with him now, carried a strong moral weight with it.

Lady Cheshunt, who was a leader in London society, had called at the Langham that very afternoon, and with a thoughtful delicacy that touched Philip, even while his haughty spirit winced at it, begged him and Erica to come to her during their stay in town.

He had thanked her with grave earnestness, but refused the proffered hospitality. Erica shrank from society, and wanted rest and quiet; and she felt too acutely, not only her own position, but that of her cousin, to care to see many people.

That night, sitting at Philip's feet, resting her head wearily against him, she told him all it had been impossible to explain in the first joy and pain of reunion. And though he would fain have spared her till another time, she told him it eased her heart; she would have no thought hidden from him now, and so he suffered her to go over those years of pain, and tell him how she had met Arnold on the beach that night when she had said it was Poynter to whom she spoke; how it was Arnold who had sent that pencilled message to her—he had lost money and wanted her to pay his debts.

"After—after your letter came to me," she said, softly stealing her hand into his as he sat with shaded eyes and face a little averted, "I left Grayle. Then Aunt Helen sent for me; she was ill, dying, and I nursed her, and was with her when she died. She left me all she had. That house, and everything in it, had been hers, and when it came to me I lived there. Now you know everything, Philip," she said, closing her eyes. "It is so restful to think I have nothing hidden from you."

He bent and smoothed back the curls caressingly from her brow.

"And now, my child," he said, softly, "we will lay aside talk or thought of the past—it has been full of sorrow, and pain, and bitterness for us—and try to look forward to the future."

"I cannot, Philip; it is all clouded to me, except just the one thought that I am to be with you; but the past, I am always thinking of that, going over the ground again, seeing where I might have done so differently, wishing, wishing—oh, how I have wished that I had seen things clearly as I see them now."

He sighed as he still kept passing his hand over her hair. It was useless he knew to tell her she must not so dwell on the past. The mind, long pressed down with the weight of suffering, could not at once rebound to strength.

"When all is over," he said, "I shall take you abroad, you need rest and change."

When all was over! She shivered and her lips half-opened, she drooped her head, and then whispered:

"Philip, if—if he is condemned, you will let me see him, won't you?"

He paused a moment, and the hand that clasped hers closed a little tighter round the slender fingers.

"I cannot promise, darling," he said; then very gently, "but you will believe that whatever I may do it will be best for you."

"Yes, Philip, she answered, touching her lips to his hand. "I know I can leave all in your keeping."

CHAPTER XIX.

THE TRIAL OF ARNOLD MURRAY.

There was an immense excitement over the trial of Arnold Murray for the murder of Walter St. John, not so much, indeed, because the murdered man had been so closely connected with the famous literateur, that had but a secondary place in the public mind, but because this trial would of necessity include the clearing up of that mystery which hung over the literateur's private life, and must have the effect either of restoring or for ever blasting his wife's fair name.

So that when the trial came on, there was not standing room to be found in the court, and a dense crowd spread beyond the doors, eager to catch a word of news passed from those within.

The bench was filled with members, not only of the literary and kindred professions, but with those belonging to the "polite world," conspicuous among whom were Lord and Lady Cheshunt.

But it was not on these that the public eye rested unceasingly, but on the chief actors in this strange drama—on the erect form and unrevealing face of Philip St. John, yet more on the slender girlish wife who had waded through a sea of suffering, whose reputation hung in the balance, and whose wondrous pathetic beauty touched the hearts of the least impressionable there, though Nat Poynter came in for a share of the criticisms.

There was a stir as Arnold Murray took his place in the dock, leaning heavily against the rails, and looking neither to the right or left.

Philip's eyes rested on him a moment—cold, clear, like hard steel.

There was neither flash of passion, nor gleam of pity, in that glance, and then he turned to answer some remark made to him.

As for Erica, she never moved nor gave sign that she knew the prisoner had entered; her eyes were drooping, hidden by the long lashes, and she never raised them once.

Perhaps she feared for her own power if she suffered her eyes to dwell on Arnold Murray in that felon's dock.

There was a breathless silence during the formal question and low-uttered "Not guilty" of the prisoner, during the opening speech of the attorney-general, and while the landlord of the Crown at Rington and two others were examined to establish the identity of the prisoner with the Stephen Martin who had stayed at that hotel; but there was a [illegible] called. He recounted all the story of that night in the most simple and straightforward manner, and was not cross-examined; now and then he excited a laugh by his mode of speaking of Erica—always "Miss Erica—leastways Mrs. St. John," and occasionally —"Missy."

Those who had been observing the prisoner during the last ten minutes of Poynter's examination, and of these was Philip St. John, had seen him lift himself from his leaning posture and look round for the first time with just a fleeting glance, growing more steady as he seemed to gather courage; then that his eyes went straight to where Erica stood, a statue carved in whitest marble, with that look of rigidly-enforced endurance on the young, fair face that, after his fashion, he loved.

He knew that it was not her fault that he was here, and that something good which is left lying at the bottom of all but the utterly hardened was moved for her.

All this crowd of gaping sightseers were gloating over the prospect of her evidence, were waiting impatiently for her to be called, that they might note how she looked, and when her voice faltered, and when her color came or went, and a sudden gush of remorse came over the miserable man who had been the curse of the girl all her life.

It might be that this new impulse was not born only of remorse and pity for her—there is much that breaks down fierce feeling in the fact of a shattered physique.

He had no hope of winning; he was not quite base enough to set up a defence that should blast his cousin's honor; and then, she had suffered so much for him, that he might as well do what he could for her. And he had a savage delight in disappointing that eager crowd. They should not feed their morbid curiosity on the torture of his cousin.

And not giving himself time for any more, he whispered to his counsel, who was observed to start slightly, and then, just as the counsel for the prosecution was saying, "I must now call——" and expectation was at its height, he rose up, and addressed the judge.

Arnold glanced round with a half-contemptuous smile, and then put one hand to his forehead a second and clenched the handrail with the other, sick now and cold when the moment was come.

But, hush! what is his counsel saying.

Every ear is bent to listen; and Philip leans a little forward and draws in his breath, and swift his glance goes to Erica—moved at last, but only a little outwardly; her hands are locked, and her eyes are lifted, looking straight at the prisoner.

His counsel is asking that the case may be stopped, for that his client wishes to plead guilty to the manslaughter of Walter St. John, and to make full confession of his guilt, and begs his lordship to hear him, as the name and honor of others are bound up in what he has to say.

There is an instant's absolute hush. Every eye is turned to the prisoner—the central figure in this scene—once voice cries out from the back, "Bravo!" and is hushed down by the usher; then there is a murmur, a fresh attitude of anticipation, and again deathly silence, while the judge confers a moment with counsel and then speaks. And as he does so Philip comes round quietly to Erica's side and stands there. He is anxious, terribly anxious for her; for he thinks of the "afterwards," when the strain shall have passed.

And then Arnold lifts his head, and a mist comes before his eyes. He knows they are all waiting for him to speak; listening for the words; wondering how he will put them; whether he is breaking down at the last. His lips are parched and dry, and when he tries to speak no sound issues from them.

"Water—water!" he whispers.

And a wave of pity goes through the crowd, and the women bend forward with tears in their eyes. How they watch him as he drinks the water the gaoler gives him. And for the first time Erica's self-suppression wavers a second. She lifts her hands to her brow and presses them there, and then they drop once more, and she is rigid, for Arnold is speaking; telling that story of wrong and crime, concealing nothing, only denying that he had any premeditation of murder. The witnesses from Rington had made it clear that up to the time of the two men quitting the hotel they had seemed good friends, but that Walter had bitterly reproached him with causing his ruin, and then he had lost his temper, and struck the blow that killed him.

"I meant to kill him in that moment," he said. "The witness Poynter has spoken truth in everything. I promised him money to hush up the matter, and he consented to help me. I went then to Grayle House, where I knew my cousin was all alone, and told her all, and claimed the fulfilment of that vow she had made to her mother. She promised to keep the secret from her husband, who did not even know of my existence; for," said the prisoner, the reckless hardness that had been softened in these last few moments gaining influence again, "I was not an ornament to the family, and every one knows how careful Mr. St. John is of his name. I have only one thing more to say," and now he looked straight at the judge, and his voice was swayed by a new feeling; "my only motive in making this confession is to clear the name of my cousin, who has suffered all these years for my fault. She has lain under a false imputation since she left her home with me. She did it simply because she was afraid to leave me alone to manage my escape.—And I swear before Heaven, as I am perhaps a dying man, that there was no thought of wrong between us, and she is guiltless of any sin that can bring a shadow of dishonor on her fair name. I have nothing more to say, my lord, and I thank you for allowing me to make the only reparation I can, even if a little late, to the woman who has been at least noble enough to sacrifice even her name for the sake of an oath made to a dying woman."

It was evident that a profound impression had been created by this confession and defence of Erica St. John. There was even a faint attempt to cheer this tardy reparation; and many were touched by his words, and thought he was not so bad after all. And in the eager curiosity to see how Erica bore this, the words of the judge as he began to charge the jury were scarcely attended to.

The sensation lay there, over by the witness-box. And yet there was nothing to see. Only a slight girl striving with an agony that not a tenth part of that crowd could more than dimly comprehend. She showed nothing to a cursory gaze. She stood quite still, not seeking support, not drooping. But Philip, who was at her side, knew all she was enduring, and in that knowledge was not touched even to a momentary pity for the man who had done such tardy justice.

The question of the verdict could only lie between murder and manslaughter, and the jury, without retiring, gave it on the latter count. Yet the sentence —"Penal servitude for life"—seemed scarcely more than a mockery for that haggard and broken-down man.

Then there was a stir, a swaying to and fro of the crowd, the fresh air blew in through open doors, and there was a buzz of talk and comment, and rustle of silks as ladies came down from the bench, and felt that it was a dreadful pleasure to see a man tried for murder.

"It is all over," Philip whispered gently, for the girl did not seem to take note that people were going out, and that kind, if injudicious, friends were coming about her. But at the sound of his voice the chain snapped that bound her physique up to bear the tortured soul, she lifted her eyes with a wild start to his face, and caught blindly at the hand he laid on hers, and knew no more till she felt the air from an open window fanning her forehead, and Philip's cool, soft hand putting sweet scents on her brow.

"Take me home, Philip; take me home," was her cry, and, as in a dream, she heard a kind and gentle voice, and knew it for Lady Cheshunt's.

"To my home, dear Mr. St. John; believe me, it will be so much better for her, and I am such an old friend. You shall be as though you were in your own house."

And Philip yielded, thanking her only with a look from the dark eyes.

CHAPTER XX.

IT MIGHT HAVE BEEN SO DIFFERENT.

"Erica, come to me."

It was Philip's voice, tender, gentle, that spoke, yet with a something in its tones that made the girl pause in her excited, feverish walk up and down, and she pressed her hands to her throbbing temples, looking at him with large, bright, pathetic eyes.

But he stretched out his hand, and she came to his. He passed his arm round her and held her to his heart a moment in silence.

"My poor child," he said at last.

And those three words, spoken with such infinite, tender pity, with such a perfect understanding of all she was suffering, broke her down, and for many minutes he could do naught but soothe her convulsive weeping—weeping that yet brought some relief to the overburdened heart.

He did not indeed try to check her, it was the inevitable reaction from such self-control as she had put on herself throughout the day, and it took a load from him to know that she had the power yet to weep.

Presently she grew more quiet, and whispered, hiding her face on his breast.

"I could have been calm, Philip, still, if you had not spoke: Forgive me. Oh, Philip! how I have made you suffer!"

"Hush, darling; you make me suffer still when you reproach yourself," he answered, passing his hand caressingly over her bright tresses; "you must not dwell on that, Erica."

"It seems like a dream, a dreadful dream; yet oh, so real, all this day," she said, after a moment. "Philip, there was still some good in him, struggling through the hardness of his reckless life."

"It was a tardy justice, Erica," Philip said, slowly.

And she shivered.

"For life," she murmured, brokenly; "shattered, broken. It might have been so different. When we played together by the sea, bright children both, I think I would have willingly seen him die before this setting of his life.—Philip,"—how wistfully the sorrowful eyes sought his—"you will let me go to him?"

He flushed darkly over cheek and brow; but his glance lost no softness resting on her.

"It will do you no good, Erica," he said. Then almost irresolutely: "He is not worthy of it. He would not understand you."

"But he is ill; he may be dying, Philip." The girl laid her soft cheek with such wistful pleading against his hand. "Once—only once before—before——" She broke off abruptly, and then went on: "He will never work out his sentence, Philip; I know that. This one thing I pray of you—oh, husband, be merciful!"

He turned away and loosed his clasp from her, going to the other side of the room, and then coming back to the mantel-piece, shading his eyes with one hand.

"You try me hardly," he said, at length, and she heard the change in his voice. "I have not revolutionized my nature, Erica."

Ah no! It would be to him a sharper test of his love for her if he yielded this prayer than the forgiveness of all her transgressions against his name and trust. It was through his wife that Arnold Murray had touched him; he it was who had brought her such sorrow. He could not forget that; and it was a wrench for him to think of his wife going to his bitterest enemy.

He set his teeth and clenched his hand. This dastard to speak to his wife—to touch her hand!

"Philip," the girl said, coming to him and laying a half timid clasp on his arm, "have you no pity for that wrecked life? I would not urge any excuse for him; he was his own enemy—Heaven help him! Had you no pang of pity for him to-day?"

"I looked at you, Erica, and I had none," Philip made answer and bent his head yet lower.

It was hard—it was hard to give way. It was harder to refuse this, when he loved her so passionately.

She stood, with drooping head and hands clasped before her, a few steps from him. She could plead no more, remembering how much she owed him, and in that meek giving up, unconsciously she conquered.

After a pause, Philip again drew her to his side, and the lips that kissed hers so softly were quivering, and the voice that spoke to her was not steady.

"I cannot make you sorrowful, dear one," he said. "Forgive me that I found it hard to yield you anything you asked of me. You shall see him, my child."

Her eyes met his a moment, filled with a deep gratitude her lips could not utter, and then she nestled closer in his arms, and her simple "Thank you, Philip," seemed to him more than worth the battle he had lost.

* * * * * * *

"I don't know as he'll know you, ma'am," said the nurse, as she pushed open the door leading to a long passage opening from the prison infirmary. "He's not with the others, ma'am. Oh, no; Mr. St. John managed that, and wonderful good it is of 'im, seeing as how your cousin can't recover. Lor, ma'am, he won't never serve his time. The doctor says there ain't no constitution left, what with drink and all. And he can't have no drink here, you see."

All of which information she imparted while traversing the passage till she came to a small room at the end.

"I shall be just outside, ma'am, and Mr. St. John said he'd wait in the passage for you," said the nurse, and Erica passed into that chamber, Arnold Murray's last earthly dwelling-place.

The eye took in the low, prison-like aspect of the room, and that was all, then went straight to the low bed whereon he lay—she could not tell whether asleep or awake, for his eyes were closed and his breath rose and fell heavily. The pale grey light fell cold and clear on the sunken eye and pallid brow, showing in distinct relief the features still handsome but thin and pinched, the hollow sockets round the eyes, the harsh lines about the mouth.

Erica removed her hat as though the weight oppressed her, and then stood looking down on him with a strange calmness, with shadowed eyes in which dwelt, ah, what wistful longing and sorrow, what looking back along the years that were gone, what useless crying, "It might have been!"

But she roused herself from the thralldom in which memory was holding her, and bent over Arnold, laying her hand gently on his forehead, damp and grey with the lines of death; for he had sunk rapidly during the week that had elapsed since the trial.

The touch roused him; he started up and gazed wildly at the girl, slowly gathering recognition, but trembling now in every limb.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

The Baillieboro' Union Show.

A Good Exhibit in all Classes—Roots, Grain, Horses and the Ladies' Department being Especially Fine.

The first annual exhibition of the United Townships of South Monaghan, Cavan, Hope, Hamilton and North Monaghan Agricultural Society was held at Baillieboro' on Wednesday and Thursday, the 1st and 2nd of October. Though this was the first exhibition of the above strong combination of townships, it has developed into quite an extensive show, and being patronized by the farmers of these fine townships, the quality of the exhibit cannot be excelled anywhere. The display of horses sustained the reputation of that section for superior horses. The show of cattle, though not as large as might be expected, predicts a good future for the society. Mr. J. W. Lucas had on exhibition a wagon, top buggy, open buggy and a cutter, and Mr. Chas. Byers represented the agricultural implements space with 13 articles used in tilling the soil. Mr. Robert Jackson, who has secured the right for the sale of a new patent pea harvester in the counties of Peterborough, Northumberland, Durham and Victoria, was kept busy explaining "why every farmer should have one." This machine will prove a valuable addition to the implements of the farm, as you are enabled to mow peas as easily as grass. The celebrated agent for the Bell and Karn organs, Mr. D. Smart, kept the Hall lively with music from these fine instruments. An imitation pipe organ shown by him was greatly admired. The ladies' departments were well-filled with excellent specimens of their handiwork, and the roots and vegetables would compare favorably with any shown in the Dominion. The Peterborough City Band enlivened the village with choice selections during the day. Altogether the directors and officers are to be congratulated upon the success of the first Baillieboro' show. A number of gentlemen from Peterborough and Port Hope visited the exhibition during the second day.

The following is the

VARIETIES.

The man who called another a dog apologized by saying he did not do it purp-ously.

Allan's Lung Balsam is the standard cure for Coughs and Colds in the States. See adv't.

The presidental campaign in Indiana is warming up. An editor speaks of a rival as "a sap headed ornithorhynchus."

Ill-fitting boots and shoes cause corns. Holloway's Corn Cure is the article to use. Get a bottle at once and cure your corns.

Talk about a man turning a woman's head! It is passing another woman with a new bonnet that does it.

If your children are troubled with worms, give them Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator; safe, sure and effectual. Try it, and mark the improvements in your child.

Written rules on kissing are of no avail. It is a science that must be transmitted from mouth to mouth.

Freeman's Worm Powders are safe in all cases. They destroy and remove Worms in children or adults. 40-4ins.

The Tartars pull a man by the ear to press him to drink, but in this country civilization has so far advanced that a wink generally suffices.

Dr. Low's Worm Syrup will remove all kinds of Worms from children or adults. 40-4ins.

An Indiana baby, born during a terrible storm, has been named Cyclona. Its father says the appellation is a mistake. A cyclone doesn't howl every night.

Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap—Healing, soothing, and cleansing for all eruptive diseases of the skin. Delightful for toilet use. 40-4ins.

At marriage the bride always meets her betrothed at the altar with gloves on, but after marriage she generally handles her husband without gloves.

Don't Do It. Do not Wait.

Arnica & Oil Liniment is the best remedy known for stiff joints. 40-4t.

No Chinaman can ever have a friend in an American woman after she has read that these heathens have said that there are two good women: one is dead and one is unborn.

National Pills are unsurpassed as a safe, mild, yet thorough, purgative, acting upon the biliary organs promptly and effectually. 40-4ins.

St. Louis girls are working their names on their gentlemen friend's suspenders. This is a gentle hint for the young man to return the compliment and supporter.

A peculiar virtue in Ayer's Sarsaparilla is that while it cleanses and purges the blood from all corruptions and impurities and thereby roots out disease, it builds up and invigorates the whole system, and makes one young again.

The wife of a Montreal hotel-keeper eloped with one of the boarders. She took her husband's trousers with her. All his money was in his trousers. This was a clever way of separating parasite by her husband. A moneyless and trouserless man cannot pursue a woman with comfort.

Use the Best Dyes. The Diamond Dyes for family use have no equals. All popular colors easily dyed fast and beautiful. Only 10c. a package at druggists. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. Sample Card, 32 colors, and book of directions for 2c. stamp.

Some one has said, "the surest way to a man's heart is through his stomach." And from the way Cupid lurks around ice cream saloons we may surmise that it is the surest way to a woman's heart, too.

Costiveness is the cause of the intolerable "bad breath" of multitudes. Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters remove the cause and prevent the evil, and cost only 25 cents. 40-4t.

Every young lady should learn to make her own dresses. There may come a time after marriage when she will need to make doll babies' dresses and then her former experience will come into good service.

A Firm Opinion

The firm of Ormond & Walsh, druggists, of Peterborough, say Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is one of their best standard Medicines for Summer Complaints. 40-2t.

Wives are presumptuous creatures. They are always asking for a lock of their lover's hair before marriage, and taking it without asking afterwards.

Orpha M. Hodge, Battle Creek, Mich., writes: I upset a tea-kettle of boiling hot water on my hand. I at once applied Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and the effect was to immediately allay pain. I was cured in three days.

The law of the harvest is reap more than you sow. Sow an act, and you reap a habit; sow a habit, and you reap a character; sow a character, and you reap a destiny.

A Good Time.

When is the best time to take a blood purifier? Whenever the blood is foul and humors appear, or when the system is debilitated take Burdock Blood Bitters. 40-2t.

Ladies are said to be working their way into the watch business, because they produce handsomer faces and more delicate hands than men.

A Sudden Attack.

All people, and especially travellers, are liable to a sudden attack of Cholera Morbus, Colic, Diarrhœa and Dysentery. Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry is the most prompt and reliable remedy known. 40-2t.

A young Burlingtonian is dreadfully anxious over the result of the campaign. He and his girl have made the following agreements: If Blaine is elected, he is to marry the girl; If Cleveland is elected, the girl is to marry him, if neither of them get it, they are to marry each other.

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second; It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

It came out in a Tennessee lawsuit that the ardent letters sent by a girl to her lover had been composed for another fellow; but that on transferring her affections suddenly, she had erased the original name and inserted a new one.

Remarkable Restoration.

Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of Buffalo, N. Y., was given up to die by her physicians, as incurable with consumption. It proved Live Complaint, and was cured with Burdock Blood Bitters. 40-2t.

"Will you have your oysters scalloped?" asked the waiter at an Austin restaurant, of a green customer. "Have the oysters scalped? Has everything in the restaurant got hair on it? Why don't you scalp the butter?"

Try Morgan's

Blue Grass Condition Powders for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry. Best in use. Only 25c. Find Morgan's druggists. 15-4t

"Oh, I do so dote on the sea," she gurgled. "If you only had a yacht, Augustus dear!" "I have no yacht, Wilhelmina," he sighed, "but I can give you a little smack." And then it sounded as if a cork had flown out of a bottle.

Lumbago.

Those who suffer from this disease will find a friend in NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELTS when all other remedies fail. Ask your druggist for it and take no other. Guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 41-4t

A farmer sent his boy to the "sugar bush" to look after the sap buckets. Presently he returned. "How are they?" asked the farmer. "W-well," the boy replied, "a-some are h-half full, some a-some are f-full an' a-some are r-runnin' over. I g-guess they'll average 'bout f-full.

The history of Dowds' Elixir is identified with the history of New England for the last fifty years. It cures coughs and colds. 40-4t.

The other night a Philadelphia girl alarmed the house with her shrieks, and when her friends rushed into the room she declared she had seen a burglar. She had upon retiring hung her switch over a chair, and seeing it mistook it for the top of a man's head.

Great Fatality.

The ravages of Cholera Infantum and Summer Complaints among children is truely alarming. The most reliable cure is Dr. Fowler's Wild Strawberry. Every bottle guaranteed to give satisfaction. 40-2t.

It is surprising to see what success the girls have had this leap year, in capturing innocent youths of the male persuasion. Others can take courage before Christmas and swell the amusing record. Nothing like having faith and self-reliance.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES,

In General Debility and Emaciation.

Is a most valuable food and medicine where the appetite is poor, and the ordinary food does not seem to nourish the body. This is easily digested and assimilated and gives strength and vigor to the enfeebled body.

In Lower California there are four mountains of peculiar composition. Two are of alum, one of alum and sulphur mixed, and one of sulphur. Both substances are almost chemically pure. The amount of sulphur in the four mountains is estimated at 1,000,000 tons, and that of alum at 100,000,000 tons.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum: the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Fire.

On Monday night a small frame dwelling near the R. C. Cemetery occupied by Mr. Thos Kent, took fire and was burnt to the ground. The people in this part of the town pay their taxes, yet they are not provided with any water tank, so that the firemen who are on hand and willing to work can render no assistance. The question of water tanks for the south ward should be considered.

The Sibley Case Settled.

The case of W. H. Sibley charged with appropriating, in his capacity of law clerk, money belonging to his employer, Mr. E. B. Edwards, to his own use, was brought before the Police Magistrate on Friday. The Crown Attorney, Mr. C. A. Wellar, stated that the offence did not constitute embezzlement, and as the sureties to his articles of clerkship had made good the amount appropriated, it was not thought prudent nor in the interests of society to farther push the charge. The magistrate therefore dismissed the charge, and the accused with a few timely words of good advice.

Interesting to the Ladies Only.

None of our departments is at present receiving greater attention than the Dress and Mantle Making. Ladies will be pleased to learn that we have engaged Miss S. Johnston to superintend this department, and her many friends here, who know her best as a Mantle Maker, will be glad to learn of her return to Peterborough, and accord to her the full justice she merits as a painstaking and successful Dress and Mantle Fitter Miss Johnston has had an experience lately in the western cities, where she has come in contact with Popular and Leading American Styles, and we are warranted in stating that her work cannot be surpassed. A trial will bear out this assertion. We have a rich stock of fabrics for dresses and mantles to select from, and our trimmings and other designs are elegant. A call respectfully solicted. Fair, VanEvery & Co., Sign of the "Golden Lion."

Grand Clearing Sale.

Mr. George Pope is retiring from business and at his grand clearing sale offers for the public at tremendous bargains, $20,000 worth of dry goods, boots and shoes. The sale has been open for several days and there has been a great rush of customers to secure the big bargains which it affords. The goods are all fresh and bought with care in the best markets. The stock comprises staple and fancy dress goods, silks, cashmeres, velveteens, flannels, dress goods, blankets, gentleman's underclothing in great variety, gloves, laces, ribbons, collars, cuffs, linens for trimmings, etc. etc., in great variety. A fine stock of first class boots and shoes for sale at the most tempting figures. This sale presents a splendid opportunity for householders to make their purchases of fall and winter goods. Don't neglect to call and examine goods, or you will miss one of the best chances for bargains ever presented in Peterborough.

Lech's New Fur Store.

We have before noted in THE EXAMINER the great improvements and extensions Mr. Wm. Lech has been making to his premises on George street, which make them the finest and most commodious premises in Ontario. The internal improvements make them also the best furnished. Internally the walls and ceilings have been calcimined, and the wall shelving repainted and vastly improved in appearance. A parquette floor in red oak has been laid, and among the new fittings is the largest and finest show case in town. It is 13½ feet in length and reaches from floor to ceiling. It is three feet in depth. Its frame is of solid walnut, and is fitted with six plates of glass, separated by nickel silver standards. A range of drawers occupies the bottom, provided with silver handles. Its cost is $300, and it is a credit to the taste and skill of Mr. D. Bellegheni. A portable mirror of British plate, 2½ x 5 feet and enclosed with a richly carved and ornamented frame, is at once a useful and beautiful accessory. There are other show cases for containing the immense stock of furs. The office is in a railed space in the rear of the extensive shop. Altogether finer, more roomy and elegant premises do not exist in many cities, while the extensive stock of furs, hats, caps, etc. etc., in their variety, range, and excellence, tempt the patronage of the public.

Mr. Lech's enterprise has also found an outlet in the fine finishing of Mr. Hugh Ross' furnishing store, next door, the appearance of which it may be remarked, would have been vastly improved by the substitution of single plate glass instead of the present plates

FALL OPENINGS.

Five-Fold Flourish of Fashionable Paraphernalia.

On Tuesday and Wednesday five of our enterprising merchants held their fall openings, and the general indications are that they have never made more complete and extensive preparations for the fall trade. Of course on these occasions the millinery is the chief attraction for the ladies, who turned out in crowds to inspect the beautiful displays. Owing to the demand on our advertising space we are compelled to curtail our remarks of the fine displays that were worthy of more elaborate notice. Of course as becomes the season, hats and bonnets take on more sober conditions and colours. The popular shades this fall are bronze, olive, conder brown, different shades of seal, the new cardinal, beige, etc. The material of hats and bonnets are chiefly felt in the fashionable shades, and plush covered shapes. The prevailing trimmings are birds, wings, plumes, shaded and variegated, pom poms and dark hued flowers. Hat shapes are not so large as formerly, and the cottage bonnet still holds its place as a favorite.

JAMES ALEXANDER.

This gentleman's millinery department under the able charge of Miss Winters, presents an unusual line of attractive goods. The show room was handsomely decorated, and the fine stock of hats and bonnets, all trimmed on the premises, were displayed to excellent advantage. The newest and most fashionable hats in shape and shade trimmed in the most tasteful and fashionable manner, with the most fashionable materials, attracted warm approbation from the numerous visitors. No pattern hats were on display; all are elaborated from the internal resources of the establishment. The lady who cannot find here a hat or bonnet, which, in fashion, beauty of design and trimmings, meets her taste, must indeed be hard to suit. Besides a splendid line of mantles and dolmans were on exhibition, as well as all the latest materials and trimmings that enter into their composition. Mr. Alexander's display was equal if not surperior to any former attempts, and that is pretty high praise.

J. C. TURNBULL.

To these acquainted with Mr. Turnbulls' enterprise, his elaborate and artistic opening display was what they might expect. Miss Irons is the presiding priestess of his millenery department and she has made and trimmed under her own supervision a superb display of beautiful hats and bonnets. The hats shown are well adapted to the public demand, they are in beauty of design, taste, trimming, and excellence of materials equal to the best. All the hats and bonnets are made on the premises and they reflect great credit on the capabilities of the establishment. A specially fine line of children's hats attracted great attention and was worthy of great admiration. The mantle department in Turnbull's is unusually well stocked. There was shown a large stock of the most approved materials in Ottoman cord in silk and wool, nap cloths in black cream and colors, silk top sealette; and frogs and all possible suitable trimmings, Miss Bothwell a first class mantle maker guaranteeing a perfect fit and every satisfaction. Miss Morgan, a graduate of Petley's Toronto, is unsurpassed as a dressmaker and with access to a magnificent stock of dress goods such as Turnbull's affords she is sure to giving every satisfaction in fashion, fit and finish.

FAIRWEATHER & CO.

This firm has made a transformation in their millinery show rooms that produces a delightful effect. They were elaborately trimmed with laces in festoons looped back with flowers, making a very pretty setting for a very creditable display of millinery goods, consisting of hats and bonnets trimmed with the newest materials in shade and texture, and with the good taste that characterizes Miss Elliott's handiwork. The show of ladies' fur capes and mantles was excellent, and the stock of mantle cloths in ottoman cords, silk faced sealette and all the new materials in all the new shades, was of corresponding excellence and variety. The urbanity and obliging disposition of Miss Elliott who has charge of these departments and her well known skill in her profession, tend to make the establishment popular with the public.

HALL INNES & CO.

This firm has this year made the most complete and extensive importations of any year in its history, as a look through their shops and show rooms will amply prove. In the millinery department substantial excellence of material, correct taste and an endless variety and extent of shapes and trimmings are its distinguishing features. This year it embraces the latest and most popular styles in shades, trimmings and general features. Every detail has been well considered and nothing is wanting to make it unsurpassed. The show room is beautifully decorated and under the blaze of the electric light produced a dazzling effect. In mantles and dolmans there is shown ready-made an immense stock, especially of German pattern, mantles bought in the London market at a large discount below regular figures. Also a superb line of cloakings from the common mohair to the finest silk. A grand line of lace curtains is shown—including something entirely new and stylish, the Turkish and Palatine curtains in old gold lace with inwoven bars of gold thread. A full and excellent stock of housefurnishings carpets etc., is worth of especial attention.

MISS DELANEY

Has had her show rooms remodeled, bringing her show cases nearer the light, and with good effect aided at night by the electric light. Her millinery display was superb and was greatly admired. Her hats and bonnets are exceedingly stylish and much praised. She visits the Toronto markets every three weeks and picks up for the benefit of her customers, the latest styles, so that the latter can depend on always having the newest to select from. Her show cases contain a grand stock of plumes shaded and plain, birds, wings, pompons, etc., etc., and every requisite of the millinery art. Her show of mantles and dolmans in matalasse, fur trimmed, was grand, as well as her stock of mantle materials, ottoman cord, sealette, silk faces, and a fine variety of other cloths for mantles and ulsters. A fine line of children's cloakings and blanket cloakings was shown. In the limits of a brief notice like this, it is impossible to give an idea of the excellence and beauty of Miss Delaney's stock; nothing but a personal visit will suffice.

Curling Club Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club was held at the Grand Central Hotel on Tuesday night. The following officers were elected:

Patron, Judge Dennistoun; Patroness, Mrs. Dennistoun; President, Dr. Boucher; Vice-President, Mr. Geo. Dunsford; Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Munro; Secretary-Treasurer, C. Hunter Street Bridge.

Work was begun on Monday on the building of the new iron bridge on Hunter street. Mr. James McNamara has the contract for the stone work and has a gang of men removing the dilapidated and shaky old bridge. It is a wonder that the old bridge stood so long as it did, for much of the planking and some of the timbers are so rotten that on being lifted they broke of their own weight. The contract for the iron work is not yet let.

Rev. Mr. Munro's Bible Classes.

Rev. Mr. Munro began on Tuesday evening a course of Bible readings on the book of Exodus. Recent explorations in the Holy Land, at the starting place of the children of Israel on their forty years' journey gave new interest to the wanderings of God's chosen people. Great interest was manifested in the reverend gentleman's clear exposition of the sacredly romantic facts concerning the wonderful progress in question.

Cheap Furniture.

The public attention is called to the clearing sale of furniture, which Mr. Wm. McKee advertises to hold in the skating rink, Dickson's Race, during the remainder of this week. The removal of the skating rink, which is to be begun on Monday, makes it absolutely necessary that the furniture should be cleared out by Saturday night. The furniture must be sold, and to ensure this result, prices have been marked down exceedingly low. The stock consists of over $2,000 worth of sideboards and book cases. This will be a big chance for big bargains. For full particulars see small bills. Rink open from 7 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Sudden Death.

The death of Mr. John Bailey, reeve of Emily, took place at Lindsay on Thursday last with terrible suddeness. While in the Central Fair Exhibition ground in conversation with a friend, he suddenly threw up his hands, reeled and fell against the wheel of a vehicle, and died before the friend who caught him to prevent his fall, could lay him on the ground. He had for some years been suffering from heart disease, and that was probably the cause of his untimely death. Mr. Bailey was an old and greatly esteemed resident of Emily, and his death will be greatly regretted. In proof of the respect in which he was held, his funeral, which took place on Sunday last, was one of the largest ever held in this district. We are assured by Mr. D. Belleghem, who conducted the funeral, that the procession, consisting of 260 conveyences, extended a distance of two miles. The body was laid at rest in the cemetery, Omemee.

The Late Councillor Allen.

It is with great regret that we record the death of Mr. Samuel Fishleigh Allen, town councillor, at the age of 38 years, which event took place on Monday morning. The disease was typhoid fever. The deceased gentleman was a native of Devonshire, England, where he was born about 1858. He came to Canada twelve years ago, and about three years since entered into the business of manufacturing pottery, and by diligence, attention to business, and energy, built up a thriving business. At the municipal elections held last January, he was elected by a handsome majority as one of the representatives of No. 1 ward in the town council, in which body he was chairman of the Building and Health committee. He made an excellent representative. In council he had little to say, yet he was attentive to his duties and conscienciously performed whatever duty his position called upon him to attend to. He was in politics a Reformer, and in religion a zealous and faithful member of the Bible Christian church, and, since the union, of the George street Methodist church. As a councillor he enjoyed the full confidence of his constituents, and as a citizen he was deservedly respected by all who knew him. The funeral which took place on Tuesday to the Little Lake Cemetery, was largely attended. The members of the town council and the corporation officials attended in a body, and the Foresters of Court Peterboro' of which deceased was a member, to the number 90 turned out, and in regalia preceded the remains of their departed brother to their last resting place, where they were laid according to the ritual of the order.

35- F. H. DOBBIN, Lindsay.

FINE FARM FOR SALE.

That beautifully located Farm,

The West half of lot 26, in the 12th Concession of Otonabee,

Situated east of the old Cobourg Railway. The property comprises 98 acres more or less. The soil is excellent and well adapted to gardening purposes. Its situation is very desirable, it being only one mile from the market square, and commanding a fine view of the town of Peterborough. Since the property came into possession of its present proprietor, over $1,000 has been spent on its improvement. It is one of the best watered farms in Ontario, being supplied by a never-failing spring well, so situated as to provide ten feet head. From this are laid nearly 700 feet of iron piping. At a distance of 240 feet from the spring this pipe leads to a watering trough in the barn. A continuation of the pipe carries the overflow from there, 462 feet further to another watering trough into another field. From the latter the overflow passes into a tile drain on the road side, and thence away. This pipe is provided with two taps, by which the water supply to the stock may be regulated. This water supply makes the farm eminently fitted for grazing purposes; stock can be supplied with continual access to an unlimited supply of pure living water. Or for market gardening the facilities for irrigation would admit of setting dry seasons at defiance, this together with the proximity to a first class market (only one mile) makes this farm unequaled for this purpose.

For either a gentleman of leisure who wishes to devote his retirement to agricultural pursuits, or for a pushing man who desires to make money, this farm for fertility of soil, water supply, beauty of situation and convenience to town, can have no superior.

TERMS: One thousand dollars to be paid down when deeds are handed over, the balance may remain on the property at 6 per cent interest for any term agreed upon.

RANGE AND RIFLE.

Annual Meeting of Peterborough Rifle Association.

On Tuesday and Wednesday last the Peterborough Rifle Association held their annual rifle matches at the range, and the meeting was considered very successful. The weather was, the first day, clear and bright—too bright if anything, for the shooting in the morning was hardly so good as usual. Those members who had practised at the range were unaccustomed to shooting in the morning, and in some of the marksmen the want of practice was painfully apparent. The second day was, in weather, a sharp contrast to the first; the rain fell almost continuously, and in the "sporting match" the shooting was done in a furious downpour. The following is the MONTHLY MATCHES.

During the summer matches, were held on the last Thursday of each month. At each match a prize of 400 rounds of ammunition, presented by the Ontario Rifle Association, was the reward of the highest score—a silver medal for the highest aggregate score of the series. This medal was won by Dr. Bell, and the winners of the ammunition prizes were, for May, A. Blade; June, J. B. Pentland; July, Dr. Bell; August, F. Hall.

It is to be regretted that the volunteers in whose interest primarily these matches are held, do not take a sufficiently active interest in them. Therefore the officers of the association find that it requires a great deal of hard work to keep the interest in the asbeen generously met by the citizens of Peterborough, however, who have contributed liberally to the prize lists. As necessarily the case a great deal of the hard work, in fact the "major" part, falls upon the indefatigable secretary, Major Bell, of the 57th.

TWO DAYS' TURF SPORT.

Fall Meeting of the Driving Park Association.

On Thursday and Friday last the Peterborough Turf Club Association held a good exhibition and races on the Driving Park. In the races there was a fairly good programme of sport presented, and the prizes offered for horses to be exhibited, in this department at least, made up largely for the failure of the Agricultural Society to hold an exhibition this fall. The weather on both days was superb and could not have been better if made to order.

The attendance the first day was small. The intelligence that the $200 match trot between Ed. Brown's "Fanny B." and Elias Thompson's "Indian Billy" was off, on account of the latter receiving a bad cut in a practice spin, robbed the afternoon of its chief charm for the sports. However, an interesting programme was presented, the first on which was for which there entered, P. Myles, A. Moffat, J. Carveth and Ed. Elcombe. Moffat led from the start, with Carveth next and Myles third. The latter gamely disputed second place with Carveth, who, however, maintained his lead. Moffat won easily in 57¼ seconds, Carveth second and Myles close in.

The next event was a

MATCHED TROT

between Ed. Brown's "Fanny B" and A. P. Morgan's "Little Rock," mile heats, three in five. In the first heat, for the first seven eighths the winner was a toss-up, but on the home run the mare picked up and came under the string about a length ahead. Time, 3.08¼. The second heat the pony made it interesting, and showed his nose in front two or three times, but on the home stretch Fanny took the trotting and passed under the wire half a length ahead. Time, 3.08½. The third heat was marked by Little Rock forcing the trotting and keeping well to the front, but on the home run a bad break lost him his place, and Fanny B. scored the third of three straight heats, thus winning the race. Time, 3.08¼.

FOOT RACE.

Between the heats of the trot a matched race between two Lacrosse Club boys—Kelly and Henderson—was run. Kelly got over the hundred yards in 11 seconds. Henderson a little later.

CARRIAGE HORSES.

In the exhibition of carriage horses the first prize was awarded to T. Cavanagh's grays, and the second to W. Croft's bays.

DRAUGHT HORSES.

The exhibition of draught horses resulted the red ticket adorning the fine team of Mr. J. Stabler, Smith.

FARMERS' TROT.

For this thrilling event there entered, Geo. McDonald's "Smithtown Boy" and T. McGowan's "Gay Lad." The "Smithtown Boy" was an easy winner in two straight heats. Time, 3.55½ and 3.44.

THE RUNNING RACE,

mile heats, two in three, brought out four entries and resulted in a finely contested race. The entries were Hopkins' "Accidental" and "Venus," ridden by W. Morgan and Charlie Stapleton, respectively; Sherwood's "Inglewood Maid," ridden by Jack McGregor, and McIntyre's "Nancy Lee," ridden by J. McGregor. After several attempts at scoring the horses got off fairly for the first heat. "Inglewood Maid" took the running, but at the three-quarter "Nancy Lee" threatened mischief, overhauled the Maid and came in first, in 2 03½, the "Maid" a length behind, "Venus" third, and "Accidental" away off.

The second heat was, during the first half, a close run between "Nancy Lee" and "Inglewood Maid." They ran together throughout, and, from the three-quarter pole, for about two furlongs, the race was neck and neck, both animals sailing along beautifully, but on the last turn "Nancy Lee" won the lead and came under the wire half a length ahead, winning the heat and the race—Time, 2.03½. The race was practically between the last two horses, and was as close a match as one would wish to see. "Nancy Lee" carried 126 lbs., and "Inglewood Maid" 136 lbs.

THE FREE FOR ALL TROT brought out Hetherington's "Brown Barber," Brown's "Fanny B." and Morgan's "Little Rock." The first heat the mare took the lead from the "Barber" and held it to the finish, winning by a length in 2.52½. "Little Rock" behaved badly and got a back place.

The second heat showed that "Brown Barber" could keep down to his work when he tried. He pushed the mare till the last turn, when the latter lost her grip of the turf and "Brown Barber took first place, coming in a winner by a length.

The third heat the "Barber" took the lead and held it gamely to the finish, coming in a good winner—Time, 2.51.

100 YARDS RACE.

A 100 yards race between Kelly and Hunt took place next. Hunt gave Kelly ten yards lead, which the latter, by a gamey spurt, kept and won by about that distance. Time, 11 seconds.

SINGLE CARRIAGE HORSES.

For this exhibition there were nine fine entries. T. Cavanagh's iron gray took the red ticket, and Geo. McKee's "Smith Boy" the blue.

SADDLE HORSES.

The exhibition of saddle horses closed the day's proceedings. Hopkin's bay was awarded first prize, and J. Natrass took second money.

The meeting passed off with great smoothness, the weather was fine, the turf was in splendid condition, the leading events were well contested, and the judges, Messrs. H. C. Winch, W. H. Rackham and Charles Stapleton, gave the best satisfaction. Mr. James English acted as time keeper with his accustomed accuracy.

A Splendid Chance.

It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that Mr. D. W Dumble offers for sale a number of Building Lots in various parts of the town on ten years credit. No money down, interest only to be paid for first five years, and thereafter yearly instalments with the right to pay at any time as may suit the convenience of the purchaser. This offer enables a poor man to use his money in erecting a building, and so he gets rid of rent, and secures a home for himself. Building will be cheap this year and no doubt many will take advantage of this very liberal offer. Besides lots in town, Mr. Dumble offers a number of lots in Ashburnham, and several park lots on the same terms. Call at his office and see plans, &c.

The Autumn Assizes opened at the court house on Monday, Hon. Mr. Justice Galt presiding.

THE GRAND JURY

panel comprised the following gentlemen:

JOHN BRACKENRIDGE, FOREMAN.

Chas. Armstrong, sr.	Archibald Johnson.
Robert Bonar,	W. W. Milburn.
Robert Bugress.	W. McKibbin.
Thomas Burke.	Chas. D. Moore.
J. E. Belcher,	T. J. Nelson.
P. Connal,	Lewis Parker.
Wm. Crough,	W. H. Treat.
James Dewart,	Macfarlane Wilson.
S. Edwards.	George Elliott.
James Fife,	Tobias Fitzgerald.
John Garbutt,	Robert Jackson.

J. Middleton, jr.

His Lordship in addressing the jury said the calender submitted him did not present many charges, there being only one person in jail awaiting trial, a case of rape. The heinous nature of this offence was alluded to as the most serious offence, excepting murder, known to the law, a capital felony, the greatest punishment of which was death, and the least seven years in penitentiary. It was a charge easy to bring and hard to disprove. There were one or two other charges, the parties to which were out on bail. One was manslaughter in connection with a railway accident. His Lordship made a few remarks on the subject and informed the jury that their duty would also be to inspect the jail, report on its condition and suggest whatever improvements or changes the circumstances suggested.

THE BAR

was represented by the following gentlemen: Wm. Kerr, Q. C., Cobourg, in charge of Crown business, B.B. Osler, Q. C., Toronto, A. Hudspeth, Q. C., Lindsay, C. A. Weller, County Attorney, D. W. Dumble, E. H. D. Hall, C. W. Sawers, G. M. Roger, Jas. Henry, A. P. Poussette, W. H. Moore, J. O'Meara, W. A. Stratton, S. Masson, J. Green, E. A. C. Peck and T. G. Blackstock, Toronto.

CIVIL SIDE.

The first case called was that of Christy vs Byrom. The parties to the suit live in the township of Otonabee. The action was brought by Mrs. Mary Jane Christie against John Byrom to recover $5,000 for breach of promise to marry. The plaintiff is a widow, aged 36 years, with two children, 7 and 13 years old. The defendant is a widower of 63 years, with nine children, the eldest about 30 years of age. Matrimonial negotiations initiated by the defendant resulted in an engagement. The day was set, Jan 16th, 1884, the ring and license were procured, the minister engaged, the wedding feast prepared and the guests bidden. The day before the wedding the defendant sent a note stating that on account of the opposition of his family to the proposed alliance, he would not be on hand the following day, and the note also requested the rejected bride to inform the minister of the hitch in the proceedings. The plaintiff accordingly brought suit, laying the damages at $5,000. The evidence of the plaintiff was given the jury, the only other witness being the gentleman who proved the issue of the license, Mr. W. H. Roxburgh. The defendant called no witnesses. Verdict for plaintiff and $800. Messrs. Poussette & Roger, and Mr. Osler, Q. C, for plaintiff. Messrs. Dumble and Henry for defendant.

WOOD vs ROBERTSON.—An action for false imprisonment. Owing to the absence of documents material to the issue, this case was postponed till the next Assizes. J. O'Meara for plaintiff, C. A. Weller for defendant.

DONNELLY vs HALL.—This was an action arising out of a former one, brought by James Donnelly of Harvey to recover from Sheriff Hall, the amount of an execution issued by plaintiff against the goods of Messrs. Robinson and Elliott, pursuant to the adverse result of the trial of a case in which these parties were defendants. Previous to the issue of the execution, the Ontario Bank had secured a chattel mortgage on certain logs and timber situated in the back lakes. The plaintiff contends that the mortgage did not cover the whole of the goods which were in Burkhorn and Ball Lakes, and Sandy and Squaw rivers, and that the sheriff was not justified in returning the execution as invalid, while the defence claims that the mortgage covered the property because the lakes and rivers mentioned were parts of one body of water. Judgment reserved. Mr. Hadspeth for the plaintiff, Messrs. Poussette & Roger for defendant.

CRIMINAL SIDE.

QUEEN vs PURCELL.—The prisoner was put on trial for committing a rape on a little girl, Elizabeth O'Donnel, at a pic-nic last summer. The jury returned a verdict of guilty.

QUEEN vs. MIMMS.—Manslaughter. The grand jury presented a true bill.

A CONTRAST OPEN TO QUESTION.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I read with much interest the sketch published in a recent issue of the Globe, of the prize farms which received the medals offered by the Agricultural and Arts Association. Amongst these I was pleased to see that Mr. John Campbell, of Mariposa, took the gold medal as first prize. And, from the published description of it, I think deservedly, for he seems to have reduced farming to a most thorough system in all its departments.

Each field had, in the report furnished the Globe, a most exhaustive account kept of the cost of tillage, seed, harvesting, etc., the profits per acre, the total profits per acre, and the average profit, etc., etc. Every animal was similarly treated. The cost price, the cost of feeding, care, and the gain in price, were closely recorded. These figures were kept with an accuracy and carefulness, which accounts, no doubt, for the success he has met with.

But it appears that Mr. Campbell confines his accuracy of detailed figures to his farm altogether, for he seemed to have left it entirely behind when he came out as an exhibitor of stock at the Lindsay Central Exhibition, where he was a prominent figure.

I was astonished beyond measure that on this occasion he was unable to give the simplest details of information respecting his stock. His memory was even so misty that, as I am credibly informed, he actually made the astounding mistake—for a man so great on statistics as Mr. Campbell appears to be—of entering three year old stock in the two year old class, and yearlings in the calves class, and thoroughbred Durhams as grades. It strikes me as wonderfully strange that Mr. Campbell should give the Globe reporter such full and elaborate details respecting his farm, and then, at the Lindsay exhibition, make a mistake of a whole year in the age of his stock.

If the directors of the Lindsay Central Exhibition are going to allow such mistakes (properly spelled thus, f-r-a-u-d-s,) to happen they must not expect that other competitors are fools enough to shut their eyes to them and continue to patronise and contribute to the success of the exhibition. The introduction of such sharp practices, if tolerated, strikes at the very root of the usefulness of agricultural exhibitions.

Yours truly,
HAY SEED.

Farmer Nick's Scarecrow.

Out in the cornfield, grouped together,
A flock of crows discussed the weather.

Observing them, thrifty farmer Nick
Declared that the crows were "gettin' too thick."

"I must have a scarecrow—that is true;
Now, would not that old umbrella do?"

So into the house the farmer went,
And away to the field the umbrella sent.

One rainy day the farmer went out
To view the corn fields lying about;

He neared the umbrella; looked inside;
And what he saw, made him laugh till he cried!

For in there, out of the rainy weather,
A dozen crows were huddled together!

So the farmer, laughing as farmers should,
Said: "I fear my scarecrow did little good."

A Battle With a Shark.

Joseph Gosline, of Newton, L. I., was fishing in Flushing Bay Thursday afternoon, when the dorsal fin of a large shark cut the water a short distance from him. Sharks have been seen in the bay so often of late that he paid little attention to the incident. He caught a fish and was landing it in his boat, when a huge shovel-nose appeared beneath the gunwale of his boat and a pair of murderous-looking jaws snapped at the fish. Gosline seized an oar and beat the shark away. A minute later he saw the shark coming swiftly toward the boat.

He stationed himself in the bow, armed with an oar. When within five feet of the boat the shark thrust its head out of the water, and, with its jaws wide open, attempted to seize Gosline. The latter rained furious blows upon its head until the shark took refuge beneath the surface. Gosline pulled up his anchor and had just turned his boat toward shore, when the shark sprang out of the water a few feet away.

Gosline picked up a shotgun and waited for a shot. Bloody spots began to appear upon the water and Gosline was convinced that his oar had done effective work. Suddenly the shark, with a powerful spring, threw a part of its body over the stern of the boat. Gosline fired two charges of buckshot into the shark's head. Then he pushed it into the water and soon saw it flopping about on the surface. He succeeded in fastening a rope to it, and after a hard row landed it on the shore where it struggled for some time before dying. It was seven feet long.—New York Sun.

The Wild Girl.

The prevalence of the wild girl, sometimes called the hoodlum girl, is, in the opinion of the St. Louis Republican, one of the bad signs of the times. It ought to know, for she overruns St. Louis like a growth of rank weeds:

"The girl of 16 who will neither sew nor do housework has no business to be decked out in finery and rambling about in search of fun and frolic unless her parents are rich, and in that event she needs the watchful direction of a good mother none the less. There is no objection to fun, but it should be well chosen and well timed. No girl or woman who will not work has a right to share the wages of a poor man's toil. If she does work, if she makes the clothes she wears and assists in the household duties, the chances are she will have enough self-respect to behave when play-time comes, but if she should still be a little 'wild' the honest toil she has done will confer upon her some degree of right to have her own way, ill-judged though it may be. The wild girl usually aspires to prominence in some social circle or other, and her manners and conduct are in greater or less degree designed to attract the following of men. She should remember that followers are not always admirers, and that the most admiration a man ever feels for a woman in a drawing-room is when he looks upon her and says in his own consciousness, 'She is a perfect lady.' That is a reflection that never occurs to him as his eyes fall upon the wild girl."

A King of the Cowboys.

The presiding genius of this town is Tucker, who runs a combination saloon and gambling-house. When any of the cowboys get hard up they go to see Tucker. He gives his money liberally and freely to his friends. Tucker is a tall, fine-looking man, with an intelligent countenance. He affects long hair, a la Buffalo Bill, and prides himself on his fighting abilities. If a drunken cowboy is disposed to have a shooting matinee or rough-and-tumble exercise he can always be accommodated by applying to Tucker, who guarantees to do up the anxious individual in short order. When any disturber of the peace tries to invade the sacred precincts of the Cowboy's Rest, as Tucker's saloon is affectionately called, the gentlemanly proprietor gives him his advice to either fight or have a drink. The festive and belligerent cowboy adores Tucker on account of his generosity and grit, and he would stand by this popular border gambler through thick and thin. Any other man than Tucker would be liable to have his saloon completely demolished two or three times a week, but he always remembered his friends; no hungry man was ever turned from his door, and the cowboys, who have had substantial evidences of his good-will, never forgot the kindness. Tucker has many imitators, but he is the typical border paradox of gentleman and ruffian, and no man can compete with him in shrewdness or popularity. —Ogdalla (Neb.) Letter.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 16, 1884.

South Monaghan Agricultural Exhibition

The twentieth annual exhibition of the South Monaghan Agricultural Society was held in the new Agricultural Hall at Centreville, on Thursday the 9th of October. This society has always had a good show, and this year the exhibitors were considerably more numerous than ever before. The number of entries made in 1883 was 380, and this year they numbered 780. The day was all that could be desired, and in consequence the display inside was exceedingly good. Roots and vegetables were of course of excellent quality, and there were some nice flowers considering the lateness of the season. In grain there was a large exhibit, being over fifty bags. Like most of the other exhibitions this season, the finest turn out was in horses and cattle. The other exhibits were proportionately good. There was a goodly number of visitors, Port Hope, Peterborough and Millbrook being all represented. The following are the prize takers:

CLASS A.—GENERAL PURPOSE HORSES.

Pair Horses in Harness and Wagon—Jos Dawson, Wm McAughey, Wm Higgins.

Mr. Lucas had on exhibition a number of open and top buggies. During the day the Keene Band filled the air with pleasing strains of music, enlivening the exhibition.

Great credit is due for the success of the exhibition, to the following directors:—Messrs. W Rutherford, R Parker, A Barnard, Joseph Fisher, R. Nurse, Wm McAllister, J. Buckham, J Lightfoot, J Clarke and J. Donaldson, and also to the president, Mr. D. Truscott, the vice-president, Mr. J. W. Lucas, the treasurer, Mr. T. M. Willan, and the secretary, Mr. Edward Ball.

Words of Warning and Comfort.

"If you are suffering from poor health or
'languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer
'If you are simply ailing, or if you feel
'weak and dispirited,
'without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters
'will surely cure you.

If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor, weakened by the strain of your every-day duties, or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the 'farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel
'that your system needs cleansing, toning, or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old,
'blood thin and impure, pulse
'feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties
'waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to 'give you new life, health, and vigor."

If you are costive, or dyspeptic or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

If you are a froquenter, or a resident of, a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Intermittent Fevers by the use of Hop Bitters

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you a fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $5000 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health It did it for me, as you observe.

None genuine without a bunch of green Hops on the white label. Shun all the vile, poisonous stuff with "Hop" or "Hops" in their name. 42-4t

SURE ON HIS FUTURE.

"Lend you money, sir? How on earth can you ever pay?"

"Well, sir, I am going to be a very rich man soon."

"How's that?"

"I'm going to marry the richest young woman in New York."

"You don't say!"

"Yes, I do."

"When did she accept you?"

"I haven't said anything to her about it yet."

"Then how in the world—"

"Her father has hired me as coachman, and—"

"Ah, well, then, of course, sir. What sum do you wish?"

Why suffer from weak nerves, want of appetite, and general debility? letting the loss of sleep and rest impoverish the system and thin the blood, when such a really meritorious remedy as Northrop & Lyman's Quinine Wine may be had at any drug store. This article is recommended by the highest members of the medical faculty in cases of indigestion, general debility, loss of appetite and nervous affections of all kinds. It is also specially beneficial to children and delicate females, and to business men, students, and those who have much brain work. We would say, Never be without it. It will strengthen you, keep your system in regular order, and enable you to successfully grapple with the work you have to do. It is pleasant to the taste, and contains nothing injurious to the most delicate constitution. Remember to ask for the Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, and we are sure you will be satisfied that you have full value for your money. Druggists sell it.

"If I can find my gun I bet I'll settle them cats," said Mulberry the other night at a late hour, as he slid out of bed and went groping around the room in the dark. "Come back to bed, you old fool," pleaded the gentle voice of Mrs. Mulberry. "That isn't cats; its Emeline's new beau down in the parlor singing "Sweet Violets." Emeline's new beau will not warble any more when he visits Emeline. Emeline has told him that "papa is very easily disturbed after he retires.

Why go about with that aching head? Try Ayer's Pills They will relieve the stomach, restore the digestive organs to healthy action, remove the obstructions that depress nerves and brain, and thus cure your headache permanently.

Bootmaker (who has a deal of trouble with this customer)—"I think sir, if you were to cut your corns I could more easily find a pair." Crusty Old Gent—"Cut my corns, sir! I ask you to fit me a pair of boots to my feet, sir! I am not going to plane my feet to fit your boots, sir!"

MACFARLANE WILSON, Direct Importer, Corner of George and Simcoe Sts.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, an ugly scrofulous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the lump, made life almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

ACCEPTING A DAUGHTER'S CORRECTION.

There's an old legend of the time when Bidwell was candidate for Governor. One day an old farmer and his family called. The servant answered the call.

"Is the Governor's folks at home?" demanded the old farmer.

"Are, papa, are, not is," said the Mills Seminary daughter.

"Are the Governor in?" said the old man, and the young lady fainted.

In the Hour of Need.

You do not want to try experiments, but resort to the old and well tested means that afforded relief in the past. When your corns ache don't take the first article offered to you for the purpose, viz., to remove the troublesome corns and to do this without pain, and to do it promptly. PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR has been used for many years. It has never been known to fail. Putnam's Extractor makes no deep holes in the flesh, hard to heal and more troublesome than the original discomforts. It works nicely and efficiently.

BEN FRANKLIN'S LATIN.

I've lost thousands of dollars just by putting my name to the most innocent looking bits of paper you ever see. No, sirree. Don't you do it.'

'But I can tell a sharper as far as I can see him.'

'So you think now, but you are too self-confident. Don't you trust anybody. Remember old Ben Franklin's advice: 'Sigu qua none.'

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

'TWOULD JUST SUIT HIM!

The landlord of a hotel entered in an angry mood, the sleeping apartment of a boarder, and said, "Now, sir, I want you to pay your bill, and you must. I've asked you for it often enough, and I tell you now that you don't leave my house till you pay it." "A' richt," said his lodger, who was certainly a Scotchman, "jist pit that intae writin'; mak' a regular agreement o't; an' I'll stay wi' ye as larg as I leave!"

A Walking Skeleton.

Mr. E. Springer, of Mechanicsburg, Pa., writes: "I was afflicted with lung fever and abscess on lungs, and reduced to a walking skeleton. Got a free trial bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, which did me so much good that I bought a dollar bottle. After using three bottles, found myself once more a man, completely restored to health, with a hearty appetite, and a gain in flesh of 48 lbs." Call at Taylor & McDonald's Drug Store and get a free trial bottle of this certain cure for all Lung Diseases. Large bottles $1.00.

The Limits of Vision.

It has been asserted that the eye of the common house-fly is capable of discerning an object the five-millionth of an inch in diameter. Prof. Rogers, of Cambridge, says he can distinguish lines ruled in glass which are only 1-50,000 of an inch apart, simply by unaided vision. Prof J. Le Conte, however, places the limit of human vision for good eyes at the 1-1,000 of an inch as the smallest distance at which two objects can be seen apart.

To appreciate the perfection of the eye as an instrument, it may be interesting to notice how the other senses would perform the same work.

For instance, if we take a pair of dividers and stick on each point a mustard-seed, so that the impression on the skin shall not be too pungent, and then try on another person, whose eyes are shut the least distance apart at which two distinct impressions can be perceived, it will be found that on the middle of the back it is about 3 inches; on the arm or back of the hand, about ½ to ¾ of an inch; on the palm, about ¼ of an inch; on the finger tips, about 1-12 or 1-16 of an inch, and on the tip of the tongue, about 1-99 of an inch or less.

Combining human vision with the powers of the most powerful and perfect compound microscope, it is found that the limit of vision is reached when lines 146,528 to the inch are separated, and that the theoretical limit of the power to discern a single object is 1-118,009 of an inch. This limit has been nearly but not quite reached by most perfect instruments.

When, therefore, the maximum power of human vision, backed by the most powerful and perfect microscopes, does not reach much over about 1-100,000 of an inch, the absurdity of attributing a limit of 1-500,000 of an inch to any kind of unaided vision is apparent. The eyes of many insects are indeed extraordinary organs, and what we generally designate as the eye of a fly is really a compound eye, made up of hundreds and even thousands of separate lenses called ocellites. Of these the common house-fly has four thousand in the two eyes. The structure of these ocellites is well known, the optical part of each consisting of two lenses, which combined, form a double convex lens. That each ocellite acts as a separate eye can be easily proved by detaching the whole of the front of the compound eye, and by manipulation with a microscope it is not difficult to examine a photograph or other object through it. When this is done a distinct image is seen in each ocellite. Dr. W. B. Carpenter has shown that each ocellite reflects but a small portion of the image looked at, and that it requires the combined action of the four thousand lenses of the fly to produce the same effect as that seen by the one human eye. The human eye is, therefore, a far more perfect optical instrument than the eye of a fly.—New York Sun.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 16, 1884.

Showing the White Feather.

The result of the Bribery Commission in revealing evidence of the plot confirms the impression that, what was intended as a grand coup, was the forlorn hope of the campaign which for two years has been directed against the Mowat Administration. The Gerrymander did not do the work; the vexatious protests entered against the return of Mr. Mowat's supporters failed; the bribery brigade, crowding the constituencies like birds of prey, was a failure, and the bribery of a Legislature was the last resort. The Mail sounded the battle cry of the Tory party, "Mowat must go," and to make good the threat, Mr. Bunting, the manager of the party organ, in the face of the failure of other methods, must needs personally enter the field. The exposure of his attempts was met with a firm and apparently indignant denial of his complicity in the disgraceful business. A police court inquiry resulted in making out a case against him, yet he persisted in his denials, and he and his apologists were loud in their assertions that, when his case came to be heard before the Bribery Commission, not only his innocence, but his fitness for political apotheosis would be made manifest. It would be expected that a man like Mr. Bunting, lying under such damaging evidence of guilt, would know no rest, night nor day, till he could get into the witness box and on oath deny his guilt and establish the innocence he vaunted so loudly out of court. But when the chance was presented he ignominiously showed the white feather and declined to give evidence. Only one conclusion can be come to. He felt his guilt and had not the courage to have its confession extorted in the witness box. If, as he and his friends assert, he was innocent, he would hail with delight the chance to declare his innocence under oath. But he was discreet. He felt that he had rather lie under the inevitable imputation of guilt, with a chance of having his innocence half-heartedly believed in, than to be forced to disclose his guilt in open court. Mr. Meek, the solicitor of the Tory party in Ontario, was not so wary. He offered to give evidence without being sworn, but, when the Court refused this, he got himself into a box and was forced to give evidence under oath, which elicited the important truth that he was working with Wilkinson, the official briber of the Tory party. His evidence did not establish his innocence nearly so clearly as his statements in the Mail and elsewhere made appear. He retired from the witness box with a great respect for the prudence of Mr. Bunting, who had steered clear of putting himself in a position that would be decidedly awkward. The brag and bluster about Bunting's innocence and therefore of the Mail, the organ of the Tory party, and therefore, to a certain extent of the leaders of the party, resolved itself into a cowardly back-down when the moment came to give it effect by Mr. Bunting's sworn statement.

Progress of Liberalism.

Recent events have strongly tended, to use a common phrase of the time, to boom Liberalism throughout the Dominion, and the tangible and substantial victories it has achieved under Hon. Mr. Mowat's vigorous and successful exposition of its principles in Ontario, are producing in the sister provinces a powerful moral effect that will at no distant day certainly produce measurably, if not equally, important results. His manly and unflinching struggles for provincial rights, crowned as they have been, with success, have encouraged and stimulated the other provinces, and the doctrine of the maintenance of popular rights, a characteristic of Liberalism, is receiving renewed attention. Not only do Liberals feel new impulses but the spirit of Liberalism as associated with this feature of it, in enlisting the sympathy of citizens that have hitherto been believers in a political creed in which popular rights has scant recognition. Upon the question of license jurisdiction, a matter which, thanks to the far reaching tyranny of the Conservative administration at Ottawa, has affected all the provinces, all are aroused and are working harmoniously together to wrest from the central power at Ottawa a just recognition of their rights in the premises. When the question was argued before the supreme court recently, the provinces were ably represented. The fight was a sharp one, and the general opinion expressed by competent authorities, as strongly as is admissable while the question is still sub judice, is that the contention that the provinces have the sole and exclusive right under the British North America Act, to regulate and control the liquor traffic, will be sustained by the forthcoming decision. Such a result will be a stinging rebuke to the spirit of Toryism that has sought to narrow down, by arbitrary legislation, the area of popular rights and to centralize power at Ottawa. And the lesson will have all the greater significance because the legislation alluded to, was enacted with the avowed intention of wreaking spite upon Liberalism—to show Mowat, that little tyrant "etc.", who had incurred the lasting hatred and hostility of Sir John Macdonald, by applying to the province of Ontario the principles of Reform government, and keeping grasping Toryism hungering for the spoils of office in the cold shades of opposition. Ontario is solid for Liberalism, and Quebec is rapidly falling into line. For years this province has groaned and grown almost bankrupt under the predatory rule of the Conservative party. Hon. Mr. Mercier, the leader of the opposition, has done heroic things in stemming the torrent of corruption and misrule that inundates the province. With a following of about one quarter of the house he has made a decided and manly stand, and his efforts are not unavailing. The reception given the three great Liberal leaders, Hon. Messrs. Blake, Mowat and Mercier, at St. Martine, P. Q., the other day, was of so hearty and enthusiastic a nature, as to show that the people see in Liberalism the hope of rescue from the thraldom of corruption and misrule that Conservatism exercises. The demonstration was a most successful and hearty one and was no less a compliment to the great Liberal leaders than to the cause they represented. Entering upon Confederation with equal advantages with Ontario, the people of Quebec are beginning to see that the political party whose misrule has plunged their rich and promising province into a debt of twenty millions, with an annual bill of interest of one million dollars, is criminally incapable and untrustworthy. They also see that their destinies will be safe in the hands of a political party, that in the same length of time, by wisely and economically administering the affairs of Ontario according to the principles of Reform, has not only kept free from debt, but can proudly point to a surplus of something like five million dollars. Our Quebec cousins are too shrewd not to make practical use of the lessons this contrast affords. It is unfortunate for the Tory party in Quebec that the people have tolerated them so long. By carrying their plundering proclivities and practices to too great an extreme, they have "killed the goose that laid the golden eggs." When the people of Quebec wake from the dream of false security and unwary trust in the past dominant party, and secure, as they promise to do ere long a taste of Liberal rule; the days of Toryism in Quebec are numbered, and Liberalism with all the benefits of wise government and provincial prosperity which Ontario has been blessed with will, restore and retain to it the blessings of thrift and good government. The wave is rolling on.

Sir John's Sudden Trip.

Sir John Macdonald's journey to England, which took place with a suddenness that gave it the appearance of a flight, gives rise to numerous conjectures. Tory authorities, presumably inspired, give widely differing reasons. One organ says he goes on private business, another that he goes on public business, and Sir John himself says that he goes for the benefit of his health and to seek "peace," which the chieftain ought to know comes not, according to scriptural declaration, to the "wicked"—politically speaking of course. Sir John's old complaint, catarrh of the stomach, is again troubling him, and, accepting his statement of his reasons for going to England, that is, for medical advice, his malady must be of a most dangerous nature to induce him to undertake an ocean journey at the most tempestuous season of the year, a season which no sick man, if the choice were left him, would select. But there are plainly other reasons for his journey to the Old Country. The fact that Mr. George Stephen, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and two of the prominent directors accompany Sir John, points to the conclusion that the journey has something to do with procuring new favours for the syndicate, of course ultimately at the expense of the people of Canada.

Ignorance and Vice.

What is the relation which exists between ignorance and vice? That there is a relation is, we think, confessed on all sides, but just where the connection lies, is one of the most difficult of social problems. For many centuries it has been held as an accepted maxim by statesmen generally throughout the world, that "ignorance breeds vice." And so education is the statesman's panacea on which he implicitly relies to check all vicious propensities, and to make the young not wiser merely, but better. In consequence of this it is held that education is the duty of the state, a truism with which we are not going to find fault. Hence the public and high school system of this country, with its elaborate appliances and enormous cost. In the last published report of the Minister of Education for Ontario, we are told the total receipts for all public school purposes in this Province amounted in 1882 to $3,469,999, while the average cost per pupil was $6.42. This for a school population of less than half a million and an average attendance of about two hundred thousand is a pretty considerable sum.

Yet, if we compare the cost of the prisons, reformatories and state and private charities with this huge sum, we will find they cost as much, if not more than the schools and the colleges and the churches of the land all put together. If this be the case, as few can doubt, is there not a serious mistake somewhere as to education and its results? Or, to put it in another way, can we assert truthfully that where ignorance is removed, there must follow also the destruction of vice, with all its baneful concomitants? Many theorists make serious blunders because they do not apply proper language in which to set forth their ideas, or because of their incorrect use or definition of terms.

The relation which it is confessed exists between ignorance and vice is, we think, a case in point. For what is ignorance, and what are we to understand by education?

A person cannot be called an ignorant man who is thoroughly acquainted with any one branch of useful knowledge. The science of the day is tending to specialities, and art itself to technicalities. The men of one idea were formerly at a discount. At present they are becoming most useful. The craftsman of one resource is considered superior to the Jack-of-all-trades. In the rush of human progress those who know a smattering of everything, yet have mastered nothing, are being left behind in the race. Mechanics who have not learned their trades fully and thoroughly are now set to tend machines. Professional men who are not well up in their professions soon find their occupation gone. Unless they are able men and can get up to the top of the ladder, the professions are so crowded that they are quickly relegated to obscurity and consequent poverty.

Meanwhile, what is being held and taught as to education? The old theory was that a man's mind should be disciplined with classics and mathematics until his intelligence was aroused, and then he could at once employ his awakened senses on any industry which might happen to turn up and to which he took a fancy. The education of the new school is of a totally different character. It is a sort of German mud-bath for plastering boys all over with a compost of all the sciences and 'ologies, in the vain hope, we suppose, that they will absorb some wisdom through their cuticles! It is a philosophical plan, doubtless, but it can hardly be called practical.

Education, when real and true, consists, not in cramming boys and girls with a number of hard facts in the Gradgrind style, but in "drawing out" what is in a child or a man. Any one is educated who knows how to do one thing well. And such a one will be in demand and will prove a useful member of society, if, in addition to this qualification which he possesses, he is honest and reliable. Of course, the more he knows the greater his chance of success in life.

And the old-fashioned education had precisely this value, that it increased a man's chances of learning anything he undertook, by increasing his intelligence. The new code or system is based on a fundamental error. It assumes all children have equal capacity, and undertakes to do for the multitude what is only possible for the few. A little knowledge is not only a dangerous thing, but it is also an enormous conceit, and this is more dangerous.

False theories of education, systems which ignore the higher part of man, which hold that secular instruction is both the beginning and the end of all knowledge, have, we imagine, some relation to the fact that, on all sides, our schools and colleges and churches are confronted with reformatories, asylums and gaols. Let the thoughtful and intelligent ponder this and see if our surmise is not correct.

Editorial Notes.

During twelve years the number of school teachers in England alone was increased from 12,000 to over 37,000. The Government is obeying the Liberal statesman's suggestion and educating its future masters. With widespread education England, in a decade or so more, will become a democratic country in government.

Among the numerous reasons assigned for Sir John's sudden flight to England, we believe it has not been suggested that he is seeking to escape the proposed demonstration in honor of the completion of his forty years wanderings in the wilderness of political sin. Sir John is by no means modest, but the prospective dose of taffy is too much for a weak stomach.

The people are showing a renewed determination to give the Scott Act fair and general trial. The other day Simcoe county adopted the Act by the suggestive majority of 1134, and in Stanstead county, Quebec, the same day, the popular majority for the Act was 279. The counties in Ontario which have adopted the Scott act are, Halton, Oxford, Simcoe, and Parry Sound.

The Provincial Government has issued a proclamation putting into force the Act of last session of the Local Legislature, which detaches from the Provincial Judicial District of Algoma all the territory formerly comprised within the territorial district of Thunder Bay, and erects the same into a separate Provisional Judicial District by the name of the "Provisional Judicial District of Thunder Bay.

The Globe gauges the popularity of the N. P. as follows: The Government dare not make Mr. Thomas Robertson, M.P., Hamilton, a judge, because it was known defeat would inevitably follow a vote on the N. P. in Hamilton, and the Government dare not give Mr. Daly, M.P., a seat in the Cabinet, because the N. P. is equally unpopular in Halifax. The Colossus is reaping the whirlwind.

During the month of August this year Canadians imported from England woollens and worsteds to the amount of £195,116, as against £160,266 in the same month of 1883. And yet many of our woollen mills are closed up altogether, while others have very little to do, because no market can be found for their productions. What is the matter with the N. P. anyway? Where is that much-vaunted and promised home market?

Sir Hector Langevin, Minister of Public Works, laid the corner stone of the new public buildings at Barrie recently. In the course of his speech he mentioned as a sign of the prosperity of the country the fact that they had money to spend upon such public works. It may be a sign that there are lots in the public treasury—which, however, have always to be added to by the borrowings of Sir Leonard Tilley—but the trouble is, remarks the Hamilton Times, the more there is in the treasury, there is the less in the people's pockets.

The Tory papers are accustomed to make strange uses of the English language, and, in so doing, they show little respect for the intelligence of their readers. One calls the Bunting-Wilkinson-Meek attempt at bribery a "Grit Conspiracy," and another perverted soul calls it the "Mowat & Co. Plot." This is all very well as bravado, but it does not square very well with Mr. Meek's testimony before the Commission, where he swore that "McKim was to receive a thousand dollars after the timber vote was taken, and another thousand before the close of the session." This looks a great deal like a "Grit Conspiracy," or a "Mowat & Co. Plot." Do the organs take the public for fools?

The Vision of a Vicar.

A statement by the Rev. A. Shaw Page, vicar of Selsley, Stonehouse, Gloucester, in the words of his sister, Millicent Anne Page, is summarised as follows: "I was staying with my mother's cousin, Mrs. Elizabeth Broughton, wife of Mr. Edward Broughton, of Edinburgh, the daughter of the late Colonel Blanckley, in the year 1844, and she told me the following strange story: She woke one night and roused her husband, telling him that something dreadful had happened in France. He begged her to go to sleep again and not trouble him. She assured him she was not asleep when she saw what she insisted on then telling him—what she saw, in fact. First a carriage accident, which she did not actually see, but what she saw was the result—a broken carriage, a crowd collected, a figure gently raised and carried into the nearest house, and then a figure lying on a bed, which she then recognized as the Duke of Orleans. Gradually friends collected round the bed, among them several members of the French royal family—the queen, then the king—all silently, tearfully watching the evidently dying duke. One man (she could see his back, but did not know who he was) was a doctor. He stood bending over the duke, feeling his pulse, his watch in his other hand. And then all passed away—she saw no more. As soon as it was daylight she wrote down in her journal all she had seen. From that journal she read this to me. It was before the days of electric telegraph, and two or more days passed before the Times announced 'The death of the Duke of Orleans.' Visiting Paris a short time afterwards, she saw and recognised the place of accident, and received the explanation of her impression. The doctor who attended the dying duke was an old friend of hers; and, as he watched by the bed, his mind had been constantly occupied with her and her family. The reason of this was an extraordinary likeness—a likeness which had often led to amusing incidents—between several members of the Broughton family and members of the French royal family who were present in the room."—The Nineteenth Century.

Izaak Walton.

We can never wonder at Izaak Walton's perennial popularity. The essential freshness of the topic is enough to assure immortality to any book. In his quaint and godly talk he gives expression to the simple poetry that inspires the feelings of many an unlettered brother of the craft. Even when he wrote in prose he was really as much of a poet as many of the melodious masters of the lyre he quotes with honest admiration. And his own simple verses, coming straight from the heart, are often singularly touching. Take for instance, and almost at haphazard, his profession of his angling faith:

"I care not, I, to fish in seas,
Fresh river best my mind do please,
Whose sweet, calm course I contemplate,
And seek in life to imitate."

His mind reflected with a sober Quaker line coloring all the pictures of rural beauty and felicity about him. We have had many books since then by such devoted lovers of English scenery as Gilpin and Howitt, and Borrow and Jennings. But we know none that breathes so entirely the essence of tranquil enjoyment, or so ardently expresses the happy faculty of finding recreation in trifles. Unreal it may be in its idealization of manners in the immediate neighborhood of the court and capital; for the golden age had gone over before the days of Walton, and we imagine that maudlin, the pretty milk-maid and her mother, that have been scarcely so unsophisticated as they appeared. But the worthy old angler saw everything as he wished to see it; and certainly life then went comparatively placidly, even within hearing of the bells of Bow.—Cornhill Magazine.

The Chinese Farm House.

The Chinese farm house is a curious-looking abode. Usually it is sheltered with groves of feathery bamboo and thick-spreading banyans. The walls are of clay or wood, and the interior of the house consists of one main room, extending from the floor to the tiled roof, with closet-looking apartments in the corners for sleeping rooms. There is a sliding window on the roof, made of cut oysters shells, arranged in rows, while the side winows are mere wooden shutters. The floor is the bare earth, where at nightfall there often gathers together a miscellaneous family of dirty children, fowls, ducks, pigeons and a litter of pigs, all living together in delightful harmony. In some districts infested by marauding bands houses are strongly fortified with high walls, containing apertures for fire-arms, and protected by a moat, crossed by a rude drawbridge.

SCHOOL BOARD.

The School Board met on Tuesday evening, the 11th inst. Present, Messrs. Gordon, Dench, and Caldwell, and Mr. Sanders in the chair.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Communications from all the teachers asking for reappointment were received. Mr. August, head master, asked and advance of $25, and Miss Steward also asked for an advance of $25.

A resolution was passed ordering the following accounts to be paid:—John Cooper, lightwood, $3; Isaac Watson, repairs and lumber, $7.01; Tuker & Co., printing, $3.50;

A resolution was passed that Miss Duff and Miss Galvin be re-engaged for the ensuing year at their present salaries, $250 and $225 respectively.

Moved and seconded that Mr. August's application be received and laid over for further consideration.

Moved by Thos. Gordon, seconded by Mr. Thos. Caldwell, that Miss Steward be re-engaged at a salary of $225. Carried.

The board adjourned.

From Death's Door.

M. M. Desjardins, of Ionia, Mich., was a sight to behold. He says: "I had no action of the Kidneys and suffered terribly. My legs were as big as my body, and my body as big as a barrel. The best doctors gave me up. Finally I tried Kidney-Wort. In four or five days a change came, in eight or ten days I was on my feet, and now I am completely cured. It was certainly a miracle." All druggists keep Kidney-Wort, which is put up both in liquid and dry form.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The council of the township of Smith met in special session at the Town Hall, Bridgenorth, on Tuesday the 29th of September, A by-law appointing J. E. Belcher engineer for the township of Smith, passed its several readings, was signed and sealed.

The reeve and deputy reeve were appointed to examine the water-course in the 6th and 7th concessions, with power to take such action as they may think requisite.

The Clerk was instructed to notify Col. Williams to have the fence of his property in the 17th concession, removed from the road allowance, and if not done forthwith, the reeve to take legal proceedings to force the same.

The Reeve was instructed to attend the next meeting of the town council to ask their co-operation in securing the amendment of the last proclamation of the Governor in council extending the limits of the town. The council then adjourned.

A Lost Letter.

It is sometimes a painful surprise to hear a stranger whose face we have been admiring speak. It is as if toads and frogs fell from his lips, as from the naughty girl's mouth in the old fairy story. Or, if the words are jewels, they are so chipped and marred, so mingled with base alloy, that the contrast between the good thought and the imperfect vehicle for conveying it is painful. A young woman stood last winter before a noble painting in an art collection. She, herself, was no mean artist. Her reputation as a critic was good. With a fine face and figure, she was noticable even in the crowded gallery. On being pointed out to a stranger as Miss Native Genius, he drew near to hear her words of criticism to a friend beside her. There was a moment's pause. Then, in the silence, the words smote upon his ear: "How fine the drorin' is."

It is curious to see how certain accidents have overtaken the English language, and how generation after generation of those who speak it perpetuate those errors rather than repair them. How, for instance, does it happen that h is taken from one word where it belongs and given to another that would do very well without it? Why is g treated in the same way? By what fatality was kitchen ever converted into kitching, garden into garding, and mountain into mounting? The conversion is a daily fact in many homes throughout New England. Still it is not of frequent enough occurrence to account for the missing g in other words. Where is the g that belongs to scores of words ending in ing? It is often missed in England, and in Scotland it is almost unknown; but, some way, in that soft musical tongue, there is so much elision that one does not so much notice the omission of the g. But this side the water, from Maine to Texas, there are everywhere yawning abysses down which the g has dropped and never been found again.

The child that begins to talk by using such words as goin', doin', seein', eatin', that goes through the primary and grammar school cipherin' and parsin', and is occupied in the high school with composin' and translatin', will wake us some day, perchance, to the atrocity of such pronunciation, only to find himself a slave of a habit as firmly fixed and as difficult to cure as the opium habit. The Old Man of the Sea was easy to shake off in comparison. If he attempts to pick up a g and put it where it belongs in one case he forgets it in the next; and he is at last so overwhelmed with words of participial ending—or endin's, as he would say—that he gives them all up in despair, and lets the g's slide off one by one, dotting the background of his speech at intervals like potatoes laid on the ground for a potato race. But he will never win the race; he will never gather them up into the basket.

This is no trifling matter. It is unfortunate to let a child grow up with habits of speech that will subjuit him to the sensation of inferiority when he is with cultivated people. At two year's old it is as easy to say going as goin'. After "goin'" has been used for twenty years, "going" sounds to such a speaker hard and formal, and ninety-nine times out of a hundred it will never be acquired. Parents are responsible for this slipshod pronunciation, and they alone can find the missing g.—Boston Christian Register.

A Story of Irving.

Many years ago—in fact, back in the thirties—Dr. Grant, of Enfield, whose reputation as a physician in Connecticut, is still in memory of the first rank after years of retirement from practice, was traveling in Georgia, his native state, going by stage from Savannah to Augusta. At a certain stopping place it was found that there were more passengers than the stage could carry, and an extra was ordered for the accommodation of five passengers. These passengers were John Forsyth, of Georgia, John Branch, secretary of the navy, George McDuffie, of South Carolina, Dr. Grant, and an unknown gentleman.

The party soon became talkative, and by degrees all knew who each one was, with the exception of the one silent stranger. As the stage creaked along, the attention of Dr. Grant, who was a lad at that date, was attracted by a little dog following the stage, which reminded him of the one described by Washington Irving in "Astoria," which he had just been reading. He was laughing quietly to himself, when one of the gentlemen insisted that he should tell them the cause of his amusement, that they might join in the fun. Dr. Grant said: "That little dog reminds me of Washington Irving's dog, whose skin was so tight that it drew up his hind legs." This led to a talk about Irving, in which all joined except the unknown man.

One of the gentlemen then appealed to him, and asked if he did not think Irving one of the wittiest and most delightful writers. The person appealed to replied that he could not say that he did. The gentlemen all expressed their astonishment, and one of them persisted in demanding why he did not agree with the others in their admiration of the favorite author. "Have you ever read any of his works?" they asked. "Yes," was the reply. "Well, don't you think the 'Sketch Book' one of the most beautiful specimens of English which our country has produced?" "Well, no," the unknown replied; "I can't say that I see anything remarkable in it." "Well," said the other, "then you must be Washington Irving himself, for no one else could resist the humor and pathos of his pen." The unknown colored to the roots of his hair, but made no reply, and his tormentor continued: "Come, tell us the truth, are you not Washington Irving, himself?" The poor man at last blushingly confessed that he was, and then followed a general introducing, and hand shaking, and a delightful and never-to-be-forgotten stage ride.

Courage.

"Charles A. Dana married when he was receiving $5 per week for literary work," said Capt. Gray, putting aside a newspaper which contained a picture and biographical sketch of the great journalist. "By George, he must have had courage!"

"Not necessarily," replied Mr. Balkins. "I was never regarded as a man of extraordinary courage, yet I married when I only had $6 in money and no income at all."

"I should regard that a very courageous act."

"No," replied Mr. Balkins, "for von see the girl I married was worth $50,000.—Arkansaw Traveler.

In North Carolina, in 1880, fifty-four days constituted the school year; in Tennessee, sixty-eight days. In the State of Texas the school year was seventy-three days, and the school period only six years—from 8 to 14.

The Knife-Grinder and His Work.

The knife-grinder has, after all, a story to tell, and a very dismal one it is. He is environed by dangers, as completely as he is saturated with the wet "swarff" (powdered stone) which dyes him a deep saffron color from head to toe. He sits over a tool which may at any moment send him through the roof with all the suddenness and velocity of dynamite, and he works in an attitude and (especially if he be a "dry" grinder) inhales a dust which he knows will shorten his life by ten, twenty, or even thirty years, as constitution and fortune may serve him. The sharp crack of a breaking stone is an appalling sound to the occupants of a grinding-hull. A bang in the trough, a crash in the roof, and a piteous moan, and all is over. If the victim be alive, he is hurried to the hospital; if dead, his crushed body is reverently carried away. No vigilance in the master, no care in the workman, seems able to avert these periodical catastrophes. The insidious water rot, the hidden flaw, and the unequal grain do their fatal work in spite of all precautions.—English Illustrated Magazine.

Nicholas Anchorena, who died two months since at Buenos Ayres, was probably the richest farmer in the world. His executors report his rural estates as follows: Land, 1,710 square miles; cows, 152,000; sheep, 410,000. He also owned much house property in Buenos Ayres, and his assets have been valued at £2,400,000. He inherited £200,000 from his father thirty years ago.

Mr. Henry Marshall, Reeve of Dunn, writes: "Sometime ago I got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery from Mr. Harrison, and I consider it the very best medicine extant for Dyspepsia." This medicine is making marvellous cures in Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, etc., in purifying the blood and restoring manhood to full vigor.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 15, 1884

The grain market shows no change worthy of note, and it may be called steady. There is considerable barley offering, generally of a common grade. The wheat offering is simply to supply local demand. The present figure for wheat is too high for export, therefore, as soon as the local call is satisfied, an appreciable tumble in price may reasonably be looked for. In other commodities there is no change from the quotations below.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were ill adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

TWO WAYS To Win Trade!

There are two ways to win trade—as of old. One to deserve it and wait; the other to advertise—and get it. Not all who wait deserve it! not all who wait get it. But in our case publicity helps what ought to be helped. We've hitched our cart to the newspaper, and it is bound to go. Our local newspapers are enterprising, and we're part of the benefit of their success.

We're ready with the largest, and in every way the best stock, that we've ever packed in for the Fall and Winter trade.

It's divided in proper proportion into goods for Men's, Youths, and Boys wear, for Ladies', Misses and Girls garniture.

Our whole stock is well selected, and has many admirable features—features that add to the beauty and use of the goods, without adding to their cost.

If you're a masculine, let us make your clothing; you'll find that our styles are faultlessly correct, our Tweeds and Cloths, reliable in quality; our work is perfect in fit and excellent in finish.

To these we add other points, all esteemed by admirers of Good Clothing.

Dress Goods.

About our Dress Goods Stock, we wish to say in general that nothing can at all approach the superb exhibition of these goods, as we display them. It's not only the largest to which we've ever called your attention but is in range of colors and qualities, the most perfect, not one of the many classes of goods in public favour being wanting to complete our list.

Whatever we do we mean to do well, we try to do well. If our functions are only that of tradesmen we mean to make it good by doing it well. Ours is the old homely rule: "do as you'd be done by," set up in general trade.

And our prices are as low as elsewhere—and lower in many lines.

ERICA'S SACRIFICE!

A QUESTION OF

Forgiveness or Dishonor

"How did you come?" he half whispered. "How did you manage? Don't keep it from him any more, Erica; there's been enough mischief."

"My husband brought me here to see you," said the low, clear voice steadily.

"But I can't understand you." Arnold said, sinking back with a quick-drawn breath. "This is no place for you. How could Sir. John let you come—that proud man?"

"I will not conceal anything from you, dear Arnold." The great pity at her heart straitened her sorely, but she would be calm and tender, and as she spoke her fingers were putting back the straying locks from his forehead. "It was hard for Philip to grant me this, but he is very noble and good, and let me come——"

"They will say there was truth in that story," said Arnold, frowning.

"Not when Philip brought me."

"No, no." He lay quite silent for a little time, soothed by her gentle, caressing hand, smiling even and muttering of the days before he knew what sin meant, for his mind was half wandering, but suddenly he spoke clearly and abruptly.

"'For life!' I thought that a grim mockery; didn't you Erica? They'll never get that out of me, and that's something to be thankful for. Did you know it?"

"I know it, Arnold."

"Are you sorry—the truth, little cos?"

"It would be worse than death," the girl whispered, bowing her head down. "I cannot be sorry, Arnold."

"That's right, then. I'm deuced glad, though—though——" He turned away and shuddered strongly, then said softly, "I like your soft fingers on my forehead, Erica. It's good of you; but you must hate me, dear—don't you?"

"Hush, oh, hush, Arnold," she said, in bitter anguish. "I can only remember that you were my mother's darling—my care—my charge."

"You remember that?" he said, rather eagerly. "You always were a good girl. I don't deserve it, Erica. I am sorry I let you suffer so long—I am, indeed."

"I wish—oh, I wish, Arnold, you were sorry for yourself," she whispered, with a half sob, and he moaned uneasily.

"That's what the chaplain is always saying. Tell me"—he stopped and glanced round the room, then fell back exhausted—"if they'd give me brandy," he said, in a hollow whisper. "I'm dying for want of drink. Can't you get it?"

Erica rose and gave him some cooling drink that stood beside him, and then wetted her hands with the sweet violet scent she had brought, and laid them on his forehead.

"That's good," he murmured to himself. "Violets! That's like the fields at Grayle. Is that the sea muttering outside? What was I going to say?" He knitted his brows, and then added: "About you! Oh, I know." He seemed again to gather consciousness from the sort of stupor into which he was sinking. "It's all right between you and Philip, isn't it?"

"Yes, Arnold."

"That's right. What are you going to do? Not going to Grayle again?"

She shivered involuntarily, and answered in the quiet, steadfast voice that was the effort of self-control:

"No, dear; we shall go abroad, I think."

"And you are sure, quite sure, you forgive me?" Arnold said, and his hand closed on hers tightly, and his wavering gaze fixed for a moment.

"Quite sure, Arnold. I forgive you from my very heart, as I hope to be forgiven," Erica said, with strong earnestness.

And he lay muttering to himself for a little while, then again abruptly spoke, but now faintly, and with a quiver of the hand she held.

"And Philip—ah, you start and hide your face; he's not like you, but then, you're his wife. Well, is he here?"

"He is without, Arnold."

"You don't think——" he began eagerly, but stopped exhausted. "I'm so timid, I'm up to nothing."

"You would like him to come to you?" said the girl, gently, but inwardly trembling. Ah, would Philip still be pitiless? "You would like to know that he forgave you too?"

He said "Yes," feebly, but looked more assent. "It's only a feeling, but it doesn't matter."

She rose and glided away, her heart throbbing heavily. Philip was walking slowly up and down at the further end of the corridor, with his arms folded across his breast, his head bent in deep, perhaps regretful thought; he turned as Erica came to him.

"Philip," she said, and paused, drooping her eyes; then, with a sudden rush of bitter sorrow, she bowed her face on his arm, whispering in intense pleading: "He is dying, Philip. He asked for you to forgive. Oh, husband, have you no pity now?"

He stood looking down on her for a moment, and the stern lips softened, the dark eyes grew tender.

"Philip," the girl said, wistfully, "come with me; surely no vengeance could live in that presence?"

And he did not resist, when taking his hand she drew him towards the chamber.

And in that ineffable presence that hovered near and yet nearer every moment, Philip acknowledged she spoke truth. He stood beside that shattered wreck of manhood, and bowed his head, rebuked by a judgment higher than his own, and his implacable severity shrank and dwindled, and seemed poor and ignoble here in this prison-room where a young life was running out its last sands.

"Arnold," said the girl softly, kneeling beside him, and laying her hand on his forehead.

He opened his eyes dreamily, and they rested on Philip St. John's tall form and dark face.

A change came over the dying man. He rallied for a moment, lifting himself up and gazing into Philip's eyes, half shrinking as he did so, and clutching with nervous force at Erica's hand.

"Are you come to reproach me?" he said, hoarsely. "I took your brother from you, and this child, but I shan't trouble you again—I——"

St. John bent down, pressing him gently back on the pillows, and keeping one hand on his shoulder.

"I am not come to reproach," he said, and there was a great pity in his low tones, "nor to judge you for your past——"

"I always hated you, Philip St. John," Arnold said, speaking with slow utterance, but without bitterness. "It was unjust of me. I'm sorry for it, and for all the wrong I did you. She has forgiven me, but I did you the greater wrong, through her; and you are harder than she is. They say I am dying. Just say——"

Low and quivering came the deep, soft voice: "I do forgive you, Arnold."

CHAPTER XXI.

CONCLUSION.

In a week or two Philip St. John took his young wife abroad, going from place to place, and remaining absent the whole of that autumn and following winter, only returning to England in Easter week.

Gerald St. John, the head of the family, had begged Philip to stay at Wilton-le-Thorpe. [illegible] and [illegible] she had lost after all the fearful storm of the last three years, but Philip had thanked him cordially but declined for the present.

"There will be change of scene abroad," he wrote to his cousin, "and Walter's grave would be a too constant reminder of a past that I would have her forget as much as possible. When we return we shall be very glad to come for your welcome."

And a right glad welcome it had been, for Erica's rare beauty and noble sweetness had won the deepest admiration from even Gerald St. John, who was a grave and reserved man, of somewhat saturnine nature.

And not the least cordial of her welcomers, though half shame-faced and timid, was Nat Poynter, whom Philip, at his wife's prayer had placed beyond the reach of want.

Erica had regained some of the elastic and bright spirit that had been hers in quite the first days of her marriage, although there was now, and would ever be, a certain sweet gravity of mien—a shade, nothing more, on her brow, and in the soft tenderness of the dark eyes, that were legacies of those years of anguish and pain.

But she is happy now, with a happiness she had never known even in the first year of marriage, for hers is now the perfect love which "casteth out fear;" and if there is a sorrowful shadow in the eyes, Philip can always charm it away.

Everywhere in London this season she is received and welcomed with open arms, for the support given her by her kindly friend, Lady Cheshunt, has been followed by society.

And Philip St. John has learnt to be more merciful to sin, and more tolerant of the lightest infringement of honor, for he can never forget the agony of that struggle he fought out in the dim prison corridor, and never forgets or regrets that he humbled that proud heart to pity, and those grand lips to utter:

"I forgive."

For such forgiveness is without dishonor.

THE END.

THE TWO LETTERS.

Nine o'clock had just chimed from the town clock, and been echoed by the silvery tones of the handsome toy in his counting-room, when Mr. Baldwin, senior member of the firm of Baldwin & Henderson, walked into the room. He was a tall, lithe man, of about thirty years, with fair hair and blue eyes, distinguished in his appearance, dainty as to his toilet, but without the least appearance of foppishness.

Wealthy, aristocratic, and alone in the world, wonder had long been rife in society as to why he did not marry. It surely was not for want of a fit subject for his affections, for his friends had frequently called his attention to this or that girl as a desirable parti. But, although quite a "ladies' man," he still remained heartwhole and fancy free.

Walking to his desk, he seated himself in his comfortable armchair and proceeded to look over his correspondence. Like the business man that he was, he seemed to master the contents of each letter at a glance, and then made a few notes on the margin of the paper as a guide to his book-keeper in answering it. After awhile he wrote a letter to "Stern & Co.," of Liverpool, and, enclosing a draft for eight hundred and fifty pounds, put it into an envelope, sealed it, and was just going to direct it when one of his clerks announced that a gentleman wished to see him in the store. He left the letter lying on the desk undirected, and went out to see the gentleman, while his book-keeper, Mr. Conway, looked after him admiringly, and wondered if he too would some day be the senior partner of a wealthy firm.

In a few minutes after Mr. Baldwin left the office, a friend of his and Mr. Conway's, Tom Ford, walked in.

"Hallo! Conway, where's Baldwin?"

"Just gone out," said Conway; "but if you will take a seat and wait awhile, I think he'll be back soon."

"All right; and while I'm waiting, I'll write to my sweetheart."

"What's her name, and where's her name?" sang Conway, laughing.

"Miss Sadie Cross, II——," answered Ford, and forthwith began writing rapidly, soon finishing his letter; and after sealing and directing it he put it in the mail box, and bidding Conway, who was busy with his books, "good-morning," said he believed he would not wait longer, and walked out, leaving Mr. Baldwin's letter still lying on the desk.

In about an hour Mr. Baldwin returned, and discovered the letter lying there, although he did not recognize it as his own. Turning to Conway, he asked:

"Who wrote this letter and forgot to address it?"

"I don't know, sir," said Conway, "unless it was Tom Ford, who was in here while you were out, and said he wanted to write a letter to his sweetheart."

"If I knew her name I would address it for him," said Mr. Baldwin.

"Miss Sadie Cross, II——," laughed Conway; and Mr. Baldwin proceeded to direct his own letter, enclosing the draft for eight hundred and fifty pounds to Miss Sadie Cross.

About a week later, Baldwin & Henderson received a letter from Stern & Co., politely calling their attention to the fact that a bill of theirs for eight hundred and fifty pounds, due several days since, had not yet been paid, which completely mystified the firm of B & H., inasmuch as Mr. Baldwin remembered writing the letter himself and enclosing a draft to meet the bill. Of course they wrote back to that effect, and asked for time to investigate, and for the present we will leave them to solve the mystery as best they can, while we transport the reader to H——.

* * * * * * * *

"Here are two letters for you, Sadie, both post-marked at London; I did not know you had more than one correspondent there," said Mr. Cross to his daughter, as he entered the breakfast-room.

A shade of annoyance passed over Sadie's beautiful face as she recognized Tom Ford's well-known chirography. She felt displeased that he should persist in writing to her, after her positive rejection of his suit.

"But whom can this be from?" she exclaimed, examining the address of the other letter, and turning it over in her hand.

"It occurs to me that the easiest way to solve that problem would be to open the letter and read it," said her father, mischievously; and as Sadie complied her great brown eyes opened to their fullest extent as Mr. Baldwin's letter and draft appeared before her.

Of course it did not take them long to guess that the letter was misdirected, though Sadie could not imagine how Baldwin & Henderson had obtained her address.

So she wrote a funny little letter to them, returning their epistle, and telling them she hoped their good name had not suffered from the delay in meeting their bill.

Sadie Cross was the only child and petted darling of wealthy parents, and but for her naturally sweet disposition would doubtless have been somewhat spoiled.

Flattered and caressed in society, still she retained such lovable, gentle manners as endeared her to all who met her. Rather below medium height, with clear, olive complexion, large, liquid, brown eyes, rippling masses of brown hair, which almost defied hairpins to keep it in place, so determined was it to fall to her waist in beautiful curls, coral lips just modelled to kiss, and teeth of pearl, it is not to be wondered at that scores of admirers were ready to fall at her feet and worship her. But Sadie had never loved as yet, and so she kindly but firmly refused all offers. "Too innocent for coquetry, too fond for idle scorning," she never "flirted." Almost unknown to herself, she had a vein of romance in her composition which inclined her to expect something a little out of the ordinary in the wooing of the man she would love. It may have been this trait which caused her to look with such favor on the request Mr. Baldwin made in his letter in reply to hers. After acknowledging the receipt of his letter and draft, and explaining how the mistake occurred, he concluded by begging her to continue the correspondence so singularly begun.

With the consent of her parents Sadie answered his letter, giving him permission to write to her, and in a short while they had exchanged pictures, and he had asked and received permission to pay her a visit.

So, on a lovely May morning about six months after our story opens, Sadie had arranged her toilet with unusual care to receive her unknown correspondent.

At last a servant brought her a card, and announced that the gentleman was in the parlor.

Why linger over the story? They met, and both were conquered.

If Mr. Baldwin had been attracted by her letters and picture, he could not fail to be enchanted with herself.

Suffice it that this visit was repeated several times, with innumerable letters between, and when December rolled around, Sadie Cross became Mrs. Baldwin, and now graces the palatial home of her husband.

Effect of Lightning.

A peculiar case of "suspended animation" from fright occurred in Atlanta Saturday evening last. In the Fourth Ward a Mrs. Ball resides. She is a stout healthy, hearty woman and has never known a day's illness. When she was a child of five years, a heavy thunder storm visited her home, and she was frightened nearly to death by vivid flashes of lightning and loud peals of thunder. The feelings which were hers at that time were peculiar and clung to her for several years, but finally as time went by she forgot the sensations, and for years she has been able to watch a thunder storm without feeling any fear whatever, and without recalling her terrible experience. Saturday evening when the thunder storm visited Atlanta it was particularly severe in the Fourth Ward. She sat by her window watching the lightning as it flew across the heavens and admired the beautiful electrical display. While her admiration was at its greatest extent a brilliant flash parted the clouds and at the same instant ran along the street car track in front of her residence. Instantly a loud peal of thunder came, but before it came she was seized with that old feeling of terror which so completely held her twenty years ago, and which she had not thought of for years. Quickly she sprang from her chair and fell across her bed, but as she did so, a tree near her home was shattered by the electrical fluid. This only augmented her fright and threw her into a comatose condition, which lasted several hours. The picture she presented while lying in her bed was a distressing one, and was exceedingly novel and interesting to those who were about her. She laid perfectly flat upon her back, her arms stretched beside her, perfectly powerless. Her mouth was so tightly closed that her lips were purple, while her eyes were wide open. The ball was like her body, motionless, and the pupil seemed to gaze upon a point on the ceiling, directly above her. Her friends called her by name, shook her with great force, threw water in her face, placed ammonia under her nose, but all without an effect. She would not give any sign of life, except at intervals of four or five minutes, when a most pitiful groan would escape from her tightly sealed lips. She remained in this condition for 4 or 5 hours, when she suddenly opened her mouth, closed her eyes and arose to a sitting position, much to the joy of her friends. After recovering herself she told those with her all that transpired while she was helpless, and said that her feelings during the time were just the same she experienced when frightened twenty years ago. Yesterday she was up and well.—Atlanta Constitution.

A Costume for Female Anglers.

A lady who is an expert in the gentle art of angling has designed a fishing costume, which has the merit of being pretty as well as practical. It is to be seen at Redfern's. The material of which it is made is Chevoit tweed, light but waterproof. The ingeniously-contrived skirt is double from the knees downward, the under part being quite short, overgaiters and knickerbockers. The upper part, when let down forms a graceful skirt, just comfortable walking length. This is useful for getting to the scene of action. When the river is reached and business begins, the upper part turns up and fastens on the hips by means of leather straps. The underside is then found to be furnished with two liberal pockets. An edging of some two inches of brown leather protects the edges of the petticoat. The jacket is also edged with leather, and is made double breasted. Straps of leather are placed on the shoulders to relieve the pecheuse from the dragging weight the fishing basket would otherwise be. A very becoming hat, made of the Chevolt and bound with the leather, completes a very business-like and becoming costume, which is also suitable for shooting or a walking expedition.—The London World.

Chased By a Hoop Snake.

One day last week a little girl, whose name slipped the correspondent's usually retentive memory, was chased by a monster hoop snake nearly a mile. Just as it seemed that it was about to strike her, she dodged behind a large apple-tree. The rapidly whirling snake turned to follow, and struck the tree with such force as to drive the horn spike into the hard wood over two inches. The child was so frightened that she sank down, her heart thumping as though it would burst out of her body. One of her brothers who had seen her flying down the hill, went to see what was the matter. When he reached the tree it was quaking like an aspen, and its leaves and fruit falling to the ground in a perfect shower, the prostrate girl being buried beneath them. As soon as he got her restored to consciousness, he took a fence rail and killed the venomous monster, which was 11 feet, 2½ inches in length, and 8 inches in circumference. The horn point on the tail was 6½ inches long, and so deeply imbedded in the very hard wood that it could not extricate itself. This all happened near South Mountain, Va.—Richmond Dispatch.

KIDNEY-WORT

restores, with the glow and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. F. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1883: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES,

Very Palatable and Efficacious in Wasting Diseases.

Dr. C. T. BROMER, Rochester, N.Y., says: "After having used Scott's Emulsion with decided benefit upon myself, I have taken great pleasure in recommending it since in the various conditions of wasting in which it is indicated."

We do not Claim that Shaker Blood Syrup will cure everything, but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of whatever kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, continuous scrofula and other impurities from it, as Shaker Blood Syrup undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the blood.

Gentlemen:—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup. The skin would become dry, chap, crack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Shaker Blood Syrup (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linen cloths. The skin was dry up so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and certainly bring tears to my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. Hoping many others may learn the value of Shaker Blood Syrup, and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,
C. A. Howard,
West 12th St., New York.

ASKED FOR ONE HAND AND GOT TWO.

"I must have her hand," said the young man to his sweetheart's father. "I am able to take care of her. Last week my store burned down. My stock was worth $2,000; it was insured for $7,000."

The father arose, and in a voice of deep feeling, replied:—"Take both hands. They are yours."

With Satisfaction.

Polson's Nerviline, the new and certain pain cure, is used with satisfaction in every instance. There is abundant reason for this, for it performs all that is claimed for it. Nerviline is a never-failing cure for cramps, pains in the side or back, lumbago, sore throat, chilblains, toothache. Nerviline is in fact a sure remedy for all pains, both internal and external. Try a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles only 25 cents, by all druggists and country dealers.

NOT FAULT BUT MISFORTUNE.

A dealer in horse-flesh, of Jewish persuasion, sold to a gentleman of little experience in such matters, a steed as "perfectly without faults." Next day the buyer came back in great fury, because his groom found out that the alleged "faultless" was blind in the right eye. "Why," replied the sly jobber, "that's not the horse's fault; it is only his misfortune."

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

Constitutions broken down with fatty degeneration of the heart, liver, and kidneys, from the use of alcohol, exhaustion of the vital forces, from the use of tobacco; irritability and restlessness of the nervous system, from the effects of strychnine; impaired nutrition and loss of energy, from the use of opium; and nervous and physical prostration from any form of intemperance, have a physiological restorative in Wheeler's Phosphates and Calisaya, that will repair the wasted tissues and maintain the functional activity of the vital organs.

DISTINCTION IN WORDS.

"I have been going around all day and now I am tired," remarked an exhausted Austin mother.

"You are not like a wheel, are you ma?" asked Tommy.

"Why, little boy?"

"You are tired after you go around, but a wheel is tired before it goes around.

Lumbago.

Those who suffer from this disease will find a friend in NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELTS when all other remedies fail. Ask your druggist for it and take no other. Guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 41-4t

IT WAS A GREAT BEREAVEMENT.

"Allow me to sympathize with you in your trouble, Mr. Sellman. The loss of your child must be a great bereavement to you."

"Yes, it cost me a good deal of money."

Inhuman Cruelty.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner. 42-2t

Alberta's bill of rights has been published and forwarded to Sir Hector Langevin. Among other things the memorandum asks for the withdrawal of the mounted police, judicial authority in settled centres of population, the appointment of regular judges, and the right of habeas corpus, which is virtually suspended in the district. The memorandum also asks for territorial representatives in the Dominion Parliament. It is moderate in tone.

Useful to Know.

Everyone should know that Hagyard's Yellow Oil will give prompt relief; applied externally will stop any pain; and taken internally cures colic, asthma, croup, sore throat and most inflammatory complaints. 42-2t

Base minion, I defy thee,' said the Lady Lucrusta Walton, as she spurned the catlift." So the novelist wrote, but the conscientious proof-reader, with the remark, "O, pshaw, this is the fifteenth century story, and minion type wasn't invented until 1587," made it read, "Bass brevier."

A Good Test.

For over sixteen years G. M. Everest, of Forest, has sold Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and its sales are steadily increasing. It cures coughs, colds and all lung complaints; is pleasant to take and always reliable. 42-2t

"How fresh and green everything looks," murmured Clarabel, as they wandered along the road, "Everything?" questioned Adolpheus, looking down into her violet eyes. "Yes, everything," she replied abstractedly. He wanders with another girl now.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin worms were crawling in and about the rectum: the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for 1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Blocking the Yellow Fever.

Mental confusion is a phenomenon to which every one is liable who can be badly scared—and it takes but very little to turn a tragedy into a farce.

Some years ago, when the terrible "Yellow Jack" was in Savannah, Judge B—— of the supreme court of the state was holding session in the upper country, but within twenty-four hours' run, by mail, of the infested city.

Quite suddenly, late one afternoon he was seized with the head-ache, pain in the back, limbs, etc. Having heard that these were the salutations which Yellow Jack extends to his victims when approaching them, the judge in great consternation applied to a friend who was "posted," for advice.

A hot mustard bath was ordered at once, and the judge was soon laving himself in the irritant fluid.

Presently he felt better, and, finding a cake of soap in the bath-tub, he began to apply it quite freely on his person. After some pleasant exercise in this way he looked down for the first time on his body and limbs, and to his horror discovered that he was turning black!

His friend was hurriedly sent for, came in and declared that the symptoms were intensely expressive of yellow fever.

"But," said the judge, "I feel no pain; I feel well."

"So much the worse; the absence of pain is a marked symptom."

"Oh," groaned the judge, "what shall I do?"

"The only hope is in mustard; rub away," was all the advice his friend could give.

And he did rub, with a will.

On examination he was as black as a crow—and the "soap," which a careless servant had dropped into the tub, was discovered to be somebody's patent paste blacking.

The judge survived.

An Western man who has been making a trip through Georgia found everybody supplied with such abominable butter, that he at length got mad enough to face a landlord and asked: "Where on earth do you buy the stuff you put on the table and call butter?" "Mostly in Chicago, sir," was the prompt reply. "And don't you know that it is at least 60 per cent adulteration?" "Certainly, sir; but as long as Chicago parties buy our cotton-seed oil as one of the ingredients, we feel bound to make one hand wash the other by ordering their butter."—Wall Street News.

There is just one thing that has not been said about climbing the pyramids, and I have a deep-seated conviction that it is reserved for me to proclaim that one thing. The pyramids are death on breeches. Although I was equipped with a very respectable pair of pants when I began, I found myself almost bereft of them when I reached terra firma again, and had to side along on the homeward trip. This wrinkle is thrown out gratuitously. I believe no writer has hitherto been practical or philanthropic enough to announce this fact. Get your trousers lined with leather before you start.—Cairo Letter to the Omaha Herald.

Frank Helm, treasurer of the Latonia Jockey Club, bought a horse which was represented as being speedy. After some weeks of practice he concluded that the best thing that he could do with the horse was to sell him at auction. The bidding slowly ran up from $2.40 to $50, and Frank appeared on the scene just as the auctioneer was crying: "Going, going, going, go——," "What's that, Mr. Auctioneer?" shouted Frank. "I said he was going, Mr. Helm at——" "Well, for heaven's sake don't stop him. I had him six months and couldn't make him go, and if you've got him started, keep him at it!" The horse went.—Merchant Traveller.

A Home-made Spring-Trap.

An excellent spring-trap can be made of a flexible, elastic piece of wood, four feet long and three inches wide by a half-inch thick, which should be fastened at one end securely to a thick board, its middle resting firmly on a cleat, at an angle of about thirty degrees. Upon the upper or free end of this spring-piece fasten a tin blacking-box, hollow side up. Then fix the notched trigger by a hinge to the board in such a way that, when the spring is bent downward over the cleat, the notch can be made to hold it in that position until it is released by pulling a long cord attached to the top end of the trigger. This trap should be used as follows:

The elastic piece is bent down and made fast by the notch in the trigger. Any small object upon which shot will take effect is then placed in the box. The pulling-string being sixty feet long, when all is ready, the shooter stands eighteen yards from the trap, while the puller takes up his position a little behind and to one side of him. When the shooter is ready, he says: "Pull!" and instantly the puller gently draws the string, which releases the "bender" of the trap, and the small potato or block of wood, or whatever forms the target, is thrown into the air, and shot at before it falls.

The wide board, which forms the base of the trap, must be fastened firmly to the ground, by driving long stakes through holes made in it for the purpose.

Traps with steel springs, and hollow glass balls for targets, can be had of dealers in sportsmen's goods; but they are quite expensive, and this arrangement is just as good.—St. Nicholas.

If you want a suit of genuine Irish Tweed, Mahony's make, Shamrock stamped on every yard, go to Turnbull's.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Parlor, kitchen and bedroom lamps at any price. China Hall pays particular attention to the lamp and coal oil part of its business, and will undersell all other dealers. If you want variety, cheapness and durability in the above goods buy at China Hall.

Off for the South.

Mr. C. Young, not having disposed of his grocery and hotel buildings in Ashburnham, at auction, has decided to continue the grocery business in his old stand. He has been fortunate in securing the services of a first-class man, who will manage the business during Mr. Young's absence in the south, where he goes this winter for the benefit of his health. He trusts that his old friends will continue to patronize his establishment in Ashburnham as though he were personally present. His stock will be found complete, and prices as low as at any other place.

Fall Fair Notes.

At the Central Exhibition at Lindsay, Messrs. Graham & Fair's stallion, Enterprise, took first prize in the heavy draught class, their "Parule," first prize in the agricultural horses class, and "John Anderson," a two year old stallion, also took first prize.

Mr. Joseph Redmond, of Otonabee, at the Lindsay exhibition took first prizes on brood mare and foal, on aged Berkshire boar, on Berkshire boar of 1884, and second and third prizes on one year old heifers.

At the Industrial Exhibition, Toronto, Mr. James Baptie, of Springville, took first prize on golden spangled Hamburgs, first on silver spangled Hamburgs, first on Plymouth Rocks, and a diploma for a breeding pen of Hamburgs.

Mr. Peter Hamilton, at the Lindsay Central, took first prize on straw-cutter, horse power, first on straw cutter for hand power, first on turnip drill and second on general purpose plough. Mr. Hamilton exhibited the same class of articles at Cobourg.

Messrs. Porter Bros. exhibited at the Rethany exhibition held on Tuesday and Wednesday, one each of waggons, top buggies, phaetons and carriages.

Miss Lochington, who was a contestant in the exhibition for lady riders at the Bailieboro Fall Show, was the recipient of a flattering and graceful present. Messrs. Mayor Hugel, Col. Williams, M. P. and Dr. Hamilton, presented her, through Mr. James Byers with a handsome silver watch as a tribute to the grac and ease she exhibited as an equestrienne.

A complete return of Mr. Joseph Redmond's winnings at the Keene and Lindsay exhibitions, shows that he took fourteen prizes on stock at Keene, and thirteen at Lindsay, only one of which was a third prize.

Coal Oil.

Turnbull's Millinery and Mantle Show Rooms are now open. all the latest novelties are on display, intending purchasers will find it to their advantage to look through the stock.

William Stafford, Tragedian.

This eminent actor, together with Miss Evalyn Foster, the charming leading lady, whose performances here last fall our readers no doubt still have pleasant recollections of, will appear at the opera house on Saturday night, Oct. 18th, in an elaborate production of Shakespeare's sublime tragedy of Romeo and Juliet. This company is the representative, legitimate organization, and a fine performance may be looked for. Seats are now on sale at Menzies' bookstore. Our readers will do well to secure them in advance. Popular prices.

"Only a Farmer's Daughter."

This delightful drama, by Mr Elliott Barnes, now in its seventh year of triumphant performances, will be presented in Bradburn's Opera House, on Friday evening, Oct 17th, with Miss Lillian Lewis as "Laurent" and Miss Esther Lyon, as "Justine" with a strong dramatic support. Read what the New York Mercury says of this great play:

"The new play by Mr. Elliott Barnes, produced for the first time last night is a decided success. A large cultivated and appreciative audience filled the house, and evinced their pleasure by intelligent applause. The drama affords an opportunity for fine acting, and the company deserve credit for the conscientious manner in which they performed their duty.

Interesting to the Ladies Only.

None of our departments is at present receiving greater attention than the Dress and Mantle Making. Ladies will be pleased to learn that we have engaged Miss S. Johnston to superintend this department, and her many friends here, who know her best as a Mantle Maker, will be glad to learn of her return to Peterborough, and accord to her the full justice she merits as a painstaking and successful Dress and Mantle Fitter Miss Johnston has had an experience lately in the western cities, where she has come in contact with Popular and Leading American Styles, and we are warranted in stating that her work cannot be surpassed. A trial will bear out this assertion. We have a rich stock of fabrics for dresses and mantles to select from, and our trimmings and other designs are elegant. A call respectfully solicted. Fair, VanEvery & Co., Sign of the "Golden Lion."

Curling and Skating Rink Company.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling and Skating Rink Company, was held at the Grand Central Hotel on Tuesday evening. The financial statement showed that the expenditure the past year was $755.78, the revenue $773. At the last annual meeting there was a balance of $80.86 in the savings bank, and $417.89 in the Bank of Commerce. This would show a present balance of over $500. Votes of thanks were passed to the retiring directors, to the auditor Mr. J. A. Hall, and to Mr. J. F. Dennistoun thanking him for his interest in the affairs of the company, and regretting his retirement from the directorate. The following gentlemen were appointed directors—Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, R. S. Davidson, A. Hall, C. McGill and Dr. Boucher. At a subsequent meeting of the directors Mr. Ferguson was elected president.

That common sense article. Girls School Jerseys, to be had at Turnbull's.

A Centenarian Called Away.

On Monday last Mr. Daniel Sheehan, perhaps the oldest man in Ontario, died at his residence, Douro. He had passed the century by three years and had lived a generation beyond the Scriptural three-score-and-ten. He was born in the county of Cork, Ireland, in 1781. He was, therefore, 17 years old at the time of the Irish Rebellion, and when that great Irishman, Lord Nelson, won the battle of the Nile. In 1812 Mr. Sheehan married Mary Crimmin of Cork, who came with her husband to Canada in 1825, and settled in the township of Douro, where he has since lived. He was appointed the first township clerk of Douro. His wife seems to have had a similarly tenacious hold on life, for fourteen years ago she passed away, before her husband, at the mature age of 94 years and four months. Four children survive these venerable citizens. After the death of his wife, Daniel Sheehan removed to the residence of his son-in-law, Mr. James Moher, Douro, where he had his home till the day of his death. He retained his faculties of both body and mind to a remarkable degree. The funeral took place on Tuesday last and the body was laid in the Roman Catholic burying ground, Douro.

Mysterious Disappearance.

Intellegence has been received from Austruther of the mysterious disappearance of John Johnson, in the employ of Messrs. Irwin & Co., and brother of Messrs. James and William Johnson of this town. He was employed on the timber limits of the firm in Austruther. Last Sunday week, Johnson and others went out to hunt deer: he was detailed to start the dogs while the others watched for the deer. Before long a report a of gun was heard, but the watchers waited in vain for the starting of the game. At length they returned to the shanty, but Johnson was not there. The return of the dogs alone and the continued absence of Johnson, rather alarmed the others; and their alarm was justified by the event, for from that time to the present he has not been seen or heard of. Being thoroughly acquainted with the woods and wood craft, it cannot be suggested that he became lost. It is gravely feared that some fatal accident has befallen him. The whole party belonging to the shanty about 45 in number, turned out to search, but up to the present their efforts have been futile to find any trace of the missing man or throw the least light on the matter of his mysterious and sudden disappearance.

Successful Social.

The social assemblage held in the Opera House on Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the ladies of St. Peter's Cathedral in No. 2 Ward, was a fine success, the financial results being uncommonly satisfactory.

Office Improvements.

Mr. W. H. Roberts is executing the contract for building an addition to the vaults of the County Court Clerk's office. The extension eastward is seven feet of the width of the present structure, and will be finished externally and internally with every consideration of its intended use kept in view.

Sermons on the Gospels.

Last Sunday evening Rev. A. H. Munro, pastor of the Baptist Church, preached the third in his series of eloquent and instructive sermons on the Gospels. The Gospel of St. Luke was the subject of the evening. That of St. John will occupy his attention next Sunday evening.

The Skating Rink.

The contractor, Mr. D. Gamble, for the removal of the Skating Rink, is busily employed in preparing its foundation on Charlotte street. The new rink which wil rest on a stone foundation, with brick walls, will be 107 x 193 feet, and will contain tw curling rinks and a skating rink. Water for ice formation will be supplied from the water works.

More Matched Trots.

As an outcome of the recent meeting of the Turf Club Association, two matched trots have been arranged. On Friday, Oct. 17th, "Fanny B." and "Brown Barber" will trot mile heats, best three in five, for a purse of $200. On October 30th, A. Gibson's "Incog." will dispute the possession of a purse of $400 with Geo. Lipsett's "Paddy," mile heats, three in five.

First Foot Ball.

Last Thursday afternoon the Peterborough and Toronto Foot Ball Clubs contested the first round of tries for the Ontario cup. The result was the defeat of the home team by 21 points—29 to 8. The game was started at three o'clock by Lawford's kick off. Play begun vigorously. When time was called the score stood in favour of Toronto by two goals, two tries and five rouges, to the home teams, two tries, equivalent to 29 to 8. The visiting team was a great deal heavier than the home team, and besides worked better together. Weller and Myles distinguished themselves by good individual play, as well as Alf. Rogers, while Lawford at back did credit to the position. Orde did some strong running, as did Snyder, and Tanner captured free kicks in good style. For the Torontos Blake, Vankougnnet, McAndrew and McCallum did well. The one serious mishap was a bad toss that fractured the collar bone of P. D. Hughes, a Toronto player. There was a large attendance of spectators. After the match the Torontos were entertained at dinner at the Oriental hotel, after which they were escorted to the station, highly pleased by the hearty hospitality with which they had been treated.

Hunter Street.

Citizens doing business on Hunter street, in the neighborhood of the creek, complain, with good reason, of the disgraceful condition in which the street at the creek has been kept. For nearly two years building operations and the result of the freshet have made the street at this point almost impassable Since early spring there has been no walk for about a hundred feet on the south side, and only within a few weeks has the yawning space over the creek been railed in, and now the construction of the new bridge will keep the street in confusion, the rest of the year in all probability. The iron work is to be procured from the old country, the plans being sent over and the different parts constructed from them. So that if the steamer were to be wrecked when bringing the iron for our bridge over, the delay would be very great. The carelessness of the authorities is unaccountable. By their neglect there can hardly be a question that Mr. Halpin, who has had practically no access to his business premises for nearly a year, has the material for an action for damages that will lie. Even now, with the old bridge nearly torn away, and the roadway narrowed down to about one-eight of the width of the street, it is not thought worth while to hang a lantern as a danger signal at this almost impassable spot.

Proclamation,

In opening out for the 24th fall and winter season, it is not without rememberance of the early struggles and hard toil the business had to encounter then, when Peterborough, with a small population, had less means than now. A trade of not exact necessity, is placed in diverse times in a position of secondary consideration. The trade with the farming community then was almost, in a certain sense worthless, as such articles a they had to offer for pay (wood being the chief article) would not redeem promissory notes. But perseverance and manufacturing a superior article found, in time, acknowledgment, not only in Peterborough and surrounding country, but far and wide over the whole Dominion. The large trade in raw furs collected in the back country, where I have always met with a keen competition in succession from Toronto buyers, Hudson Bay agents, and hosts of others (all finding it unprofitable to compete against an experienced manufacturer), has left, under such circumstances, scanty profits. But the determination to buy the raw material direct from the trappers has had the advantages in selecting the cuoicest skins for manufacturing to fill orders, which otherwise I could not have done. The second advantage is the acquaintance and connections I had with fur houses in Lepizig, Germany, before I came to this country, shipping the bulk of the raw furs for exchange of European furs, and so to obtain Persian, Russian and Grey Lamb, Astrachan, Bokharen, squirrel and cony from the first market. The increasing trade has made it necessary of remodelling my premises, and now I can show, not only superior premises, but a stock of selected fur goods which no house in Montreal or Toronto can hoast of any better; the prices will be found much lower than such goods are offeredat incities. Thanking the public for past favors, my efforts will be, as in the past, to give a superior article at the lowest possible price.

GOLDEN LION GALA DAYS.

Fair, VanEvery & Co.'s Fall Opening.

The fall opening of this firm took place this week, beginning on Tuesday, and the large number of visitors was richly rewarded for their inspection. The display of an immense stock started at the very doors, from which on each side were exposed elaborate and fine samples of general dry goods. The staircase leading to the second story was flanked, step by step, with a grand variety of ulsterings, while the rails were swathed with beautiful specimens of colored damask. At the head of the landing is the mantle and cloak rooms. Here, lay figures, completely attired, displayed not only the mantles and other goods, but also fine samples of the dressmaking department. Here were shown a fine stock of dolmans, mantles, pelisses, ulsters, etc., in every conceivable variety of beauty of material, pattern and decoration. The stock of materials consists of a complete line of seallettes, ottoman cords, beautiful broaded matelasse curls, llama cloths and beavers. Scotch ulsterings in great variety were shown, as well as toboggan suitings, etc., etc., together with a full line of suitable trimmings. These goods are all of first-class quality and style, being the direct importations of the firm. This department is in charge of Miss S. Johnson, a veritable artist in her line, whose obliging disposition, anxiety to meet the wants of her customers, the elegance of work and accuracy of fit, tend to make her and her department exceedingly popular.

Opposite are the millinery rooms. The walls of the wide passages flanking the staircase well were covered with rich displays of millinery trimming materials, fine lace fichus and the finer and more delicate articles of ladies' apparel. A splendid floral cross at the head of the staircase showed great skill in ornamentation, and guaranteed the taste in trimming which is a specialty of the millinery department of this firm. A lace screen in front of an alcove was gorgeous with gay colored studding of birds, plumes, ornaments, etc. The alcove itself contained a case of mourning goods of every description, etc., etc. The hats and bonnets were conspicuous for variety and beauty of trimming. A Lorraine shape with slashed front in garnet velvet, with trimming of the same material, faced with gold braid and with plumes of a lighter shade, was greatly admired. A Volante shape in black velvet, with black plumes and a mass of gold leaves for trimming was very attractive. A Fenella and Pamela, too beautiful for description, elicited great praise. Those mentioned only serve to hint at the immense variety of beautiful hats and bonnets on display. This department is in charge of Miss Choquette, and a capable, skilful and courteous staff of assistants, and is well worth visiting; no description, however elaborate, can give as good an idea as half an hour's inspection.

Saved Army Amenities.

General Lindsay, of the Saved Army, who originated the work in Peterborough, was in town this week looking after the interests of the general campaign. At the services held on Wednesday evening, he was presented by Mr. Joseph McClelland, secretary of the Peterborough station, with a magnificent Bible, with the following inscription: "Presented by the Peterborough Station to General H. P. Lindsay." An address was at the same time presented. His remarks in reply were touchingly appropriate. He was deeply moved by the recognition of his services, and the evidence of his popularity amongst his coworkers.

Our New Story.

This week brings the conclusion in THE EXAMINER, of the beautiful story, "Erica's Sacrifice." In the issue of Oct. 30th will appear the opening chapters of a charming new story, "Love for a Day." It will be found of thrilling interest. Now is the time to subscribe and secure the beginning of this delightful tale. THE EXAMINER from now till January, 1886, for only $1.00.

Changed Hands.

Mr. Joseph Primeau has purchased the barber shop lately carried on by Primeau Bros., and will in the future, as in the past, merit the patronage of the public by doing only the best work. Mr. John Primeau will continue to occupy his old chair.

A Serious Fall.

On Thursday last, Mr. Edg. Perry was working on a scaffold on a building on Water street being erected for Jas. Stevenson. By some mishap he fell off a scaffold, a distance of about 12 or 14 feet, his head striking a stone. He was picked up insensible, and removed to Dr. Halliday's surgery next door, and his injuries attended to. It was found that his left cheek bone was fractured, and that he was also suffering from concussion of the brain. His injuries are not, it seems, of a dangerous nature.

Brisk Business.

Mr. M. McFadden's furniture business seems to be booming. In addition to the usual large local trade, Mr. McFadden on Wednesday shipped a car-load of miscellaneous furniture to Brighton, showing that his goods are appreciated abroad as well as at home. He has also put in a fine bar for the Stewart House. The bar, which is placed on the west side of the room, is made with circular corner, of ash finished in oil, trimmed with ebonized wood, with turned pilasters of the same material. It is a fine piece of work and a credit to Mr. McFadden's establishment.

Oysters! Oysters!

As the fruit season is closing in, and cold frosty nights creeping along, I am offering as a substitute some very nice fresh oysters, both in tins and bulk, which will be found seasonable and refr-shing.

Oysters, like teas, may be bought at all prices according to the quality and freshness, and if mine should be found wanting when kept in a temperature down to thirty-five, what must others be, when exposed to the constant changes of the weather? I am receiving a very fine line of grapes, Delewares, Concords and Rodger's varieties, the finest production of outdoor grapes in Canada, direct from the gardens of R. R. Smith.

TWO WAYS To Win Trade!

There are two ways to win trade—as of old. One to deserve it and wait; the other to advertise—and get it. Not all who wait deserve it! not all who wait get it. But in our case publicity helps what ought to be helped. We've hitched our cart to the newspaper, and it is bound to go. Our local newspapers are enterprising, and we're part of the benefit of their success.

We're ready with the largest, and in every way the best stock, that we've ever packed in for the Fall and Winter trade.

It's divided in proper proportion into goods for Men's, Youths, and Boys wear, for Ladies', Misses and Girls garniture.

Our whole stock is well selected, and has many admirable features—features that add to the beauty and use of the goods, without adding to their cost.

If you're a masculine, let us make your clothing; you'll find that our styles are faultlessly correct, our Tweeds and Cloths, reliable in quality; our work is perfect in fit and excellent in finish.

To these we add other points, all esteemed by admirers of Good Clothing.

Dress Goods.

About our Dress Goods Stock, we wish to say in general that nothing can at all approach the superb exhibition of these goods, as we display them. It's not only the largest to which we've ever called your attention but is in range of colors and qualities, the most perfect, not one of the many classes of goods in public favour being wanting to complete our list.

Whatever we do we mean to do well, we try to do well. If our functions are only that of tradesmen we mean to make it good by doing it well. Ours is the old homely rule: "do as you'd be done by," set up in general trade.

And our prices are as low as elsewhere—and lower in many lines.

FINE FARM FOR SALE.

That beautifully located Farm,

The West half of lot 26, in the 12th Concession of Otonabee.

Situated east of the old Cobourg Railway. The property comprises 88 acres more or less. The soil is excellent and well adapted to gardening purposes. Its situation is very desirable, it being only one mile from the market square, and commanding a fine view of the town of Peterborough. Since the property came into possession of its present proprietor, over $4,000 has been spent on its improvement. It is one of the best watered farms in Ontario, being supplied by a never-failing spring well, so situated as to provide ten feet head. From this are laid nearly 700 feet of iron piping. At a distance of 240 feet from the spring this pipe leads to a watering trough in the barn. A continuation of the pipe carries the overflow from this, 440 feet further to another watering trough into another field. From the latter the overflow passes into a tile drain on the road side, and thence away. This pipe is provided with two taps, by which the water supply to the stock may be regulated. This water supply makes the farm eminently fitted for grazing purposes; stock can be supplied with continual access to an unlimited supply of pure living water. Or for market gardening the facilities for irrigation would admit of setting dry seasons at defiance, this together with the proximity to a first class market (only one mile) makes this farm unequaled for this purpose.

For either a gentleman of leisure who wishes to devote his retirement to agricultural pursuits or for a pushing man who desires to make money, this farm for fertility of soil, water supply, beauty of situation and convenience to town, can have no superior.

TERMS: One thousand dollars to be paid down when deeds are handed over, the balance may remain on the property at 6 per cent interest for any term agreed upon.

A Bullet through His Breast.

John Johnston's Dead Body Found in the Woods.

In our last issue we noticed the mysterious disappearance of Mr. John Johnston, a resident of Peterborough, Weller street, who was employed in the lumber camp of Irwin & Co., in the Township of Ansturther, on the shores of Serpentine Lake. To the particulars then given, is to be added the solution of the mystery—of his sudden disappearance at least. On Tuesday, John Fraser, a fellow workman, came across the dead body of Johnston. A bullet hole in his left breast too plainly explained the cause of the poor man's absence from camp for about ten days. The body was at once boxed as decently as possible under the circumstances, brought to Peterborough, and taken to the residence of the father, Weller street. From the absence of indications that the deceased was shot accidentally, sufficient suspicion was aroused to warrant the calling of the coroner. Dr. Fife was notified, and empanelled a jury on Thursday, composed of the following gentlemen:—Messrs. John Baptie, foreman, John Buchanan, M. T. Butcher, J. T. Brydon, John Clarke, Frank Faren, A. Graham, W. McDowell, P. T. Moscrip, Wm. Ruth, R. McWhinnie and David Wallace.

John Fraser, the first witness examined, deposed that he was engaged, in company with the deceased, in Irwin's lumbering camp, getting out timber for a dam; that on Sunday morning, Oct. 5th, about eight o'clock, deceased and William Watt went to the head of Serpentine Lake to start a deer. The latter returned before reaching the destination, and took Douglass, camp foreman, in a canoe on the lake to watch for the deer. They returned to camp at twelve o'clock, having, while absent, shot a partridge with a shot gun they had with them. Deceased had neither gun nor fire arms of any kind with him. Douglass and O'Brien heard a shot in the direction of the head of the lake where deceased had gone. The deceased never returned to the camp. Diligent search on the following Tuesday and Sunday was unsuccessful. Witness went to work last Monday, and on Tuesday, went to finish a stick that had been begun. While going to another stick, witness came upon a body which he at once recognized as that of Johnston. The body was brought to town. It was found about 200 yards from the lake shore, and a rise in the land made it impossible that deceased could have been shot from the shore. Witness was not aware that Johnston had an enemy.

Dr. Kincaid, who had made a post mortem examination, deposed that there was a bullet hole in the right side of the chest of deceased. The bullet entered between the fourth and fifth ribs, passed through the auricles of the heart in front of the left lung, and passed out of the body through the left wall of the chest. As it left the chest it struck the left arm, passed under the skin to the outer side, where it was found. The wound made by the bullet, apparently one from a Winchester rifle, accounted for the death.

The coroner thought the case one on which it was desirable to get more light, and accordingly the inquest was adjourned till Thursday, (to-day) at the council chamber.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were illy adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc.

Peterborough's Electric Light

Its Great Success.

The citizens of Peterborough can congratulate themselves on having the cheapest, best, and, in every way, most satisfactory electric light on the continent. Since the 24th of May, the experiment, then first made, has passed from the tentative stage into the region of an established industrial enterprise. Beginning with very few paying lights, the company has now about fifty lights used by regular consumers, and, so far, the first complaint is yet to be made, whether the light is regarded with respect to quality of illuminations, regularity of supply, or price. The company, encouraged by the favorable reception of the light, has added another dynamo to the first placed, and two more have been ordered, are on the way, and are daily expected. The temporary premises selected for the experiment, have proved too small for the increased machinery made necessary by the demand for the light. The two dynamo machines have been removed to in the Pulp Works building, where there is power for driving a dozen dynamos, if necessary. The two machines at present used, require about forty horse power to drive them at 900 revolutions each per minute, the average speed required. The machinery is so arranged, in relation to the dynamos and the turbines, that either of the three immense turbines available, can be used to drive the two machines, or two to drive one. To make derangement or interruption of the supply of electricity to the lamps, virtually impossible, in addition to the practically double set of machinery, a switch-board is introduced. There are two complete circuits established. By using this switch, one or all the machines can instantly be turned on or detached from one or all the circuits, or both or all the circuits can be attached to or insolated from one or all the machines. An apparatus is to be immediately put up for the purpose of testing the circuits during the day. Thus consumers will see that not only is there ample power for producing a current powerful enough to give a strong light, but that every precaution is used, and every appliance made available, to render any delay or cessation in the supply of the electricity, and consequently of the lights. In regard to the lamps, it may be mentioned that the lamps in use here, are the only ones that admit of the consumer controlling the light by the use of a key, and this company the only one that allows consumers such a privilege—one of great convenience, and, where parties furnish their own carbons, one of some economical importance.

PERMANENT QUARTERS,

The two new machines to be put in at once will increase the capacity of the electric station to about 90 lamps, and as the electric light is winning its way by its merit, most of the lights now in use having been taken almost without solicitation, it is probable that the full capacity of the station will soon be called into requisition.

A WORD AS TO PRICE.

Though the price of the light in Peterboro' is less than half of what it is in any other town or city, the popular idea seems to be, that it is cheaply produced, and that an immense profit is made. This is not so apparent when it is stated that the present company has already been to an expense of $20,000 for its present plant and machinery, and that three skilled attendants are employed by day, and two at least by night.

The Peterborough electric light system is in charge of Mr. F. W. Mount, an experienced and capable mechanist and electrician. A company is lighting the city of Ottawa and furnishes lights at 21 cents each, but it must be recollected that the city furnishes the water power. If the company had to supply its own water power, the price per light would have been 38 cents per light, giving still a larger advantage in the score of cheapness to Peterborough lights.

ANOTHER DYNAMO.

Since the above was in type one of the new dynamos alluded to as having been ordered, has been placed in position and is in operation. The other is on the way.

Turnbull's customers for the past year have been testing that choice Velveteen which he keeps, and pronounce it perfectly fast pile. This is the only sure way of testing an article. A full range of shades just received.

CAVAN.

(From our own Correspondent.)

The missionary services on the Cavan circuit of the Methodist church have been completed. The eminent divine, the Rev. Mr. Tovell of George street Methodist church, Peterborough, preached a missionary sermon at each of the appointments. His sermons, which were the acme of eloquence, fraught with instruction and reasons for giving to the missionary cause, were received with the highest appreciation by each congregation, which responded with liberal donations.

Mr. R. C. Dundas, of Springville, the celebrated farmer and stock breeder, has been successful at the Lindsay, Port Hope and Millbrook exhibitions, in taking a large number of first and second prizes.

Mr. Thos. McIndoo, who for some weeks has been laid up with a sprained ankle, is mending slowly, but is not able to be out yet.

We regret to announce the death of Mr. George A. Hutchison, of Cavanville, who died after about two week's sickness. Deceased took a bilious attack during a visit at the Toronto exhibition, which ended in a bilious fever, the effects of which caused his death on Tuesday the 14th inst. His remains were interred at in the Cavan churchyard. His funeral took place last Thursday and was conducted with military honors, and special respect shown by his brethern, the L. O. L. of Millbrook. His relatives have the extreme sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. T. C. Wells, Chemist and Druggist, Port Colborne, Ont., writes: "Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure sells well, and gives the best of satisfaction for all diseases of the blood." It never fails to root out all diseases from the system, cures Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, etc., purifies the blood, and will make you look the picture of health and happiness.

An elastic step, buoyant spirits, and clear complexions, are among the many desirable results of pure blood. The possessor of healthy blood has his faculties at command, and enjoys a clear and quick perception, which is impossible when the blood is heavy and sluggish with impurities. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best blood purifier and vitalizer known.

Apsley Agricultural Exhibition.

The twelfth annual exhibition of the Burleigh and United Townships Agricultural Society, held at Apsley on the 15th instant, was a decided success, there being nearly one hundred entries more than in former years. All the classes were nearly filled up. The weather was fine, and quite a number of strangers from Peterborough, Lakefield, Warsaw, Bobcaygeon, Haliburton and Wallaston visited our romantic little village and appeared to be surprised as well as delighted at the produce of our back townships. The following is the KEENE.

MITE MEEEING.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, in connection with the Presbyterian Church here, intend holding a mite meeting at the residence of Mr. Wm Millar, Otonabee, on Tuesday evening the 4th Nov. The ladies of the Society will spare no pains to make the meeting an enjoyable one, and we trust they will be favored with the patronage this good cause so justly merits. A very enjoyable time was spent at a meeting recently held at the Presbyterian Manse in the village.

GOOD TEMPLARS.

The Good Templars Lodge at Lang is we are happy to state, in a prosperous condition and has a membership of some 100 pledged foes to strong drink. The lodge door will be open to the public on Wednesday evening the 29th inst. and a first class entertainment held. Long may the Temple flourish. Why could not a temperance lodge be organized at Keene? Surely such an institution is needed badly enough, and we would ask our temperance friends in this place to consider the matter at once and let us hear a favorable report from them.

LOOKING UP.

Several new buildings are being erected here this season and a number of old ones undergoing a thorough repairing. The new Presbyterian church is a fine structure and when complet d will prove an ornament to the village and reflect credit on our Presbyterian friends. Keene is decidedly looking up.

PERSONALS.

Rev Mr. Carmichael of Norwood occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian church here last Friday morning.

Dr. McCrae and family have removed to this village again.

Dr. Shaw has opened out the Victoria Drug Store with a full stock of drugs, patent Medicines, Fancy Goods, Tobaccoes, etc.

LINDSAY CENTRAL EXHIBITION.

We have received the following resolutions for publication. They are practically an answer to "Hayseed's" letter in our last issue, and show that the directors of the Central are determined to see justice done, and that wrongful entries of stock, whether intentional or otherwise, will not be tolerated:

To The Editor of THE EXAMINER.

Dear Sir,

Please find resolution of protest ordered by the Board to be sent to your paper for publication.

A meeting of directors of the Lindsay Central Exhibition was held in the secretary's office on the grounds, Lindsay, 3rd of October. A full attendance of members present. Protest of John Cullis and Thos. Graham against award of 2nd prize to bull calf, class 5, sec. 4, entry 1, owned by R. Eagleson, it being only a grade. It being proven to the satisfaction of the board that the dam of calf in question is not thoroughbred as represented, ordered that the protest be sustained, and that the award of the 2nd prize be left to the judges. Carried.

Protest of Thomas Graham against award of 1st prize to Durham bull calf, on grounds of age. Moved by James Deacon, seconded by W. M. Robson, resolved that the proof of Thomas Graham in reference to 1st prize bull calf, Durham, on grounds of age, be sustained until the owner shall have complied with rule No. 17 of the society, and give satisfaction to the society upon which being presented to the satisfaction of the president, the secretary and treasurer, shall pay the prizes awarded, and the judges are hereby empowered to amend the award accordingly.—Carried.

A meeting of the directors was held in the council chambers, Lindsay, on Saturday, 18th of October, 1884. A full attendance of members was present, when the following resolution was carried:

Moved by Col. Deacon, seconded by W. M. Robson, that while as a general rule the board takes no notice of anonymous communications, yet for the satisfaction of those who are not conversant with the subject matter of a letter, over the signature "Hay Seed," published in the issue of the Peterborough EXAMINER, it is hereby resolved that the secretary furnish copies of the resolutions of the board passed on account of protests to the local papers, and to the Peterborough EXAMINER, for general information.—Carried.

JAMES KEITH, Secretary.

REPLY TO "HAY SEED'S" INFAMOUS CHARGES.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I heartily thank you for your kindness in sending me a copy of your last issue, as otherwise "Hay Seed's" letter might not have come under my notice, and the infamous charges with which he winds up his letter, would go unchallenged.

I must also thank "Hay Seed" for the complimentary tone in which he begins, and only wish, for his own sake, that he had finished as truthful as he began. Besides he gives an opportunity of making known to your readers that the grade cattle here are in his estimation, equal to the pure-breds in the east. I will take up his charges in succession, and as he has singled me out apart from my partner, Mr. Grant, I will reply on the same ground as much as possible.

Charge 1st.—I was not present on Thursday when the stock was judged, to give any "details of information," or for any one to observe whether my "memory was misty" or not. I left Lindsay for home on Wednesday evening, and did not return until Friday at 10 o'clock a.m. So much for charge No. 1, and I will now leave it with your readers to judge who has the "misty memory."

Charge No. 2.—Regarding the "astounding mistake" made by entering a three year old bull in the two year old class, I have only to say a MISTAKE happened, but (as far as laid in my power) was rectified before any judging took place. My explanation is this: Our bull, Macduff, was shown both at Toronto and Ottawa, as a two year old, and properly so, as he was not three years old until Sept. 23rd, 1884. Making the most of our entries for Lindsay from Ottawa, and not having a prize list to inform us whether the rule, to calculate the ages of animals up to Sept. 1st, as at the large fairs, was in force there, we entered our bull as usual. However, upon arriving at Lindsay we discovered our mistake, and re-entered him in the aged class, and in giving the ticket to one of our stock attendants, called his attention to the change, and instructed him to act accordingly. There certainly was a "mistake" in showing the bull, which I made known on Friday to the directors and judges present, and produced a duplicate ticket from the Secretary to show that he was re-entered in the proper class, as per rule.

Charge No. 3.—As to my showing yearlings in the calves class, I can assure "Hay Seed" that if he comes to my place I will show him in less time than it takes me to write it, "figures kept with such accuracy and carefulness," as to convince him that the oldest calf of mine exhibited at Lindsay was neither more nor less than eleven months and two days old.

Charge No. 4.—I also promise to show him in like manner, that the cattle shown by us in the grade class were grades. In fact our first prize cow has only the second cross, and her heifer calf was also the winner of the red ticket. Let "Hay Seed" accept my invitation, and if I do not make good my promises, I will pay his expenses, and treat him well besides.

When he writes of my "giving elaborate details to a "Globe reporter," it is on par with his other false statements, as I gave no information whatever to any reporter regarding my farm. I do not wonder that your correspondent signed himself "Hay Seed," as it shows that he feels himself to be as insignificant as a hay seed, and his common sense is about equal when he rushes into print, displaying at once his ignorance and meanness of soul by making charges from hearsay, which he is not able to substantiate, and like a man in an ambush, he hides under an assumed name, and fires his rotten shot, but in this case the game is invulerable.

When he writes of "fools" he only shows that they are not all dead yet. I will only add that if he does not display more wisdom generally than when advising the directors of the Lindsay Central, and no more regard for truth than in penning his malicious epistle, it is no wonder that he styles himself "Hay Seed," as that is so small as to be never noticed, unless it drops into the eye, when it becomes a "thing out of place," or in another words, dirt.

Again thanking you for your courtesy,
I remain, truly yours,
J. CAMPBELL.

THE ART INTERCHANGE

of October 9 contains a very beautiful decorative design in color, by Miss Dora Wheeler, for hand-screen. It shows a winged female seated on grass covered ground. The coloring is very delicate and refined, and the design is as unique as it is charming. The same issue also contains an engraving of Henner's "Magdalene," a dainty design of figures for fan decoration; a beautiful landscape; corsopais design for Byzantine vase; half-a-dozen butter plate designs; an arrangement of grasses and flowers for ornamenting ice cream dish, and nasturtium decoration for plate. The text includes novelties in picture frames, curtains, glassware, chairs, pottery and lamp vases. An interesting article on "Decorative Fancy Among College Students," describes some of the beautifully furnished apartments of Harvard College. In the Notes and Queries is supplied information concerning the best method for removing varnish from pictures; how to produce in oil colors the transparent green of waves; coloring for plaster, and much else that is useful to amateurs. Sample copies with colored study, 15 cents.

Words of Warning and Comfort.

"If you are suffering from poor health or
'languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer
'if you are simply ailing, or if you feel
'weak and dispirited,
'without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters
'will surely cure you.

If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor, weakened by the strain of your every-day duties, or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the
'farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel
'that your system needs cleansing, toning, or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old,
'blood thin and impure, pulse
'feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties
'waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to 'give you new life, health, and vigor."

If you are costive, or dyspeptic or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or a resident of, a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Intermittent Fevers by the use of Hop Bitters

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you a fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe.

ANOTHER RAILWAY.

A telegram from Toronto to the Ottawa Sun says:—Arrangements are being made here to push to completion without delay the railway known as the Irondale, Bancroft and Ottawa Railway, which will run to Ottawa from a point at the terminus of the old Nipising railway through the following counties: Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough, Hastings, Addington, Frontenac and Renfrew. This road was entered in 1880 under the name of the Nipissing Railway extension. The enterprise is projected by Toronto and New York capitalists.

Hereditary Scrofula.

Are you aware that in your blood the taint of scrofula has a prominent place? This is true of every one. It is liable at any time on the slightest provocation, to develop itself in some insidious disease. Consumption and many other diseases are outgrowths of this impurity of the blood, Shaker Blood Syrup has a wonderful power over all scrofulous troubles, as the remarkable testimonials we have received unmistakably prove.

We refer by permission to Mrs. P. Elliott, Hanover, Maine, who was cured by Shaker Blood Syrup of 11 Scrofula sores, the severity of which confined her to the house for two years. Six months previous to taking Shaker Blood Syrup, she could not get about her room without crutches. Her friend says I did not think it possible for her to live many months, she was reduced to a mere skeleton. Here cure is hardly less than a miracle. There is no doubt that in Shaker Blood Syrup, we have the most remarkable medicine that has ever been produced, and a positive cure for Syphilis and Scrofula in their numerous forms.

CAUGHT UNAWARES.

The other day a visitor surprised a distinguished professor, saying to his baby: "Oh-ny, no-ny, e mussy tick his little footsy tootsies." Just then he caught sight of his visitor, blushed and muttered: "No, no, you must not expose your pedal extremities by extending them beyond the protecting covering of the blanket, or you will lay your system open to attacks of catarrhal affection."

These are Solid Facts.

The best blood purifier and system regulator ever placed within the reach of suffering humanity, truly is Electric Bitters. Inactivity of the Liver, Biliousness, Jaundice, Constipation, Weak Kidneys, or any disease of the urinary organs, or whoever requires an appetiser, tonic or mild stimulant, will always find Electric Bitters the best and only certain cure known. They act surely and quickly, every bottle guaranteed to give entire satisfaction or money refunded. Sold at fifty cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

NEEDED ANYWHERE.

They had been quarrelling about his next summer's clothes. She wanted him to have his light clothes cleaned up for 1885, and he wanted a heavier suit. "What's the use of fighting about this?" he said finally. "I may be in the cemetery before next summer." "I think," she replied, "you will need your summer clothes wherever you may be."

QUEEN vs. PURCELL.—The prisoner, Thos. Purcell, was brought up for sentence for having committed rape. The sentence of the Court was confinement for seven years in the Penitentiary.

CIVIL BUSINESS.

COCHRANE vs. DUMBLE et al, was an action brought to recover damages on account of wrongful seizure of the goods and chattels of plaintiff. The defendants claimed that the plaintiff was insolvent and gave his consent to the seizure, which he denied. Verdict for plaintiff.

QUEEN vs. MIMMS AND CLEGG.—The charge was manslaughter, the killing of Elizabeth Reid on the Lakefield branch of the G.T.R., on the 25th of last February. The accused were driver and fireman of the engine which ran into a sleigh in which was Miss Reid, who was killed by the collision. The main facts were not disputed, but witnesses deposed that neither the engine bell was rung nor the whistle blown. Others testified positively to the blowing of the whistle on the occasion. The jury exonerated the accused by returning a verdict of not guilty. Mr. S. B. Osler and Mr. Stewart defended the accused.

COWITT vs. O'CONNOR.—This was an action for damages for assault with intent to carnally know, brought by Mary Cowitt, wife of Joseph Cowitt, Englishtown, against John O'Connor. The damages claimed were $1,000. Verdict for plaintiff and $600. Mr. Sawers and Mr. Blackstock for plaintiff: Messrs. Dumble & Henry for defendant.

HUMPHRIES vs. BRECKENRIDGE.—An action of slander. Withdrawal of, and apology for the language complained, of led to the withdrawal of the suit, each party paying his own costs. Messrs. Dumble & Henry for plaintiff; Mr. E. H. D. Hall for defendant.

HALL MANUFACTURING CO. vs. T. G. HAZLITT (DICKSON ESTATE.)—Action brought to recover four Leffell turbine water wheels or their price. Usborne & Co. erected the pulp works, purchasing the water wheels from the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, Oshawa. The lease of the premises to Usborne & Co. from the Dickson estate, contained a clause providing that in case the company failed to carry out their undertaking, the mill and fixtures should become the property of the estate. The company failed and the property passed into the hands of the estate. The Joseph Hall Company brings suit to recover the wheels or their price, claiming that Usborne & Co. did not pay for them, though the latter's notes given for the wheels were discounted at the Dominion Bank. Defendents claim the wheels as fixtures, and therefore covered by the conditions of the lease to Usborne & Co. The case was not concluded, his Lordship, who tried it without a jury, hearing the evidence and the arguments of defendants' counsel. The plaintiff's counsel began his argument, but the matter was postponed, the argument to be completed at Osgoode Hall. Messrs. McGee & Jones for plaintiffs; Messrs. Poussette & Roger and B. B. Osler, Q.C., for defendant.

COBOURG.

The pier in the harbor, to be used as a breakwater, was finished on Wednesday last, at a cost of $23,000. It is 300 feet long by 30 feet wide.

ASPHODEL.

Mr. Patrick Doherty, of this township, has grown potatoes this year, the largest of which weighs four pounds, and the next, three and half pounds.

HASTINGS.

Hastings has the electric light, and the Star office is to be illuminated with it.

The old woollen mills are to be started again. The necessary repairs are being made.

CAMPBELLFORD.

The Bible Christian Church is to be sold by auction.

J. W. Johnston's stone dwelling, adjacent to the village, was burned on Friday last. Partly insured.

A little boy, while playing with a dynamite cartridge, had his hand blown in pieces by the explosion of it.

PORT HOPE

Silas Winters, a young man employed in the Midland Railway yard, here, had his foot so badly crushed while loading car wheels that he may be crippled for life.

Mr. W. J. Whiley, for several years station agent at Port Hope, has been promoted to a position at Point St. Charles, in the same employ.

William Stafford, the tragedian, would not play at Port Hope because there was no stage accommodation.

SEVEN DAYS.

More than half a century ago a good New Hampshire deacon by the name of Day, had seven children—six daughters and one son. They were known as his six weak Days and his only son Day.

The face wears a yellowish hue, pimples appear upon it, sick headaches, vertigo, morning nausea, and pains in back, side and shoulder blade, are experienced when bile enters the system and poisons the blood. Expel it from the circulation, and direct it into its natural channel, the bowels, with Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Great Blood Purifier, which has widely superseded mineral drugs having a dangerous reaction. Indigestion, Constipation, Impurity of the blood, and Kidney Complaints are entirely overcome by its use.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other compounds are so infallible in their effects as those afflicting the throat and lungs; none so tried with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a chill, or carelessness exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal disease. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all unconditional delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and effected me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 66 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

Mrs. EMMA GURNEY."

149 West 125th St., New York, May 30, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

JOSEPH WALDEN."

Dyhalle, Miss., April 8, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.

E. BRANDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 20, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

A SHARP LESSON.

"I must put a stop to this sort of thing!" said Mr. McElroy. "If I don't, I shall certainly come to the workhouse; "I haven't saved money all these years to ruin it down on people's heads as if it was hail-stone!"

John McElroy was a man who had, in Yorkshire phraseology, "saved a power o' brass." Being a great deal too economical to marry, he had invited his lame nephew, Matthew Rawdon, to come with his family and keep house in the old red homestead; and thereafter he took credit to himself for supporting all the Rawdons, although Matthew toiled diligently at his trade of shoemaking, and James, the eldest son, managed the farm with skill and success, while Mrs. Rawdon and her two daughters, Lucy and Deborah, were the model dairy-women and best managers of the vicinity.

In an evil hour Matthew had borrowed a hundred pounds of Uncle John, to pay off an old debt that hung round his neck like a millstone.

He had kept up the interest pretty regularly, but it would have been about as easy for him to pay off the national debt as to discharge his obligation, and in this way Uncle McElroy contrived to keep him ground down into the very dust.

Had it not been for this debt the Rawdon family would have crept out from under the harrow of Uncle John's tongue and temper long ago.

"It don't seem as if we could stand it," said Mrs. Rawdon, plaintively.

"I don't care how much he scolds me," said Deborah, "but he has no business to tyrannise so dreadfully over poor mother."

"If I could only raise money enough to take a quarter's singing lessons, I could earn twenty pounds a year in the church choir," said Lucy.

The housekeeping book was particularly aggravating that morning; and Mrs. Rawdon had shed a few quiet tears before the interview was over.

"I hate whining women!" said Mr. McElroy; "and I hate extravagant ones!"

"I try to do the best I can," said poor Mrs. Rawdon.

And when the book was flung wrathfully on the table, and Mr. McElroy had dismissed his nephew's wife, he sat thinking.

"I'll do it!" he said aloud. "I've had it in my mind for some time. I'll send these people about their business. I'll put an end to these everlasting impositions of theirs. They only care for me just the length of my purse. They hate me, every one of 'em. I can see through 'em, dull as they think me."

As he sat there, a little lad came to the door, with a yellow envelope in his hand.

"A telegram for you," said he. "A shilling to pay, please."

"I wonder who it can be from?" McElroy said.

It was very brief. It said—

"Stocks have fallen. Your money is all gone. Sorry, but could not stand against market. "H. RAVEN, & Co."

H. Raven & Co. Yes, that was the name of the stockbroking firm to whose care his diligently-hoarded fortune had been consigned. He read the brief dispatch over and over again, as if it were impossible to comprehend its full meaning.

"I don't understand," he repeated to himself—"I don't understand. I thought those stocks were safe enough. I only believed what those scoundrels told me themselves. Stocks fallen. My money all gone. Oh, what will become of me now?"

His head fell forward on his folded arms on the window-sill; he uttered a groan which seemed to come from the very depths of his heart.

"I am a poor man!" he faltered. "As poor as old Jim Watson, the clock-mender; as poor as Matthew himself. The savings of years have all gone at once; and I am a poor man!"

"Uncle McElroy, don't mind it," said the cheerful voice of Matthew, when at last he had mustered courage to tell his troubles, and sat with his head supported on his hand at the table, with a face drawn and pinched as if he had just recovered from a long sickness. "I am doing well at my trade just now, and you shall never feel the loss of your money while I can handle an awl or draw a thread."

"Never feel the loss of my money!" vaguely repeated McElroy. "The man talks like a fool."

But, nevertheless, there was a grain of comfort in the words.

"And, after all, Uncle John," consolingly whispered Mrs. Rawdon, "money isn't everything. You'll see how nicely we shall contrive to live. I'll take a boarder or two, if you don't object, this summer. Your comfort shall not be interfered with in the least degree; and we may even manage to save a little at the year's end."

The tears came into Mr. McElroy's dim, blue eyes.

"You always did have a good heart, Sarah," said he; "but I wonder how you can have any patience left with me, after the times I've scolded you for half a pound extra of coffee, or a nutmeg!"

"And I am going to take in dressmaking!" declared Deborah. "Oh you'll see, Uncle John—you will live like a gentleman. You needn't think that we have lived on your generosity all these years, not to try and return it now."

"I! Generosity!" said Uncle John, hardly certain whether the words were in serious earnest.

But, no, there was no covert light of sarcasm in Deborah's bright, brown eyes as she bent caressingly over him. It was real love, real gratitude, that sparkled there.

And Lucy brought him a letter.

"It is from Mr. Grover, uncle," said she. "He offers to give me singing lessons for nothing, if I will help with the Sunday-school music; and then, pretty soon, I shall be able to earn money for you, too. "Dear uncle," with tears in her bright eyes, "we have all loved you, only we didn't dare to tell you how much. If—if you would only let me kiss you, Uncle John!"

The old man clasped her in his arms with tears streaming down his wrinkled cheeks.

"I don't care for the money," he faltered. "Let the money go, if you will only love me like this. I never was happier in my life! I know now what that feeling is that has been chilling and freezing me all my life. It was my heart starving to death! Yes, yes, we'll begin the world over again, children—you and I. We'll begin to enjoy ourselves at last."

They were sitting talking in the purple dusk of the summer evening, when there came a knock at the door. It was the little telegraph lad, breathless with haste.

"I've made a mistake," said he. "I've left the dispatch at the wrong place. Please to give me back the envelope!"

The family all looked at each other as the boy rushed down the road with his freight of evil tidings for someone else.

"And my money is all safe," said Mr. McElroy, with a long breath—"all safe. It seems like a miracle, don't it? or a lesson sent direct from heaven to try us. Well, it won't be thrown away on me. Matthew," fumbling in his pocket-book, "here's your note. I make you a present of it."

He tore it in two as he spoke.

"Deborah shall have her new dress just as quick as she and the milliner can settle matters between them," he continued. "Lucy shall take singing lessons, and I'll buy an organ for her. And Sarah shall have a girl to lighten up the farm-work a little. Hush! don't say a word, one of you. That money has come back to me, as if through a miracle, and I mean to enjoy it now."

For Mr. McElroy had learned more lessons than one in the course of the last twenty-four hours.

Balky Cook Stoves.

"Julia" writes, saying she has a new range in the kitchen that vexes her badly, because it won't draw, and asks what she can do with it. We wrote back and told her that judging from the fact that it was in the kitchen we inferred that it was a short range, and advised her to either go out of the business altogether or else put up a Creedmoor range of 1,000 or 1,500 yards. If she erected a range of this kind we told her, and then advertised liberally and offered a lot of $100 medals, costing 20 cents a dozen, as prizes, and hired an assortment of ancient colonels and brigadier-generals to loaf around the premises in full uniform, we thought it would be apt to draw and pay her for the outlay, provided she run it in connection with a first-class bar-room. Then she wrote back and told us that her range had no target and that her husband was a policeman who was all the officer she needed, and informed us she referred to a new $60 cook-stove which she had just purchased, and which she could not induce to draw by any means. We board in a bean restaurant at the South end ourselves, and are not troubled with balky cook-stoves. Before coming to Boston we drove a mule team, and whenever they threw up their heads and refused to draw we got some shavings and kindling-wood and built a fire under them. It worked to perfection every time. It is understood that cook-stoves have been made to draw by the same method. It would be a good plan to try this scheme before swapping the stove away with the junk man for two tin dippers and a corn popper.—Boston Globe.

A Journey To the Sun.

As to the distance of ninety-three million miles, a cannon-ball would travel it in about fifteen years. It may help us to remember that at the speed attained by the Limited Express on our railroads a train which had left the sun for the earth when the Mayflower sailed from Delfhaven with the Pilgrim Fathers, and which ran at that rate day and night, would in 1884 still be a journey of some years away from its terrestrial station. The fare, at the customary rates, it may be remarked, would be rather over two million five hundred thousand dollars, so that it is clear that we should need both money and leisure for the journey.

Perhaps the most striking illustration of the sun's distance is given by expressing it in terms of what the physiologists would call velocity of nerve transmission. It has been found that sensation is not absolutely instantaneous, but that it occupies a very minute time in traveling along the nerves; so that if a child puts its finger into the candle, there is a certain almost inconceivably small space of time, say the one-hundredth of a second, before he feels the heat. In case, then, a child's arm were long enough to touch the sun, it can be calculated from this known rate of transmission that the infant would have to live to be a man of over a hundred before it knew that its fingers were burned.—Prof. S. P. Langley, in the September Century.

A Wonderful Canyon.

"Did you ever notice what a great whispering gallery the Grand Canon of the Colorado is?" asked Judge Harrison this morning.

"Wonderful," said Judge Kennedy, as he pinced his feet gently upon the table, and transferred a quid from his left to his right cheek.

"I was through there some weeks ago," resumed the Justice, "and we made some experiments. One of the party fired off a gun near the needles, and when we got to Cottonwood, more than 84 miles away, we found the Town Marshal still on the lookout for the fellow who had been shooting in the city limits."

"It's got a fine echo, too," said Kennedy. "I was down at Fort Mojava along in February, and just before I left I got into a little row with a fellow and said he was no part of a gentleman. I said it rather loudly and noticed that the remark hung around the neighborhood pretty well; but when we stopped for dinner twenty miles away, I'll own up I was surprised to find the rocks still calling out 'part of a gentleman' in the same tone of voice that I had used, except possibly it sounded a little more husky."

"It's a queer country," said the genial justice, "and, as you say, it's echo is wonderful. I was down there along in the fall, and when I went back last month half of the conversation we indulged in was still floating around promiscuously. I had made a verbal contract for a mining-claim that the other party had tried to go back on, but I clinched him by getting a stenographer to take down the echo word for word which had been said six months before, and then I got affidavits from those who knew him that the voice was Jim's, and had him where he couldn't squeal. Wonderful thing that canon!"—Leadville Democrat.

The street cars in the City of Mexico are managed on a novel system. A letter in the San Francisco Bulletin says: "The entire system of street cars throughout the Republic of Mexico is owned by one man, and he seems to run them to suit his own fancy rather than the convenience of the traveling public. Instead of one car at a time leaving the terminus and allowing an interval between the next one, three or four of the same route start off at once, and there will be no more for a half an hour. This allows time for the track to be utilized between the switches, and it is used for moving furniture, hauling dirt, transporting merchandise and conveying the dead to the cemeteries. The latter is certainly a great convenience, and does away entirely with the necessity for hearses and their accompanying hacks. The funeral car is appropriately fitted up to receive the coffin, and the mourners follow in passenger cars draped in blank."

Sliced cucumbers, an English paper states, if placed over freckles will in due time eradicate these annoying blemishes.

A HARMLESS LAWYER.

A young law student in the Southwest went to an old Judge to be examined for admission to the bar. After a desultory conversation the Judge said:

"Well, young fellow, hang out your shingle and go ahead."

"But you have not examined me."

"Never mind," was the brilliant reply; "if you don't know no law you won't get no practice, so you won't do no harm so how."

A Remarkable Escape.

Mrs. Mary A. Dailey, of Tunkhannock, Pa., was afflicted for six years with Asthma and Bronchitis, during which time the best physicians could give no relief. Her life was despaired of, until in last October she procured a Bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, when immediate relief was felt, and by continuing its use for a short time she was completely cured, gaining in flesh 50 lbs. in a few months.

ANOTHER WAY OF TELLING.

A paper across the lines says that we may look for an extraordinarily severe winter if there is any virtue in the old Indian hornet sign. All the nests that have been found this year in the woods are built on the ground. When they are suspended from trees and high up it is a sign of a mild winter. Old prognosticators say that they have never known this sign to fail.

Imitators vs. Substitutes.

Good points are worth remembering, for the reason that they assist us in avoiding many discomforts, and protect us against the cupidity of overreaching people. When you learn from friends that PUTNAM'S CORN EXTRACTOR is safe, prompt and effectual, don't allow druggists to palm of a worthless and perhaps poisonous substitute. His object is quite patent. He wishes to make the few cents difference between a good article and a cheap imitation or substitute. Putnam's Corn Extractor. Sold everywhere. Beware of dangerous imitations. Poison & Co, proprietors, Kingston.

IN A NUTSHELL.

A northern Texas editor complains that the number of marriages is ridiculously small when compared to the time squandered in buggy-riding. There is nothing strange in this. Young men have such a good time buggy-riding with their girls that they don't feel like stopping the fun short by getting married.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

Phosphates, very early in the history of medicine, have been esteemed of the greatest value in consumption and scrofula, diseases closely allied in their nature. They supply phosphorus to increase nerve force, and lime for the repair of ulceration or caries and necrosis of the joints and long bones; and in spinal troubles, especially rickets, they are of more service than all the other medicines in use. In WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA we have the most eligible form of these tissue elements yet originated.

AN EFFECTIVE MEANS.

A correspondent of a family magazine wants to know how to boil cabbage without the disagreeable odour of cooking, filling nearly every room in the house. The plan is very simple and effective. Place a piece of old rubber shoe on the stove when the cabbage is boiling. The aroma of the rubber kills the odour of the cabbage.

Insurance.

Insurance is a good thing whether applied to life or property. No less a blessing is anything that insures good health. Kidney-Wort does this. It is nature's great remedy. It is a mild but efficient cathartic, and acting at the same time on the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels, it relieves all these organs and enables them to perform their duties perfectly. It has wonderful power. See adv't.

THE HAINES "Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous encomiums by the leading artists of the World as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument give I can you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—EMMA GERSTER GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOFIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of.—CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI, ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCOA, EMIL AMBRA.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the severest tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 23, 1884.

"Political Economy."

Some admirer of Sir John Macdonald, with more enthusiasm than discretion, has had the bad taste to propose the establishment and endowment of a chair of political economy in Queen's College, Kingston, to be named after the crafty chieftain. The proposal is in bad taste for more reasons than one. It is absurdly ridiculous in the first place, to identify with this department of a college the name of a man whose life-long political career shows that he is entirely ignorant of its first principles. It is certain that if Sir John had had the slightest knowledge of the principles of political economy, he would have put some of them into practice during his forty years of public life. But the public records fail to show an instance. The expedients he has applied to the retention of power and the mis-government of the country have been those of political trickery, sharpness and intrigue. Does the infamous Loubie Shuffle make his name more suitable for permanent connection with a theological college? Does the Pacific Scandal entitle him to claim pre-eminence as a scholar in political economy? Does the political iniquity of the Gerrymander add elements worthy of respect to his character? Does the bitter and aggressive hostility of Sir John to Ontario, exhibited in his repeated attempts to rob it of civil rights and territory, strengthen his claim to association with an Ontario institution of learning that is a claimant, or has been at least, on Provincial funds? Do the unscrupulous trickery and cunning, the political unfaith that have marked with black the entire career of Sir John, entitled him to such an honor as the one suggested. One might as well propose at once a Bob Ingersoll chair of "Evidences of Christianity" for Trinity or Victoria College, or Queen's.

Queen's College is a denominational college, supported by the contributions of Reformers as well as Tories. Whatever pleasure the latter might take in prostituting an institution of learning devoted to the promotion of the glory of God, to the glorification of Sir John Macdonald, the former certainly will object, especially as the immediate design of the proposal is so exceedingly patent. It is proposed to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of Sir John's entrance into public life, by a grand demonstration. But a career as a "statesman" that only furnishes a record of low intrigues, base and cowardly trickery, utter disregard of political morality, will not per se furnish sufficient enthusiasm. So, it is thought, that if the staid members of the Presbyterian church with the high tone of morality that characterizes the denomination, could be brought to consent to connecting so sadly smirched a name with the chair of a divinity college, it might supply a testimonial of character, that would assist in promoting the eclat of the proposed glorification. If, in this sense, the matter is understood to be taken, no one, not directly concerned, need, except on the score of morality, object. But that it should be said that the institution of the "Sir John Macdonald chair of political economy" in Queen's College, is in honor and in recognition of an upright, honorable, honest, straightforward and single-minded career of one of the most corrupt and unscrupulous politicians that this country has ever produced, is carrying a gigantic joke a little too far.

"Who are the Flies on the Wheel."

Several years ago, when the Tory party was casting about for a scheme to help them to office, they took advantage of one of the periodical waves of financial depression then prevailing, and asserted that they had discovered a panacea. If the people would only consent to tax themselves, there would be an end to business depression, "hard times would come again, no more"—wages would be high and employment perpetual, usiness failures would be m de impossible farmers would get the highest prices for their produce, and a perpetual reign of prosperity would set in. Reformers replied to these seductive promises, that it was impossible to legislate away hard times; that no party, with honest intentions, would attempt to bring prosperity by act of Parliament. For this the Tories denounced them as mere "flies on the wheel," and sowed their spurious promises of prosperity with renewed vigour. The outcome was that the people were deluded into trying the N. P. nostrum as a panacea for all the ills of commercial depression. What has the result been? Is the country prosperous now? Business failures are more numerous under the N. P. than in any corresponding time in the history of the country. Is labour better rewarded and more abundant? Ask the operatives of factories, which after securing a so-called home market by a protective tariff, when prices go down, bank their fires stop their works, and let the laboring man look out for himself. Does protection prevent Canada being made a "slaughter market" for foreign goods? Of the nine leading articles of manufacture, the imports of 1883 exceeded those of the last revenue tariff year by nearly half a million dollars. Does the N. P. increase the price of the farmer's grain as the Tories promised it should do? The price is lower than it has been for years, and promises to be still lower. The foreign demand is light and daily growing less. For the week ending Oct. 16th, there was a large decrease in the shipments of wheat abroad, and for the same week the amount of wheat in passage to the old country was two millions five thousand bushels less than at the corresponding period last year. Who are the flies on the wheel now? Why has the N. P. allowed these thing to be? What answer have its advocates to make when the stern logic of fact "sweeps away their refuge of lies." They asserted that proper legislation could prevent hard times and all its accompanying calamities. We have had what they call "proper legislation," and, lo the result. If the N. P. party did not deliberately deceive the people, let them call Parliament together and by act of Parliament open the doors of the thousands of collapsed business places, call the laborer and artizan to work in the now silent factories, give him, instead of half time or three-quarter time, a full day's work, and that every day, bring up the farmer's prices for grain, and in fine, restore the prosperity that the people long for. But this they cannot do, this they will not do. What the N. P. has chiefly done has been to take millions of dollars unnecessarily from the people's pockets, and give a reckless Government the means to increase the annual expenditure nearly seven millions over what it was ten years ago. The question for the people to consider is this: Are the men who can so deliberately deceive the people, as they have done, who can so recklessly squander the hard earnings of the people—are these worthy of public confidence and trustworthy custodians of public interests?

The Scott Act.

In some respects the people of Canada are almost as impulsive as the French. Now the temperance people are riding high on the wave of temperance that seems to be sweeping over the land. Close on the Scott Act victory in Simcoe and Stanstead comes the triumph of the advocates of the Act in the county of Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry, where it was adopted by a majority of over 1,700. And on the same day the voting on the repeal of the Act in Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, resulted in the Act being sustained. Lennox county is preparing to submit the Act, and in Northumberland and Durham the theft of a large number of signatures to the required petition will temporarily delay the submission of the Act to the popular vote, and will tend to injure the chances of its opponents when the day for voting on it comes, as it certainly will do. Toronto is also considering the submission of the Act, and notes of preparation come from all quarters of the country. Recent events show that it is gaining in popularity, and though only a half measure of prohibition and in need of many amendments, its part and prospective successes indicate that temperance sentiment is rapidly spreading, or developing, as the case may be. Elections in respect to the Act have been ordered in the following places, to take place principally within the next fortnight:

Editorial Notes.

Hon. A. M. Ross, Provincial Treasurer, and Mr. M. C. Cameron, M. P. for West Huron, are holding meetings among their constitutents.

The London Advertiser makes this point respecting Mr. Bunting in the role of briber and conspirator:—"Mr. Bunting's refusal to testify before the Bribery Commission was perfectly justifiable. No man is bound to incriminate himself."

It is evident that Sir John went to England to give his Tory admirers a chance to make a hurrah when "Johnny comes marching home." His home-coming will give them an opportunity of drumming up an enthusiasm, which they could not otherwise arouse.

Protection and high tariffs have had a wonderfully stimulating effect on United States shipping—that is, in hastening its disappearance from the face of the seas. The only American Transatlantic steamship line has been transferred to British owners. No country can have both protection and shipping.

During his visit to Manitoba, Sir Hector Langevin heard no complaints of the oppressive nature of the Government policy. Neither could Sam Weller see his illustrious father when the latter made his interruption in the Bardell vs. Pickwick trial. While making the assertion Sam was industriously gazing at the sky-light. None is so blind as he that will not see.

The inhabitants of the disputed territory drew up an address for presentation to Hon. Mr. Mowat on the occasion of the Toronto demonstration, but it was delayed in the transmission. It has now come to hand, and shows that the people of Rat Portage and vicinity unite with the rest of the Province in rejoicing at the success attending Mr. Mowat's efforts for a settlement of the boundary dispute.

The Hon. Mr. Blake's meetings at various points in the eastern part of the Province have done good service in the cause of Reform. The reception tendered him everywhere by the eastern Reformers was of the most cordial character and must have served to greatly encourage him in his noble work of battling for good and economical Government. His able addresses were attentively listened to and are highly spoken of by the press of the section, and will, no doubt, bear good fruit at the proper time.

There are several changes in regard to teachers' certificates which the profession would do well to note. The old regulation, by which a teacher who taught three years prior to 1877 was exempted from attendance at a Normal School, has been repealed. Roman history is put off the programme for second and third class certificates, and that of Canada put in its place. There are to be no options hereafter. Candidates who passed the intermediate this year will be required to take the full course for third class next year.

Sometimes one is led to think that it is time that women were given the ballot and allowed to make and administer our laws. At the recent Welland assizes, a man, for simply entering a building, though nothing was actually stolen, got ten years in the penitentiary and another, for nearly beating his wife to death and inflicting injuries from which she will never recover, simply got ten days in jail. A jury of women, female lawyers, and a female Daniel come to judgment, would, we are sure, have seen that a different sort of justice was done.

There will be "fun" in the Conservative camp when Sir John takes it into his head to abandon politics, or receives an order to inspect the Canada Pacific Railway from a celestial point of view. The politicians are already quarrelling for his place, already taking steps to shuffle themselves into the chieftain's shoes. Sir Hector Langevin is highly wroth at his colleagues for favoring the appointment of Sir Leonard Tilley as acting Premier during Sir John's absence, thinking that his superior claims should be recognized.

The Dominion Government policy of the centralization of power seems to die hard. Recent decisions of the Imperial Privy Council have given it severe shocks, but it seems that British Columbia is considered a Province that can be bulldozed. Now the Dominion Government has applied to that Province Sir John's declaration that "not one pound of gold, iron or lead" shall British Columbia receive within the belt of Canada Pacific lands. The Province will strenuously resist, and though British Columbia has been highly favored at the expense of the other Provinces, we cannot help sympathising with her position in this matter.

The "millions of dollars" of foreign capital which Sir John promised would flow into Canada as the result of adopting the N. P., have been slow to flow. If the promises of the promoters of the taxationist policy had been fulfilled, we should not have had the spectacle of the town of Woodstock offering a bonus of $100,000, twenty-five acres of land, and eternal exemption from taxation, to the Grand Trunk Railway, if they would only establish in that town, the workshops recently burned down in London. According to N. P. assurances, the town should be so studded with tall chimneys that room for railway workshops, could not be found.

Alarmists, who are disturbed by indications of Russian designs on British possessions in India, evidently have not inquired whether India might not object to the transfer. She can certainly see no advantage in exchanging British civilization and liberty for Muscovite dynamite, Nihilism, Siberian prisons, despotism and political tyranny in every possible form. And, if India should object, her gigantic rampart of mountains on the north, almost impassable to an invading enemy; her large resident British army; a native army of nearly 400,000, with nearly 5,000 guns, would give a decision to her objections which Russia would find it difficult to overcome.

As a political precaution it is wise to look well after the voters' lists, to see that no proper names are omitted and no improper names inserted. The Reformers of Lennox look well after this matter and the result justifies their efforts. At the recent Appeal Court held in Napanee, thirty-two Reform votes were added to the list for Parliamentary purposes, and fifty-three for municipal purposes. Had the Tory assessor, whom the wirepullers succeeded in appointing this year, been allowed to work his own sweet will, a difference of sixty-four in a parliamentary election, if it had occurred on this year's roll, would have been the result. It is as easy, if they are not watched, for the Tories to gerrymander an assessment roll as a province.

Protection journals will sometimes try to creep into a very small hole. Humiliated because the N. P. has not kept up grain prices, they take comfort in the allegation that wheat is cheaper by fifteen cents in Minnesota, than in Manitoba, and exultantly ask how much the Ontario farmer would get for his wheat if the 15 cent duty were not imposed on that grain. This is another form of bamboozlement. The tax has no more effect on the price than the N. P. has, affirmatively, on the prosperity of the country. A duty of a thousand dollars a ton on rocks would not affect the prices of boulders in Burleigh, for the simple reason that Burleigh has a sufficient surplus of this material to obviate the necessity of importing it. In like manner Ontario, with a surplus of millions of bushels of wheat, is not likely to go to Minnesota for the little she requires for home consumption.

It is not often that we can with advantage, copy the political or judicial methods of the United States. In some respects, however, we might profitably do so. Two editors of New York state have been arrested for felony, on the charge of presenting illegal printing bills to the board of supervisors. Tory editors do such things much better here. It is possible for them to present printing bills as big as $3,000, and get them paid too, for work they never touched. Our Tory editors have the chance to present bills at five prices for work and they are sure to get paid, for they are allowed to sit in Parliament and vote for the payment of their own modest bills. Our Tory editors have their type bought for them at the public expense, to fill orders for printing at double prices. Sir John's peculiar "political economy" admits of these things being done and condoned by a pliant majority. We might with advantage take lessons from our Yankee neighbors. If all who presented illegal accounts here were jailed, there would be a plentiful batch of Tory sanctums desolate, besides one or two seats in Parliament vacant.

Don't take that "cocktail in the morning." If you have a "swelled head," nauseated stomach, and unstrung nerves resulting from the "convivial party last night." The sure and safe way, to clear the cobwebs from the brain, recover zest for food, and tone up the nervous system, is to use Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," Sold by all druggists.

Have you seen what Turnbull is offering to-day in White and Grey Cottons. The value is astonishing and cannot fail to please even the most careful buyer.

THE FALL IN THE PRICE OF WHEAT

NOWHERE, AS COMPARED WITH

THE STILL GREATER FALL IN THE PRICE OF CLOTHING

—AT—

LeBRUN'S.

It will pay Farmers better to sell their wheat now at present prices, and buy their Winter's supply of Clothing at the City Clothing Store while you can buy so very cheap, rather than run the chance of waiting to get a few cents more for their wheat and pay 25 per cent higher for their Clothing later on. The Farmers and LeBRUN are in the same position—both have large stocks on hand, and nothing will be gained by holding on to them at present. Sell your wheat now and exchange it for cheap clothing at LeBrun's.

I am determined to offer the bulk of my present very large stock without reserve for the next three months. Remember the prices will be lower than ever offered in Peterborough before.

JUST LOOK AT A FEW OF THE QUOTATIONS:

OVERCOATS—$4.50, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $9.00.

TWEED SUITS for $6.50, $8.00, $9.00, $10.00. These prices are fully 28 per cent lower than the regular prices.

ORDERED CLOTHING made up at prices to correspond in cheapness with the above, as for example:

FINE SUITS to order for $14.00, $15.00, and $16.00. No better value ever offered for the money. Activity in every department.

BOYS' AND YOUTHS' CLOTHING.—It will pay you to see our large stock. It is suitable for all ages; made nobby and genteel.

TWEEDS & FULLCLOTHS for common wear at very low prices. Can be cut on the premises free of charge.

UNDERWEAR—I have the best assortment of sizes, largest stock and cheapest Fall and Winter Underwear in Peterborough.

GLOVES.—I have a large assortment in this line, as I make a specialty of Gloves, and sell for less than any house in the trade.

SHIRTS, COLLARS AND CUFFS.—As usual, selling lower than any other house.

TIES.—The run on our Ties this season is immense. Our 25 cent Ties are equal in quality to any 50 cent Tie in the town.

My great aim has always been to give superior goods at inferior prices. My increased business shows how well I have succeeded.

CLAIMS OF GOD UPON THE CHURCH.

Sermon preached by Rev. Wm. Bennett, at Springville, on Sunday, Oct. 19th, 1884, and published by request :—

"Every man shall give as he is able according to the blessing of the Lord thy God which he hath given thee."—Deut. XVI-17.

The church is a divine institution; God does not need our aid in the support or extension of it, but he has been pleased to put upon us the honor of taking part with him in the work. This is done not because our puny hands do anything to strengthen the omnipotent, but for our own good, and because it is in harmony with the divine providence in other departments of work. God could every year give to man the fruits of the field ripe and ready for use, as he did to Adam and Eve at the beginning, but such is not now his pleasure. He has made it a law that he who does not till the soil and sow the seed, cannot reap the harvest. God could if he pleased raise up or bring down invisible or spiritual agents to carry the Gospel to every land, but his rule is to do this through human effort and physical instrumentality. As on the farm so in the church, there must be tilling and sowing and reaping, and as in the one so in the other, there must be expenditure before there can be results. There must be expenditure of money, of time, and of strength. This is the law in both physicis and spiritual husbandry. As a rule, in this country at least, those who own the farm cultivate the farm, so that those who belong to the church must nourish and cherish the church. Only in this way can she be supported and extended.

As the instrumentality to be employed in the nourishing and cherishing of it is physical, in other words, as the agents are men, and not angels, men who need to be fed and clothed and trained for the work, their food and raiment and institutions of learning must be provided. It is the duty and privilege of the members of the church to provide these. In doing it they are doing themselves an honor, inasmuch as they are fellow workers with God. In doing it they are not giving to the men whom they support but to God himself. The tithes of old were for the support of the priests and Levites and their families, but God said that these tithes were his, and he who kept back his tithes was charged with robbing God. God said to the children of Israel, "ye have robbed me even."

(1) This is the principle then, with which we start, that money given for the support of the church at home and abroad, is money given to God. The church is as much a divine institution as of old, and the officers thereof as much appointed by God as they were of old.

(2) Another principle is that God claims this as his due. The gold and the silver are mine saith the Lord. If to withhold the tithes was to rob God, then we see at once that God claimed these as his due.

(3) All gifts should be brought to the place of worship and presented as an act of worship. Look at Deut. XII-5. "But unto the place which the Lord your God shall choose of all your tribes to put his name there—thither shall ye bring your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, and your tithes, and heave offerings of your hands, and your vows and your free will offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and your flocks."

You remember the exhortation which says, "Come into my court and bring an offering with you." Look at the last clause of the verse previous to the text—"None shall appear before me empty." Giving was the first act of worship of which we have any record. Abel worshipped when he brought of the lambs of his flocks and gave them to the Lord.

This settles the question as to the parties who should give. If giving is an act of worship, all worshippers should give from the youngest to the eldest. All who come to church are supposed to be worshippers. All should have something to give, no matter how little. The widow's two mites, which make only a farthing, were given as an act of worship. Her conduct in giving them has been held up as an example to all by the Lord of the treasury himself. The least child in the congregation should and could have something to give—something too of his own—something saved from the purchase of sweetmeats, or something earned by little services rendered to parents or neighbours or friends. The command, plainly uttered, is "none shall appear before me empty and the text says, every man shall give as he is able. The New Testament Scriptures say the same, "Let every one of you lay by him in store as God hath prospered him." Another New Testament passage tells us that a man's offering is accepted according to that he hath, not according to that he hath not. The next question which we would ask is, "to what extent ought a man to give to God's cause?" By God's cause, of course, we mean all benevolent objects—these will include support of the Gospel at home and abroad, the support of our Poor Houses, Hospitals, Asylums, Orphanages, and all similar institutions. To what extent then ought a man to give to support of all these? You remember the claims of God on the Jew—the tenth, or more correctly, the two-tenths of all the increase of the field and of the flock, and of the merchandise. These two-tenths in addition to the thank offerings—the sin offerings—and other presentations of this kind which were given from time to time. A devout Jew felt constrained to give more than one-fifth of his increase to the cause of God. The payment of tithes as a sacred offering was even prior to the time of the Mosaic economy. Abraham, you remember, gave a tenth of the spoils taken in a successful war, to the service of religion, and to the honor of the "Most High God." You remember also the vow of Jacob on that night when he saw the ladder reaching from earth to heaven. To God he says, "of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give a tenth unto Thee." But you will say "we have nothing to do with the laws of the Jews on this matter, we have nothing to do with the sacrifices, with the priesthood as of old, these have been repealed." Sacrifices as such have been repealed. The law of the priesthood as in force in the time of Moses, has been repealed. But what has that to do with tithes—unless you say that the laws of religion—the laws of worship—have been repealed also. Is the Sabbath no more to be observed under the Christian dispensation? Are we not now to have churches and ministers because the temple and temple service were destroyed more than 1,800 years ago? There is not a syllable in the New Testament which indicates to us that our obligations to support the cause of God are less than they were under the old dispensation. We need religious teachers to carry on the work of religion, and these teachers need support. Whatever need there was for the tithe system under the Mosaic dispensation, there is more need now. The Jewish church was not a missionary church, and yet her members needed to give to the extent referred to, for her support. How much more then should the members of the Christian church give a large proportion of their respective incomes, for the support of that church when they know that she is to carry the Gospel to the ends of the earth? The wants of the church can never be met nor her duty to the world is fulfilled, until the principle of giving at least a tenth of our income is practically recognized. When that point of liberality is arrived at, you will be prepared to advance a step higher; many have done more, much more. Nathaniel Cobb of Boston said, "I swear by the grace of God, that I will never be worth more than $50,000. I swear by the grace of God that I will give one-fourth of all my increase to the cause of God that if I am ever worth $20,000, I will give one half, and if ever worth $30,000, I will give three-fourths, and that beyond $50,000, I will give everything, so help me God, or remove me and put a more faithful servant in my room." Thus he vowed and history tells us that he kept his vow. Many others have done likewise. The devoted Jew as we have said had to give or was constrained to give two-tenths of his increase to God's cause. There was one exclusively for the support of the Levites. There was another for sacrifices, and solemn feasts and gifts to the poor. But there were in addition the firstlings of the flock, the first fruits of the field. These, we, in our day, would look upon as large contributions for church purposes. There are not many among us who give the one-twentieth of what we receive, some not the one-fiftieth. Why should we think that less is demanded of us than was of the Jew? True there is no positive law for the christian such as the Jew lay under, but there is something higher and better and stronger, by which we are to be influenced. It is the law of love. It is the example of him who though he was rich, for our sakes became poor. The law of God does not now tell you what to give, but it is expected that your heart and conscience will. Our text tells us that every man shall give according as he is able, according to the blessing of the "Lord thy God which he hath given thee." The meaning of this is that every one is to give in proportion to what he receives. Well, is not this the New Testament law too, "Let every one of you lay past him as the Lord hath prospered him." The proportion is not specified, you are at liberty to make it as large as you please. Much love will dictate a large proportion. Desire to be like Christ will constrain to an exercise of self-denial in the amounts contributed. In the disposal of our property we are to remember that we are God's stewards—accountable to him for the use we make of it. He has told us what use to make of it, and is noticing our conduct, and will reward us accordingly. Taking all that we have noticed into consideration, dealing faithfully and honestly with the great God of heaven, we will come to the conclusion that we are under solemn obligation to give even a larger proportion of our increase year by year, than did the Jew of old. But you say "I cannot afford" it—Cannot afford it? Cannot afford to give one-tenth or two-tenths to the cause of God, when you have still nine-tenths or eight-tenths remaining? Is it not worldliness covetousness, that makes you think you cannot afford it. But this worldliness must be destroyed or you will miss heaven at last. Think of the words of Christ to the young man, "Go and sell all," etc. Think of what the disciples did when they left their worldly goods in order to follow the Saviour. You say, "I want to save for my old age." But you want to save for eternity, too. You want to get an endowment policy payable on your entrance into the other world. You must not think of providing for your children by robbing God. God charges with robbery of himself those who keep back the tithes. Our next question will be, how we ought to give? How we ought to give as to the spirit, and as to the mode? As to the spirit, we ought to give as we have seen, as an act of worship, as an offering to God in the same way as we do our prayers and our praises. We ought to give cheerfully. The Lord loveth a cheerful giver. We are not to give grudgingly or of necessity, but as a free will offering unto the Lord. Give as God gives. "Freely ye have received; freely give." Think of the way the Israelites of old gave, when the tabernacle in the wilderness was being erected. Women brought their jewels of gold, their embroidery, their fine linen; men brought gold and silver, brass and iron, shittim wood and furs. This was not a tax imposed. "Whosoever is of a willing heart let him bring," was the language of Moses. So they brought and brought until they had actually to be restrained. There was enough and more than enough. Has such a scene as this ever been witnessed in the Christian church? Not that we are aware of. There is to be system in our going. It should be at regular intervals. The interval should be no more than the distance between one Sabbath and another. We have seen that the offerings should be brought to the church, and that none should appear before the Lord empty. Now, as we are supposed to be at church every Sabbath, then there should be giving every Sabbath, and giving by every worshipper every Sabbath. This was the direction of Paul to two of the churches at least, to whom he wrote from time to time. To the Corinthian church he says: "Now, concerning the collection for the Saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store as God has prospered him." The weekly offering system is the best. It is the Scriptural one, as we have just now seen, which must always be the best. It is the most fruitful one—much more will be contributed by this means. It is the many small sums that make the great amounts. The cause needs it all. The conversion of the world is being retarded chiefly for want of money. We have the offer of men, but no means to send them to foreign fields. The weekly offering system is the best for the contributor. It makes it easy for him to give. It is easier to give 25 cents per week than $13 at the end of the year, or $6.50 at the end of every six months. It is easier to give $1 per week than $52 at the end of the year. It will be better for the contributor, because it will educate him to give. This is the reason why we do not give more liberally, because we have not been trained to it. Those who give most freely are those who give most frequently. The collection taken up on the Sabbath is not the weekly offering to which we have reference. I have reference to the whole sum to be contributed for religious purposes for the year, the sum for all objects at home and abroad, the sum representing the fair proportion of your income, your profits, sacredly and solemnly dedicated to the cause of God. This is what we want brought to the church, not in one lump sum, but weekly presentations. We cannot offer up prayers for the year, or the half year, on one particular Sabbath; we must do it from Sabbath to Sabbath. So, if giving to God's cause be an act of worship, it cannot with honor to God or profit to ourselves be done at the end of the year or at the end of six months, but from Sabbath to Sabbath. Now, as to the mode of contributing: This could best be done by envelope, into which each one would put his offering and present it on the Sabbath to the Lord. The system which has been adopted elsewhere, and which has been found to be very efficient, is to present to every man, woman and child in the congregation a subscription card, on one side of which there is the heading, "Support of the Gospel," and on the other side, "Spread of the Gospel." By support of the Gospel would be meant stipend fund, expenses connected with care of the church, light, fuel, repairs, insurance and Sabbath School. The spread of the Gospel would include all benevolent objects outside of the congregation, such as Home and Foreign Missions, French Evangelization, colleges, A. and In. M. Fund, Orphan Fund and Bible Society. Every one is asked to contribute as God has prospered him. In this work every worshipper is invited to join. The cards should be placed in the hands of every one, old and young. When each one has signed his card, stating what he will give per Sabbath, the cards are returned to the treasurer, who enters in his book each name and subscription. Then the treasurer returns to each person his card, with two packages of small envelopes, one marked "Support," the other "Benevolence." Each one's business is to place the amount of his subscription for the week in the envelopes and put on the plate on the Sabbath. If it is found inconvenient to make the returns every week it could be done every month at the rate of so much per Sabbath, viz: the sum put on the card. The total of the fund thus secured could be divided by the officers of the church as they deem best, or by the congregation at a meeting for the purpose. Now, see the advantages of this plan: (1.) There is thorough organization—each one is enrolled and doing something for God. (2.) Each gives in the easiest way—little by little, day by day. (3.) Again, the young people and the children are trained under this system as agents in God's cause. They are being prepared for greater usefulness in the church and the world. (4.) A fourth advantage is that the elders and other office-bearers of the church are able to know the degree of interest taken by each worshipper in the cause of missions at home and abroad. The office-bearers should know regarding this, just as they should know regarding the prayerfulness or the truthfulness or the honesty of those who are in membership in the church. (5.) By this system, again, each member enjoys the opportunity of acting upon the Bible principle of honoring the Lord, &c., and of receiving the blessing promised to all those who bring all the tithes into the storehouse. We may see from this subject: (1.) How great the contrast between what we are and what we ought to be as contributors to the support and extension of the Gospel. All ought to be contributors. Very many give nothing, or almost nothing. We ought to give systematically. We give only when pressure of some kind or other is brought to bear upon us—when visited by a collector, when powerful appeals are made to us by an earnest lecturer or preacher, or when hunger and squalor and rags are staring us in the face in the person of a beggar soliciting aid. We give only occasionally, when we ought to give frequently. We give the hundredth or the fiftieth part of our increase when we ought to give the tenth at least—many of us the fifth, for some can give the fifth more easily than others can give a tenth, or even a twentieth. We give promiscuously when we ought to give prudently. We give grudgingly when we ought to give freely. We give irreverently when we ought to give as in the presence of God and as an act of worship to God. (2.) See how easy it would be to provide the means for the speedy evangelization of the world. If this system were adopted generally of giving a fair proportion of our increase to the propagation of Christianity in the world, the receipts for the cause of missions would be multiplied fourfold. Many would give twice or three times what they now give, and there would be twice the number of contributors. Enlarged revenue would make enlarged missionary operations, and these, by the blessing of God, would soon convert the world. There is not a church in Christendom that is not crying out for funds. There is not a church in Christendom that is not crippled in her efforts to spread the Gospel for want of friends. The funds are to be had and will be forthcoming, but as yet they are locked up through want of heart to give, and suitable means to gather them. The time is coming—is near—when the hearts of multitudes shall be melted and the purse strings of the millionaires shall be unloosed and the channels of generosity filled to overflowing. The time is coming when the kings of Tarshish and the isles shall bring presents, and when the kings of Sheba and Seba shall offer gifts—when kings shall be nursing fathers and queens nursing mothers to the church. Then it shall be esteemed an honor, a privilege, a blessedness to give to God's cause. What it will be then it is now. This is my apology for addressing you on this subject to-day. I want to give you a new happiness. There is a well-spring of pleasure in it. It is more blessed to give than to receive. He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord, and he will repay him again. Blessed the man that considereth the poor, the Lord will remember him in the day of trouble. The Lord will preserve him and keep him alive, and he shall be blessed on the earth.

BURGLARS IN LINDSAY.

BEALL'S JEWELLERY STORE RAIDED ON SUNDAY MORNING.

On Sunday morning, about two o'clock a daring and successful burglary was committed in this town, the jewellery store owned by Mr. G. W. Beall being entered, and the contents of one large safe carried off. The burglars were evidently well acquainted with the shop, and probably had a confederate on the ground for some time previously laying out the work. The door of Mr. F. D. Moore's law office, immediately over the store, was forced in, and with tools which had been stolen from the carriage works of L. O'Connor, a section of the floor was bored across and the boards taken up. The ceiling below was also cut through. By means of a rope the robbers lowered themselves to the floor below, and attacked one of the large safes in which Mr Beall kept his stock over night. The safe was a key-lock safe. A three-eighth inch hole was drilled near the lock, and the bolts forced back. The entire contents of the safe were taken, consisting of a large number of gold and silver watches, chains, and general jewellery. The value will probably reach $3,000. The steel cash box fastened to the upper portion of the safe containing deeds, mortages, and other private papers, and a few American watch movements, was forced from its seat and taken away. The drawers in which the goods were placed in the safe were piled up in a neat heap, and the whole job gave evidence that SKILFUL HANDS had executed the work. The robbery was discovered by Mr. Beall, who called at his store on his way to church to see if things were all right, as was his usual custom. Previous to the burglary being discovered it was found that a horse and rig owned by Dr. Kempt had been stolen from his stable and driven off. During the afternoon the horse was found grazing in a field about eight miles south of Lindsay on a road leading to the Ontario and Quebec station at Pontypool. The rig was also found concealed in a clump of tamarac on the farm of Mr. W. McGill. The robbers were evidently concealed in the woods all day, as this morning word was brought to town that during the night a horse and buggy was stolen from Mr. W. Ingram's stable, who lives close by, and driven off to the west or north. Constables are out in pursuit. The utmost excitement prevailed in town during Sunday night, and a strict watch was placed on the banks, jewellery stores, newspaper offices, and other places where large sums of money and other valuables are kept. No clue has been gained to the prepetrators, but it is supposed to be the same gang who operated so successfully at Peterborough and other points. Mr. Beall offers a reward of $500 for the recovery of the goods.

Insurance.

Insurance is a good thing whether applied to life or property. No less a blessing is anything that insures good health. Kidney-Wort does this. It is nature's great remedy. It is a mild but efficient cathartic, and acting at the same time on the Liver, Kidneys and Bowels, it relieves all these organs and enables them to perform their duties perfectly. It was wonderful power. See adv't.

Peterborough Markets.

[Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.]

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 22, 1884

Receipts of grain have been heavy principally. Barley, which has sold fairly from 50 to 65 cents, the bulk going between 50 and 60 cents. Spring wheat is now selling at about 76 cents with some indications of going lower. Fall wheat has been selling from 75 to 77 cents, offerings small. Nothing doing in peas, the few offering bring from 60 to 64 cents. In rye, little or nothing doing, selling about 50 cents. Oats have been selling about 32 cents. On the market the attendance has been good. Fresh butter plentiful, selling at 20 to 22 cents. In crock, 16 to 18 cents. In kegs, 14 to 18 cents. Eggs scarce, and bring 17 to 18 cents. There is no change in other commodities.

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

SCROFULA

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alterative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

Regenerative Medicine

Is composed of the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla, with Yellow Dock, Stillingia, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other ingredients of great potency, carefully and scientifically compounded. Its formula is generally known to the medical profession, and the best physicians constantly prescribe AYER'S SARSAPARILLA as an

Absolute Cure

For all diseases caused by the vitiation of the blood. It is concentrated to the highest practicable degree, far beyond any other preparation for which like effects are claimed, and is therefore the cheapest, as well as the best blood purifying medicine, in the world.

LOVE THAT SEEMED HOPELESS.

"My dear uncle, I am delighted to be at home again. What splendid easy times we shall have, and what dinners! Uncle, I will tell you—under the rose—it don't pay to go abroad; but mum is the word, though, for it is fashionable, you know. But on my honor as a Trevanion, I was almost poisoned on frogs and things. I met the Leightons and Esterbrooks, and all the first families in Paris, but, like myself, they were 'doing' it for the fame of the thing.

Tom Trevanion sat in his uncle's study, with his feet on the mantel, and a costly meerschaum in his mouth from whence issued a delicious perfume, for Tom was a connoisseur in the weed.

"Hand me that dressing-gown, old boy, and I will make a regular night of it, and forget Paris and Louise Villiers."

"Old boy, indeed! Tom, you have grown disrespectful since you left home. Get your dressing-gown yourself, sir!"

"Forgive me, Uncle Hal; I am just wild with gladness at being home again and mistook you for Pomp."

"You are an insolent young dog. Who is Louise Villiers, pray?"

"A charming French girl, uncle. I thought of making her my wife, only women are so troublesome, tagging round after a fellow all the time. But, uncle, she is divine; there is nothing in England to match her."

"Humph!" — Uncle Hal's favorite word—"there has been an addition to our family since you left. I did not mention it in my letters, because I thought it best you should finish your travels. Haydn Vaughn, my old college friend, died in India and left his child in my care. She has been here a year."

"The deuce she has! What sort of a girl is she—pretty?"

"The girl is without friends. I pitied her loneliness, and I—I—in fact, we are to be married in the spring."

"Married in the spring?"

"Tom, you must not speak so loud. I thought I heard someone at the door awhile ago, when you were talking of women being troublesome. Pray be careful."

A rich voice humming snatches of song, and the click of a solitary boot-heel along the hall, and Tom pricked up his ears.

"What is that, uncle? It sounds like a lame opera-singer."

"Humph! I'll risk my life on the lameness. It is Miss Vaughn."

The door opened with a bang, and a black-haired, crimson-lipped, saucy-looking girl entered, carrying her gaiter-boot in one hand and a tack-hammer in the other.

"Guardy, you are heathenish! Here I've been limping up that long staircase with nothing on my foot but a silk stocking. There is a peg in my shoe, and my heel is bruised to a jelly with it. I tried to poke it out with this tack-hammer, but it will not move."

No more notice of Tom than if he had been a piece of furniture.

"If that is your game, my dear, I am with you," was Tom's thought as he noticed her utter indifference.

He settled his boots more firmly and puffed away at his pipe.

A few desperate pokes, and the refractory peg was out.

"Where are you going through this rain, May?" asked her guardian.

"To get some candy. This is real candy weather, guardy."

"But, my dear May, I wouldn't go out in such a storm."

"I would."

She seated herself on a low chair, and coolly putting on her boot, began lacing it up before Tom's very eyes. Then she looped up her dress through an elastic, exposing a red balmoral and a dainty ankle, and tying a crimson hood under her chin, turned to the door.

"Good-bye, guardy; good-bye, Mr. Boots."

Tom laughed uproariously, while Mr. Trevanion said:

"Why, bless my soul, boy, I forgot to present you to May."

"Never mind about it now, uncle, but don't forget it at dinner."

Tom took unusual pains with his toilet that night, and he was a very handsome man. His thick, glossy, brown hair, and long heavy beard, were subjected to a merciless brushing; and a magnificent black neck-tie embroidered with white silk was arranged as killingly as possible. May, in a crimson merino, and her shining black hair arranged in a knot at the back of her head, was superb and indifferent. Around the fair throat was a tiny collar of the softest lace fastened by a diamond star.

"May, this is my nephew, Tom Trevanion. Miss Vaughn, Tom."

May inclined her stately head, while the handsome Tom bowed before her."

"I am glad to find such a valuable addition to my uncle's family. I had feared this house would be lonely."

"It relieves my mind to know that you are pleased. I believe some young men find women troublesome in a house."

"Confound the girl, she is laughing at me. I believe she heard what I said about Louise Villiers. I wish she was not so confoundedly handsome, however."

As time passed on, Tom found himself very faint about the region of the heart. If May was superb at night in a crimson merino, she was divine in a rose-colored wrapper in the morning.

Tom forgot about the French and fell madly in love with his uncle's promised bride—that is how it was.

He wisely kept his secret hid, though, for the wicked black eyes had a way of hurling lightning glances at him that was exasperating.

"If she only cared a speck for a fellow, I'd—I'd——. But no; that would be dishonor. Brave old Uncle Hal, I would not step between you and happiness if I could."

As the weeks wore on, Tom saw plainly that May did not love his uncle, though she did not know it yet herself. She had never known any other love but that she had borne her father, and when Mr. Trevanion asked her to be his wife, she, feeling lonely and desolate, gave him her promise, knowing nothing of that other self who, somewhere in the length and breadth of the land, was waiting for her.

It had been a dismal day. A kind of drizzling rain had fallen all day, and a dirge-like wind was keeping it company. For once Miss Vaughn was sad, but if she had thought anyone noticed it, the red mouth would have smiled denial. She had been silent all the afternoon, and Tom thought he once saw her lips quiver. He crossed over to where she was sitting, hoping her sad mood would make her more comeatable.

"What dismal weather it is, May. It gives me the heartache."

"What is that?"

Voice and eye were unwavering, but Tom could have sworn he saw her lip tremble as she spoke.

"If you don't know I shall not enlighten you."

Tom was exasperated. He also thought she had no heart. May looked out of the window, and by-and-bye she sighed a little. This time he saw the proud lip quiver. Tom was a noble-hearted fellow, and he pitied the lonely girl—pitied the proud young heart, that, ache as it might, would never let it be known. He had watched her closely, and knew that underneath her elfin ways a warm, passionate heart was beating.

One night he saw by her eyes she had been weeping, and as he stood by her side he laid his hand on her shining hair.

It was a manly face, strong and true.

"May, you have been weeping; it grieves me to see it." Eyes and voice were full of tenderness, but she would not see it. "I am going out, May; can I do anything for you?"

The voice had still that indescribable tenderness that deep feeling always gives.

"Yes; if you pass where they are sold, bring me some ginger-snaps."

He sprang to his feet, and a muttered imprecation burst from his lips.

Pulling his hat down over his eyes as he passed into the street, he strode fiercely on.

He met a few boon companions, but his gloomy brow gave no encouragement for them to tarry.

"What's to pay now?" said Ned Sterling to his friend Lennox. "Trevanion looks as fierce as a Bengal tiger."

"Got in debt, I reckon. Come, Ned, let's go to a play."

Poor Tom knew to his cost what was to pay. The insipid little Parisian was nowhere.

She had been cast into the shade by this fascinating May Vaughn, and Tom's thoughts were something after this nature:

"I love this brilliant May, and she loves me. She may school lip and eye, but I can read both. She is unhappy; there was anguish in her eye when she spoke of those abominable ginger-snaps. I saw it brooding dumbly through all her acting. That girl is wretched; she does not love my uncle; she cannot, and yet there is but one short month between this and her wedding-day. Oh, woman, woman! man's blessing and his curse! I shall leave here to-morrow; it is all that I can do."

He returned from his mad walk silent and moody.

His uncle sat reading the paper, and May, without a vestige of color in cheek and lip, sat with her dainty little feet on the fender, and the last magazine in her hand. She did not look round as Tom closed the door, though she knew his footstep.

"Fluted trimming is still worn, guardy. I think I shall have my new dress trimmed so. Ah, Tom, are you back? Where are the ginger-snaps?"

Tom hastily left the room with never one word of answer.

"Tom is getting to be an insufferable puppy, with his moody brow and tragic airs."

"An insufferable puppy," echoed May, but her lip trembled.

Mr. Trevanion laid down his paper and went over to where May was sitting with her eyes fixed on the fire.

He laid his hand on the bowed head, but she sprang to her feet, the small hand by her side now clenched fiercely.

"What is the matter, I say?"

"My headaches, sir. If you will excuse me I will go to my room."

She flew up the broad staircase, and her white face was a perfect revelation. Tom, pacing up and down the study floor, saw it as she passed, and shivered.

Reaching her room, she flung herself face downward on the floor. She neither fainted nor wept; she did not even moan; if she had unclosed the firm-set lips for an instant she would have screamed. Her dumb anguish was a thousand times worse than tears.

She had promised to be Mr. Trevanion's wife through gratitude, because she was lonely and desolate, as he had said, and knew not till too late that life would bring any other love.

That she had learned to love this handsome Tom Trevanion was a fixed fact. How or when the love crept into her heart she could not have told; but she knew to her sorrow that it was there. She had tried to put it away from her, to forget the tender face; but she found her own heart a rebel, and all she could do was to keep the sad secret from Tom and his uncle. She avoided the study now, so they met only at meals.

She went down one night in the twilight to the almost unused library. The street lamps were lighting, and she stood with her face pressed against the window-pane, watching the lamplighter as he went his rounds.

It was a wan face, and Tom coming up softly behind her, looked upon it, and longed to gather it to his breast.

"Oh, if it was any one but brave old Uncle Hal that loved her, I would—but this is dishonor."

The closed eyes saw nothing but a heart-picture she was looking at, so Tom could gaze his fill at the sad face.

The tired eyes suddenly unclosed, and she looked up to see the tender face bending over her with an expression she could not misunderstand.

There was perfect silence for many minutes. Tom stood with folded arms and tight shut lips. What could he say that would not be dishonor?

May then made a movement as though she were going to leave the room.

"May, I am going away to-morrow. I leave on Monday for Paris."

She trembled so that he put his arm round her, and then, as though unable to resist it, he drew the beautiful head to his breast. She just let it stay, for she knew it was the last time; that dreary last time.

"My darling! mine in this sad hour, if never, never again. I love you, May, most deeply, and I am leaving you because of that love. I ought not to have told you this, but you know it, and it seems some consolation to put it into words. It would be dishonor in me to try to win you from kind Uncle Hal, and dishonor in you to be so won, for he has set his heart on you, May. We must part, though it rend our hearts in twain, and now, for I hear my uncle's voice, and I have no further strength left."

He led her to a chair, and pressing a kiss upon her pale lips, staggered almost blindly from the room. It was a fearful storm of feeling, requiring all his love for his uncle to prevent him from rushing back and claiming May. That he had no right to do so he knew, save by the passionate love he bore her.

Two hours later he entered his uncle's study. The old man sat smoking with closed eyes.

"Get your pipe, Tom, and let us have a good, cozy time."

"I cannot, uncle; I am not well to-night. Uncle Halbert, I start for Paris on Monday, and I have come to say good-bye to-night. I must go to Dover to-morrow."

"Is the boy mad? What in the name of common-sense would take you off again? Why, Tom, you are ill. What is it, boy?"

"No matter, uncle."

"Tom, I'm the only father you have ever known. I command you, by a father's right, to tell me what this means. Are you in debt, my boy? If so, speak; if it is a thousand pounds I will pay it; anything, rather than have you leave me."

"Uncle, don't press me; just let me go quietly. I give you my word, which never was broken, that it is nothing of debt or difficulty of that kind. It is only a private matter of my own."

"I must know it, Tom."

"Uncle, it will grieve you."

"No matter, boy." The old man rose and put his hand affectionately on the young man's shoulder. "Come, boy, out with it."

"Uncle, I love May Vaughn. It is because of her I am going away. It is all I can do. I fought against it, uncle; but, God help me, my love was stronger than my will."

"Does May love you?"

"I never asked her, uncle."

"Sit down here a minute, Tom, while I go to my room. You must have funds to travel with, you know."

Tom folded his arms upon the table and laid his head upon them.

"The worst is over now," he said. "I have told my uncle all, and parted with May."

Mr. Trevanion went straight to May's room and knocked softly.

"May, I want to speak to you just one moment, my child."

She came to the door, surprised at this unusual proceeding, but too wretched to care much.

"May, would you just as soon marry Tom as your guardian?"

It was a startling question. May would have fallen had not Mr. Trevanion caught her in his arms.

"You see, May, the foolish fellow has fallen in love with you, and as he is too honorable to try to steal you away from me, he is determined to be off to France again. Tom is my only sister's child, and if you could love him, May——"

The old saucy look came back to May's eyes.

"I will try, sir."

"Then come with me."

He led her along the hall, and entering the study, said:

"Here, Tom, I'll forego my claim if you can make it all right with May. I could not see you go, my boy."

He closed the door, and with a rare delicacy left the lovers alone.

Over that interview we will draw a veil.

By mutual consent the knowledge of their mutual love was kept from Uncle Halbert, and he thinks to this day that May married Tom to please him.

May and Tom have been married five happy years. May is little like the May of this story save in form and feature. She is gentle and quiet, and has given over all her mad moods, subdued by the power of love, and Tom likes her best so. Sometimes, when in the fulness of her young life, she would flash out into some of the old gay moods, Tom would put his arm tenderly around her and say:

"Don't, May, my darling. I love you best in your new mood. The saucy, defiant May Vaughn has passed away, and in her stead I hold to my heart my loving, tender May Trevanion."

A PLEA FOR PLAIN PREACHING.

(Written for the EXAMINER.)

"He that hath my Word, let him speak my Word faithfully."

How oft' are complaints made by people
Of ambassadors of the Lord,
Who are striving to do their duty
Faithfully, in deed and in word.

Their sermons, they say, are aye faulty—
They're "prosy" or "harsh," "blunt" or "rough";
And, then, too, "they ar always begging.
They have never money enough."

If such, like the noble Bereans,
Would search well the Scriptures, to know
Whether those much-condemn'd ministers
Deliver God's message or no,

Complaints would grow less; as to giving,
When seen in the Sacred Word's light,
Their views be transform'd, in responding
To the preachers' appeals, with delight.

They also would learn how God's servants
Are to be faithful and bold to declare
His Truth at all times and all places,
Whether men will hear or forbear.

Their "faces like flint," and their "foreheads
As an adamant," hard should be,
That souls in the vale of destruction,
Be warn'd to the Refuge to flee.

The truth must be told, however grievous
It may be to those who would fain
In th' state of an unrui'd liscrés
Of conscience-lull'd pleasure remain.

Grave woes were denounc'd 'gainst the Prophets,
Who spoke the Lord's Word in disguise;
Smooth things prophesying to people
Deceiv'd by their fair "honeyed-lies."

Our Saviour, Himself, denounc'd sharply
The Pharisees, cloak'd in their sin,
Who, boasting religious pretensions,
Were full of corruption within.

Paul said he requir'd to use sharpness
For edification; and, then,
He asks: "Can I be Christ's true servant,
And yet be a pleaser of men?"

What physician would ask of his patient
The medicine he liked ere he gave His prescription—so truths unpleasant
Are told to the souls they would save.

And he who was Prince among preachers,
The prayers of saints did request,
And we find him make grateful mention
How in answer his work was blest.

Bless'd change if such grumbling hearers
Would ask the Lord's Spirit to guide
Their pastor in being a workman,
Who rightly the Word would divide.

To pray that on pastor and people
The blessing of God would descend;
In love, then, they'd worship together,
And fault-finding be at an end;

And up to God's courts go repeating:
"I'll hear what the Lord God will say"—
Then lifegiving words joy-inspiring
Would gladden their souls on His day.

She had false teeth and false hair, but she was rosy-cheeked, bright-eyed, and sweet-tempered, and her lover said, "With all thy faiss I love thee still."

Costiveness is the cause of the intolerable "bad breath" of multitudes. Dr. Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters remove the cause and prevent the evil, and cost only 25 cents.

Religion cannot pass away. The burning of a little straw may hide the stars of the sky, but the stars are there, they will reappear.

Though numerous causes may operate to turn the hair gray, all that is needed to restore the natural color is Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer. For more than 20 years its sales have been enormous, but we have yet to learn of its first failure.

All we can do is to set before men who differ from us, the principles on which we form our opinions, and let them judge upon the premises formed.

Messrs. Mitchell & Platt, druggists, London, Ont., write Dec., 1881: "We have sold Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil since its first introduction, and we can safely say, no medicine on our shelves has had a larger sale, or gives better satisfaction. We always feel safe in recommending it to our customers.

The earl of Rosebery says that the British Government's scheme of emigration to the colonies only hastens the day when they will be populous enough to run their own affairs.

Weather Probabilities.

Foretelling the weather is a useful science, but relieving the effects of its sudden changes is a better one. Haggard's Pectoral Balsam cures coughs and colds, incident to sudden changes. 42-2t

A member of the Royal College of Surgeons, writing in Nature, says that of seventy skeletons which he examined the length of the legs was equal in only seven cases.

Inhuman Cruelty.

It is a barbaric cruelty to torture the weak stomachs of chronic invalids with harsh purgatives and sickening drugs, when Burdock Blood Bitters will regulate the stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys in so agreeable and effectual a manner. 42-2t

Twenty-nine young bachelors of Fort Dade, Fla., have organized a club, each taking a solemn and binding obligation to get married in one year.

A Good Test.

For over sixteen years G. M. Everest, of Forest, has sold Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, and its sales are steadily increasing. It cures coughs, colds and all lung complaints; is pleasant to take and always reliable. 42-2t

Someone says: "No thoroughly occupied man was ever miserable." That man don't know what it is to attempt the feat of keeping twin babies quiet while their mother goes to church.

A Good Record.

Among the many thousand bottles of Hagyard's Yellow Oil sold annually in Canada not one has ever failed to give satisfaction. It cures rheumatism, colds and all painful complaints and injuries. 42-2t

The first instance of a blind man's being admitted to the practice of law is said to be that of Mr. Reed E. Beard, in Tippecanoe county, Indiana, who has learned it by hearing it read.

A Remarkable Recovery.

A council of doctors declared Mrs. Adelaide O'Brien, of 372 Exchange St., Buffalo, incurable. Her liver was badly disordered; she vomited green mucus; could retain no food; skin yellow and full of humors. She was rapidly sinking, but Burdock Blood Bitters cured her. 42-2t

According to the Drugman, potatoes do not absorb the arsenical preparations used for destroying the Colorado beetle, but the productiveness of the soil is impaired by the use of arsenic.

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second: It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

A student of New York names finds that Taylor keeps a clothing store; Brewer, a saloon; and Baker, a confectionery; that Reiter is a bookkeeper; Sellart, a salesman; Buyer, a buyer, and Scholar, a teacher.

Useful to Know.

Everyone should know that Hagyard's Yellow Oil will give prompt relief; applied externally will stop any pain; and taken internally cures colds, asthma, croup, sore throat and most inflammatory complaints.

The puppet show at Milan, which was the wonder of Dickens when there during his Italian tour, has been so enlarged and improved that many find it more entertaining than the poor performances at the Scala Theatre.

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, IS EXCELLENT IN LUNG TROUBLES.

Dr. Enoch Calloway, LaGrange, Geo., says: "I have used Scott's Emulsion with wonderful success in all Lung troubles, also find it has no equal in Summer Diarrhœa of children.

An English architect says that wooden houses can be built to last longer than brick or stone houses, and instances the fact that in many English towns wooden houses are standing and in daily use that were built 500 years ago.

Our Foreign Element.

As the great mass of the immigration has come since the year 1820, the numbers of the foreign element in the first and second degrees may be estimated with approximate accuracy from the number of persons of foreign birth and parentage given in the census returns of 1880. While 10,138,758 immigrants had landed in the United States from 1820 to the middle of 1880, there were in the country, in 1880, 14,955,996 persons of foreign birth or having one parent foreign-born. If from this sum we take 33,252, the surprisingly large number of persons of foreign birth having both parents born in the United States, who are for all the purposes of this study "natives," we have a population foreign in the first and second degrees of 14,922,744, of whom 6,679,943 were foreign-born. This number still does not represent quite all the new element, since a large number of small children figuring in the census of 1880 must have had parents of the younger generation of the new population born upon our soil. There is no record of these third-degree foreigners, of course, and we must proceed without regard to them, simply assuming that the figures relating to the old stock embrace a certain number, not proportionately large, who belong to the new. We may judge of the relation in which this mass of people of foreign birth and parentage stands to the population which we are accustomed to regard as the leaven of our nationality—the stock to which all other elements are to be assimilated if possible—by comparing it with the white population of native parentage. The whole population of the country, minus persons of foreign birth and parentage, native negroes, and Indians, is 28,601,676. This is not much more than half the population.—J. E. Chamberlin, in the September Century.

Prize fights in Colorado are carried on with some degree of style. The Sheriff accompanies the excursion train, disarms those on board, and then allows them to fight it out on the bare fist line if it takes all summer.

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum; the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52t

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted, "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

"Attempt at Poisoning."

Why do opposition agents attempt to poison the minds of the public in regard to the Tontine system of insurance, as used by the oldest and strongest companies in the world, which system has stood the test for years. Now used by the North American Insurance Company, because it is a good thing, and is carrying with it, and justly too, the bulk of life insurance to-day. See their agents for full particulars. Never Open your Mouth except to put something to eat into it, is an excellent motto for the gossip and the sufferer from catarrh. But while the gossip is practically incurable, there is no excuse for anyone suffering longer from catarrh Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is an unfailing cure for that offensive disease. It heals the diseased membrane, and removes the dull and despressed sensations which always attend Catarrh. A short trial of this valuable preparation will make the sufferer feel like a new being.

Canada Life.

At the last annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Canada Life Assurance Company, for which Geo. A. Cox, Esq., Peterborough is General Agent, the report of the directors, placed the affairs of the company in a most favorable light, demonstrating the safety of the institution as an investing medium, both to capitalists and insurers. In spite of the prevailing financial stringency, their showing was most satisfactory. The applications entertained for new insurance were 2,037, assuring $4,144,029, and producing a new premium income of $129,187.26. At the close of the company's fiscal year its total business embraced 17,430 policies on 13,987 lives, amounting to $32,252,128.39. The total income for the year was $1,209,932.83, and the payments of all kinds amounted to $579,317.15. The sum of $664,709.23 was added to the company's assets, which on April 30th, 1884, amounted to $6,263,841.56. The care which the company exercises in accepting applications, shown by the low death rate. The death claims, in number and amount, were very moderate, the mount being less by $193,040 than calculated by the actuaries of the company. This result gives both the assured and investors an additional confidence in the carefulness and solvency of the company, and in its stability.

Our New Watchmaker, Mr. Hughan, comes well recommended, and we are sure any work entrusted to him will be done in good style. Office lately occupied by Elias Burnham, Simcoe Steet. 18-tf

Turkeys, Geese, Ducks and Chickens, nicely dressed. Also choice saddles of Venison, Partridges, Pigeons, Quail, Snipe, Plover, Woodcock, Wild Ducks, and fresh Bass. Will buy in small or large quantities for cash.

SMITH'S MARKET,
George Street, Peterborough.

An Outside Investment.

The Lindsay Post says:—By his purchase of Indian Point farm, Mr. John Carnegie, M. P. P. of Peterborough, has become the owner of a large interest in North Victoria. He gave, we understand, $8,200 for the 1,300 or 1,400 acres. This is a low figure for the farm, and of course under Mr. Carnegie's liberal and enterprising ownership it will be greatly increased in value.

White and Grey Blankets, all wool, good value; also, a lot of white a little soiled, of good quality very cheap. John Erskine's.

Easily Ruffled.

The Lindsay papers complain of the evils of Sunday traffic on the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway. The soporific Lindsayites should have a little gratitude and ought to welcome, after the six days lethargy of their weekly lives, a little stirring up on Sunday. If the town had something of the standing of a city, such as Peterborough possesses, it would make less fuss over the matter. Here, every Sunday, we have the rush, rattle and whistle of trains as a regular accompaniment to Sunday sermons.

Turnbull's Show Rooms are now laden with choice Millinery to suit all ages. Now is the time to make a selection.

Complimentary Benefit.

A grand benefit entertainment will be given to Mr. Ormeston B. Dixon, in Bradburn's Opera House, on Thursday evening Oct. 20th. An excellent programme of songs and music has been provided, and Mr. Dixon will appear in his marvellous feats of ventriloquism. As Mr. Dixon has met with wonderful success in his career, his numerous friends in Peterborough have decided to give him this token of their appreciation. Come and give him a bumper house. Tickets of admission 25 and 35 cents. For further particulars see posters and programmes.

China Hall by Electric Light.

From the nature of the contents, China Hall, George street, is peculiarly adapted to display to the best advantage, the beauty of the electric light. On Saturday night the lamps were first used and the effects of the intense brilliancy of the light multiplied on every side, a thousand fold by the glittering facets of china, silver and glassware, can only be described as magnificent. The immense stock of beautiful and expensive goods was displayed with an effectiveness and effect, which the brightest day could not equal. The proprietor Mr. Macfarlane Wilson, while showing the greatest taste in the display and arrangement of h s goods, is not behind hand in enterprise, and will not allow himself to be out done in any respect.

The New Rink.

Rapid progress is being made in removing the Rink to the new quarters on Charlotte Street. When it is remembered that the building with cover all but a few feet of a half acre lot, some idea of the extent of the work may be gained. No effort will be spared to make the rink attractive both for skaters and curlers. The latter are especially glad to learn that there will be three rinks for curling, instead of two as heretofore, the building being widened for that purpose, and that the ice may be depended upon to be "true." The result of this is seen in the fact that the committee are already receiving the names of a large number of new members while the older members are more enthusiastic than ever. It is probable that the system of sweeping and sprinkling the ice, as carried out in the large rinks of Montreal and Toronwill be adopted, so that skaters will always be sure of fresh and perfect ice.

Some choice Astrachan Mantles at Turnbull's, personally selected from a very large stock. See these goods, you will be pleased with them.

A Local By-Election.

The nomination for candidates for councillor to represent No. 1 Ward, in place of the late S. F. Allin, took place yesterday, in the Mission school rooms, Dalhousie St., and the election will take place on Wednesday next. The following candidates were nominated;

John McNaughton, by C. W. Sawers, seconded by W. Brakenridge.

Wm. McRain, by Lewis Spry, seconded by Robert Hall.

W. G. Ferguson, by R. B. Mckee, seconded by Robert Hall.

A. McNeil, by H. W. Watson, seconded by Wm. Whyte.

R. B. McKee, by Robert Hall, seconded by W. G. Ferguson.

H. W. Watson, by R. B. McKee, seconded by George Taylor.

Blaze at Brodie's Woollen Mills.

About 7 o'clock on Saturday evening a fire was discovered in the dye works of Brodie's woollen mills. The fire alarm was at once sounded, and an attempt was made to reach and start the force pump in the lower story of the dye works, but the dense smoke made it impossible. In the meantime the Fire Brigade arrived and two streams were turned on the burning building. The firemen worked nobly, and it is to their energetic exertions, aided by willing citizens, that the flames did not spread to the main building. The fire proof picker room between the two buildings helped in preventing the spread of the flames. The dye works building which was of wood was, however, destroyed, with its contents. Mr. Hazlitt's loss, by this, amounts to about $2,500, covered by an insurance of $1,000 in the North British and Mercantile. Mr. Brodie's loss is also about $2,000, on which there is an insurance of $2,000, which, however, covered only $1,300 worth of stock destroyed, leaving the loss in fixings and furnishings about $700. The building will be rebuilt at once, work being begun on Monday morning. The mills have stock enough to keep them running about ten days. The dye works building will be pushed so that it will be ready for work in about two weeks, so that the mills will not be idle for more than a week. The fire started where the pipe from the furnace enters the first floor. Fire must have been smouldering in the sawdust filling of the walls, for Mr. Brodie was through the works about six o'clock and saw no sign of fire.

Just received per express, some handsome Scaletton at Turnbull's. Ordered Mantles a specialty in his department.

Rock Island Boots

hand made, just the thing for this kind of weather. For sale only at R. Stenson & Son's wholesale and retail Boot and Shoe Store. 43-tf.

St. John's Church.

The grand organ of St. John's church will hereafter have its breath supplied by mechanical power, furnished by a motor operated by the water works. A main pipe has been laid to the basement, and a hydraulic motor will be attached to the bellows of the organ. This water supply will admit of a small hydrant being placed in the grounds in rear of the church, for fire protection and other purposes.

A large stock of Grey All Wool Flannels; best makes, plain and twill, unusually cheap at J. Erskine's.

The Matched Race.

There was great interest taken in the matched trot between Brown's Fanny B. and Hetherington's "Brown Barber," at the Driving Park last Friday. The Barber took the first heat in fine style, by a length. The second heat was a tight one, but Fanny B. won it. The third and fourth heats, the Barber did not act well, and Fanny B. won these heats, and the race. The best time made was 2:48, in the second heat.

New Law Firm.

The public in need of legal advice will be interested in knowing that Messrs. Stone & Masson, of Mount Forest, have opened a law office in rooms above China Hall, George street. Mr. Masson is in town at present, and Mr. Stone, who is winding up some business at Mount Forest, will be here in a days. The members of the firm are vigorous energetic and capable, and will be found worthy of confidence in professional matters.

Mattress Factory.

Mr. C. M. Laudroum has opened a new industrial establishment in Paterson's block, Hunter street. It is a mattress factory, devoted solely to the manufacture of mattresses. House keepers will be specially interested, and it will be to their interest to call—they are specially invited to do so—and inspect mattresses and prices before leaving their orders elsewhere. The materials used are of the best, and prices will be found exceedingly reasonable. Give Mr. Laudroum a call.

Praiseworthy Liberality.

Messrs. T. G. Hazlitt and A. W. Brodie, have shown a commendable spirit of liberality in recognizing in a substantial manner, the services of the Fire Brigade during the recent fire at the Woollen Mills. The former sent the brigade a cheque for $50, and the latter a cheque for $25. The firemen are greatly pleased with these marks of appreciation, of which they are entirely deserving. Their pay, which hardly amounts to an indemnity, is small, and it is fitting that the hard work they perform and the valuable services they render in saving property from destruction, should be recognized by some thing substantial.

Interesting Services.

An endowment having been secured for St. Luke's church, Ashburnham, the parish is now constituted a rectory. The Lord Bishop will induct the clergyman as rector on Sunday morning next at 11 o'clock at St. Luke's church. The service of induction is a very novel and interesting one, and will no doubt be witnessed by a large congregation. The Bishop has kindly consented to preach on the occasion. At 3 o'clock on Sunday there will be a confirmation service in the same church, when the Bishop will administer the Apostolic Rite of laying on of hands to those who may be presented to him. The public are cordially invited to attend both services.

Red, White and Green.

At the regular meeting of court Peterboro', Canadian order of Foresters, held on Friday night, the principal business was the election of officers for the ensuing half yearly term. The election resulted as below:

R. McWhinnie	P. C. R.
Andrew McNeil	C. R.
Andrew McFarlane	V. C. R.
John Fraser	F. Sec.
John Fanning	R. Sec.
Geo. Kingdon	Treas.
Wm. Galy	Chap.
R. H. Adams	S. W.
T. Hooper, Jr.	J. W.
T. Marks	S. B.
Fred Perry	J. B.
R. King, M. D.	C. P.

A resolution of condolence with the widow of the late Bro. Allen was passed. The prospects of the court are exceedingly encouraging.

A Handsome Chair.

Mr. D. Belleghem has completed the upholstery of a magnificent Cleopatra chair, to be disposed of at the Roman Catholic bazaar to be held in the Opera House on Dec. 29th, in aid of the building fund of St. Peter's Cathedral. The framework of this superb seat is of ebonized cherry, with carved tracery picked out with gilding. The material of the seat is of olive green plush, held down with a spiral cord of intertwisted green and gold at the junction with the frame. Down the centre of the chair, from top to bottom, extends a broad band of plum velvet, richly embroidered with flowers. These flowers, which are worked in high relief in the most artistic manner, consist of moss roses with buds, leaves, pansies, marguerites and vines, to fill in the design. No description can give an idea of the rich effect of the embroidery, which was performed by the sisters of the Congregation de Notre Dame. The beautiful embroidery received justice in its setting by the excellent upholstering done by Mr. Belleghem, which is only on a par with the usual fine production of this department of his business. The chair may be seen at his furniture shop, Hunter Street.

PERSONAL.

Mr. R. D. Ewing, formerly of Peterboro', was in town for a few days this week.

Mr. James Salter, inspector of the London, Liverpool and Globe Insurance Company was in town a few days this week.

Mr. D. H. Moore, assisted in the institution of Moria Encampment, No. 59, I. O. O. F., at Belleville on Thursday night last.

Rev. Mr. John Shaw of Orillia, has been appointed to the Methodist Mission Rooms Toronto, and will necessarily reside in the city. His friends will be pleased to know that his new duties will not be so arduous as active work, and will be better adapted to his state of health.

Mr. J. M. Riddell, the newly appointed superintendant of the Midland Division of the Grand Trunk Railway, has entered upon his duties. He is courteous and energetic, as indeed he will have need to be, if, as we understand is proposed, he performs the duties of both superintendant and assistant.

Mr. C. Sheehy, Canadian passenger agent of the Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific Railway, was in town on Saturday and favoured us with a call. He informs us that Mr. Joseph A. Richardson, late of the Grand Trunk Railway, has been appointed travelling passenger agent of the above company for Canada, which has therefore secured a capable and painstaking officer.

Rev. Father Conway, of St. Peter's Cathedral, who has been to the seaside for about five weeks for the benefit of his health, has returned in a greatly improved condition. He was accompanied by Rev. Father Keilty, of Ennismore, who also returned with him. Last Sunday Father Conway celebrated his first mass in five months, at the Cathedral. He is now looking well. His improved health will be a source of pleasure to his parishioners and his many friends.

THE Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION.

Billets of Delegates.

The opening session of this convention will be held in the George-street Methodist Church on Thursday afternoon, 23rd Oct., at 2.30 o'clock. The afternoon's exercises will consist of devotional exercises and reports from the various local associations. The organization of the convention will also take place. On Thursday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, a short welcome meeting will be held, brief addresses to be given by Rev. E. F. Torrance, M.A., Messrs. Geo A. Cox and J. F. Jeffers, with replies by delegates. The session will also include discussion of the following topics:—"Why should our work continue to be especially for young men," and "What can we do with young men socially?" to be opened by Secretary Badge, of Montreal. All the sessions of the convention, both in the day time and evening, are open to the public, and a cordial invitation is extended to our townspeople. The proceedings will doubtless interest all who can be present. The delegates will arrive by the noon trains on Thursday and proceed at once to houses of their hosts. The following is a partial list of delegates and their hosts. As many of the Associations have not yet sent the names of intending delegates, we cannot give a full list. LAKEFIELD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

A meeting of the directors of Smith, Lakefield, &c., Agricultural Society took place in the Council Chamber on Monday, 20th inst. Present,—Mr. John Garbutt, President; and Messrs. Alex. Fitzgerald, Geo. W. Fitzgerald, McKibbin, Bickle, J. C. Sherin, Caldwell and T. E. Bell.

Minutes of former meeting were read and confirmed.

A protest was entered by Mr. Wm. Collins against a thoroughbred cow showed by Mr. R. C. Strickland, on account of a flaw in the pedigree. Mr. R. C. Strickland explained that he was aware of the flaw and had entered her as a grade, but the Secretary refused to accept her as a grade and had entered her as a thoroughbred. It, therefore, was not his (Mr. Strickland's) fault. The Board expressed their satisfaction with Mr. Strickland's explanation.

Mr. R. C. Strickland had also entered a protest against those shown by Mr. Wm. Collins. Mr. Collins showed that the pedigree of his thoroughbreds was correct.

It was moved by Mr. Caldwell, seconded by Mr. J. C. Sherin, that as Mr. Strickland had entered the cow in the proper class the matter stand as it is.

An amendment was moved by Geo. W. Fitzgerald, seconded by Mr. Alex. Fitzgerald, that there be no third prize for thoroughbred cows.

The amendment carried.

FORESTRY.

The court meets this evening. Election of officers will be the principal business.

COUNCIL.

A special meeting of the Council was held on Monday evening. Present,—Councillors Cox and McWilliams, the Reeve in the chair.

The following accounts were ordered to be paid:—Mr. Isaac Watson, wages, $23.68; Mr. Wigg, plank, $26.25; W. H. Casement, nails, $3.75.

Mr. David Smith was heard in reference to a street running down into the river. He wished to get the street and give another in lieu, &c.

Mr. Isaac Watson was authorized to spend $15 in cleaning up the islands recently purchased by the village; the work to be done under the supervision of the Clerk.

Another Brakeman Killed.

On Saturday afternoon a brakeman named George Goodfellow, well known in town as a former employe of the Midland Railway, was running along his train on the Credit Valley Railway, near Streetsville, when he fell between the cars, a large number passing over his body, cutting it in pieces. Deceased was a native of Springville, where the body was taken on Sunday night, accompanied by his young wife to whom he was only recently married. Deceased was about 25 years of age.

Real Estate Transfer.

An important transfer of Real Estate has been recently made. The auction sale of the Wm. Eastland property advertised to have taken place yesterday, was anticipated by Mr. Geo A. Cox, who purchased the property by private bargan. The property consists of a quarter acre lot on the south side of Simcoe street, and brick cottage, the land on George street, on which stands the giant T, and Mr. Tully's drug store, and half an acre on Hunter street containing several tenement houses.

TWO WAYS

To Win Trade!

There are two ways to win trade—as of old. One to deserve it and wait; the other to advertise—and get it. Not all who wait deserve it! not all who wait get it. But in our case publicity helps what ought to be helped. We've hitched our cart to the newspaper, and it is bound to go. Our local newspapers are enterprising, and we're part of the benefit of their success.

We're ready with the largest, and in every way the best stock, that we've ever packed in for the Fall and Winter trade.

It's divided in proper proportion into goods for Men's, Youths, and Boys wear, for Ladies', Misses and Girls garniture.

Our whole stock is well selected, and has many admirable features—features that add to the beauty and use of the goods, without adding to their cost.

If you're a masculine, let us make your clothing; you'll find that our styles are faultlessly correct, our Tweeds and Cloths, reliable in quality; our work is perfect in fit and excellent in finish.

To these we add other points, all esteemed by admirers of Good Clothing.

Dress Goods.

About our Dress Goods Stock, we wish to say in general that nothing can at all approach the superb exhibition of these goods, as we display them. It's not only the largest to which we've ever called your attention but is in range of colors and qualities, the most perfect, not one of the many classes of goods in public favour being wanting to complete our list.

Whatever we do we mean to do well, we try to do well. If our functions are only that of tradesmen we mean to make it good by doing it well. Ours is the old homely rule: "do as you'd be done by," set up in general trade.

And our prices are as low as elsewhere—and lower in many lines.

Farm For Sale.

That Valuable Farm composed of Lot No. 11, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Douro, containing 200 acres more or less. There are from 130 to 140 acres cleared and in a good state of cultivation 60 acres being in grass. The balance is in hardwood and mixed wood bush. On the property is a Good Frame Dwelling, 18x24, and Frame Barn, 30x60. The farm is well watered with springs and well, and is situated within 3 miles of the Town of Peterborough, and 3 of the Village of Lakefield, having good roads leading to it. As Mr. Nelson is giving up farming, the property must be disposed of. Terms easy. Apply to Messrs. J. C. Sherin, Lakefield, John A. Hartley, Peterborough, or the proprietor, on the premises.

DWELLING HOUSE! AND LOT FOR SALE

That Excellent Property belonging to MR. F. H. DOBBIN, situated on the bank of the river.

IN ASHBURNHAM,

nearly opposite the Dickson Estate Mills, is offered for sale. There is nearly Two-thirds of an acre in the lot, which is well adapted for gardening. The house is warm and comfortable, solid strip, plastered and clapboarded. Parlour, Sitting-Room, Kitchen and Pantry on lower floor. Five Bedrooms with Closets on second floor. House story and one-half high. New Cistern in cellar, with pump and conveniences. Well in the yard. The grounds are well shaded. This is a good opportunity to any farmer moving into town to secure a residence.

☞For particulars apply to JOHN BURNHAM, Solicitor, Peterborough; or to 35- F. H. DOBBIN, Lindsay.

FINE FARM FOR SALE.

That beautifully located Farm.

The West half of lot 26, in the 12th Concession of Otonabee.

Situated east of the old Cobourg Railway. The property comprises 88 acres more or less. The soil is excellent and well adapted to gardening purposes. Its situation is very desirable, it being only one mile from the market square, and commanding a fine view of the town of Peterborough. Since the property came into possession of its present proprietor, over $4,000 has been spent on its improvement. It is one of the best watered farms in Ontario, being supplied by a never-failing spring well, so situated as to provide ten feet head. From this are laid nearly 700 feet of iron piping. At a distance of 240 feet from the spring this pipe leads to a watering trough in the barn. A continuation of the pipe carries the overflow from this, 440 feet further to another watering trough into another field. From the latter the overflow passes into a tile drain on the road side, and thence away. This pipe is provided with two taps, by which the water supply to the stock may be regulated. This water supply makes the farm eminently fitted for grazing purposes; stock can be supplied with continual access to an unlimited supply of pure living water. Or for market gardening the facilities for irrigation would admit of setting dry seasons at defiance, this together with the proximity to a first class market (only one mile) makes this farm unequaled for this purpose.

For either a gentleman of leisure who wishes to devote his retirement to agricultural pursuits, or for a pushing man who desires to make money, this farm for fertility of soil, water supply, beauty of situation and convenience to town, can have no superior.

TERMS: One thousand dollars to be paid down when deeds are handed over, the balance may remain on the property at 6 per cent interest for any term agreed upon.

For further particulars apply to JOSEPH REDMOND.

Induction Ceremonies and Services.

Rev. W. C. Bradshaw Inducted as Rector of St. Luke's.

On Sunday morning last, the Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto, inducted Rev. W. C. Bradshaw, as Rector of St. Luke's. The parish has shown remarkable progress under the incumbency of Rev. Mr. Bradshaw—to which we shall refer more fully hereafter—a circumstance that invests his elevation to the position of Rector, with peculiar interest and appropriateness. There was on Sunday a large attendance of the congregation and and the public, and the ceremonies of the induction, as well as the succeeding services conducted by his Lordship, Rev. V. Clementi and the Rector, were exceedingly impressive and edifying. In the afternoon his Lordship administered the rite of confirmation to a large number of candidates.

The sermon preached by the Bishop at the morning service was of such unusual appositeness and excellence that we have much pleasure in publishing a verbatim report of the Induction Sermon.

I. THESS., v., 12, 13.—"We beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake."

"There can be no question,' said the Bishop, "on whose behalf St. Paul urges this beseeching plea. They are the presbyters and bishops of the Christian church. A slight contrast is intended to the precepts contained in the verse preceding, where he had exhorted the Thessalonian Christians to the mutual duty of comforting and edifying one another. He would not, in urging to this duty, overlook what was due from them to those whose especial and appointed office it was to comfort and edify. And this is why the New Testament revisers have made the apparently trival alteration of the connecting particle between the verses from "and" to "but." "Comfort yourselves together and edify one another: but we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord and admonish you; and to esteem very highly for their work's sake." We are thus very naturally led to the first division of the subject presented to our thoughts by this passage—the

DUTY AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN MINISTRY.

St. Paul represents the functions of Christian pastors under three aspects: they labour among you; they are over you in the Lord; they admonish you. The first of these may be taken to remind us of their pastoral office; the second of their authoritative commission; the third of their pulpit ministrations.

One of the claims then which the faithful minister has upon the care and affection of his people arises from that relation he bears towards them, which is specially characteristic of the Church of England, of their pastor, all that is involved in fulfilling the duties of the parish priest:—that he "labours among them." I adhere to this interpretation of St. Paul's meaning, put upon it by our translation, as truer and infinitely more instructive than the bald rendering suggested by many scholars—"they bestow labour upon you." It is among his people, as a shepherd among his sheep, that the true pastor labours. That would be a poor and ineffectual ministry, indeed, that was confined to the discharge, however regular, and talented and acceptable, of the duties of the pulpit.

It is not in the opportunities of the Sunday alone, great as they are, that the minister of Christ seeks the exercise of his office towards the souls of men, but in the pastoral intercourse of the working days of the week. It is here that his lies, his truest successes will be won. Therefore he is found not always in the study diligently searching the Scriptures, that he may bring forth, for the edification of his hearers, out of the treasure-house, things new and old; but frequently, day by day, in the streets and lanes of his parish, in the homes of his flock. St. Paul fitly describes these daily pastoral duties of the ministerial office as labours—not in reference to their burdensomeness, but from the incessant nature of their demands and the earnestness with which the work needs to be done. It is no mere "dilletante" occupation that the clergyman undertakes, that may be taken up or laid aside at pleasure; but a serious, urgent business, the most serious and urgent that a man can devote his life to, that does not bear to be trifled with, postponed or neglected. Nothing could be more erroneous than the very common idea, that a clergyman's life is a very light and otiose profession, giving him only one day's work in the week—that whilst the man of business is closely engaged in the office or warehouse, the farmer toiling from sunrise to sunset, with the sweat of his brow, in the fields or the bush, he alone has nothing to do but to rest after his last Sunday's exertions or prepare his sermon for the next. This is not true of any parish clergyman; it is not even possible for him, under his circumstances; much less would he allow it to be true, were it possible, if he is faithful. Reflect what are the calls upon the pastor's time and strength; there are the sick to be visited regularly with the consolations of religion, the bedsides of the dying to be cheered with the hopes of immortality, the failing eyes to be pointed to Him who is alone able to save—there are the wandering sheep to be sought out; the absentees from the services of the church to be enquired after—there is the

of the whole parish to be kept up, for the private ministrations of reading, instruction and prayer, for the overnight and keeping together of the flock, for the better acquaintance with the several circumstances and surroundings, the special spiritual conditions of each, for the finding out of strangers as they newly come into the parish. And in this continual going in and out among his people, a variety of responsible duties fall upon him; he is called to be the comforter of the sorrowing and bereaved, the instructor of the enquirer; the counsellor of the doubting, the succourer of the distressed; the peace-maker between brethren that are at variance; the bold witness against sin and ungodliness; the gentle restorer of the penitent. Then, besides these duties of visiting are the multifarious professional engagements which crowd the week—the week-day services and Bible class, the preparation of candidates for confirmation, the various benevolent organizations, congregational and young people's social meetings, and the like. In fact, in these days of intense activity and multiplied agencies especially in large town and city parishes, the danger rather threatens to be lest a clergyman's time and energies be ruitlessly frittered away in the manifold details of official duties. His character is thus tnot of an ease-taker and idler, but of one who "labours among you."

A second title which the clergy have to the affectionate esteem of their people is that they are

"OVER THEM IN THE LORD."

They possess an authority derived from above, a commission from the chief shepherd and Bishop of souls. This is a position which must be carefully guarded from misconception and abuse. Scripture warns us very plainly against shepherds who seek to lord it over the Lord's heritage. Those who arrogate to themselves a superiority of dominance over their flocks are unfaithful to their true character. It has been pointed out that the pastoral office is "ministeri um non-magisterium," that is a ministry not a magistracy; and the same Apostle who here claims for the presbytery of the church the very higest esteem of its members, on the ground that they are "over them in the Lord," elsewhere declares of himself and his fellow labourers, "We preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord and ourselves, your servants for Jesus' sake." Nor is any countenance to be derived from this passage to the assumption made by some that the priesthood of the christian church are endowed with supernatural gifts and powers. They are not either mediating or sacrificing priests, to claim it is to

of our profession who has made the one only sacrifice of himself once for ever, who is the one only Mediator between God and man; they have no right to exercise control over another man's conscience, to extort confession of sins or to impose penance; they have no power to forgive sins or to absolve from the guilt of sin, this would be impiously to invade the Divine prerogative. But they are "over" the people of God "in the Lord.' Set over them by His divine call and the authority of the church to be their lawful teachers, their spiritual guides, to administer to them the sacraments of grace. These are days when there is a great disposition to dispute the claims of authority and rebel against them—especially divinely derived claims—they are essentially and the levelling is all in a downward direction. Unhappily, even within our own church, there are men who do not hesitate to question the authority of the christian ministry, who resent this statement of the Apostle that their spiritual teachers are over them in the Lord, men who not having the grace of humility to sit and hear what God the Lord has to speak to them by the mouth of His appointed servant, must constitute themselves teachers and usurp the office of spiritual guides, justifying their position by the argument that every man who is truly taught by the spirit of God in the truth of God is equally competent, and has an equal right to be an instructor and leader of other men in the ways of God, though he be not an ordained minister. Undoubtedly, in its proper aspect, this argument is true. But it must be remembered that in which to seek to impart to his brother the saving knowledge of which, by the grace of God, he has the key. There is the home circle, the household, of which every head is the priest, there is the large opportunity of daily intercourse with men, there is the Bible class, above all there is the Sunday school. In these spheres every christian who has obtained a personal knowledge of the way of salvation is in duty bound to use his talent for the Master's profit, every one who is concerned for the salvation of souls can and will find an ample and lawful field. But this is different from slighting and deserting the christian ministry, from denying its authority in the church as from Christ Himself. God is not the author of confusion. He has constituted and ordained divers orders of ministry in the church "He gave some apostles, and some prophets, and some evangelists, and some pastors and teachers, for the perfecting of the saints (i. e. of christians generally,) for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ. One familiar figure which St. Paul uses for the christian ministry is sufficient to illustrate to us the sense in which he here speaks of those who "are over us in the Lord." He says, "Now then, we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us." No stronger assertion is possible of the

DIVINE AUTHORITY OF GOD'S MINISTERS

It affirms, with inspired and incontrovertible voice, that they come to us accredited from the court of the Most High King, bearers of a message to man entrusted to them by Him, authorized to speak in His name and stead, to be his mouth-piece, instructed by His spirit in His mind and will, and moreover responsible in their high and privileged office with an awful responsibility, a responsibility of blood guiltiness, a responsibility under which you my lay brethern do not lie, which none of you can possibly incur, except by entering the sacred ministry, to deliver their message as they have received it from Him, not adding to or diminishing from it—what the Lord saith, nothing more, nothing less This is the second ground on which St. Paul beseeches you to esteem very highly your spiritual pastor. Of the third ground, "that they admonish you." I will only remark that this aspect of their pulpit teachings and private exhortations makes a demand upon your submission and humble teachableness of mind. Men are mostly impatient of admonitions, they like to be entertained by the preacher with interesting, well composed and pleasant discourses, an ingenious exposition of an exegetical difficulty, or a fluent essay on a moral subject, or a piece of Scripture history nicely analyzed and pointed with its moral, pleases them well enough, but not so well a searching home-thrust exhortation to the personal duties of the christian life. Yet this is the true characteristic of Gospel preaching, it is essentially admonishing. The minister who is faithful to his trust will not shrink for fear of incurring the displeasure of his congregation, from declaring to them the whole counsel of God. He will be bold to rebuke prevailing sins, to warn with plain voice, of the awful consequences of indulged unbelief, spiritual carelessness or ungodliness of living; he will be fearless in insisting upon the need to turn from the world and the love of it to God and the following of Him, in order to flee from the wrath to come, in calling those who esteem themselves righteous, as well as the sinners, to repentance, in holding up the Cross of Christ, in all its humiliation and denial of self, as the only hope of reconciliation with God, of peace and pardon here and life everlasting hereafter; the following of Christ in the footsteps of His most holy life as the only path that must be daily trodden to arrive at Heaven at last, and the Holy Spirit of God as who can alone order the unruly will and affections of sinful men, enabling them both to understand and to believe, to will and to do of His good pleasure. When this difficult and too often thankless duty is undertaken and courageously performed by the Christian minister under the constraining influence of a tender care for his people's souls, it entitles him not to their censure and antagonism, but to their loving esteem.

And what is the attitude of regard which St. Paul bespeaks from Christian people for those who fulfil towards them these attributes which we have been considering? He says, "We beseech you, brethren, to know them, and to in love, for their work's sake." To know them, as he uses the expression, is more than to cultivate an intimate, personal acquaintance with them, which, of course, is most desirable. The word, employed only here in the same sense in the Greek Testament, is acknowledged to be a Hebraism and has the extended signification of being acquainted with the nature and character of their work, with their estate and condition, of having a care for their well-being. This is a bounden duty of every congregation—not to be ignorant or unmindful of their pastor's manifold labours and anxieties; not to be careless and indifferent whether in temporal things he abounds or is in want; but from an intelligent and grateful knowledge of the one, to charge themselves willingly with the care of the other.

And a very high esteem, coupled with a feeling of personal affection, is his due from them

FOR HIS WORK'S SAKE.

It is not superfluous to enforce this plea in behalf of Christian pastors upon the attention of Christian congregations; because they are apt to measure the respect and love they should pay their minister by his own personal qualifications. If he is learned they will respect him; if he is eloquent, they will admire him; if he is agreeable in person and manners they will be proud of him; if he is possessed of amiable, social qualities, they will love him; if not, well, perhaps they will put up with him. But his claims upon these returns of honour, esteem and affection from his people rests not upon these accidents of his personal qualities, but upon the broad and invariable essentials of his high and holy and blessed work. For his work's sake, independent of his own great merits or maybe his unfortunate defects, we beseech you to esteem him very highly in love. And, indeed, the minister of Christ

NEEDS ALL THE ENCOURAGEMENT

that the esteem of righ, judging minds and the sympathy of loving hearts can give. His labours are arduous, often discouraging. He meets with much opposition, much misconstruction. Often is his heart bowed down in heaviness, his spirit depressed with disappointment, his soul torn with anxieties as he goes about his daily work, contemplating the vastness and overwhelming importance of the task laid upon him and the feebleness of his own powers to accomplish any results, exclaiming in a spirit of despondency, "Who is sufficient for these things?" Often is he constrained to weep over the obduracy of the evil heart of unbelief against the calls, the loving persuasions and remonstrances of Divine mercy, when the complaint is forced from his heart, "Who hath believed our report?"

Yes, brethren, he needs sorely the strength of soul, the refreshment of spirit, the upholding of the hands which you, the laity, can give him, which it is your duty to give him, in the grateful recognition of his

the esteem in which you hold his sacred office, the love you show him for his work's sake, and above all, the fervent prayers with which you follow his endeavours. Do not allow yourselves in criticism of his teaching or manners; do not constitute yourselves judges of his doctrine; do not hastily pass opinion upon the way in which he discharges his pastoral duties; but receive him as set over you in the Lord, and for his work's sake accord him your very high esteem, your very cordial love.

I have thought these remarks putting you in remembrance of the duty and office of the christian ministry, and how the people ought to esteem christian ministers in their office, to be called for by the interesting occasion which has brought me amongst you today. It is with feelings of deep satisfaction that I induct your pastor into the more permanent position and rights of Rector of this Parish. The step which you have taken as a congregation, in providing a certain amount of perpetual endowment, so as to secure the status of a settled parish, is one of great importance and significance. I congratulate you upon having had the foresight to take it. You have thereby provided not only a contingency against unforeseen and unpreventible emergencies of depression or change of circumstances which might at any time weaken your financial ability, but a reasonable expectation of always being able to secure and retain the services of a thoroughly efficient clergyman. Your parish is now in an excellent condition, with a good church and school house and an excellent parsonage, a small endowment and an element of stability, you have always that to offer which will be an inducement to any earnest devoted pastor, and will be able to commend superior attainments.

But it affords me still deeper satisfaction to know that in your present Pastor, who today becomes your Rector, you have realized those characteristics and qualities of the christian minister which are laid down by St. Paul, and that he has been so happy as to win from you no small measure of that love and esteem which St. Paul enjoins as the due from people to pastor.

I pray that these holy, blessed and edifying relations may long subsist between you and grow in strength and intensity, that your Rector may be more and more abundant in labours among you, more and more manifestly the sent ambassador of the Lord, more and more faithful in admonishing, exhorting and beseeching you in His name, and that the years of familiar intercourse as they roll on may only increase the intimacy with which you know his work and the kindness with which you care for his necessary wants deepen the reverence you entertain for his sacred office, and strengthen the feelings of affectionate esteem with which you regard him for his work's sake. That when the solemn day comes that he will have to give an account of your souls, he may be able to do it with joy and not with grief, and having in his office as a shepherd over the flock of Christ been faithful unto death, he may when the chief shepherd shall appear, receive the crown of life that fadeth not away.

Mr. Henry Harding, of Toronto, writes: My little daughter, 7 years of age, has been a terrible sufferer this winter from rheumatism, being for weeks confined to her bed, with limbs drawn up, which could not be straightened, and suffering great pain in every joint of her limbs, arms and shoulders. The best of physicians could not help her, and we were advised to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, which we did, and the benefit was at once apparent; after using two bottles the pain left, her limbs assumed their natural shape, and in two weeks she was as well as ever. It has not returned.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Special Session.

A special meeting of the town council was held on Monday night. Members present, Messrs. Kelly, Green, Millar, Yelland, Douglass, Rutherford, Kendry, Hartley and Monsion. The latter, in the absence of the Mayor, took the chair.

Various communications and petitions referring to taxes, street improvements, building and charity, were received and disposed of, including one from Messrs. Dumble and Henry, demanding $100 for James Kearney, for injuries sustained by falling into the unprotected portion of the creek on Hunter street; and one from Mr. E. B. Edwards, giving his opinion that churches were not liable to special tax for hydrants; also petitions from W. F. Johnston, Thos. Parrington, C. Robinson, J. E. Kearney, M. Dobson and W. H. Lyons, each asking to be appointed night watchman. The latter were referred to the Committee on Appointments.

Accounts:—E. Connors, cutting wood, $2.00, and M. McFadden, Sr., contract for drain on Donald street, $60 were paid.

FINANCE.

Mr. Davidson, chairman, presented the report of the Finance Committee, recommending the payment of the following accounts, The Metropolitan Grocery, $10.00; William H. Wrighton, $4.50; Roswell and Hutchinson, $1.00; P. P. Home, $4.00; Rubber Co., $10; John Doherty, $1.25; Gas Company, $50.95; R. B. McKee, $99.12; A. McDonald, $323.42; Dickson estate, $958.51; T. Laplante, $3.50; J. R. Stratton, $157.55.—Report adopted.

ELECTRIC STREET LIGHTING.

Mr. Rutherford, chairman, reported that in compliance with the communication of Mr. A. White, the Fire, Water and Gas committee recommended that six electric lamps be placed on George street at the intersection, of McDonel, Murray, Brock, Hunter, Simcoe and Charlotte streets, at the rate of 25 cents per light per night. The Gas Company to be notified that on and after Dec. last next, the lights on the above points would be discontinued.

Mr. Rutherford said we paid $300 for gas in the same territory, and with the proposed change we got 90 nights more of light, moonlight not being taken into account. He thought the light would be a great improvement in lighting the business portion of the town.

On motion to adopt the report, Mr. Cahill said he was favorable to the electric light, but he objected to the distribution of the lamps. The south ward, owing to Mr. Allin's death, had no representative on the committee. The chief business part of the town was between the Post Office and the railway stations. The upper part of George street was unnecessarily well supplied. Mr. Douglass and Mr. Hartley did not object to the extension down George street, but wanted the other lights further north to remain.

Messrs. Kelly, Green and Kendry, agreed that 12 o'clock was too early to put out the lights. After midnight was the very time when a light was needed—the hours when burglars operated. Mr. Rutherford said keeping the lights on all night would be too expensive to start with.

Mr. Kelly insisted that Mr. Rutherford should make arrangements to have the lights burning all night.

Mr. Rutherford thought the additional expense would be $200, but if the council was willing he was, but under the present contract we could not dispense with more gas lamps to extend the proposed number. If the council could have time to give the six months notice the lights could be hereafter extended.

Mr. Cahill moved that the report be amended by placing extra lights at the corner of King and George and Dalhousie and George streets.

Mr. Douglass favored postponing the matter till next meeting of the council.

Mr. Millar said he was strongly in favour of the electric light, but equally decided for having the lights burning all night.

Mr. Kelly moved in amendment to the amendment, seconded by Mr. Millar, that the report be referred back to the committee, with power to ascertain the cost of keeping the electric light in operation till day-light, to report at next meeting.

Mr. Cahill withdrew his amendment and Mr. Kelly's amendment was agreed to.

CHARITY.

Mr. Green, chairman, reported recommending that the account of James Hope, $12, keeping the boy Manning, be paid.—Adopted.

YELLAND'S SIDING.

On a motion to give the first reading of a by-law to permit the putting in of a siding on Mr. Yelland's property on Bethune street.

Mr. Douglass moved, seconded by Mr. Kelly, that the by-law be not read a first time, but referred to the town solicitor, to find out if it contained proper provisions for compensating property owners affected, for damages they might sustain.

The by-law was read a first and second time, and Mr. Douglass' amendment agreed to.

IMPROVEMENTS.

On motion of Mr. Kendry, seconded by Mr. Hartly, the special committee on Building was instructed to repair the roof of the fire hall, the town teamster's house and put a cover over the weigh scales.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Hartley, that the town treasurer pay to the treasurer of the Fire Brigade the sum of $60.—Carried.

On motion of Mr. Rutherford, seconded by Mr. Yelland, the street inspector was instructed to build a platform in front of Mr. Tully's store, corner Aylmer and McDonnell streets.

On motion of Mr. Hartley, seconded by Mr. Kendry, the inspector was to build a walk on Union street, and also to make an approach to McDonald's eating house at the O. & Q. station.

POLICE PROTECTION.

Mr. Millar called attention to the resolution in respect to the police force, and the clerk read the resolutions passed at the citizen's meeting.

Mr. Kelly, chairman of the committee on appointments, gave the information that the committee had appointed two extra men to go on every night with one of the policemen, and the mayor was requested to enquire in Toronto for a chief of police.

Mr. Davidson moved, seconded by Mr. Cahill, that the collector issue posters, calling on the rate payers to pay their taxes before the first of December and save five per cent.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the clerk be instructed to communicate with the chief Engineer of the O. & Q. R. R. at once, requesting him to cause approaches to their railway at the several crossings west of George street to be put in a proper state of repair, and also to provide an outlet for the water course on Chamberlain street, now impeded by the construction of said railway.

On motion of Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Cahill, the town Commissioners were required to send in to the council a statement of the receipts and expenditures of the year.

Council adjourned till to-night (Thursday.)

Rev. J. McLaurin, Canadian Baptist Missionary to India, writes: "During our stay in Canada, we have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil with very great satisfaction. We are now returning to India, and would like very much to take some with us, for our own use and to give to the diseased heathen.

The Interprovincial Convention.

Good Attendance of Delegates—Success Reported all along the Line—Discussion of Methods—Work for Young Men by Young Men—A Most Successful Convention.

The opening session of the fifteenth Provincial convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations, of the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario, began in the George street Methodist church, on Thursday afternoon, Oct. 22nd. There was an attendance of about thirty delegates, and Mr. John Gartshore of Toronto, secretary of the Provincial Executive committee, occupied the chair. The proceedings were opened by devotional exercises—hymns, sung with unusual fervour and excellence of execution by the delegates—and silent prayer.

BIBLE EXPOSITION.

Dr. Barnardo, of London, England, was introduced and said he was sorry that he was compelled to leave for England to-night, and was deprived of the pleasure of attending the future meetings of the convention. He took a deep interest in the Young Men's Christian Association and spoke highly of the influence for good it exercised upon the world. He then proceeded to give an exposition of the 34th verse of the 28th chapter of Exodus, and gave a remarkably clear, forcible and practical address.

Prayer was offered by Mr. E. D. Ingersoll, New York, after which Mr. Henry Hawkins of Port Hope, was elected secretary, and the chairman nominated the following committee on permanent organization:—Messrs. R. Henderson, chairman, Montreal; J. D. Nasmith Toronto; Wm. Craig, Port Hope; J. Frith, Jeffers, Peterborough; Charles Midgley, Hamilton. Temporary business committee: Messrs. D. A. Budge, Montreal; D. B. Gardner, Peterborough and W. H. Stevens, Sherbrooke, P. Q.

The organization committee's report was subsequently presented and adopted as follows:—President, R. Kilgour, Toronto; vice Presidents. D. W. Ross, Montreal, Geo. A. Cox, Peterborough, and S. Tapscott, Brantford; Secretary, H. Hawkins, Port Hope; Assistant secretary, F. Pratt, Montreal.

The president on taking the chair said he took a deep interest in the association work, for to it he owed his conversion and Christian life.

LOCAL WORK REPORTS.

Mr. W. H. Stevens of Sherbrooke, P. Q., said the town had 8,000 inhabitants, of which about ⅓ was protestant. The work was progressing well, and there were many conversions to give encouragement. He suggested the advisability of the travelling secretary visiting Quebec.

Mr. R. C. Morse, of New York, gave a brief sketch of the Berlin International Conference, which was the most successful ever held. The origin of the association work in Germany was described, also the great success and growth of the work in Berlin, especially where the membership had in one and a half years grown from 11 to 900.

Mr. J. J. Gartshore gave an account of the wonderful success of the association in Eglinton, the many conversions being a gratifying feature of the work.

Mr. H. B. Gordon, speaking in reference to the Toronto association, said that the work, especially the past year, had been exceedingly fruitful in conversions. Seven hundred devotional meetings had been held, with an aggregate attendance of fifty thousand.

Mr. Unsworth, of the McGill College Association, Montreal, gave most encouraging reports of the success of the work there. The Association was organized last spring, and the most intense interest was shown in its work, and there had been several conversions. Even the medical students were found to have some good and some longings for good in them.

Mr. H. E. Kendall and Mr. D. A. Budge also gave encouraging reports of the work in connection with McGill College. The indications showed the probability of a great revival in the College.

Rev. J. F. Jeffers here offered a brief prayer.

Mr. Charles Midgley said the work in Hamilton had had a great revival and the prospects were most encouraging.

Mr. W. C. Jex, Toronto, referred to the Railroad department of the work in that city. The work had been in a depressed condition, but he thanked God there was a "red signal hung out"—there was something coming. Work was being done in the city as well as on the line.

Mr. Baltson, of the Canadian Pacific Association, gave an outline of the work done.

Mr. W. Craig, jr., of Port Hope, briefly referred to the work in this town.

C. B. Truesdale, Guelph, stated that the work there had been in a sinking condition, but the appointment of a permanent secretary had aroused it, the membership was increasing and the work reviving.

Mr. J. F. Jeffers, president, gave an account of the work in Peterborough, speaking highly of the important services given by the permanent secretary, Mr. Williams. The work was progressing favorably, and there was a prospect of securing a new building. Though not doing all that might be done, yet there was great cause for encouragement.

Mr. R. Henderson, Montreal, spoke encouragingly of the work being done in that city.

The session closed by devotional exercises, Mr. M. Conger, of Picton, offering prayer.

EVENING SESSION.

In the evening the session of the convention was held in the body of the church. There was a fair attendance of the public.

Singing was preliminary to the regular devotional exercises, which were conducted by Rev. E. A. De St. Dalmas, who led in prayer.

THE CHURCHES' WELCOME.

Rev. Mr. Torrance, welcoming the convention on behalf of the churches, said he did so heartily. The convention did not come as denominationalists, but as simple Christians, and served to bring the different branches of the church together, as the Evangelical Alliance and the Sabbath School conventions had done, and powerful as these agencies had been, he held that the Y.M.C.A. had been even more effectual in this direction. The church was alive to the fact that the young men were its hope, and that young men were exposed to multiform and potent temptations and dangers, and as the Y.M.C.A. specially looks after the welfare of young men their efforts were highly valued by the church. Multitudes of young men were without home associations and influence and not within reach of the regular ministrations of the church, whose social functions were not as hearty as might be. Therefore the association came to their help. The importance of finding counter attractions to saloons and theatres, such as the association provided, was emphasized, and for these several reasons the reverend speaker, on behalf of the churches, warmly welcomed the convention to Peterborough.

THE FREEDOM OF THE TOWN.

Geo. A. Cox, Esq., Mayor, on behalf of the town, welcomed the convention. Although he might not welcome the convention as eloquently as the previous speaker, yet he would not be behindhand in cordiality, sincerity and earnestness. He appreciated the work of the association, which, in this town, had shown increased activity and influence since Mr Williams had become permanent secretary. He was encouraged to believe that the future was most hopeful. He hoped that the next time the convention met here, which might be often, that there would be a new and suitable building ready for holding their meetings. (Cheers.) The speaker took great pleasure in welcoming the convention to the town with the utmost sincerity and cordiality, and he hoped their sessions would be most agreeable and prosperous.

FRATERNAL WELCOME.

Mr. J. F. Jeffers extended welcome on behalf of the local association. There were representatives from Quebec and towns of Ontario, and also distinguished workers from the United States, and all these received from the local association a hearty welcome—a not wholly unselfish one, for they hoped to be encouraged and built up in their work and see a heartier public sympathy aroused. The one idea of the practical work of the Association was to make young men Christians, and to this end Christian young men were employed as special means. The active members must be members in good standing in some evangelical church; they must be moral young men, who received in the Association what the churches did not give, the benefits of Christian association and fellowship. The association was a part of the church, the skirmishers who go into the highways and search out young men. It was the "forlorn hope" of the church—a voluntary band of workers; their means derived by voluntary contributions. The convention was welcomed not only for these reasons, but because the local association felt the compliment involved in the visit of the convention.

THANKS.

Mr. D. A. Budge, on behalf of the visiting brethren, had great pleasure in returning thanks for kindly words of welcome, which were fully appreciated. The hospitality of the temporary homes the visitors occupied was itself a hearty welcome. The experimental stage of the association was past; it had been so honored of God that its necessity to work vacant fields had become a fact. The object of the association—young men—was so in accordance with popular sympathy that it only required patience and perseverance to give the association a name and a place in any community, and it must sooner or later reach the hearts, lives and persons of the whole world. The Christian people needed only to become familiar with the work to be heartily in sympathy with it. The work was cosmopolitan, for throughout the whole world associations with the same objects existed.

The services and exercises were interspersed with suitable hymns, Mr. D. Sims playing the organ accompaniments and leading the the singing. Frequent prayer was also made by different delegates.

YOUNG MEN A SPECIALTY.

Mr. E. D. Ingersoll, of New York, opened the discussion of the subject: "Why should our work continue specially for young men?" In opening his remarks he said he was empowered to bring the hearty greeting of the State conventions of Illinois and Wisconsin. Because we labored specially for young men, was an answer to the question. The special feature of the work was its chief reason of success. The speaker pointed out that every institution that it was most desirable to get rid of was patronized and supported by young men. It was young men that the church failed to reach. The Lord when on earth spent the most of his time training young men for his work, and his example was one that we would do well to follow.

Mr. F. Lonsdale, secretary of the Hamilton association followed in the discussion, showing that young men were largely beyond the reach of church influences regularly applied. The association was essentially missionary delegates, banded to do special work which the church was not in a position to do. As an aid to the church the association was worthy of the warmest assistance of the church.

Mr. W. P. Crombie, Picton, said the great object of the work was to save young men—that deserved the prayers and co-operation of all Christian men and women. The one idea of the association was to seek out young men, and by the aid of other young men to withdraw them from evil influences to which they were exposed, and as such was worthy of the help and prayers of mothers whose sons might be alone in a strange city. Then the association looked for young men and tried to lead their steps into the right path.

Mr. R. C. Morse, of New York, said one answer was that the association was undenominational, and the churches threw so many different kinds of work on the association that unless there was concentration of action on the work for young men their aims, objects and sympathies were divided, and so the necessity of exclusive devotion to young men's interests was almost forced upon the association. So the association at Montreal agreed to the exclusive work for young men. The same principle was in accord with the experience of provincial, state and international conventions, and he hoped the work would go on and prosper on this line.

After the singing of a hymn, and prayer by Rev. Mr. Tovell, the session closed with the benediction.

FRIDAY MORNING.

The proceedings began by devotional exercises, Mr. R. E. Kendall, Queen's College, in the chair, till 9:30 o'clock, when the president took the chair.

Committees on devotion, business, on resolutions and on executive committee's report for the meetings of the convention were appointed.

The convention then went into discussion of the subject,

"WHAT CAN WE DO FOR YOUNG MEN SOCIALLY."

Mr. D. A. Budge, of Montreal, opened the subject. The social element should characterize every part of the work in every possible way. The members should study their own habits and bearing, so as to impress strangers favorably, whose estimate of the work was largely formed by the appearance and deportment of the workers. Before one could influence a young man for good, his respect and confidence must be evoked. The members of the reception committee should treat all visitors to the rooms as invited guests to their own home, without any show of patronage. They should not only seem to be, but should be interested. Monthly reception meetings, with the social element predominating, with a good programme, were recommended to every Association, which also should have strangers' register, where every strangers' name who may visit the meetings should be entered. Every secretary should have a monthly reception, where musical and home enjoyments would be presented to a specially invited set [of young men. A personal invitation on the part of young men to strangers to take tea with them will, in relieving the loneliness of a stranger in a strange town, produce a favorable impression, with the greatest possibilities of good.

Mr. E. D. Ingersoll, in the discussion that followed on the subject, emphasized the great importance of a kindly greeting to strangers entering and leaving association rooms, by the secretary; and other delegates, offered valuable hints and suggestions upon the subject of the social treatment of young men. Gentlemanly reserved manners were to be exhibited, and all approaches to undue familiarity to be avoided. Touching incidents were related respecting the great good that had been done by judicious social attentions.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

Mr. J. J. Gartshore, secretary, read the report of the committee. The effective work of the Provincial travelling secretary, Mr. Cole, in reviving semi-dormant associations, was pointed out. The executive committee acknowledged the help they had received from the International committee of New York. The holding of district conferences was suggested by the committee. Railroad work was being successfuly prosecuted, and the work had entered into the colleges in Montreal, Toronto, Belleville, and Kingston. The committee felt the lack of funds severely, there being a deficit of $375 last year. Nineteen local associations had reported a membership of between four and five thousand, and since 1881 the number of paid secretaries had increased from 6 to 13.

Mr. Cole, travelling secretary, gave his report, furnishing many interesting details of the progress of his work under his supervision, showing that great progress and advancement had been made.

Discussion was entered into upon the reports, and the general feeling was expressed that the success of the work depended largely on the local association actively aiding the executive committee, and the Travelling Secretary, Mr. Hawkins, of Port Hope, bearing testimony to the effectiveness of the latter's work.

Mr. J. Frith, Jeffers suggested that the local associations be taxed to help to support the executive committee.

The convention adjourned.

FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

Devotional exercises—a praise and thanksgiving service—led by Mr. W. E. Burford, of the West End Railway Association, Toronto, were followed by the opening of the business of the convention.

ASSISTING SMALL ASSOCIATIONS.

Mr. E. D. Ingersoll opened the discussion on the subject—"How can secretaries assist associations already existing in small places in their neighborhood?" The first way was to make his own association so effective that it will commend itself to small ones. Again in some western states the State secretary, every Monday, writes a brief letter detailing the work of the week to his nearest secretary, who forwards it with a similar one of his own, to the next, till there is a thorough interchange of experience and encouragement throughout the whole circle of associations.

Mr. D. A. Budge suggested that secretaries get young men who travel as a business, interested in the work, to arouse interest in the places they visit. An instance was given of the manner in which a good library had effected good in a small country association.

Mr. W. H. Stevens of Sherbrooke, mentioning the holding of evangelistic meetings, Mr. Ingersoll pointed out the danger of that being popularly regarded as the work of the association. Mr. T. S. Cole, travelling secretary, suggested that intervisitation between secretaries of neighbouring associations would have a good effect. Mr. Ingersoll pointed out the necessity of associations confining their work to their proper sphere. The hard lesson associations had to learn, was in plain words, "mind your own business."

ORGANIZING NEW ASSOCIATIONS.

In regard to the organization of new associations, Mr. Ingersoll advised that they be not started till a deep and earnest need was shown—and members could be got to sustain them. Associations should be started modestly; begin at the bottom and build up.

Mr. J. J. Gartshore suggested that in places where the need would warrant it, a Bible class would be a good nucleus. Mr. Ingersoll suggested in addition that two or three young men might meet weekly for prayer and consultation, and Mr. Williams, secretary, Peterborough, added that interest might be developed by existing associations distributing Association literature.

Rev. W. F. D. Meikle, Lindsay, said that in Lindsay there was no association; a young men's prayer meeting existed but no association, and he had advised them not to push the matter. If an association was required it would come.

Mr. Ingersoll insisted on the point being emphasized that the first requirement was that proposed members should be members of a church.

Mr. W. E. Burford gave his experience that the need of the work should be allowed to develop the Association.

Words of Warning and Comfort.

"If you are suffering from poor health or
languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer
If you are simply ailing, or if you feel
weak and dispirited,
without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters
will surely cure you.

If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor, weakened by the strain of your every-day duties, or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

Or if you are in the workshop, on the farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel that your system needs cleansing, toning, or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old,
blood thin and impure, pulse
feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties
waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to give you new life, health, and vigor."

If you are costive, or dyspeptic or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or a resident of, a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries
Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Intermittent Fevers by the use of Hop Bitters

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you a fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe.

"Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous endorsements by the leading artists of the Word as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument give I can you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—ELLEKE GERSIER GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOFIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of.—CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI, ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCCA, EMIL AMBRE.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the severest tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

COLLEGE WORK.

Mr. E. C. Morse of New York took the chair and conducted discussion; he stated that in the United States there were 181 college associations, and the results were exceedingly important. Incoming students are taken hold of and their steps directed in the right path, by a committee specially detailed for the work.

Mr. MacNaughton, B. A., Queen's College, Kingston, stated that a weekly meeting and an annual meeting were held. The association at the opening of the college year held a reception for the benefit of the freshmen, and thus won the confidence of these young men. Friday afternoon meetings of 35 minutes were held, and students attracted but not invited to attend.

Mr. A. Gandier said that a Bible class was one of the means employed. Two distinctive classes marked College life, one for and one against the Gospel. Meetings were held in connection with the College Association in the City Hall, which students would attend who wouldn't be seen going into the college association rooms. The association was imparting great religious energy even to divinity students, and was moulding college life.

Mr. Cosgrove described the work of the college Association amongst the general citizens.

Mr. McLeod of University College, Toronto, spoke of the work in this college. A meeting was held on Thursday evenings, and there were sometimes eighty students present. After breakfast, three days in the week, a band of the association meet for prayer and meditation. This year the hospitals are to be visited and the news boys' home. The most important element was reaching the freshmen. An active committee had the names of all freshmen, and each one of the committee is responsible for seeing that a certain number assigned him is attended to. Besides work was done among all the students. This year the Y. M. C. A. was to have a column of space in the 'Varsity.

Mr. H. E. Kendall, McGill's College, Montreal, stated that the college association was in a state of intancy but great vivacity, and spoke of the good results that had followed the work—even medical students were affected. Mr. Unsworth of the same college, also gave interesting information of the work.

Rev. Mr. Meikle of Lindsay, spoke of the previously godless condition of colleges which had been all changed by the college Association.

FRIDAY EVENING.

There was a large attendance of the general public at the evening session. The devotional exercises, conducted by Mr. W. E. Besay of Brantford, consisted of singing, into which the delegates threw a great deal of spirit, scripture readings and brief prayers.

Mr. T. S. Cole, travelling secretary, again read his report which he also read at the morning session.

Mrs. Chambers then sang in her usually excellent manner, "The Mother's Goodbye."

After prayer, led by Mr. W. P. Crombie, a collection in aid of the funds of the executive committee was taken, amounting to $30.

Rev. Mr. Munro was put down in the programme for an address—"How we came by he English Bible," but having not returned from the Sunday School convention at Brockville, Mr. Morse volunteered to give an account of the World's Conference of the Y. M. C. A., held at Berlin. After alluding to the scope of the work of the Provincial State and International conventions, he showed what grand effects the organization developed by these conventions had produced. The International group of Associations on this continent was the strongest in representation at Berlin. There were present delegates from Russia, Italy, Austria. The German Association had a different origin from ours—they did not embrace all denominations of Christians, but under the efforts of Von Schlemboch, an evangelist, the American methods had been introduced and great good had been done, all classes are reached, even meetings being held every Tuesday night at midnight, for waiters who could attend no other time. The result of the International conference was an immense impulse to the growth and extension of the work for young men in Europe.

After the singing of a hymn, Rev. Mr. Torrance engaged in prayer. Another hymn was followed by the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Manning.

SATURDAY MORNING.

This morning after the usual devotional exercises, conducted by Mr. H. B. Gordon, Toronto, the convention went into session and entered upon the discussion of the subject—"How far have secular agencies been helpful in Association work?"

Mr. Bessie, of Brantford, said the work had four departments—spiritual, intellectual, social and physical; under the second they had reading rooms, libraries, practical talks, etc. In the physical there were gymnasia, rambling club, etc. The reception committee organized social gatherings as a part of the social element. Each of these could be made contributory to spiritual work. There might be educational classes established with benefit.

Mr. Budge and Mr. Cole gave instances of the benefits that had arisen from educational classes as a secular agency. Quebec had a snowshoe club that had been successful in leading up to spiritual work, and various instances were given where secular agencies were beneficial.

Mr. Bessy said that the application of practical philanthrophy had led their association to establish classes, which had been very successful. If these classes did no more they made young men moral, and thus drew them in the direction of Christian life.

There were only three of the associations represented which had educational classes.

Mr. Morse strongly emphasized the benefit of classes as a secular agency, and Mr. Budge stated that in Montreal membership of the association was not a condition of joining the classes. Class attendants were brought under the influence of the spiritual element of the association.

Mr. Ingersoll gave striking instances of young men being won to active work for Christ through an association gymnasia.

Mr. W. H. Stevens read a paper on the subject of which pointed out the necessity of training boys to take the place of active workers who might be removed, and Mr. A. K. Saunders, Toronto, read a paper giving the experience of the Toronto association, which showed that these classes held the same relation to the association as the Sabbath school to the church. There were six associations represented at the convention which had boys work, and the general testimony indicated the helpfulness of the work to the association. Mr. Ingersoll, of New York, emphasized the vast importance of the boys' work as a training department for active work in the Y.M.C.A., as also did Mr. Jeffers, Peterborough.

YOUNG MEN'S BIBLE CLASSES.

Mr. T. S. Cole, travelling secretary, led the discussion on the subject—"The Young Men's Bible Class—why should there be one in every association?" Young men could not be "co-workers with God" without being diligent and intelligent students of His Word, and he gave several striking incidents to show the importance of workers having thorough knowledge of the Scriptures. The Bible constituted the workers' "tools," so to speak. Mr. Budge said an association could not properly exist as such without a Bible class. A question by the chairman brought out the fact that only 13 out of 16 associations had Bible classes.

CONVENTIONS.

Mr. T. S. Cole opened the subject—"How Can we Make Conventions More Helpful." One way was to enter into the spirit of the convention and exercise self-sacrifice in consenting to attend and contribute to the papers to be read before it on subjects familiar to the writers.

Mr. Bessy, Brantford, suggested that the best way was to have a good place to hold the convention, and on behalf of the association he invited the convention to Brantford next year.

Mr. Lonsdale extended a similar invitation on behalf of Hamilton.

The convention expressed a determination to hold a convention next year, and the matter of selection as between Hamilton and Brantford was left to the Executive Committee.

Mr. Ingersoll said one way to make a convention helpful was to hold it. Another way was to read the reports of one convention before another.

DISTRICT CONFERENCES.

Mr. F. Lonsdale, Hamilton, read a paper on District Conferences, which showed their necessity as a valuable means of fostering and retaining life in the associations in Ontario and Quebec, and assisting the Travelling Secretary in his work. Mr. W. Craig, of Port Hope, and others endorsed the proposition of District Conferences, and the matter was referred to the Executive Committee and the Travelling Secretary.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Mr. Henderson read the report of the Executive Committee, which was adopted as follows:

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Toronto:—R. Kilgour, Chairman; J. J. Garthshore, Sec'y-Treasurer; John Macdonald, John Harvie, S. R. Briggs, R. Baldwin, C. S. Cnowski, jr., H. B. Gordon, J. O. Anderson and W. H. Howland; Montreal—A. Kingman, G. Hague, J. S. McLaughlan, John Murphy, W. King, D. A. Budge, R. Henderson; Hamilton—Geo. Rutherford; London—V. Cronyn; Owen Sound—John Armstrong; Brantford—John Harris, Geo. Foster; Orillia—P. Murphy; Peterborough—J. F. Jeffers and Geo. A. Cox; Perth—F. B. Allan; Collingwood—W. A. Copeland; Guelph—T. Gibson; Galt—Jas. Woods; St. Thomas—J. C. Moorhead; Port Hope—W. Craig, jr.; Cobourg—C. Lawes; Kingston—B. Robertson; Sherbrooke—J. R. Fall; Cornwall—H. C. Fatterson; Ottawa—C. F. Falconer.

The Committee further recommended that the services of T. S. Cole, as Travelling Secretary, be continued; that $1,500 be raised for the purposes of the Executive Committee; that the second Sunday in November be observed as a week of prayer, and that collections be made in aid of the International Committee; that the work of preparing the way of placing general secretaries and fostering existing associations be continued; that the report of the convention be printed and distributed.

Mr. W. E. Burford, Toronto, stated that there were 100,000 railroad men, yet the report ignored the Railway Association on the Executive Committee, and he vigorously protested against it.

SATURDAY EVENING.

Devotional exercises were followed by the discussion of the topic, "sustentation of associations in small towns," by Mr. J. Frith Jeffers, president of the Peterborough Association. The work had three aspects, the preventive, the reclamatory and sustaining. In dealing with all these the forces were the same, the word of God quickened by his spirit. These were to be conjoined to personal influence of members. When these forces were united there was sure to be good fruit. The sustaining power involved the measure of the associations to over come difficulties. Various appliances were needed, and the field to be operated formed another element. Voluntary support depended upon the public sentiment of sympathy aroused in the Christian community—without this an association required a vast staying power to live, but when the association comes to be recognized as a necessary adjunct of christian work, then all needed support will follow. The personal character of the members moulded the non christian sentiment of the community—the members must have the essentials in walk and conversation to win the respect and the confidence of sinners. The Christian community owed support to the Association work. He pointed out that Christian people, whether they knew it or not, were contributing to the support of the evil institutions that were most demoralizing to young men.

RAILWAY WORK.

Mr. W. E. Jex spoke of the work of the Railway branch of the Y. M. C. A. in Toronto, and gave a brief sketch of what was done for the men on the road. The Grand Trunk officials favored the Association, and Mr. Wragg furnished a passenger car to take the association workers to their labours on the line.

Mr. W. J. Orr, secretary, St. Thomas, gave an account of the Railway work at St. Thomas, where there were about a thousand railroad men, the majority young men. The Association was organized in 1882, and it now numbered 500 members, a good reading room with railway and religious literature, and a library similarly supplied. There were amusement rooms, bath rooms, post office and writing conveniences, and a hospital department where wounded employes were cared for and nursed.

Mr. W. E. Burford, Toronto, gave interesting instances of the great success of the Railway Association work in East Toronto. The association had good reading rooms and all required appliances. The Ladies' Auxiliary Society was of great assistance to the work. The Canadian Pacific Railway gives $500 a year towards the support of the association, so great did they estimate the advantages to their employes.

Other representatives of the Railway Associations spoke of the benefits the work had wrought in specific cases.

Devotional exercises closed the last business session of a most successful and encouraging convention.

SUNDAY.

Sunday was anything but a day of rest, in one sense, to the Y. M. C. A. delegates. Services of various kinds were held in the various churches from 7 a. m. till 10 p. m. In the Charlotte street church in the afternoon a mass meeting of young men was addressed by three delegates. Also in the afternoon a mothers' meeting in the Baptist church was addressed by Mr. T. S. Cole, Travelling Secretary. A boy's meeting was also held, at which about 200 were present. In the the evening a farewell service was held, at the conclusion of which the delegates formed a circle, and joining hands, sang a farewell appropriate hymn.

The convention throughout was a great success and will prove very helpful to the local Association in exciting public interest in its favour, and giving valuable hints and encouragement to local workers.

CANADIAN CHEESE ABROAD.

It is stated that the demand abroad for Canadian cheese has risen to unprecedented dimensions during the present year. The increased exportation of this article has done much to compensate for the falling-off in wheat shipments. Over five million dollars' worth of cheese has been shipped this season from Montreal, while the wheat shipments only amounted to about $2,600,000. The decrease in wheat exports from that port amounts to $1,400,000, as compared with the corresponding period of last season, and the increase in cheese shipments is about one million dollars. The total quantity exported to Great Britain since the beginning of the season is 50,000,000 pounds, the trade having received an impetus that excites general astonishment. The export during the corresponding period of last year was 40,000,000 pounds. The butter trade, too, is increasing, about 3,700,000 pounds having been shipped this season, as against three millions to the same period of last season.

Do no violence to the liver and general system by repeated doses of mercury in the shape of calomel and blue pill. Many persons thus dose themselves even without the advice of a physician. The best substitute for such pernicious drugs, and the use of which is never followed by disastrous effect upon the general health, is Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, which permanently tones the stomach, regulates the bowels, purifies the blood, gives a healthful glow to the cheek.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted. "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

Peterborough Examiner.

PETERBOROUGH, OCT. 30, 1884.

Our Postponed Postoffice.

In the matter of the new postoffice the citizens need to have their "obdured breasts" armed "With stubborn patience as with triple steel."

They have grown weary with waiting for easily made promises to be performed. It is an outrage that this town should be treated with such contemptuous neglect in this matter. Upon the principle which the Dominion Government applies to the distribution of public works, Peterborough is entitled to have her postoffice built. We send a representative who gives as solid and unreasoning support to the Government as it could desire—never found lacking in the most servile compliance in support of the peculiar measures that require unquestioning fidelity. Yet our claims are ignored; while Barrie, Orangeville, Brockville, Belleville, etc., all have postoffices under construction, Peterborough, vastly superior in commercial importance and necessity of accommodation, is not even honored with the selection of a site. That matter is left open for political purposes, as the people plainly see, and the temper of even that portion of it, which supports the Government is beginning to fail. The question is asked: why should our support go to a Government which makes a political expedient of a great public need, more important to us locally than any party success? It rests with the member for West Peterborough to settle the matter. All he has to do is to declare plainly to the Government that trifling with the matter must come to an end; that he will not, in slavish support of a Government that sees fit to snub this town and trifle with her best interests, lose the support of his constituents—which he surely will do unless he take prompt action. Supporters of the Government in Peterborough may well question the wisdom of longer adhering to a Government or its candidates, which can make the town a cats-paw for political purposes. We need the postoffice; we demand it as our right. Nothing but the Government's determination to hold this urgent matter over for use at another election, as the Trent Valley Canal is held, has prevented the postoffice in Peterborough from being begun and now well under way.

Turnbull is now showing a choice range of Astrachan Mantles, made from the best of stock. Inspect before purchasing.

Police Protection.

Although it has been a matter of notoriety for over six months that there is an organized gang of burglars operating in this section, and although several jobs have been perpetrated by them with all the coolness and confidence which contempt of our police organization and security in their own skill afford, yet no steps have been taken by the Town Council to avert the evil, nor has increased vigilance and accumen been shown by our police. The citizens of this town combine together for the protection of their life and property, and to facilitate the work have placed a body of men—our Town Council—over them for the carrying out, with greater economy, the objects of the combination. It is a gross breach of duty when the Council allows so wide a feeling of insecurity to prevail, and actually guarantees almost absolute impunity to the midnight marauders. It is foolish economy not to have night watchmen of experience, acuteness and activity. The fact is we require a re-organization of our police force. It seems incredible that when the police found out where McKee's goods were hidden they did not set a watch or take any other means to capture the perpetrators of that robbery. In other ways, also, they appear incapable of thoroughly performing the duties of their office, which are increasing in onerousness day by day. We are now becoming a great railway centre and have lost that safe serenity which our inland position formerly afforded. Criminals are naturally attracted to a town of such easy access and egress, and on this account we may hereforth expect continual attempts at crimes such as burglary, and we therefore ask for a re-organization of our police force, for the protection of our citizens. The business men of George and other business streets, whose premises and property are nightly exposed to such great danger, must be possessed of great patience or they would take action to protect themselves; or unite in giving the authorities to understand that their neglect of a great public duty must come to an end, and that some decisive and prompt action must be taken to protect the business portion of the town. This pays the great bulk of the taxes, and therefore will not calmly submit to pay roundly for a police protection, which, in the matter in question, at least, seems to have been afforded on the principle of how not to do it.

Since the above was written the business men of George street have held an indignation meeting and have united unanimously in demanding of the Council protection of their business and property.

Unsatisfactory Dealing.

Merchants generally complain that farmers are not marketing their grain promptly, and are not meeting their little bills with their usual alacrity. The season of the year has now arrived in which our merchants settle up with their farmer customers. The ordinary business man relies upon a prompt payment of each account; liabilities are incurred and undertaken in many cases in the creditor's belief that such accounts will be paid before maturity of his notes. If therefore the expectations from business men are defeated; if the accounts which ought to be converted into money still lie in idle uselessness, business negotiations are at a standstill. Commercial interests are viewed with suspicion and dealings are unsatisfactory and unprofitable.

Ladies, Turnbull's is the house to leave your orders for misters; a choice range of neat patterns in extra quality now in stock.

CURLING.

A meeting of curlers took place in Mr. R. Graham & Son's store, on Monday evening, for the purpose of re-organizing for the ensuing year. Mr. J. P. Strickland was elected chairman. The Secretary's report was received and adopted. The financial report showed the club to be in debt $2.80. The following officers were then elected:—President, Mr. R. C. Strickland, re-elected; Vice-President, Mr. John Clarin; Secy-Treas., T. J. Bird; Managing Committee, Messrs. Walter Strickland, T. Postlethwaite, and B. Eden. The clergymen of the village were elected honorary members. Mr. S. Sheldrake was elected Patron and Mrs. Sheldrake, Patroness. The members annual fee was made $1.00, instead of 50c. After some discussion as to the advisability of electing skips, so few being present, the following were elected by ballot: Messrs. R. C. Strickland, T. Postlewaithe and G. A. Strickland. It was resolved to unite with the Ontario Branch of the Caledonias.

TICHBORNE CLAIMANT.

The notorious Tichborne claimant has been released from prison. The celebrated Tichborne trial began on the 10th of May, 1871, and "dragged its slow length" in various form until Feb. 28, 1874, thus constituting one of the longest and certainly one of the most remarkable cases that has ever been recorded in the legal history of Great Britain. The claimant represented hamself to be R. C. D. Tichborne, the rightful heir to the baronetcy and owner of the large estates connected therewith. On the 103rd day of the sitting, viz., on March 6, 1872, the claimant was ordered into custody for perjury, but was released from Newgate on bail on April 26, 1872. The trial for perjury took place in the Court of Queen's Bench, commencing on April 23, 1873. It extended over 188 days, being brought to a close on February 28, 1874, when the jury convicted him on both counts, expressing the belief that he was not Roger Tichborne, but Arthur Orton. The court sentenced the claimant to penal servitude for seven years on the first count of the indictment, and to a further term of seven years on the second count, making in all fourteen years.

BENSPORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The anniversary in connection with the Sunday School was marked with the usual success. The day was choice and entertainment good. Receipts amounted to upwards of $37.

Sporting at lacrosse has been commenced by the ambitious youths, who, though yet amateurs, are looking towards progress and victory in the near future.

Strange that as soon as an occasional correspondent opens out, although without a great sign hung in gilt, nearly everybody is prepared with a limited description of your worthy. The anxiety manifested by a few to become familiar with minute particulars is not less amusing than many of the criticisms.

It is now a foregone conclusion that our little township, without yet boasting precedences in agriculture, is far in advance of adjoining districts in exhibitions. The latter this year have reached in numbers beyond the twentieth, while, owing to competition, accompanied with other circumstances, we have had two shows, each a brilliant success, barring some trifling dissatisfaction in the awarding of prizes. We are centrally situated between Port Hope, Cobourg, Baillieboro' and Peterborough, while for convenience we are nowhere; but amid the commotion—our exhibition grounds are being connected with important lines of railway, and our peninsula tapped by handsome and durable bridges, and if enterprise and progress continues during the year, the annual display will be a grand success and village property much boomed.

CHARLOTTE STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

To The Editor of THE EXAMINER.

I wish to state to the Mayor and town council, and to the Street and Bridge committee in particular, that the ratepayers of Charlotte street west wish to return thanks for the repairs done thereon. Sorry to find, however, that Mr. McLean, who has paid taxes on his residence eight years, cannot have a walk built to his house. He has to wallow through mud every rainy season. I for one can assure you it is much needed, and I will personally build the said walk free of cost, if the town can afford, in view of the something like $100 which Mr. McLean has paid in taxes without getting a single plank in return, to supply the necessary material.

Yours truly,

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

BAZAAR AND CONCERT.

A grand bazaar and concert, under the English Church of this village, were held here on Tuesday last. The number of useful and ornamental articles at the bazaar surprised the large number of visitors who attended the Town Hall, and the display reflected the highest credit on the ladies of the church, who so liberally donated their time, taste and talents to make the occasion so successful. Mrs. A. Calder and Miss Mary Grover and a bevy of young and handsome ladies were assiduous in attending to the sales at the bazaar, and succeeded in disposing, at highly remunerative prices, of a great variety of goods. A refreshment table in connection with the bazaar, was also most liberally patronized, and added largely to the coffers of the projectors. The concert in the evening was perhaps the best entertainment of the kind ever given in Norwood. The hall was filled to overflowing, and even hard to get admission for "love or money." As all the participators in the programme did remarkably well it would be invidious to make special mention. Suffice it to say that the programme was a good one, and every piece upon it rendered to perfection. The receipts of the bazaar, refreshment table and concert amounted to over $200.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Edward Green, of Peterborough, has been here for a few days filling a large order he received for fitting our new High School building with his celebrated window blinds, an order which he has most satisfactorily filled.

Sheriff Hall, of Peterborough, has made frequent visits to Norwood of late. He is certainly a most acceptable visitor in most cases.

The Rev. Father Quirk, who has been on a visit to "Old Ireland," has been heartily welcomed back by his parishioners.

HIGH SCHOOL RETURNS.

The returns heretofore made by the Education Department being incorrect and incomplete, a full and complete list of the successful candidates from the Norwood High School is given below. It may be remarked that these were all either regular pupils of the school or were instructed to a greater or less extent by the staff in the prescribed work:—

Second Class, A.—Maggie Renwick, Harry Anderson, Arthur Scott, T. Bennett Scott.

Grade B.—Stanley McLachlan, Harry Lewis, Katie Lewis, May Campbell, Kate Ryan, Mathew Elliott, Michael McNulty Mary Carbery.

Third Class.—Robert Spence, Christina Boland, Annie Regan, John McKelvie, P. McNaughton, Minnie Hooper, Ettie Wigmore, Minnie McLachlan, Alfred Nicoll.

Intermediate.—Robert Patterson, R. Knox, Jas. Mahoney, Fred. Stephenson, Mary Rork, Grace Young, Janet Breckenridge.

Medical Matriculation.—P. McNaughton.

Highest grade and certificate taken by Maggie Renwick, 1060 marks; highest third class, Robert Spence, 83⅞; highest intermediate, R. Patterson. Jas. Quinlan, Jessie Wilson and H. Pearce took a much higher aggregate than the passing mark, but each fell slightly below the minimum in one subject. Highest of all in mathematics, Stanley McLachlan. All the second class candidates were successful.

We have every reason to feel gratified with the result of the work of the Norwood High School under the management of such an efficient principal as Mr. Davidson and his no less thoroughly qualified assistant, Mr. Jackman. With our grand and spacious new school building, its work in the hands of a highly capable staff of teachers, this institution, ranking as it does among the leading scholastic institutions of Ontario, receive the support of those requiring an English education in all its branches.

White and Grey Blankets, all wool, good value; also, a lot of white a little soiled, of good quality very cheap. John Erskine's.

OTONABEE.

OBITUARY.

In the death of William Webster of Otonabee, on October, 23rd, another of our hardy pioneers has passed to his reward. Deceased was a native of Yorkshire, England, where he was born in 1806. He was married in 1834, and came to Canada in 1836, and settled in Otonabee, on lot 23, in the ninth Concession. He hewed out a broad, cultivated farm from the forest, and living on this lot secured, not only a competency for himself, but lived to see his four sons and seven daughters provided for, married and settled in homes of their own. One daughter however, is still unmarried. Besides these four sons and seven daughters, deceased leaves behind him 68 descendants, consisting of 58 grand children, and 10 great grand children, in all 79 descendants, added to the population of Otonabee, during his forty eight years residence in it. Deceased was, in politics a Conservative, and in religion a Presbyterian, a member of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough.

APSLEY.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

An exhibition was given in the Temperance Hall, Apsley, on the 22nd instant, by a rambling show man, who displayed some beautiful scenery, also some grand views of most of the capital cities of the world, with separate views of some of the most prominent buildings, also magnificent views were given of the most of the places of interest on the American continent. These scenes where exhibited by the oxyhydrogen marble light, equal in brilliancy to the celebrated electric light; the audience though small was very select and appreciative. But the great event of the evening was that of a small boy, putting in an appearance at the door, accompained by a tall specimen of the feminine gender, to whom he appeared to be very attentive to the great amusement of all present.

Longfellow's Birthday Book is a beautiful present to give any lady. But there is a little book published in pamphlet form, with no pretensions to literary merit, that would be as appropriate, and might be the means of saving a life. It is called Dr. R. V. Pierce's treatise on diseases of women, for whose peculiar troubles the "Favorite Prescription" is especially designed. It is profusely illustrated with wood-cuts and colored plates, and will be sent to any address for two stamps, by the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

VILLIERS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The hum of the threshing machine is the only music that fills the air around here at present.

Mr. Wm. Breakenridge, of Peterborough, has received the contract from the Township Council for the cutting down of what is known as "Graham's Hill." There will be about 3,000 yards of earth to move, and Mr. B. is just the man to push the job through in a satisfactory manner.

Mr. Walker is busy putting up a number of his load lifters throughout the township.

Mr. A. Fisher, of the Toronto Globe, says: "I take great pleasure in recommending Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure to the public. I have suffered with Dyspepsia for some time, and have tried several Remedies without receiving any benefit. Being recommended to do so I used one bottle, and must say that I find the result perfectly satisfactory, not having been troubled with that distressing disease since, and would recommend others similiarly afflicted to purchase a bottle at once once and try it, as I am satisfied they will receive benifit from its use.

Peterborough Markets.

(Supplied by W. H. Wrighton, Grain and Produce Dealer, and General Grocer, George Street.)

PETERBOROUGH, Oct. 29, 1884

Receipts of grain continue fair. There is no particular change except in spring wheat, which has dropped to 72c.; receipts small. Fall wheat sells from 75c. to 78c. In barley prices continue steady. Bright barley brings from 60c. to 65c.; medium, 56c. to 60c.; dark, 45c. to 53c. Peas, very few offering; selling at 60c. Rye, nothing doing, none offering. Oats bring 30c. to 32c., moderate supply. On the Market: Keg butter is moving to some extent, selling for finest at 18c., and from that down to 14c. Roll and print brings 20c. to 22c.; crocks, 16c. to 18c. Eggs selling at 18c. to 19c., few offering. Poultry plentiful, prices unchanged. Beef, $5.00 to $6.50 per quarter, slow sale. Other commodities unchanged.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully, HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

GREAT BOOM

IN Winter Clothing and Gents' Furnishings!

THE FALL IN THE PRICE OF WHEAT

NOWHERE, AS COMPARED WITH

THE STILL GREATER FALL IN THE PRICE OF CLOTHING

—AT—

LeBRUN'S.

It will pay Farmers better to sell their wheat now at present prices, and buy their Winter's supply of Clothing at the City Clothing Store while you can buy so very cheap, rather than run the chance of waiting to get a few cents more for their wheat and pay 25 per cent higher for their Clothing later on. The Farmers and LeBRUN are in the same position—both have large stocks on hand, and nothing will be gained by holding on to them at present. Sell your wheat now and exchange it for cheap clothing at LeBrun's.

I am determined to offer the bulk of my present very large stock without reserve for the next three months. Remember the prices will be lower than ever offered in Peterborough before.

JUST LOOK AT A FEW OF THE QUOTATIONS:

OVERCOATS—$4.50, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $9.00.

TWEED SUITS for $6.50, $8.00, $9.00, $10.00. These prices are fully 28 per cent lower than the regular prices.

ORDERED CLOTHING made up at prices to correspond in cheapness with the above, as for example:

FINE SUITS to order for $14.00, $15.00, and $16.00. No better value ever offered for the money. Activity in every department.

BOYS' AND YOUTHS' CLOTHING.—It will pay you to see our large stock. It is suitable for all ages; made nobby and genteel.

TWEEDS & FULLCLOTHS for common wear at very low prices. Can be cut on the premises free of charge.

UNDERWEAR—I have the best assortment of sizes, largest stock and cheapest Fall and Winter Underwear in Peterborough.

GLOVES.—I have a large assortment in this line, as I make a specialty of Gloves, and sell for less than any house in the trade.

SHIRTS, COLLARS AND CUFFS.—As usual, selling lower than any other house.

TIES.—The run on our Ties this season is immense. Our 25 cent Ties are equal in quality to any 50 cent Tie in the town.

My great aim has always been to give superior goods at inferior prices. My increased business shows how well I have succeeded.

H. LeBRUN,

"THE CITY CLOTHING STORE."

County Treasurer's Sale of Lands for Taxes.

COUNTY OF PETERBOROUGH, TO WIT: BY VIRTUE OF A WARRANT, under the hand of the Warden and Seal of the County of Peterborough, and to me directed, bearing date the Tenth Day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Eighty-four, I am commanded, under authority of the Statutes in that behalf, to levy on the lands hereinafter mentioned and described, for the Arrears of Taxes due thereon, with the Costs, as hereinafter specified, as directed by the said Act. These are therefore to give notice, that unless the said Arrears and Costs are sooner paid, I will proceed to sell by Public Auction, at the Court House in the Town of Peterborough, on TUESDAY, the TWENTIETH day of JANUARY, A.D. 1885, at the hour of Ten o'clock in the forenoon, the said Lands, or so much thereof as may be necessary for the Taxes, and all lawful charges incurred in and about such sale, and the collection of the Taxes:

LOVE FOR A DAY!

CHAPTER I.

Everywhere at Gracedieu was the scent of lilacs. In no other place did they grow in such luxuriant profusion. People came to see the lilacs at Gracedieu as they go to look at the beeches at Burnham and the chestnuts at Hampton Court. They were the great attraction for many weeks, and all the country round was sweet with their odor. In well-laid-out grounds, in cottage-gardens, in the long green lanes, at every corner of the pretty streets, in every nook where there was room for a tree to grow, on the path by the river, on the road to the woods, in the meadows and orchards where they had no right to be, by the brookside, nodding over the iron railings of the old churchyard, were the beautiful tall plumed lilacs. It would be difficult to say whether they were sweeter in the evening, in the sunlight, wet with dew, or stirred by the wind; from the time they began to bud until the last leaf dropped from the trees, they made Gracedieu a garden of Eden, a land of delight. The children called them "The Prince of Wales's feathers." The elder folk dated from them; they would say, "Before the lilacs were out," "When the lilacs were in bloom," or, "After the lilacs had faded." The days they were in flower was a time of pleasure to all.

This pretty town of Gracedieu, where I lived my happy young life, is in the fairest part of Devonshire—where the land is green and fertile, although it borders on the sea—where the green lanes are like gardens, and the hedgerows full of bloom. My father, the Reverend John Chester, was Rector of Gracedieu for more than forty years. His church, an old Norman building, was very dear to him. He did not marry until late in life, and I was his only child. I remember but little of him. His name was held in great honor by the townspeople. My dear mother, whom I lost when I was eighteen years old, was a quiet, gentle, unobtrusive woman; she had a small life-annuity. My father had not been able to leave her anything; he had insured his life for a trifling sum, which was invested for my benefit, and which brought me in a modest income of twenty pounds per annum.

In those days the gold of the laburnum and the buttercup was more to me than the glitter of coin. My mother and I thought but little of money. Our expenditure was quite within our income—the true secret of content. I remember no sordid cares, no "bills," no uneasiness as quarter-day came round; I remember no undue extravagance.

We had many friends and acquaintances in the town. In the summer afternoons it was a pleasant walk to our house; and, though we could not afford to entertain grandly, as some of our wealthy neighbors did, tea in our pretty gardens, with home-made cakes and ripe fruit, was pleasant enough. My mother was a lover of nature and she taught me all she knew. I was acquainted with the name of every bird; I knew their haunts and their habits. I was familiar with the trees and the various grasses, the wild-flowers, the reeds by the river, the cresses in the brook; every secret of the sweet country life was known to and loved by me. Looking back, I see a simple-hearted happy child, whose life was a poem.

As the opening of a tragedy is almost always quiet, so my life, that was to embody a tragedy, began calmly, like the opening bars of some sweet musical idyl. From my infancy until I was seventeen I had passed a peaceful, calm, uneventful existence.

My mother, when her husband died, went to live at a pretty little villa outside of Gracedieu, and built just on the borders of the Gracedieu woods. When I was a child, I used to lie for long hours listening to the wind amongst the trees of the forest; and while I live no music will be so grand or so sweet to me as that which it then made.

Our lives were well filled. I remember no vacant hours. Those which I spent in the woods and by the river were not idle to me. I was storing my heart and mind with pictures that lasted me for many years when with my eyes I could see them no longer. It was on my seventeenth birthday, and the date was the tenth of May, that a new life was opened to me. On that morning I was one of the happiest, brightest children that ever drew breath, with no care or thought save for the birds and flowers. With a longing impatience to see the dew on the grass I watched the sun rise; when I watched the same sun set, I had passed from childhood to womanhood. My mother's pretty little house peeped out from a mass of lilac trees, and there was a group of the same just outside the garden gate, bordering the path that led to the wood. The townspeople had the right of using this path, but they did not often avail themselves of it.

The first thing I thought of on my birthday was the lilacs. I knew just how the trees would look, the dew lying heavy on them, and the sun shining on their bloom. I must gather plenty for the breakfast-table, for my birthday was a household fete.

I went out. On the previous night I had noticed on the top of the tallest tree a spray of lilac that I wanted to gather. It was exactly the shape of the Prince of Wales's feathers—three nodding, beautiful, graceful plumes, surrounded by green leaves.

Once, twice, thrice I tried to reach the branch I wanted, but failed to do so. The sun was shining in my face; the shaking of the boughs scattered the dew-drops all over me. Suddenly a voice near me said:

"It is too high; you cannot reach it. Let me get it for you."

I had heard no footsteps, and had seen no shadow on the grass. Turning, my eyes fell on a bright, handsome face, with eyes dark and lustrous, and a mouth sweet and firm.

As he spoke, he broke off the bough. In doing so the tree shook, and the great dew-drops fell on his face and on mine.

"How careless I am," he said. "Do forgive me, Miss Chester!"

"How do you know my name?" I asked. "I do not remember having seen you before."

"I know most of the inhabitants of Gracedieu," he replied. "You do not recognize me, but my father is often at your house."

My mind quickly reviewed the few friends who were in the habit of visiting us, and I could think of no one likely to be the father of the handsome young man by my side.

"I am Dr. Upton's son," he continued—"Mark Upton, at your service. My father often talks of Mrs. and Miss Chester."

"I am much obliged to you," I said. "It is my birthday, and I had set my heart on that particular spray of lilac. How beautiful it is!"

"They are my favorite flowers," he said.

"How strange! I prefer them to any others," I remarked, glancing up at him.

"I wish you many happy returns of the day," he said, smiling; "and I hope every wish of yours to-day may be gratified as easily as this has been"—touching the branch of lilac as he spoke.

And so, by that one incident, my fate was sealed on the bright May morning when Mark Upton passed our house on his way to the woods.

It was not a very great surprise to me when, three days afterwards, on returning from my favorite haunt by the river, I found Mr. Upton talking to my mother. His dark face flushed when he saw me, and he rose from his chair.

"Miss Chester," he said "I have taken the liberty of bringing you these," —and he held out a mass of beautiful flowers, chiefly white lilacs of a rare kind with very sweet perfume. "I was at Oakton Hall this morning," he continued, "and I thought of you as I rode through the park. The lilacs are in full bloom; these white ones are the finest I have ever seen. I could not resist bringing them to you. The park is beautiful now. Not only are the lilacs out, but the laburnums are also, and the hawthorn-trees are magnificent.—You would enjoy seeing them."

I said something about the Gracedieu woods—I never remembered what. He came nearer to me, and held out the white lilacs that I might inhale their fragrance. How can I describe the vague feeling of happiness, of newborn delight, of pleasure that was almost pain when he approached? I remember how we were half afraid to look at each other; then one, stealing a glance, would meet the other's eyes, and dire confusion would result. I remember that while we both examined the lilacs our hands met—and that first touch of his hand was a new revelation to me. Presently the figure of my gentle, silent mother, who was knitting busily at the window, disappeared, and we were alone—two young, loving, passionate hearts alone with the glamor of first love over us.

I had thought of nothing but the dark handsome face since I had seen it first under the lilac-boughs. I dreamed of it; wherever I looked, there it was. I could see it in the flowers, in the shadowy river, in the blue of the sky, in the gold of the sunlight; glance where I would, it was there—always there.

I was a romantic girl, full of poetry and dreams. He was the first handsome young man I had seen, and fate had brought us together. When I awoke to the reality of the present, my mother was saying—

"Nellie, show Mr. Upton our trees. I think they are the finest in Gracedieu."

Presently we were standing in the glory of the golden sunshine, but I did not see it. I did not see the ripple of the foliage, the dark woods, the lilac-trees, or the garden. I saw nothing but the face that was more beautiful to me than all the world beside.

There was a shady arbor under the great lilacs, and we were sitting there. Mr. Upton was telling me of his life, his position, and his future.

"I shall always thank Heaven," he said, "that I made my way to Gracedieu woods on the tenth of May."

I dared not ask why. I knew.

"What small events rule our lives!" he went on. "If I had been one hour later or sooner, I should not have seen you, and then——" He stopped.

"And then?" I interrogated.

"There could be no 'then,'" he said, hastily. "The world would be quite different if I had never seen you. I shall love May; I shall love the lilacs as long as I live."

The weight of happiness seemed almost more than I could bear. It seemed to me as if the birds singing around us had guessed our secret.

It was evening when I recovered my composure. I was sitting with some work in my hand. My mother began to talk about Mark Upton, and I grew alarmed—alarmed at the tumult of happiness in my heart, wondering what that same gentle mother would say if she knew that all the world was changed for me.

Mark was at the cottage again the next morning, with the excuse of a message from his father. I see him now as I saw him then, with the May sunlight all about him, a smile lighting up his dark, handsome face, standing near the lilac-bushes, crying out in his cheery voice, "May I come in and see how you are this morning, Mrs. Chester?"

On that same afternoon I went for my usual stroll through the woods and down by the river. My heart and thoughts were full of him. It was hardly a surprise when I saw him crossing the little rustic bridge that spanned the river Way to join me. I was sitting in a nest of violets and forget-me-nots that grew down to the edge of the water.

Ah, me, it all comes back to me—the song of the birds, the sound of the wind in the great trees, the odor of the lilacs, and my lover's dark, handsome face bending over me, his warm, strong hand clasping mine! It would have been well, I sometimes think, had I died then and there with that full sunlight of happiness upon me. For, when I realized what was passing, when, above the music of the birds and the wind and the rush of the river, I heard every word, Mark Upton was telling me that he loved me, and asking me to be his wife who one short week before was only a child! Oh, happy time of the lilac-bloom, which had brought me a lover so good and so true! I dared not look at him. I glanced at the river and the trees—anything rather than meet his dark, loving eyes.

"Will you say that you are not angry, Miss Chester? 'Nellie' your mother calls you, and it is the prettiest name in the whole world—Nellie, will you try to love me?"

I faltered out that I had known him only one week. He cried, "What does that matter?" A week in such a case was like an age. There was no such thing as time in love.

"You know there is not, Nellie," he said. "I tell the simple truth when I say that at seven o'clock on the morning of the tenth of May I was heart-whole and fancy-free; I had never thought of love or marriage; and it is equally true that by ten o'clock I had sworn to myself that Nellie Chester should be my wife or no one. Nellie, you do not know what you looked like when I first saw you. Your hair was purest gold as the sunlight fell full upon it; your face was fresh and fair as a flower; your sleeve had fallen back, and half your beautiful arm was bare, as you tried to reach the lilac, and could not. I can only say that that moment you made your way to my heart, and that you will never leave it again. You have become part of my life. Now let me look into your eyes. I can read my answer there."

He raised my face in his hands and looked into it as though he would read my very soul.

"You do care for me, Nellie," he cried; "the love-light is in your eyes! say you love me. What does it matter that we have known each other only one week? Why, my darling, if you had been my dearest friend for twenty years, I could not love you more. You know me as well now as you will in fifty years' time. I do not hide one thought of my heart from you."

What could I say—I, who loved him with all my girl's heart, and to whom his love was as sunlight and dew are to the flowers? I said something as to being very young.

"My hair is not gray, Nellie," he said, laughing. "You are seventeen; I am twenty. I know 'my love is but a lassie yet;' 'tis for that I love her."

Then he plighted his troth to me, taking me in his arms and kissing me as he said—

"I love you, Nellie; and while I live I shall love no other woman. If you will be my wife I will live and die for you; if you will not, I will call no other woman wife."

The laughing river and the singing birds seemed to repeat the words. I was dazed with happiness as I sat with my head on my lover's breast, wondering why such perfect bliss should be mine, all mine.

Oh, foolish, trusting, loving heart! I did not remember that in the depths of the dark, strong river lay shifting sands, that the wind never told the same story twice. To me my lover's dark eyes were true and tender as the stars. I forgot that the stars are not all fixed. I was very young, very loving, full of faith, but not very wise.

So, while the May sunshine shone around us, he kissed me and claimed me for his wife; and we walked back to the cottage as the "Sleeping Beauty" and the "Fairy Prince" walked, from the old world to a new.

CHAPTER II.

The old proverb states that the course of true love never runs smooth. Ours ran smoothly enough. The Doctor laughed when Mark told him of our engagement. My mother was delighted; she had liked Mark from the first. The one great drawback was that he was compelled to go to India for four years. He was a civil engineer by profession, and a lucrative appointment had been offered to him on a railway which was being extended. The advantages that would accrue to him were great. He would gain immensely in experience and knowledge and he would make money. The Doctor considered his son most fortunate. My mother agreed with him, but added that it would be sad for us to part. The Doctor [illegible] that nothing better could have happened for us. We were too young to marry—too young, in his opinion, to know our own minds; and we could have no better test than four years' absence and trial of constancy.

But during the first few happy weeks we did not think much of the parting. It was a dark cloud ahead of us, a cloud that had a silver lining; for when the four years were ended Mark was to return home and we were to be married. I should, he promised me, always have a home in the country. He would never ask me to live in the town. It was in the month of May that we met, and in July we parted; but during the interval we spent the greater part of the time together. Other summer days have dawned for me, but none like those on which my young lover came early in the morning, while the dew sparkled on the grass, when we walked through the woods and down by the river, noting with loving eyes all that was so fair and beautiful around us, returning from our long rambles, our hands filled with wild flowers, to find my mother waiting breakfast for us, the table set out on the lawn. Then Mark would linger and pass the morning with me. He came back in the afternoon, and stayed with us until the moon rose.

How I loved him! Then I saw only the beauty of a great passion; now I see its pain and its pathos; now I know that the mighty power of love has not been given us to be centred in any creature. Then I had one idol, and, alas, I worshipped it! I had no life apart from my young lover's. I had no life, no love, no care, no thought apart from him. I read the love stories of others, written in poetry and prose; but no love was like mine. Surely wise people, while they laughed, would have wept over it! If he had asked for my life, I should have given it to him, as I had given my love, freely and with a smile. I felt something like pity for those he did not love; I felt that every girl living must envy me.

Mark Upton cared for me quite as much as I loved him. We spent those few weeks in a land into which no care, no sorrow came—the fairyland of love and hope. Every hour brought us closer together, bound us by newer and sweeter ties, while the summer flowers bloomed, the corn grew up in the fields, and the lilacs withered. I do not know what comes into other lives, but I hope that Heaven gives such a glimpse of happiness as mine to all.

On one occasion I heard the Doctor laughing as he talked to my mother. He asked her if she knew that in some parts of England the beautiful fragrant shrub known as southernwood was called "lad's love." My mother replied that she had never heard it so called, and asked why it was named "lad's love." I listened half curiously for the answer. "Because," he said, "it dies in a year, as lad's love often does." He looked at me as he spoke, and I knew he was thinking of Mark's love, which, after all, was a lad's love, and might live for year or die in a day. But he did not know. He was old and immersed in the cares of a grave profession. How could he understand our love, loyalty and constancy?

One evening Mark had gone home; but the stars were so bright that I remained out of doors watching the night-sky. The dark blue vault was a mass of shining, twinkling gold. They were so bright and clear, and the faint mystical light they threw upon the earth was so dreamily beautiful, that I was entranced.

"Nellie," cried my mother, "do come in."

"Mamma," I answered, "you come out."

Almost to my surprise she came, and we stood together watching the far-off, wonderful orbs.

"How bright they are, those beautiful stars," said my mother. "Ah, Nellie, how many thousand years have they been shining? What have they seen? And, my darling, how soon they will be shining on our graves."

But I, with my warm deep love—I felt no fear of death. Not even the stars in Heaven shone so brightly or were so true as my love. I said to her that I might die, but that the love that filled my whole soul never could. She looked at me with sad, sweet eyes.—When the stars shine in the sky her look and her words come back to me.

"Nellie," she said, "you should never give to a creature the love that is due the Creator. I have often thought, dear child," she continued, "that you love Mark too much. It is not safe to centre all your happiness in one person. If anything happens to that one, your whole life is shipwrecked."

"There can be no shipwreck where a man can be."

"True as a man can be, mamma, means infinitely true," I interrupted.

"Ah, no, my dear Nellie. Men are but mortal; their power of loving is not infinite. I do not wish to sadden you, to cloud your faith, to dim your love or lessen your trust; but I should like to warn you. Love with caution."

"There need be no caution where Mark is concerned, mother," I rejoined.

"I am old," she continued; "I have seen a great deal of life. I do not say—Heaven forbid—that all men are false, or all women; I do not say that one sex is more false than the other; but I have seen love betrayed, trust misplaced. I have known the honest heart of a man broken because a woman deserted him, and I have known a loving and tender-hearted girl die because her lover left her."

I raised my face to the stars shining in their calm, eternal beauty. Strong in my youth, ignorance and faith, I said lightly—

"Nothing of that kind can ever happen between Mark and me."

"Some loves," said my mother, "last for ever, some for a day; and oh, my dear Nellie, it seems to me that this last is, in these prosaic times, the commonest form of love."

"Love for a day!" I echoed. "Ah, thank Heaven, that is not Mark's love."

My mother looked at me anxiously; I wonder how many mothers have given to their daughters just the same sensible advice, and just as much in vain?

News Condensed.

Twenty-nine failures were reported in the Dominion last week.

Down's Elixir will cure any cough or cold, no matter how long standing. 44-5t

Commodore Schley has submitted his report of the Greely relief party.

Rheumatism, and similar diseases, caused by a low state of the system, are cured by using Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

A St. Thomas baker has reduced the price of bread to 5 cents per two-pound loaf.

Do not suppose that because it is recommended for animals that Arnica & Oil Liniment is an offensive preparation. It will not stain clothing or the fairest skin. 44-5t

James Clarke, druggist, Belleville, was drowned at Napanee on Friday last while out duck shooting.

Worms often destroy children, but Freeman's Worm Powders destroy worms, and expel them from the system. 44-5t.

Nine men have been killed on the C. P. R. now in course of construction on the North Shore.

To remove dandruff, cleanse the scalp with Prof. Low's Magic Sulphur Soap. A delightful medicated soap for the toilet. 44-5t

The sum of one million and forty thousand pounds sterling in gold is on its way to New York from England.

A crying evil.—Children are often fretful and ill when worms is the cause. Dr. Low's Worm Syrup safely expels all worms. 44-5t

It is believed that Germany is the Power that is endeavouring to bring about a settlement between France and China.

For Coughs and Colds, use Allen's Lung Balsam. Relief is warranted or money refunded. See adv.

A half-yearly dividend of five per cent was declared yesterday by the directors of the Bank of Montreal.

A single trial of Dr' Henry Baxter's Mandrake Bitters will convince any one troubled with costiveness, torpid liver or any kindred diseases of their curative properties. They only cost 25 cents per bottle. 44-5t.

The London Times advises the House of Lords to pass the Franchise bill, and then to direct its attention to the reform of its own constitution.

A Safe Investment.

Investing twenty-five cents for a bottle of Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam, the best throat and lung healer known. Cures coughs, bronchitis, asthma and all pulmonary complaints. 44-2t

The statue of the late Hon. George Brown has reached Quebec. It was brought from London by the steamship Erl King, which arrived in Quebec yesterday.

☞Keep in the fashion. The Diamond Dyes always do more than they claim to do. Color over that old dress. It will look like new. They are warranted. 10c. at druggists. Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt.

Bishop Cleary on being interviewed at Kingston by the secretary of the Scott Act Club, declined to express any opinion on that measure or the prohibition question for the present.

No Matter.

No matter where pain, lameness or soreness exists, Hagyard's Yellow Oil taken or applied will give immediate relief, and a positive cure quickly follows its use. 44-2t

The Salvation Army in the United States has determined to cut loose from Gen Booth's British forces. Major Thos. E. Moore will probably be elected General.

A Successful Result.

Mr. Bloomer, of Hamilton, Ont., suffered for many years with a painful running sore upon one of his legs, which baffled all attempts to heal until he used Burdock Blood Bitters, which speedily worked a perfect cure. 44-2t

H. D. Cooke & Co., bankers, Washington, have suspended, owing to their inability to meet pressing demands. It is understood the failure is due to outside speculation.

Prompt Measures.

Prompt means should be used to break up sudden colds and cure coughs in their early stages. Hagyard's Pectoral Balsam does this most speedily and effectually. 44-2t

Great Britain, in annexing the south coast of New Guinea, has added 275,000 square miles to her territory. She has also pleased Australia, which colony for some years has been clamouring for the acquisition of the island.

—The reason why "Nonsuch Washing Compound" should be used in preference to all other washing preparations. First: It is perfectly harmless. Second; It saves more than half the labour. Third: It is the cheapest in the market. Many more could be given but this should be sufficient. For sale by all grocers. 49-52t

The local government of Quebec has refused to consent to allow Drs. Buck and Medcalf to act along with Dr. Vallee in a commission to ascertain the sanity of Mrs. Lynam. Meanwhile the poor woman is confined in the refractory ward and all attempts to see her are refused.

A Decided Hit.

Hagyard's Yellow Oil touches the right spot every time when applied for rheumatism, neuralgia, pain, soreness or lameness, and internally for colds, sore throat, etc., it is equally infallible. 44-2t

Among those who may be said to have the inside track for the succession of Sir John Macdonald in the Conservative leadership is Sir Hector Langevin. He is playing his card to that end in Quebec.

An Agreeable Surprise.

Those who try Burdock Blood Bitters as a regulator of the bowels, or to purify the blood, aid digestion, regulate the liver and kidney, or strengthen tired nature, are agreeably surprised at the prompt benefit derived. 44-2t

A named James Cunningham died at the General Hospital, Winnipeg, on Saturday, from the effects of burning on the previous Thursday. On Thursday night he entered the depot drunk and threw himself on the floor. An hour later when the operator entered the room, he found his clothes a mass of fire and Cunningham badly burned. One side of his body was burned away and one eye was destroyed. He was unconscious at the time, but on recovering his senses, he pitifully begged to be shot. He was brought to the city, and died as stated above. The fire is supposed to have been caused by a pipe in his pocket.

Rev. Dr. Potts at a temperance meeting in Montreal said it was his belief that Parliament would in the near future pass a prohibition act for the whole of the Dominion. The cause, he thought, was past the period for trifling with Lumbago.

Those who suffer from this disease will find a friend in NORMAN'S ELECTRIC BELTS when all other remedies fail. Ask your druggist for it and take no other. Guaranteed genuine. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street East, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 41-4t

A little four-year-old remarked to her mother on going to bed: "I am not afraid of the dark, mamma." "No, of course you are not," replied her mother, "for it can't hurt you." "But mamma, I was a little afraid once when I went into the pantry in the dark to get an apple." "What were you afraid of, dear?" asked her mother. "I was afraid I couldn't find the apples."

Scott's Emulsion of Pure

COD LIVER OIL, WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES, IN TUBERCULAR DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

Dr' John. Babington, Corranna, Mich., says:—"I have prescribed Scott's Emulsion with satisfactory results in Tubercular diseases of the lungs, and Mesentery glands; also in Neuralgia due to defective nerve nutrition."

The report of Commander Schley of the relief expedition which rescued the Greely party in the Artic wilds, shows conclusively that the bodies of six of the men had been mutilated by the survivors in their natural craving for food. Too much ado was made by the American press over the melancholy act, that brave men had been reduced to the dire extremity of sustaining life in this way, and the hope may be expressed that the sad fact may be lost sight of as speedily as possible.

Fair Evidence for Everybody.

No one can doubt the great merit of Polson's Nerviline, for it has been placed in the market in 10 cent bottles, just to give you the opportunity of testing its wonderful power over all kinds of pain. This is the best evidence of its efficiency, for every person can try for themselves. Polson's Nerviline is a positive (it cannot fail) cure for cramps, headache, colds, neuralgia, and the host of pains that flesh is heir to. Good to take, good to rub on. Go to any drug store and buy a 10 cent sample bottle. Large bottles 25 cents.

Sir Moses Montefiore, the philanthropic Jew, completed his hundredth year on Friday. A special says his health is surprisingly good, and his mental strength, despite his century of years, is wonderful. His anniversary will be celebrated in the synagogues throughout the world to-morrow. George Bancroft, the historian, was 84 on the 3rd inst. Cardinal Newman and Lord Shaftesbury are 83. Sir Julius Benedict is 80. Mr. Gladstone and Cardinal Manning are 76. Oliver Wendell Holmes and Mr. Barnum are 75. Cardinal McCloskey and the Pope are 74. Dr. McCosh is 73. President Gravy and Mr. Beecher are 71. Bismark and Verdi are 70. Sir John Macdonald is 69. All these great men, statesmen, historians, divines, poets, musicians and philosophers, are to-day hard workers in their respective spheres. Labor evidently does not kill.

An End to Bone Scraping.

Edward Shepherd, of Harrisburg, Ill., says "Having received so much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years; my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cents a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25 cents per box by Taylor & McDonald.

Turnbull's customers for the past year have been testing that choice Velveteen which he keeps, and pronounce it perfectly fast pile. This is the only sure way of testing an article. A full range of shades just received.

A WOMAN'S INGENUITY.

When Edison, genius and inventor that he is, had given two weeks of his valuable time to going up and down on the New York elevated railroad trying to discover what caused its noise and a cure for it, he gave up the job. Then a little woman took it. She rode on the cars three days, was denied a place to stand on the rear platform, laughed at for her curiosity, and politely snubbed by conductors and passengers. But she discovered what caused the noise, invented a remedy that was patented, and she was paid the sum of $10,000 and a royalty for ever. Her name is Mrs. Mary Walton, and she lives in New York city.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates

The point on which the celebrated Abernethy most insisted was the stomach, and through that important organ he maintained that all diseases could be cured. The truth of this observation is evident when we reflect that the whole aim of treatment in all forms of debility is to correct errors in nutrition arising from failure of the digestive apparatus to convert food enough into healthy blood to maintain the daily wants of the system. For the cure of stomach troubles we have probably the most reliable remedy yet originated in Dr. Wheeler's Phosphates and Calisaya.

This wheat is purchased for consumption in a foreign market. During the elections of 1878 and again in 1882 the people were told that the producer and the consumer would be brought together. Manufactures were to be established everywhere, and all that the farmers produced was to be consumed at home. They were to save the cost of transportation on what they bought, and they were to get a larger price in consequence for what they had to sell. A full and fair trial for six years has falsified these promises. The farmer is still dependant on foreign markets, and the manufacturer is distressed because his products are unsold and his capital unemployed.

The great results which have attended the regular use of Quinine Wine, by people of delicate constitution and those affected with a general prostration of the system, speak more than all the words that we can say in its behalf. This article is a true medicine and a life-giving principle—a perfect renovator of the whole system—invigorating at the same time both body and mind. Its medical properties are a febrifuge tonic and antiperiodic. Small doses, frequently repeated, strengthen the pulse, create an appetite, enable you to obtain refreshing sleep, and to feel and know that every fibre and tissue of your system is being braced and renovated In the fine Quinine Wine, prepared by Northrop & Lyman, Toronto, we have the exact tonic required; and to persons of weak and nervous constitutions we would say, Never be without a bottle in the house. It is sold by all druggists.

Beware!

of the continued use of mercury and potash for the treatment of Blood and skin diseases, they never cure, and nearly always injure or totally ruin the general health.

A WELL-KNOWN DRUGGIST.

I have seen a great many cases cured with Shaker Blood Syrup—some who have tried all sorts of treatment. In fact, I have never known it to fail when taken properly. I sell a large quantity of it, and for all diseases that are dependent on blood poison or skin humor. It cures and makes the complexion fair and rosy. As for blood taint, there is no such word as fail. It cures cases that have long withstood other sorts of treatment, and without any of those recurring troubles that generally follow mercurial and other so-called cures.

PIMPLES AND BLOTCHES ON THE SKIN,

Indignation Meeting

Considering the circumstances several of our George Street merchants showed a good deal of recklessness in leaving their premises long enough to go to the Council Chamber to condole with one another and talk over, the dangers to which unrestrained burglars exposed them. Considerable plain speaking was indulged in and resolutions were adopted—one, endorsing the immediate appointment by the mayor, of night watchmen and the other recommending the appointment of an efficient Chief of police. As a result three night watchmen are on duty every night, and steps are being taken to secure an efficient Chief of police.

Ranney's Dog.

Mr. George Ranney's little brown spaniel is a most intelligent dog. Daily he goes to Davis' Bookstore for his master's paper the Mail. He enters the door and stands looking at the pile, his eyes all alight and his tail vigoriously wagging. It is folded, Charley opens his mouth and with it darts out to his master, carrying it carefully until he is relieved of it. A knowing dog is Charley; if the paper is not promptly given him, he plants his two front feet on the counter, and by his impatience secures attention. One day he was neglected, so he, seized a paper off the counter and ran out, but he had not gone far when he stopped, opened his mouth and dropping the paper, ran back and waited for the right one. The fact is Charley is a Tory, and by mistake he had got a nauseous grit mouthful, the Globe; this he discovered and so he went back for his tidbit, the Mail. The odor of the paper or ink of the Mail is different from that of the Globe. Charley's taste is cultivated, and he knows quite well when he gets a paper of his own stripe of politics.

SMITH'S MARKET,
George Street, Peterborough.

White and Grey Cottons, all qualities at unusually low prices. Also a lot of Canton Flannel sheets, cheap. John Erskine's.

Exhibition Grounds.

The directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society, have not yet succeeded in finding exhibition grouds. They have their eye on lots in the north and south parts of the town respectively. They aim to get grounds suitable for the holding, also, of the Provincial Exhibition. The town is a most suitable place, and the ambition on the part of the directors a laudable one.

450 Woman Wanted.

To have their husbands Insure in the North American Life, on the commercial endowment plan. Also to insure their houses and furniture in our old and reliable fire Co. $2000 insurance for 25c. Don't travel without one. City insurance office, George, Street.

A. Wilson, G. A. Morrison, } Gen. Agts.

Turnbull has a fine range of Children's Knit School Dresses, which only need introducing to be appreciated.

Explanatory.

In our report of the Humphries vs. Breakenridge, slander case, called for the recent Assizes, we unintentionally did the defendant an injustice. The defendant did not withdraw and apologise absolutely, for he denied and denies having used the language imputed, but he was willing if he did use the language, alleged, to withdraw and apologise, and on these conditions, the action was settled, the overtures coming from the plaintiff.

A Pleasant Entertainment.

A pleasant and successful entertainment, under the auspices of the ladies of No. 1 Ward, in aid of the bazaar fund of St. Peter's Cathedral, took place in Lake street on Friday night. Misses Simons, McIlmoyle, McFadden and Lynch, and Messrs. Clark, Routley, Coughlin, the Messrs. Picard, LeGros, Barleau, Wallbrook and Simons contributed to the excellent programme presented. The financial success was gratifying.

Acknowledgement.

The ladies of the Peterborough Protestant Home, beg with thanks to acknowledge the following donations received during the past few months: T. G. Hazlitt, lumber; Melville Miller, nails; Mrs. Samuel Dickson, bag of apples; A friend, basket of cakes from social; bedstead and pillow, from Mrs. Dunlop; Mrs. Manson, parcel of clothing; Mrs. Waller, parcel of clothing; a friend pickles and preserves; Mrs. Vernon, kitchen table, half dozen knives and forks, ham and butter; Mrs. Walter Paterson jr. parcel of clothiing.

Important.

Horse cars, stages and elevated railroad to all depots. Families can live better for less money at the Grand Hotel than at any other first-class hotel in the city. 43-1y

Belleghem's Bracket.

We have reason to know that the wall bracket presented by Mr. D Belleghem to the public has been received with great favour. So highly is the gift prized, that many persons, who have seen the brackets secured by their more fortunate neighbors, have applied at THE EXAMINER office for copies of the paper containing the slip necessary to be presented to secure the bracket. We had however, no copies remaining. But if our subscribers will look up their EXAMINER of Oct 16th or a copy of our FALL FAIR ADVERTISER, liberally distributed at all the agricultural exhibitions they will find Mr. Belligham's notice and by presenting it they will get a bracket, for he has some of the 2000 made for free distribution still on hand. Mr. Belleghem is noted for keeping faith with the public He has not only done so, and will continue to do so in reference to his gift bracket, but his advertising of his furniture will be found to be borne out by the excellence of his magnificent stock of all kinds of furniture which he keeps constantly on hand.

A large range of Black Quilted Skirts, surprising good value at Turnbull's.

Protestant Home.

The ladies connected with the Peterborough Protestant Home desire to call the attention of the Town Council and people generally to the necessity of additional shelter for the aged and infirm. The Home is now full, and we are unable to take in any more; it has been a quiet haven of rest to not a few weary and homeless ones. Some can bless God that their steps were directed thitherward. Considerable expense has been incurred in necessary improvements, which are at present in progress, consequently we have had to encroach largely on Mrs. Robert Nicholls' donation. It will be esteemed a great boon if some entertainment could be got up by our kind, energetic young people in town for the benefit of the Home. We are sure this has only to be mooted in order that it may be put in practice. "He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed, for he giveth of his substance to the poor." We would also remind our merchants that any unsaleable goods would be very acceptable; we have four fatherless children, as well as the sick and aged, across our keen Canadian winter is fast approaching anything they would give would be thankfully received. Our farmers, we trust, will give what produce they can. Donations in money to be given to our treasurer, Mrs. Jeffers. The churches will, no doubt, give their annual collection. Let us all try to strew loving deeds as we journey on, smoothing each other's path; remembering the Saviour's gentle reminder, "Inasmuch as ye did it to one of the least of these, ye did it unto Me," "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—COM.

A fine range of Dress Goods, with all the popular trimmings to match. Turnbull's is the house for Dress Goods.

Church Socials.

A Parlour Social (Mark-street Methodist Church, Ashburnham) will be held at the residence of Rev. Mr. McAmmond, pastor, in that village to-night (Thursday).

An Oyster Social will be held in the Charlotte-street Methodist Church to-night (Thursday).

Benefit Concert.

Don't forget the complimentary benefit entertainment for Mr. Orme B. Dixon in the Opera House on Thursday night. The programme in which Mr. Dixon will take a prominent part, will be a capital one. Don't forget to-night (Thursday.)

Dufferin Literary Club.

At the meeting of this club, held on Friday night, Mr. D. W. Dumble, honorary president occupied the chair, and Messrs. P. Henry and L. E. Horning on the affimative, and Messrs. F. Scott and A. Clegg, contra, debated the subject of the abolition of capital punishment, with the result of a decision for the negative.

The Anstruther Mystery.

The mystery of the death of the late John Johnston, found dead in the woods of Anstruther, still continues, all efforts to throw light on the matter, meet with scant success. On Thursday night the adjourned inquest had a sitting, but the examination of two or three witnesses elicited nothing of importance. Another session of the inquest, Monday night, left the mystery a mystery still.

The Electric Light.

The electric light we use in Peterborough, which gives such excellent satisfaction in every respect, is produced by the Thompson-Houston system, which is being introduced largely throughout the Dominion by the Royal Electric Light Company, Montreal. The principle of using the light for the streets was adopted by the Town Council at its last sitting, the subject, however, being laid over to arrange matters of detail.

Ladies cannot do better than call at Turnbull's Show Room, for fashionable Millinery, all the latest shapes trimmed with colors to match suits.

Saved Army.

The council of war of the Saved Army will hold its quartely session in the Gospel Hall, or old Music hall, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 4th, 5th and 8th. It is expected that a large number of representatives and officers will be present. Business pertaining to the vigirous prosecution and extension of the work of the Army will receive attention. Mass Gospel meetings will be held each evening.

A Prohibitory Tariff.

Our police magistrate has became a convert to the doctrine of protection. At the police court on Saturday, a man pleaded guilty to using protane language in a public place, remarking that he came from "the States." The magistrate rejoined that he was an undesirable foreign importation and he would impose a specific duty of $2, to exclude him from the country. If all the profanity of the N.P., has caused where thus taxed, the surplus would be astonishing.

No. 1 Ward Election.

The election in No. 1 Ward on Monday, to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Allin's death, resulted in the return of Mr. McNeil. The figures are: McNeil, 139; McNaughton, 107; majority, 32. The councillor elect was declared elected, and subscribed to the declaration of office on Tuesday. Mr. McNaughton is not discouraged at the result, in view of the extraordinary exertions used to defeat him. He asserts that there will be no walk-over for any opponent of his next January.

An Inventer's Advice.

George Stevenson when advising young men how to get on would finish by saying, "Do as I have done—persevere." For fifteen years he plodded and worked before giving the finishing touches to his locomotive. In as many days those persevering in the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," have experienced great relief and found themselves on the high road to health. Liver complaints, impure blood, chronic lung diseases and many others yield to its healing influences never to return. All druggists.

PROGRESS.

It is now quite half a century ago since the harness manufacturers were dependent upon the rude workmanship of village blacksmiths for a vast number of those articles of necessity and convenience in saddlery hardware, or imported from foreign countries those that were illy adapted to their wants.

Had this state of things continued our country would not have earned its fame for ingenuity and enterprise. Fortunately for us a change has taken place. With improved hardware and good leather we are enabled to manufacture the best makes of harness at prices that will compare favorably with honest competitors.

Anticipating an abundant harvest (in which, I am glad to see, we will not be disappointed), I have made very extensive preparation for this Fall's trade. My stock of Harness and Horse Blankets was never so extensive and complete, and the prices are such as cannot but prove satisfactory.

ALMOST

every person is now aware that every year makes it more difficult to procure good Buffalo Robes. I entered the market early and purchased at a time that will enable me to sell my Robes at prices that will astonish you.

JAPANESE ROBES.

I would also call your special attention to the fact that many houses have been selling a very inferior robe, and insisting that it is of the best quality. Only last year I was obliged to return a great number that an unprincipled house tried to palm off on me as No. 1. I can with confidence recommend my Japanese Robes, and only ask you to see them to be convinced.

I still keep the largest and best stock of Trunks, Valises, Satchels, Pocket-Books and Ladies' Hand Bags, Express Wagons, Baby Carriages, etc

THE BURGLAR BAND.

Three Robberies on Three Successive Nights.

After a long immunity, Peterborough is afflicted with an epidemic of burglaries. On Tuesday night nocturnal knaves broke into H. C. Winch's meat market, but the modesty of the thieves did not prevent their making a haul—the contents of the till had been previously removed in the owner's interests.

R. B. M'KEE ROBBED.

However, on the following night the thieves were better rewarded. Forcing open the back door of McKee's hardware store, they entered and carried away about $500 worth of goods. These consisted of a bagful of fine pocket and pen knives of great value, about fifty razors, over a dozen revolvers and several breech-loading shot guns and rifles. The thieves evidently found their spoil too heavy to carry, for the bulk of it was found concealed at Romaine's brick works (unused) by Ambrose Jones, the caretaker, the next morning. He wisely kept his counsel and reported the matter to the chief of police. The chief, instead of leaving the goods there as a decoy and utilizing the trap set for the thieves by themselves, committed the stupendous—well, eccentricity of removing the goods publicly, and by noising the matter abroad put the rascals on their guard.

JOS. MILLS VISITED.

The thieves, thus freed from apprehensions of danger from lynx-eyed police, it is not at all surprising that they retrieved their bad fortune by making another haul the next night. After an unsuccessful attempt to enter White's boot store, George street, they entered the fur store of Joseph Mills, by removing a pane from the back window. They took over $300 worth of furs, consisting of mantles, caps, collars, gauntlets, etc., besides a large number of fine kid gloves. They, however, had better luck than the night before, for they got off clear with their booty and, as yet, there is no trace of them. The boldness of these reprobates, in both cases striking lights and operating in front of an unshaded plate glass, is a disgracefully cutting commentary on the inefficiency of our police protection.

St. John's Anniversary.

On Monday last, St. Simon and St. Jude's day, the anniversary services, commemorative of the reopening of St. John's church, was held. There was celebration of the Holy Communion, at eight o'clock. At eleven o'clock there were morning service and a sermon by Ven. Arch Deacon Lauder, Ottawa. In the evening another service was held, when the choral service by the choir was most impressively and effectively rendered. Rev. Canon Dumoulin of St. James Cathedral, Toronto, preached the sermon. The attendance at both services was exceedingly large, and the anniversary services throughout most successful and edifying.

No Difference Whatever!

Although there is a cry of times being hard, we sometimes think it is only a cry, not a reality.

Merchants have said to us: "It is very dull, yet we are astonished at the quantity of Goods that go out." They ought to say: "We are astonished at people crying Hard Times."

As to our own Trade, we have found no difference between this year and last, for we have sold as many Goods, and have made Greater Preparations for our Fall and Christmas trade this year than any previous one.

FINE FARM FOR SALE.

That beautifully located Farm.

The West half of lot 26, in the 12th Concession of Otonabee.

Situated east of the old Cobourg Railway. The property comprises 88 acres more or less. The soil is excellent and well adapted to gardening purposes. Its situation is very desirable, it being only one mile from the market square, and commanding a fine view of the town of Peterborough. Since the property came into possession of its present proprietor, over $1,000 has been spent on its improvement. It is one of the best watered farms in Ontario, being supplied by a never-failing spring well, so situated as to provide ten feet head. From this are laid nearly 700 feet of iron piping. At a distance of 210 feet from the spring this pipe leads to a watering trough in the barn. A continuation of the pipe carries the overflow from this, 440 feet further to another watering trough into another field. From the latter the overflow passes into a tile drain on the road side, and thence away. This pipe is provided with two taps, by which the water supply to the stock may be regulated. This water supply makes the farm eminently fitted for grazing purposes; stock can be supplied with continual access to an unlimited supply of pure living water. Or for market gardening the facilities for irrigation would admit of setting dry seasons at defiance, this together with the proximity to a first class market (only one mile) makes this farm unequaled for this purpose.

For either a gentleman of leisure who wishes to devote his retirement to agricultural pursuits or for a pushing man who desires to make money, this farm for fertility of soil, water supply, beauty of situation and convenience to town, can have no superior.

TERMS: One thousand dollars to be paid down when deeds are handed over, the balance may remain on the property at 6 per cent interest for any term agreed upon.

TOWN COUNCIL.

Adjourned Special Meeting.

An adjourned special meeting was held on Thursday evening last. Members present: The mayor in the chair, Messrs. Davidson, Green, Yelland, Rutherford, Menzies and Millar. Mr. Andrew McNeil, the new member for No. 1 ward, was declared entitled by the clerk to take his seat, which he took, being introduced by Councillor Davidson.

COMMUNICATIONS

were received

From E. H. D. Hall respecting the claim of Mrs. Costello, long since referred to the Finance committee. Mrs. Costello still suffered from the injuries received through the neglected and dilapidated condition of Hunter street. Mr. Davidson explained that the Finance committee had examined the matter and did not think any action necessary. Referred again to Finance committee

From E. B. Edwards, town solicitor, giving his opinion in reference to the Bethune street siding applied for by Wm. Yelland, stating that the giving of damages was discretionary with the council and not obligatory by statute, and that the by-law referred to him, amply protected property owners

From R. H. Carew and H. J. Douglass, each applying for appointment as night watchman.—Committee on Appointments.

From Mr. James Stratton, asking permission to make an addition to the driving sheds at the Baptist church, Murray street.—Building Committee with power to act.

From R. W. Erret, inclosing bill of unpaid costs, ($4.05) incurred in suits brought to recover income tax.—Account ordered to be paid.

FILLING VACANCIES.

On motion of Mr. Millar, seconded by Mr. Menzies, Mr. McNeil was appointed to take the place of the late Mr. Allen on the various committees of which the latter was a member, except Building and Health committee.

ELECTRIC LIGHT QUESTION.

Mr. Rutherford stated in reference to the electric light, that he had a communication from Mr. Hazlitt intimating the additional cost of keeping the lamps burning all night would be double the original cost. On Mr. Rutherford's motion to adopt the report of the Committee as presented on Monday night, Mr. Millar pointed out that in dispensing with gas, George street would be in darkness the latter half of the night. Mr. Menzies and Mr. Kelly favored referring the matter back to the committee.

MR. HAZLITT EXPLAINS.

Mr. Hazlitt said his offer, made at the suggestion of certain members, was at a figure less than half of what was offered to any city. In reference to all night lamps, he said there would be considerable expense attached, and if he gave an all night light of twenty-five lamps at 50 cents, he would be doing so at a loss. He did not urge the matter on the council, he was conducting the matter in with a view of seeing how cheaply the light might be furnished, and he had succeeded in furnishing as good a light as any on the continent at a far lower price. He was willing to try the experiment of all night lights with single lamps replacing the carbons at 12 o'clock. If that succeeded he would put in double lamps. The 25 cents per light included cost of the carbons.

The mayor pointed out that by keeping the lights burning all night the town would be saved the need of one night watchman.

Mr. Cahill said that he didn't think the ratepayers were prepared to pay the large sum of $450, the cost of six lamps for the year.

Mr. Hazlitt explained that it was proposed to replace 15 gas lamps with 6 electric lamps. The cost of the former was $300 for 210 nights, while the electric lamps cost $315. The increased cost of the electric light burning 90 nights additional furnished adequate compensation for the slight increase of price.

Mr. Cahill would vote for the six lamps if they were equitably distributed.

Mr. Yelland suggested a compromise. The George street merchants would be most largely benefitted; let the additional light—after 12 o'clock—be paid for by local tax. He thought it unfair to the general ratepayers to make them pay for burning the light all night. He did not make this suggestion from self-interest, for he would be affected by the local tax himself.

Mr. Davidson would support the report if lamps were placed at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer and George and King streets.

Mr. Menzies moved, seconded by Mr. Green, that the matter of the electric light be referred back to the Fire, Water and Gas Committee, to report at the next meeting.—Carried.

Mr. Cahill moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that Mr. McNeil be appointed a member of the Fire, Water and Gas Committee.

Mr. Rutherford objected. The motion was agreed to.

FIRE ENGINE HEATER.

Mr. McNeil moved, seconded by Mr. Davidson, that the Clerk be instructed to write to the Silsby Manufacturing Company to ascertain the cost of a heater for the steamer. He explained how a heater would facilitate the rapid getting up of steam and render her ready for work the moment she arrived at a fire.—Carried.

COAL SUPPLANTS WOOD.

Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Menzies, that the Clerk be empowered to replace the stoves now in use in the town buildings by coal stoves. Carried.

THE SIDING BY-LAW.

On motion to go into committee on the second reading of the Bethune street by-law, Mr. Kelly said that in the absence of Mr. Douglass, who was directly interested in the matter, it would be hardly fair to proceed. As Mr. Douglass was represented by counsel (Mr. Moore) the Council decided to go on.

The by-law empowering the Midland Railway to extend a siding on Mr. Wm. Yelland's property on Bethune street was introduced, de novo, and read a first time.

On motion in Committee of the Whole, Mr. Hartley in the chair, to adopt the second clause on the second reading, Mr. Roe stated that he would like the matter deferred till Mr. Douglass returned.

On motion of Mr. Davidson, seconded by Mr. Cox, Mr. Moore, Mr. Douglass' solicitor, was heard: He would prefer that the matter should be postponed. He pointed out, however, that the by-law did not prevent the Railway Company making station grounds of Mr. Yelland's premises. He thought the clause should be so amended as to confine the use of the siding to Mr. Yelland's purposes. The bond signed by Mr. Yelland to secure damages, attached to the by-law, should be embodied in the by-law itself.

Mr. Yelland controverted Mr. Moore's arguments. Mr. Douglass' special request that the by-law be referred to the Town Solicitor had been complied with, and the latter had reported, stating that there was no need for further delay, the by-law providing for justice to all.

Mr. Cahill thought that the passing of the by-law to-night might be unfair to Mr. Douglass.

Mr. Poussette, Mr. Yelland's solicitor, replied to the legal points raised by Mr. Moore and read the covenant signed by Mr. Yelland, which was to the effect that Mr. Yelland was to compensate property owners injured, the premises being security for the fulfillment of the bond; the covenant also provided for the appointment of arbitrators. The by-law and covenant provided for the absolute certainty of property owners being compensated.

The clause passed, and on motion for the third reading of the by-law, Mr. Rutherford moved, seconded by Mr. Green, that the by-law be not now read a third time, but read a third time on Monday night next. The amendment was lostand the by-law read a third time and passed.

BETHUNE STREET REPAIRS.

Mr. Kelly moved, seconded by Mr. Rutherford, that the Clerk be instructed to communicate with the Engineer of the Grand Trunk, requesting him to put Bethune street, opposite Mr. R. Lundy's residence, in a passable condition, with a crossing.—Carried.

Council adjourned till Monday night, Nov. 10th.

ST. LUKE'S, ASHBURNHAM.

Progressive Prosperity of the Parish.

In our last issue we promised to allude to the progress of this parish, which has, in both spiritual and material things, shown remarkable advancement. The parish of St. Luke's was constituted in 1876, the first service being held in the school room on the 9th of July in that year. At that time there was not a dollar subscribed by any individual for the support of the church or clergyman, or towards the erection of any church edifice. Now the expenditure on church, school room and rectory has amounted to and that, too, without there being a single dollar of indebtedness. Besides this excellent showing, all salaries have been promptly paid.

These most satisfactory evidences of prosperity have been accompanied with a corresponding spiritual growth:

At Christmas, 1876, the communicants numbered only 42. There are now considerably over 200 on the roll, although there have been marked diminutions by reason of removals and deaths. On Easter day this year 154 received the sacred elements at the Rector's hands.

THE AGENCIES

connected with St. Luke's are a well-conducted and largely attended Sunday School, a weekly Bible Class; Communicants' meetings; a Temperance Guild and Band of Hope, with a membership of nearly 200; a Girl's Friendly Society; a Parochial Association, with Committees on Decoration, District Visiting, Dorcas Work and Entertainment. A parish library, of over 200 volumes furnishes instruction and entertainment. A prominent feature in the work of the parish of St. Luke's is a well-conducted monthly periodical, entitled Parish Church Work, with nearly 200 subscribers. This little monthly, highly creditable in appearance and contents, is an additional evidence of the indefatigable energy and solicitude for the souls under his cure, manifested by the Rector.

THE BUILDINGS

in use consist of a neat church, capable of seating a congregation of over 375; a commodious school room, a well-built and extensive rectory, with carriage house, stable and cow-house. All these buildings are of white brick, well constructed and in excellent order. In addition to these, large driving sheds have been constructed.

A fine pipe organ, built by Warren & Son, Toronto, is placed in the church, and a new piano has just been placed in the school room.

CHURCH SUPPORT.

The support of the church and its agencies is liberal. The weekly offertory (by which the church is supported, there being no pew rents,) averages between $22 and $23, as compared with an average of less than $16 in 1878.

There have been held seven confirmations, at which 259 candidates were confirmed. The baptisms have been 318, the marriages 44, and the burials, 93.

A large range of Black Quilted Skirts, surprising good value at Turnbull's.

Never Give Up.

If you are suffering with low and depressed spirits, loss of appetite, general debility, disordered blood, weak constitution, headache, or any disease of a bilious nature, by all means procure a bottle of Electric Bitters. You will be surprised to see the rapid improvement that will follow; you will be inspired with new life; strength and activity will return; pain and misery will cease, and thenceforth you will rejoice in the praise of Electric Bitters. Sold at 50 cents a bottle by Taylor & McDonald.

MINING HORROR.

A Halifax despatch says: A terrible accident occurred at the west ore mine in connection works of the Canada Steel Co., Londonderry. Six men were going down the Dufferin shaft in a cage when some of the gearing broke, precipitating the cage a distance down the shaft, where it caught on a projection and, turning upside down, threw the men a distance of about 220 feet to the bottom of the shaft, killing three of its occupants and horribly mangling three others.

PEOPLE WHO READ AND REFLECT, after reading, upon the many published testimonials regarding Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, can scarcely fail to perceive that evidence so positive and concurrent could not be adduced in behalf of a remedy of doubtful efficacy. The facts proven by such evidence are that it roots out impurities of the blood, restores digestion, enriches the circulation, and regulates the bowels and liver.

ORANGE ADDRESS.

Rev. Mr. Tovell, George street Methodist Church.

On Sunday afternoon last at 3:30 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Tovell, pastor of the George street Methodist church, delivered the address in commemoration of the occasion marked by the 5th of November, under the auspices of the Orange Association in Peterborough. The central seats of the church were reserved for the members of the order, and they were fairly well filled. The congregation in other parts of the church was not very large, probably owing to the occasion not being sufficiently made known.

The reverend gentleman, after the usual devotional exercises, said he would, in addressing the Orange organization, depart from the ordinary practice and refer but little to the direct history of Protestantism, but would carry the minds of his hearers back to a name whose memory would be contemporary with the existence of Protestantism. It was a familiar name and one whose possessor had rescued from the oblivion of superstition and ignorance, the one great principle of liberty—he would direct their attention to the hero of the Reformation, Martin Luther. Luther was born November the 10th, 1483, and that date coming so close to Nov. 5th, had suggested Martin Luther and his life work as an appropriate subject for an address. The speaker proceeded to point out that the great reformer's early training in its severe discipline fitted him in one sense, for the stern struggle he was afterwards to enter into. The reformer's life was graphically sketched to the time of his graduation at the University of Erfurth at the age of twenty years. His dedication of his life to monastic vows was a turning point in his career. In the cells of a monastery, of the ecclesiastical system he was destined to afterwards shake to its foundations, he was wakened to a thirst for a fuller knowledge of God—here the love of God shed abroad in his heart, formed the seed of the Reformation. His pilgrimage to Rome, the sight of which awakened such holy emotions was described, for he still remained loyal to the church of Rome. But the visit had an important effect. Luther was deeply grieved and astonished at the dreadful examples of the corrupt abominations of the Romish priests. He returned to the university of Wittemberg filled with a fresh zeal for the cause of true religion, and for the reformation of the abuses of the church. He devoted himself diligently to the study of the Bible, whose indispensable agency in the work of the Reformation, the speaker eloquently described. The sale of indulgences which were described as licenses to commit sin, aroused Luther to combat this great evil. He attacked it with all his wonted fire and energy; he attacked papal abuses with the utmost boldness, and thus provoked the thunders of the church. But the papal bull which his enemies hoped, and his friends feared, would be his death blow, was so powerless to discourage or harm him, that in 1520, November the 10th, he publicly burned it, and the die was cast. The rupture between Luther and Rome was complete. When Charles V succeeded the Emperor Maximilian, Luther was summoned to the Diet of Worms, and called upon to disavow his theological work and to recant his heresies. But the splendors of a courtly assemblage were as powerless as the papal bull to shake his firmness. He could not and would not recant—"Here I stand; I can do no other, God help me. Amen." This scene was the hinging point of the Reformation, and the cradle of the true faith which our forefathers fought and bled to maintain. The lessons of Luther's life and labours were pointed out. The Reformation brought civil freedom, social elevation, religious freedom and liberty of conscience, the open Bible; and a reign of universal intelligence, followed on the freedom of the press. Without these Ontario would, in religious matters, be as Quebec and the British Islands, like poor down-trodden Ireland. The thanks of all Protestants were due to Luther, Wycliffe, Huss Latimer, Ridley, etc., etc. These all elevated the Bible, Luther above all, and his noblest monument would be the best love of the best hearts of humanity. Luther abides but the Emperor and Erasmus and the Pope, who opposed him and his work, have passed away. The gathering of the day was for the establishment of the principles of the Gospel and religious freedom. In the opposition to these principles, by the Roman Catholic church the speaker enjoined his hearers, not to seek to revenge that opposition on it by carnal weapons but by love and prayer—by the sword of the spirit—that its errors might be swept away, and the day hastened when there would be "one Lord, one faith, one baptism." Protestantism would yet be supreme by the battle of love and prayer. He asked Orangemen to become personal adherents of Christ and to fulfil their mission through faith in the Gospel alone.

THE MIDDLE STATE OF THE DEAD.

Rev. Father Conway Preaches on the Subject.

After the service of vespers at St. Peter's Cathedral on Sunday evening last, Rev. Father Conway preached on the subject of the Middle State of the Dead—commonly called Purgatory. Before entering on his subject he wished to state how greatly he was interested in the rebuilding of the church, and how grateful he was to Almighty God for his restoration to health, and that after five months he was first privileged to raise his voice on behalf of the church, which, when completed he asserted would be some thing of which, not only the congregation would be proud, but it would also be a pride and ornament of the town of Peterborough. The text chosen was the 46th verse of the 12th chapter of II. Maccabees—"It is therefore a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead that they may be loosed from their sins." The church was comprised of three parts—the church triumphant in Heaven, the church militant on earth, and the church suffering—the faithful, though gone to another world—who were guilty of venial sins of which they had died unabsolved, which must be atoned for. That there existed a middle state there could be no doubt. That was the belief of the universal world and the universal church till the 16th century. The Jews believed it and prayed for all their dead except suicides. It was also the belief of the Greeks, Romans and Egyptians. These received it from the Jews who got it from God. It was a universal belief and therefore it must come from God. In speaking of the corruption of this belief in the 16th century the speaker did not wish to give offence to any hearers of a different faith who might be present. This he had avoided during his thirty years' priesthood. Intemperate and offensive speaking he thought, was unworthy a gentleman and a Christian priest. In the Bibles translated under the Reformation there had been an important change made in one word tending to destroy this belief. The word which in the Hebrew, the Greek and the Vulgate signified "hell," was translated as "grave" in the Protestant Bible The speaker gave several instances to show that the interpretation "grave" could not be the true one. The belief of the Catholic Church on the subject was divided into two parts. First, that such a condition as the middle state or Purgatory exists, and secondly that the souls therein confined can be released through the prayers, alms and good works of the faithful, especially by procuring masses to be said. The question arose, was the Church right in teaching this? Yes. She was sent to teach the truth by the Holy Spirit. The Church could not cease to teach the truth, and that was the souls therein are benefitted by the prayers and alms of the faithful. Holy Scripture recorded that our Lord raised three persons from the dead—the daughter of Jarius, the widow's son, and Lazarus. The unbelievers in purgatory were asked where the souls of these remained during their death. Not in Heaven, for God was too just to call them back to earth from that place of bliss; not in Hell, for from that there was no escape: therefore they must have been in the middle state. Only a short time before the coming of our Lord Judas Maccabeus collected a sum of money for sacrifices for the dead. It might be asserted that the book of Maccabees was not canonical. Admitting this for argument's sake, it could not be denied that it was an authoritative history of the events and beliefs it recorded. Our Lord knew this was the belief of the Jews, yet he was never known to rebuke it. He took it for granted that the belief existed and was in harmony with his doctrine.

The testimony of the Fathers, which firmly sanctioned this belief, must be convincing. The Apostles' Creed proved his contention. It mentions that Christ was "buried" and "descended into hell"—a proof that the "grave" and "hell" did not mean the same thing. Tertullian, in the second century, in his work on "Monogamy," opposed the marriage of a widow on the ground that by remaining a widow she would be at fuller liberty to pray for the soul of her husband. St. Athanasius and Origen declared that they received the belief from their predecessors, and St. Augustine and his mother, St. Monica, also furnished unimpeachable testimony of the belief in the dogma of a middle state. It was the belief in the early ages of the church as to-day. The seceders from the Church in early days, the Copts and the Greek Church, held the belief, which they derived from the true Church, and had prayers for the dead. In fact all the evidence went to show that it was the universal belief till the 16th century. The doctrine was in accord with reason. God would not condemn to the same hell a child dying guilty of a venial sin and a red-handed murderer. Yet, if there is no place of purgation, it must be so. Nothing unclean can enter heaven. Even the catacombs of Rome showed by inscriptions on 4th and 5th century tombs that the Church had prayers for the dead.

The grave did not break the last tie between the living and the dead; the middle state was a connecting link. To-morrow, the preacher added, the Church sends up prayers for the dead, and he enjoined his flock to pray for them, offer alms and have masses celebrated for them. And when the soul of the beloved one, released from Purgatory, ascends to Heaven, it will not forget you, it will pour out prayers in your behalf; and this constituted the beautiful doctrine of the Roman Catholic Church, the communion of the saints.

Sell and Pay Up.

The message we have to convey may be put in these words, "Sell and pay up." Don't sell if you do not require to, and if you do not want to; but pay up your accounts anyway, or rather your debts. This notion of leaving accounts unpaid is ridiculous and old-fashioned. It should be obsolete. Non-payment of these debt at the time when they ought to be paid, and at the time, too, when everybody expects them to be paid, has a depressing and deadening effect on general business, and increases considerably the costs and worries of trade. It is the bounden duty of every man who owes two dollars, or ten dollars, or one hundred dollars to the merchant to go and pay it now, and not put it off till winter or spring. Bills due the Harness-maker should be paid now; and this is to be taken as a general intimation or command to all concerned to govern themselves accordingly, and promptly pay up.

It devolves upon the farmers at this particular season to set the money ball rolling. They have their harvest to realize upon, and fortunately it is a large harvest. Prices for wheat are low, too low, but for other farm produce fair figures are ruling. Barley is not so bad, compared with former years, except those abnormally high; oats and peas are good; hay, pork, beef live stock, butter, eggs, and a good many other things command good prices, and on the whole the farmer has had a good year. Farmers, then, should realize upon their surplus and pay their debts now. Let every farmer interested act upon this and come and get their Robes, Horse Blankets and Harness, of which I have a large and well-assorted stock, which I am determined to sell on a small margin.

THE BRIGHTEST OF DAYS.

"And call the Sabbath a delight." Isaiah lviii, 13.

There is an element of gloom striking through all false religions. Paganism is a brood of horrors. The God of Confucius frowned upon its victims with blind fate. Mohammedanism promises nothing to those exhausted with sin in this world but an eternity of the same passional indulgences. The papacy prostrates its devotees with fastings and kneelings and merciless taxation of the poor man's wages, and tugs until it sweats from January to December, in trying to pull its dead priests and archbishops out of purgatory. But God intended that our religion should have the grand characteristic of cheerfulness. St. Paul struck the key-note when he said, "rejoice evermore, and again I say rejoice." The religion has no spikes for the feet; it has no hooks for the shoulder; it has no long pilgrimages to take; it has no funeral pyres upon which to leap: it has no Juggernaut before which to fall. Its good cheer is symbolized in the Bible by the brightness of waters, and the redolence of lilies, and the sweetness of music, and hilarities of a banquet. A choir of seraphim chanted at its induction, and pealing trumpet, and waving palm, and flapping wing of archangel are to celebrate its triumphs. It began its mission with a shout. "Glory to God in the highest!" and it will close its earthly mission with the aspiration, "Hallelujah, for the Lord God Omnipotent reigneth!"

But men have said that our religion is not cheerful, because we have such a doleful Sabbath. They say, "You can have your religious assemblages, and your long faces, and your sniffling cant, and your psalm-books, and your Bibles. Give us the Sunday excursion, and the horse-race, and the convivial laughter. We have so much joy that we want to spread it all over the seven days of the week, and you shall not have one of our days of worthy satisfaction for religious dolefulness." I want to show these men—if there are any such in the house this morning—that they are under a great delusion, and that God intended the 52 Sundays of the year to be hung like bells in a tower, beating a perpetual chime of joy and glory and salvation and heaven for I want you to carry out the idea of the text, "and call the Sabbath a delight."

I remark in the first place, we are to find in this day the joy of healthy repose. In this Democratic country all have to work—some with hand, some with brain, some with foot. If there is in all this house a hand that has not during the past year, been stretched forth to some kind of toil, let it be lifted. Not one, not one. The Sabbath was intended as a savings-bank; into it we are to gather the resources upon which we are to draw all the week, There are thousands of men who have had their lives dashed out against the golden gates of the Sabbath. A prominent London merchant testifies that thirty years ago he went to London. He says, "I have during that time watched minutely, and I have noticed that men who went to business on the Lord's day, or opened their counting-houses, have, without a single exception, come to a failure." A prominent christian merchant in Boston says, "I find it don't pay to work on Sunday. When I was a boy I noticed on Long Wharf there were merchants who loaded their vessels on a Sabbath day, keeping their men busy from morning till night, and it is my observation that they themselves came to nothing—these merchants—and their children came to nothing. It dosn't pay" he says, "to work on the Sabbath."

I appeal to your own observation. Where are the men who twenty years ago were Sabbath breakers, and who have been Sabbath-breakers ever since? Without a single exception you will tell me, they have come either to financial or to moral beggary. I defy you to point out a single exception, and you can take the whole world for your field. It has either been a financial or moral defalcation in every instance. Six hundred and forty physicians in London petition Parliament saying: "We must have the Sabbath obeyed. We cannot have health in this city and in this nation unless the Sabbath is obeyed." Those in our own country have given evidence on the same side. The man who takes down the shutters of his store on the Sabbath takes down the curse of Almighty God. That farmer who cultures his ground on the Sabbath day raises a crop of neuralgia, consumption and of death. A farmer said: "I defy your Christian Sabbath. I will raise a Sunday crop." So he went to work and ploughed the ground on Sunday, and harrowed it on Sunday, and he planted corn on Sunday, and gathered it into the barn on Sunday. "There," he said, "I have proved to you that all this idea about a fatality accompanying Sabbath work is a perfect sham. My crop is garned and all is well." But before many weeks passed the Lord God struck that barn with his lightning, and away went the Sunday crop.

Sabbath morning comes to the household. I suppose that the mere philosopher would say that the Sabbath light comes in a wave current just like any other light; but it does not seem so to me. It seems as if it touched the eyelids more gently and threw a brighter glow on the mantel ornaments, and cast a better cheerfulness on the faces of the children, and threw a supernatural glory over the old family Bible. Hail! Sabbath light! We rejoice in it. Rest comes in through the window, or it leaps, up from the fire, or it rolls out in the old arm-chair, or it catches up the body into ecstacy, and swings open before the soul the twelve gates, which are twelve pearls. The bar of the unopened warehouse, the hinges of the unfastened store window, the quiet of the commercial warehouse seems to say, "This is the day the Lord hath made." Rest for the sewing-woman, with weary hands, and aching side, and sick heart. Rest for the overtasked workman in the mine, or out on the wall, or in the swel tering factory. Hang up the plane, drop the adze, slip the band from the wheel, put out the fire. Rest for the body, for the mind and for the soul.

Again I remark, we ought to have in the Sabbath the joy of domestic reunion and consecration. There are some very good parents who have the faculty of making the Sabbath a great gloom. Their children run up against the wall of parental lugubriousness on that day. They are sorry when Sunday comes, aud glad when it goes away. They think of everything bad on that day. It is the worst day to them, really, in all the week there are persons who, because they were brought up in Christian families where their wrong notions about the Sabbath, have gone out into dissipation and will be lost. A man said to me, "I have a perfect disgust for the Sabbath to-day, I never saw my father smile on Sunday. It was such a dreadful day to me when I was a boy, I never got over it, and never will." Those parents did not "call the Sabbath a delight;" they made it a gloom. But there are houses represented here this morning where the children will say through the week, "I wonder when Sabbath will come!" They are anxious to have it come. I hear their hosanna in the house; I hear the hosanna in the school, God intended the Sabbath to be especially a day for the father. The mother is home all the week. The Sabbath-day comes, and God says to the father, who has been busy from Monday morning to Saturday night at the store, or away from home. "This is your day. See what you can do to this little flock in preparing them for heaven. This day I set apart for you." You know very well that their are many parents who are mere sutlers of the household; they provide the food and raiment; once in a while, perhaps, they hear the child read a line or two in the new premier; or if their is a case of especial discipline and the mother cannot manage it, the child is brought up in the court-martial of the father's discipline and punished There is all there is of it. No scrutiny of that child's immorial interests, no realization of the fact that the child will soon go out in a world where cheers are gigantic and overwhelming temptations that have swamped millions. But in some households it is not that way; the home, beautiful on ordinary days, is more beautiful now that the sabbath has dawned, There is more joy in the "good-morning," there is more tenderness in the morning prayer. The father looks at the child, and the child looks at the father. The little one dare not to ask questions without any fear of being answered, "Don't bother me I must be off to the store." Now the father looks at the child, and he sees not merely the blue eyes, the arched brow, the long lashes, the sweet lip. He sees in that child a long line of earthly destinies; he see in that child an immeasurable eternity. As he touches that child he says, "I wonder what will be the destiny of this little one? I wonder if on his brow will come the coronet of God's redemption or the iron crown of despair? I wonder if I will clasp this little one afterall my Sabbaths have passed, and the doom of eternity has been announced? Will that little hand wave a palm or rattle a chain?" And while this christian father is thinking and praying, the sweet promise flows through his soul, "of such is the kingdom of heaven." And he feels a joy, not like that which sounds in the dance, or is wafted from the froth of the wine-cup, that which is like the "crackling of thorns under a pot" but the joy of domestic reunion and consecration.

Have I been picturing something that is merely fanciful, or is it possible for you and for me to have such a home as that? I believe it is possible. If we can have such a halo of grace and light, and love, and parental faithfulness around about our homes, we can expect for our little ones, when they go out into the world, a life of great usefulness, and finally a home in heaven.

I have a statistic that I would like to give you. A great many people, you know, say that there is nothing in the Christian discipline of a household. In New Hampshire there were two neighborhoods—the one of six families, the other of five families. The six families disregarded the Sabbath. In time, five of these families were broken up by the separation of husbands and wives; the other by the father becoming a thief. Eight or nine of the parents became drunkards, one committed suicide, and all came to penury. Of some forty or fifty descendants, about twenty are known to be drunkards and gamblers and dissolute. Four or five have been in State-prison. One fell in a duel. Some are in the almshouse. Only one became a Christian and he after first having been outrageously dissipated. The other five families that regarded the Sabbath were all prospered. Eight or ten children are consistent members of the Church. Some of them became officers in the Church. One is a minister of the Gospel; one is a missionary to China. No poverty among any of them. The homestead is now in the hands of the third generation Those who have died have died in the peace of the Gospel. Oh, there nothing in a household that remembers God's holy day? Can it be possible that those who disregard this holy commandment can be prospered for this life, or have any good hopes of the life that is to come?

Again, we ought to have in the Sabbath, the joy of Christian assemblage. Where are all these people going on the Sabbath? You see them moving up and down the street. It is a festal day: people might ask. Has there been some public edict commanding the people to come forth? No, they are only worshippers of God who are going to their places of religious service. In what delicate scale shall I weigh the joy of Christian convocation? It gives brightness to the eye, and a flush to the cheek, and a pressure to the hand, and a thrill to the heart. You see the aged man tottering along on his staff through the aisle. You see the little child led by the hand of its mother. You look around and rejoice that this is God's day, and this the communion of saints. 'One Lord, one faith, one baptism." Some familiar tune sets all the soul a-quake and a-quiver with rapture. We plunge into some old hymn, and all our cares and anxieties are bathed off. The glorious Gospel transports us, the Spirit decends, Jesus appears, and we feel the bounding, spreading, electric joy of Christian convocation.

I look upon the Church of God as one past hosanna. Joy dripping from the baptismal font, joy glowing in the sacramental cup, joy warbling in the anthem, joy beating against the gate of heaven with a hallelujah like the voice of mighty thunderings. Beautiful for situation! The joy of the whole earth is Mount Zion. It is the day and the place where Christ reviews his troops, bringing them out in campanies and regiments and battalions, riding along the line, examining the battl-torn flags of past combat, and cheering them on to future victories. Oh! the joy of Christian assemblage!

I remark also as we are to have in this day the joy of eternal Sabbath. I do not believe it possible for any Christian to spend the Lord's day here without thinking of heaven. There is something in the gathering of people in Church on earth to make one think of the rapt assemblage of the skies. There is something in the song of the Christian Church to make one think of the song of the elders before the throne, the harpists and the trumpeters of God accompanying the harmony. The light of the better Sabbath gilds the tops of this, and earth and heaven come within speaking distance of each other, the song of triumph waving backward and forward, now tossed up by the Church of earth, now sent back by the Church of heaven.

The Christian man stands radiant in its light. His bereft heart rejoices at the thought of a country where there is neither a coffin nor grave; his weary body glows at the idea of a land where there are no burdens to carry, and no exhaustive journeys to take. He eats the grapes of Eshcol. He stands upon the mountain top and looks off upon the promised Land. He hears the call of the eternal towers, and the tramp of the numberless multitude with sins forgiven. This is the day the Lord hath made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it. Oh ye who have been hunting for Sunday pleasures in the street, and on the river bank, and in the houses of sin, I command to you this holy day and holy service! I do not invite you to swallow a great bitterness, or to carry a heavy yoke; but I invite you to feel in body, mind and soul the thrill of joy which God has handed down in the chalices of the golden Sabbath.

There are two or three ways in which we can war against Sabbath-breaking usages in this day; and the first thing is to get our children right upon this subject, and teach them that the Sabbath-day is the holiest of all the days, and the best and the gladdest. Unless you teach your child under the parental roof to keep the Lord's day, there are nine hundred and ninety chances out of a thousand it will never learn to keep the Sabbath. You may think to shirk responsibility in the matter, and send your child to the Sabbath school and the house of God; that will not relieve the matter. I want to tell you, in the name of Christ, my Maker and my Judge, that your example will be more potential than any instruction they get elsewhere; and if you disregard the Lord's day yourself, or in any wise throw contempt upon it, you are blasting your children with an infinite curse. It is a rough truth, I know, told in a rough way: but it is God's truth, nevertheless. Your child may go on to seventy of eighty years of age, but that child will never get over the awful disadvantage of having had a Sabbath breaking father or a Sabbath-breaking mother. It is the joy of many of us that we can look back to an early home where God was honored, and when the Sabbath came it was a day of great consecration and joy. We remember the old faces around the table that Sabbath morning. Our hearts melt when we think of those blessed associations, and we may have been off and committed many indiscretions and done many wrong things; but the day will never come when we forget the early home in which God's day was regarded, and father and mother told us to keep holy the Sabbath.

There is another way in which we can war against the Sabbath breaking usages of the country at this time, and that is by making our houses of worship attractive and the religious inspiriting. I plead not for a gorgeous audience-chamber: I plead not for groined rafters or magnificent fresco; but I do plead for comfortable churches home-like churches—places where the church going population behave as they ought to. Make the church welcome to all. however poorly clad they may be, or whatever may have been their past history; for I think the Church of God is not so much made for you who could have churches in your house, but for the fast population of our great cities who are treading on toward death, with no voice of mercy to arrest them. Ah! when the prodigal comes into the church, do not stare at him as though he had no right to come. Give him the best seat you can find for him. Sometimes a man wakes up from his sin, and he says: "I'll go to the house of God." Perhaps he comes from one motive, perhaps he comes from another. He finds the church dark, and the Christian people frigid (and there are no people on earth who can be more frigid than christian people when they try), and the music is dull and he never comes again. Suppose one of these men enters the church. As he comes in he hears a song which his mother sang when he was a boy: he remembers it. He sits down and some one hands him a book, open at "Jerusalem, my happy home,

Name ever dear to me."

"Yes," he says, "I have heard that many times." He sees cheerful Christian people there, every man's face a psalm of thanksgiving to God. He says, "Do you have this so every Sunday? I have heard that the house of God was a doleful place, and Christians were lugubrious and repelling! I have really enjoyed myself!" The next Sabbath the man is again in the same place. Tears of repentance start down his cheeks; he begins to pray; and when the communion table is spread, he sits at it, and some one reaches over and says. "I am surprised to find you here. I thought you didn't believe in such things." "Ah!" he says, "I have been captured. I came in one day and found you were all so loving and cheerful here that I concluded that I would come among you. Where thou goest I will go; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God. Where thou diest shall I die, and there will I be buried."

Ah! you can't drive men out of their sins, but you can coax them out—you can charm them out.

I would to God that we could all come to a higher apppreciation of the Sabbath heritage! We can not count the treasures of one Christian Sabbath. It spreads out over us the two wings of the archangel of mercy, Oh, blessed Sabbath! blessed Sabbath! They scoff a great deal about the old Puritanic Sabbaths, and there is a wonderful amount of wit expended upon that subject now—the Sabbaths, they used to have in England. I never lived in New England, but I would rather trust the old Puritanic Sabbath, with all its faults, than this modern Sabbath, which is fast becoming no Sabbath at all. If our modern Sabbathism shall produce as stalwart Christian character as the old New England Puritanic Sabbathism, I shall be satisfied and I shall be surprised.

Oh, blessed day! blessed day! I should like to die some Sabbath morning when the air is full of church music and the bells are ringing. Leaving my home group with a dying blessing. I should like to look off upon Christian assemblage chanting the praises of God as I went up to join the one hundred and forty and four thousands and the thousands of thousands standing around the throne of Jesus. Hark! I hear the bell of the old kirk on the hill-side of heaven. It is a wedding bell, for behold the Bridegroom cometh. It is a victors bell, for we are more the conquerors through Him who hath loved us. It is the Sabbath bell, for it calls the nations of earth and heaven to everlasting repose.

"Upright Pianos."

A few extracts from the numerous endorsements by the leading artists of the Word as to their Superiority:—

The pianoforte of your make used at my last concert is the most admirable instrument I have ever seen. Please send to my address in London one of your Upright Pianos. This, I think, is the best endorsement of your instrument give I can you.—CHRISTINE NILSSON.

Neither in Europe or America have I seen an Upright to equal yours.—KLILKE GERSIER GARDINI.

In all the qualities an artist can require your Upright Pianos surpass anything I have ever seen.—SOFIA SCALCHI.

It is superior in quality of tone and evenness of action to any instrument I know of.—CLARA LOUISE KELLOGG.

Having had an opportunity of using your New Concert Upright Piano at the concerts given by Her Majesty's Opera Company, we beg to compliment you upon your great success. You can justly claim a superiority over any piano we have hitherto seen, for concert purposes and accompanying the voice.—ITALO CAMPANINI, ANTONIO GALASSI, ANNA DE PELOCCA, EMIL AMBRA.

The successful manner in which your Upright Piano has stood the several tests, is such as heretofore has been applied to the Grand Piano only, and it commands our unqualified endorsement.—OLE BULL, EMMA THURSBY, ALFRED H. PEASE, MAURICE STRAKOSCH.

WARREN LELAND,

whom everybody knows as the successful manager of the Largest Hotel Enterprises

of America, says that while a passenger from New York on board a ship going around Cape Horn, in the early days of emigration to California, he learned that one of the officers of the vessel had cured himself, during the voyage, of an obstinate disease by the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Since then Mr. LELAND has recommended AYER'S SARSAPARILLA in many similar cases, and he has never yet heard of its failure to effect a radical cure.

Some years ago one of Mr. LELAND'S farm laborers bruised his leg. Owing to the bad state of his blood, a virulent erysipelatous swelling or lump appeared on the injured limb. Horrible itching of the skin, with burning and darting pains through the body, rendered him almost intolerable. The leg became enormously enlarged, and running ulcers formed, discharging great quantities of extremely offensive matter. No treatment was of any avail until the man, by Mr. LELAND'S direction, was supplied with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which allayed the pain and irritation, healed the sores, removed the swelling, and completely restored the limb to use.

Mr. LELAND has personally used

for Rheumatism, with entire success; and, after careful observation, declares that, in his belief, there is no medicine in the world equal to it for the cure of Liver Disorders, Gout, the effects of high living, Salt Rheum, Sores, Eruptions, and all the various forms of blood diseases.

We have Mr. LELAND'S permission to invite all who may desire further evidence in regard to the extraordinary curative powers of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to see him personally either at his mammoth Ocean Hotel, Long Branch, or at the popular Leland Hotel, Broadway, 27th and 28th Streets, New York.

Mr. LELAND'S extensive knowledge of the good done by this unequalled eradicator of blood poisons enables him to give inquirers much valuable information.

MOTIVES TO THANKFULNESS.

BY THE REV. ROBERT HARPER, 1630.

We have blessings private, as many as soul and body, house and field, field and town and country can hold. We have blessings public and national beyond number. Other nations bleed, we sleep, others beg, we abound, others starve, we surfeit, others grope in the dark, our sun still shines, others are disjointed and dismembered; they are members without heads, heads without bodies, forlorn men, without law without Gospel, without churches, or teachers, or books We have all—Magistrates, ministers, laws, trades, schools, churches, towns, all, and all of the best. Of rulers the best, of courts the best, of law the best, of books the best, of sermons the best, of air, fire, and water, all the best. And can we not yet see matter of thankfulness?

An objector will perhaps say, "Oh, but these blessings are far off. They concern not me in particular."

Do they not? Have we not all our private interests in the public weal? But speak in good earnest. Hast thou no particular favours? No blessings to acknowledge?

"Yes; but where are they?"

Nay; where are they not? Thou hast eyes: ask the blind whether they be not a blessing. Thou has ears: ask the deaf whether they be not a blessing. Thou hast a tongue: what does the dumb man think of that? Thou hast hands, feet, wits, limbs, life, mercies enow betwixt head and foot to fill a volume. Is all this nothing? Nay, tell me, which way canst thou look, but thou seest mercies. What canst thou touch, but thou feelest mercies? What canst thou tread upon, but thou standest on mercies? Of what art thou compounded, but of blessings? Every sense, every joint, every nail is a blessing. Nay, what is thy house made of, but blessings? What is it filled with, but blessings? Blessings of the barn, blessings of the field, all are blessings. What is the world made of but blessings? The heavens, stars, fire, air, water, earth, with all in the one and all in the other, are blessings. "Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." (1 Cor. iii. 22, 23.) Now when the Lord so loadeth us with benefits, and that daily, shall we not be thankful? Our Savior commands us to bless when we are cursed; and shall we not bless when we are thus blessed?

All this while I have not spoken nothing of spiritual blessings. Indeed no tongue can reach them. Yet we can express them all in one word, God hath given us Christ. What a gift is that! In him he hath given us a new world. The old world was forfeited in a day. House, ground, furniture, were all lost in Adam. Then came the promised Seed, the blessed Seed Christ; and in Him all things are made new. We have new heavens, a new earth, a new church, a new tenure; all things are renewed with infinite advantage to us, but cost to Christ. What a thing was that, for the Creator to become a creature; for life to die; for happiness to weep; for glory to be buffeted; for immortality to be buried! Oh, Lord Christ, who would have done thus for an enemy, for a friend, besides thyself? But it is done. He was made flesh, seen of angels, slain of men, laid in the grave, raised to glory, and we are now redeemed, justified, sanctified, glorified! What words are these! what things! No man, no angel, can conceive the worth of these blessings. When we have said all, that all amounts to this: God hath given us Christ; that is, God hath given us himself, and all the creatures in heaven and earth. God hath delivered us from all evils, and hath given us all blessings. The earth is ours, the heavens are ours, the word is ours, the Spirit is ours, God is ours, because Christ is ours. Now then, when in Christ our Head we are reinstated in possession of the whole world, have we not matter of thankfulness? Yes, if we had but hearts to feel!—From the Cottager's Friend.

EDUCATIONAL.

Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, who visits Stratford to-day to formally declare our High School a Collegiate Institute, is a gentleman of whom every good Canadian feels proud. Like most of the men who have accomplished anything in Canada, Mr. Ross is a self-made man. Beginning life, not very long ago—for Mr. Ross is comparatively young man yet—as a school teacher he rose rapidly in his profession and having served as an educationist in various positions finally became Minister of Education, with a seat in the Government of his native Province. As the hon. gentleman comes here on business connected with the Education Department we make no reference to his political career. As the head of the Education Department of the Province and as a distinguished citizen of Ontario who has won his spurs by his own energy, he will be well received by all parties. Those who have the pleasure of meeting him will find him a genial, affable gentleman, and those who hear his address will not need to be told that they have listened to one of the polished and graceful speakers of Ontario.

Dr. May of the Education Department purposes visiting the different Mechanics' Institutes in the province for the purpose of organizing classes in industrial drawing in connection therewith, and otherwise increasing their efficiency. The curriculum laid down in drawing is very comprehensive and would be a great benefit to the artisan classes. However, we fear that the scarcity of competent instructors in many places, and the indifference in regard to it in some, will seriously retard the carrying out of the laudable enterprises of the Department.

A deputation representing the Natural History Society, on Tuesday week waited upon the Minister of Education, and asked that more time and attention be devoted to naturul history in the training of teachers. Mr. Ross assured them of his entire accord with them in the views they expressed and gave them to understand that the matter had been already under his consideration. The new curriculum for Norman Schools will embrace lectures on the common fauna and flora of Canada.—Beacon.

The Wonderful Power of Shaker Blood Syrup, in eradicating every form of scrofula, has been so clearly and fully demonstrated, that it leaves no shadow of doubt about its being the greatest medical discovery of this generation.

"My son had several ugly scrofulous sores between the ankle and knee of his right leg. He has taken two bottles of Shaker Blood Syrup, the sores have disappeared, and he seems to be free from this humor."

T. J. AKELEY,
Carriage Manufacturer,
Portland, Me.

I have been afflicted with cancerous and scrofulous humor from infancy. My mother, sister and brother died of this terrible disease. Before I had taken one bottle of Shaker Blood Syrup I began to improve, and am now nearly well.

Mrs. J. L. Campbell,
92 Townsend street,
Syracuse, N. Y.

Shaker Blood Syrup cured one of my patients who had been confined to his bed for several months with Mercurial Rheumatism. Without the remedy he would have died. I have used it for skin diseases with marked success.

Westerly, R. I.

Weakness

and lassitude yield to the influence of Norman's Electric Belt when all other remedies fail. Try one and you will suffer no longer. Every Belt guaranteed. Circular and consultation free. A. Norman, 4 Queen street east, Toronto. J. D. Tully, Druggist, Agent, Peterborough. 45-4t.

Political Notes.

It is stated that the Ontario Legislature is to meet for the despatch of business on the 27th January.

The Provincial Treasurer of Ontario is at Ottawa endeavoring to secure a settlement of the long standing claim of the Province against the Dominion. It is hard work to get Sir Tilley and his aides to attend to their duty.

An Ottawa correspondent writes that the annexation of Jamaica to the Dominion was the real object of Sir John's hurried trip to England. The departments at Ottawa the other day received instructions to forward to the Canadian Commissioner in London, at once, copies of documents relating to the West Indies, the Confederation Act, and other papers. Canada does not want Jamaica or any other distant colony. We have territory enough to manage now and a good deal more than we can manage properly. Jamaica would simply be an expensive burden without any corresponding advantages. Let us have none of it.

It is hinted that should Senator Macpherson be made Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, the Hon. John Carling will insist upon being appointed to the Senate. We cannot bring ourselves to believe that Senator Macpherson would accept the office of Lieutenant-Governor. Sir David has violently attacked Mr. Mowat and his colleagues. He did this not only before the Bribery Commission, but also in the Senate Chamber before the close of last session. His personal animus towards Mr. Mowat and his colleagues is of a character to make it impossible that any other feeling than that of mutual distrust could exist between him and those who would be his sworn advisers. Sir David Macpherson's letter to Big Push Wilkinson, we think shows very clearly the animus by which he is actuated. It is true Sir David denies that the letter was given to Big Push for the purpose of being used as a bribe to seduce certain supporters of the Government from their allegiance. The vast majority of the people of this Province will attach more importance to Big Push's acts than they will to Sir David's denials, and if Sir David Macpherson is wronged by these suspicions, he will have only himself and his confidential friend to blame. It is too clear to require further elucidation that it would be highly unbecoming for Sir David Macpherson to accept the position of Lieutenant-Governor of this Province.—London Advertiser.

The Hamilton Spectator says:—"A good many good Grits who have studiously read Grit prints for years, are now marvelling that Sir John Macdonald, when he went to England the other day, did not carry off the entire Dominion of Canada in his pocket, and sell it to somebody. They can hardly make themselves believe that the country is still here." To which the Hamilton Times replies:—"A good many good Grits are well assured that, if Sir John did such a trick, the Spectator, Messrs. Kilvert and Robertson, Senator Turner and other Tories (Mr. Hesson, for instance,) would delare the Premier had done just right. Their endorsation of the sale would be given promptly, without any delay to enquire about the price received. That Sir John did it would be quite enough for them. A good many Grits think, too, that Sir John Macdonald would have hard work to sell the Dominion to anybody, because he has already given away a great share of it to the Canadian Pacific Syndicate and to the corrupt gang of Tory politicians he hires with the people's wealth to do his bidding. What is left he has mortgaged for a large amount, and if he stays in office a few years longer, expending money at the rate he made it fly last session, the debt will be bigger than the value of the property. There is no need for the Spectator to speculate about the bad tricks Sir John might yet do; his actual record is enough to frighten anyone who has the good of the country at heart."

Words of Warning and Comfort.

"If you are suffering from poor health or
'languishing on a bed of sickness, take cheer
'if you are simply ailing, or if you feel
'weak and dispirited,
'without clearly knowing why, Hop Bitters
'will surely cure you.

If you are a minister, and have overtaxed yourself with your pastoral duties, or a mother, worn out with care and work, or a man of business or labor, weakened by the strain of your every-day duties, or a man of letters toiling over your midnight work, Hop Bitters will most surely strengthen you.

If you are suffering from over-eating or drinking, any indiscretion or dissipation, or are young and growing too fast, as is often the case,

"Or if you are in the workshop, on the
'farm, at the desk, anywhere, and feel
'that your system needs cleansing, toning, or stimulating, without intoxicating, if you are old,
'blood thin and impure, pulse
'feeble, nerves unsteady, faculties
'waning, Hop Bitters is what you need to 'give you new life, health, and vigor."

If you are costive, or dyspeptic or suffering from any other of the numerous diseases of the stomach or bowels, it is your own fault if you remain ill. If you are wasting away with any form of Kidney disease, stop tempting death this moment, and turn for a cure to Hop Bitters.

If you are sick with that terrible sickness, Nervousness, you will find a "Balm in Gilead" in Hop Bitters.

If you are a frequenter, or a resident of, a miasmatic district, barricade your system against the scourge of all countries—Malaria, Epidemic, Bilious and Intermittent Fevers by the use of Hop Bitters

If you have rough, pimply, or sallow skin, bad breath, Hop Bitters will give you a fair skin, rich blood, the sweetest breath and health. $500 will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

A Lady's Wish.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe.

A SCOTT ACT FRIGHT.

A Cobourg despatch says: James A. Kelley, a hotel keeper in Brighton, was arraigned before the Police Magistrate for sending threatening letters to Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Kemp to deter them from using their influence in getting the petition signed for the submission of the Scott Act in these counties. The evidence adduced was sufficient for the Police Magistrate sending the prisoner up for trial, bail being accepted from the prisoner for $1,000 and two sureties for $400 each.

Wheeler's Tissue Phosphates.

When a man arrives at middle age it is time to take stock of the resources of energy remaining to run the machinery of the body. Many hard workers at that period find the system impaired or used up from the wear and tear incident to the active struggle for life. Examination may discover some latent disease requiring immediate attention to secure the vital forces from rapid waste. WHEELER'S PHOSPHATES AND CALISAYA possesses special power to repair damage and invigorate weak organs, and its timely use may prevent much suffering and greatly prolong life.

Rest and Comfort to the Suffering.

"BROWN'S HOUSEHOLD PANACEA" has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. It cures Pain in the Side, Back or Bowels, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Toothache, Lumbago and any kind of a Pain or Ache. "It will most surely quicken the Blood and Heal, as its acting power is wonderful." "Brown's Household Panacea," being acknowledged as the great Pain Reliever, and of double the strength of any other Elixir or Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted. "as it really is the best remedy in the world for Cramps in the Stomach, and Pains and Aches of all kinds," and is for sale by all Druggists at 25 cents a bottle.

THE FALL IN THE PRICE OF WHEAT

NOWHERE, AS COMPARED WITH

THE STILL GREATER FALL IN THE PRICE OF CLOTHING

—AT—

LeBRUN'S.

It will pay Farmers better to sell their wheat now at present prices, and buy their Winter's supply of Clothing at the City Clothing Store while you can buy so very cheap, rather than run the chance of waiting to get a few cents more for their wheat and pay 25 per cent higher for their Clothing later on. The Farmers and LeBRUN are in the same position—both have large stocks on hand, and nothing will be gained by holding on to them at present. Sell your wheat now and exchange it for cheap clothing at LeBrun's.

I am determined to offer the bulk of my present very large stock without reserve for the next three months. Remember the prices will be lower than ever offered in Peterborough before.

JUST LOOK AT A FEW OF THE QUOTATIONS:

OVERCOATS—$4.50, $5.00, $6.00, $7.00, $9.00.

TWEED SUITS for $6.50, $8.00, $9.00, $10.00. These prices are fully 28 per cent lower than the regular prices.

ORDERED CLOTHING made up at prices to correspond in cheapness with the above, as for example:

FINE SUITS to order for $14.00, $15.00, and $16.00. No better value ever offered for the money. Activity in every department.

BOYS' AND YOUTHS' CLOTHING.—It will pay you to see our large stock. It is suitable for all ages; made nobby and genteel.

TWEEDS & FULLCLOTHS for common wear at very low prices. Can be cut on the premises free of charge.

UNDERWEAR—I have the best assortment of sizes, largest stock and cheapest Fall and Winter Underwear in Peterborough.

GLOVES.—I have a large assortment in this line, as I make a specialty of Gloves, and sell for less than any house in the trade.

SHIRTS, COLLARS AND CUFFS.—As usual, selling lower than any other house.

TIES.—The run on our Ties this season is immense. Our 25 cent Ties are equal in quality to any 50 cent Tie in the town.

My great aim has always been to give superior goods at inferior prices. My increased business shows how well I have succeeded.

PETERBOROUGH, NOV. 6, 1884.

Thanksgiving Day.

Our readers are, no doubt, aware that to-day—Thursday, November 6th,—has been set apart by His Excellency the Governor-General as a day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God for the blessings of a bountiful harvest. That we have, as a nation, abundant reasons for gratitude is not for a moment to be disputed. The harvest this year has given an unusually abundant yield, and there is immense abundance of all the fruits of the field. While the husbandman rejoices in a plenteous harvest, the poor man has cause to be thankful that the prices are such as to place these bounties within his reach. As a nation we have also reason not only to be thankful for the earth's increase, but we have been specially favoured of Heaven in other respects. The wars and commotions that have rent the domestic bosoms of other nations have passed us by and we have had peace. The affliction of a pestilent and embittered political conflict, such as has visited our neighbours, has not disturbed our Dominion. The dreadful scourge of cholera has not invaded our shores, and in all respects we seem to be selected of Heaven as its special beneficiary. While those who have abundance are expressing their gratitude, they should remember those whom ill fortune and disease have placed in needy and afflicted conditions. If the father of a family sat at a well-laden table unctuously returning thanks for the bounty of Providence, while his children were hungering and crying around him in vain for bread, one could not have much faith in the sincerity of his thanksgiving. So, though we may go to church, or at home give praise for the blessings of plenty, we shall render a more acceptable sacrifice if we have seen to it that those who are less favored of Heaven have by our kindness the like occasion to rejoice with us.

The Young Men's Christian Association.

Amongst many persons, and too many of them, too, professedly members of christian churches, the name of the Young Men's Christian Association is regarded as merely synonymous with cant. Yet there is no doubt but the organization, though its central object is the improvement of the spiritual condition of young men, has a potent moral effect on the community, in what may be regarded as its purely secular respect. They who attended the sittings of the Provincial Convention of the Y. M. C. A. held in town last week, or followed the published report of its proceedings, must have been struck with the multiplicity and completeness of its machinery for the elevation of the mental and moral—not to mention the purely spiritual—condition of young men. In many of the Associations in cities and large towns, in addition to the religious appliances—if the word is applicable—the secular appliances constitute schools for the training of young men, in various useful branches. Among the provisions made are gymnasiums, baths, and other conveniences conducing to the physical well being of any young men who choose, or who can be persuaded to make use of them, while night schools, in which are taught subjects useful to young men in business situations, well furnished libraries and reading rooms, afford abundant opportunity for the mental improvement of young men. These, combined with persistent and kindly efforts on the part of members of the Association, to induce young men to use them, constitute a powerful counter attraction to, and substitute for the multiform temptations to evil courses which assail a young man, especially one without any settled social relations in a large town or city. The melancholy cases, which recently startled the town, of young men lapsing from the path of rectitude, give emphasis to the contention that it is the duty of every citizen to assist the organization, which, to business men especially, aims to afford a guarantee of protection of the integrity of their employes, and consequently their own interests. A young man, friendless and homeless, is (the best social sense,) is exposed to peculiarly painful temptations to enter upon vicious courses, but if he can be induced to spend his evenings in the classes, the library or reading room, of a Young Men's Christian Association, he will be delivered from the great temptations that assail him in every quarter. It is to be feared that many business men do not consider these matters. At night they close their shops and allow their employes to drift their various and often devious ways, ignoring the spirit of the prayer they repeated in the morning, with perhaps more unction of habit than of heart—"Lead us not into temptation." If business men would, as a strictly business investment, contribute to the assistance of the merely secular aims of the Association, they would have the satisfaction of knowing that they had done their duty in assisting to remove temptation from those in their service, and that if they should be robbed by their employes they would not, by contributory negligence, share the guilt.

Is He Worthy of Honor?

Speaking of the proposed demonstration in honor of Sir John Macdonald's fortieth year of public life, one Tory journal more enthusiastic than discreet, declares that one reason why Sir John should be honored, is because of "his scrupulous regard for his personal honor." This is the most supremely ludicious reason yet assigned. Those who know the "chieftain" best, must "laugh consumedly" at the bare idea, and none would enjoy the joke more richly than the old man himself. Sir John's long career is studded as thickly as the scales on a fish, with instances in which his regard for his personal honor was of a decidedly negative character. No statesman can be credited with a regard for his personal honor, who, in his official capacity, is equal to calling on his Maker to attest the utterance of a falsehood. On a public occasion in the province of Ontario, Sir John, in referring to the rascal Reil, solemnly exclaimed, "would to God I could catch him!" When at the same time he knew that he (Sir John) through his official position, had supplied Reil with money to permit him to escape from the punishment due a red-handed murderer. Is this blasphemous equivoque an exhibition of "scrupulous regard for his personal honor?" It is with no pleasure that we recall this instance of how far lost to a sense of truth and honor a Canadian statesman can show himself to be, but when truckling toadies have the effrontery to parade Sir John's "scrupulous regard for his personal honor," the temptation cannot be resisted.

The Presidential Contest.

There is no positive news respecting this great contest, but the latest reports from the latest returns, almost certainly gives the presidency of the United States to Cleveland, the Democratic and free trade candidate.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

A regular meeting was held on Tuesday evening. Present,—Messrs. Stevenson (Chairman), Sawers, Kendry, Stratton, Burnham, Denne and Errett.

INQUIRIES.

In answer to Mr. Denne, Mr. Coleman stated that writing had been taught in the Public School since he took charge of it, but that copy books had been only recently introduced.

In answer to Mr. Sawers, the Inspector said that Miss Errett had passed the necessary examinations. There was no definite answer to the inquiry who appointed her.

In reply to Dr. Burnham, the Chairman said nothing had been done in regard to a new room for the preparatory class, and he said in answer to Mr. Stratton, that the extra teaching was of new subjects, and that no teacher on the staff was thereby relieved of any work.

Mr Wrighton remarked that Dr. Tassie had told him that he was going to remove Mr. McKee up-stairs were received.

From Miss Fair, resigning her position, to allow her to fit herself better for teaching. Resignation accepted.

From Miss Sarah Keele, applying for a position on the staff, and Miss Sim, for promotion or increase of salary.

From Miss Richardson, Miss Jenkins, Miss Dowling, and Miss McLeod, applying for Miss Fair's position.—All the applications referred to Committee on Appointments.

From Public School pupils, asking a holiday for Thursday and Friday. Refused, on motion of Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Kendry.

ATTENDANCE.

The Public School attendance for October was: on the roll, 989; average attendance, 797.

INSPECTOR'S REPORT.

The Inspector reported that he had visited the schools and found everything in good order; complaints were, however, made of the quality of the paper, pens and ink in use. Received.

FEES.

The Secretary reported that the receipts of fees for the Institute had been: September, $83.50; October, $85. For the Public Schools returns had been made only for September, $10.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Dr Burnham, Chairman, reported, recommending that the application of J. Campbell for unpaid salary be not entertained. That Mr. O'Connor's account re entrance examinations be not paid, but that Mr Campbell, for the same, be paid. That the Secretary write to the Minister of Education, the Committee doubting the liability of the Board for the account of Messrs. Brown and Hutchinson, re examinations.—Report adopted.

A letter was read from J. Davidson Norwood, stating that unless the Board paid his account of $4.50, for services as Intermediate examiner in 1881, by November first, suit would be entered.—Filed.

LAID OVER.

The motion of Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Errett, to refer the matter of the vacancy caused by Miss Fair's resignation, to the Committee on Appointments, with instructions to appoint a male teacher, was laid over.

TEACHERS AND APPOINTMENTS.

On motion of Mr. Denne, seconded by Mr. Wrighton, the Treasurer was instructed not to pay the salary of any teacher not appointed by the Board.

Miss Errett's appointment was, on motion of Mr. Stratton, seconded by Dr. Burnham, referred to the Committee on Appointments.

PHYSICAL SCIENCE APPARATUS.

Mr. L. E. Horning was heard, and requested a holiday next Friday to go to Cobourg to prepare apparatus for use in the classes on chemistry and physics, recently started. He also applied to have, for the purpose, control of the $50 formerly voted, to expend at his discretion on appliances. His requests, on motion of Mr. Stratton, seconded by Mr. Kendry, were granted, and the Board adjourned.

A BRILLIANT TRANSACTION.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—As I, in common with all progressive farmers, am deeply interested in Agricultural Exhibitions, I should like a small space in your columns to point out how prudent the Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society are in the expenditure of the Society's funds, especially in the purchase of permanent premises. The directors have spent the whole summer in selecting a suitable site, and, at last, they have made a choice. They have selected the plot adjoining the Driving Park on the east—about 13 acres—paying $100 a year rent for the first four years and $150 per year for the next five years, with the chance of purchasing at the modest figure of $500 per acre! If this property is purchased, which it must be before the Society can be said to be established on a firm basis, what then will be the cost? The ground, at the first slap, will cost—13 acres at $500 an acre—$6,500, and the necessary buildings $6,000 more, making a total of $12,500. At the last meeting of the directors a motion to purchase, from Mr. Geo. A. Cox, 10 acres of the thirty-acre lot east of the Communication Road and close to the Midland and old Cobourg railways, was voted down, owing to influences which the general public would like to know more about. Now, let me count the cost of this proposition. Mr. Cox offered ten acres for $3 000, with the option of purchasing more land if needed, at the same price. The buildings—a like expense on any site, $6,000. This makes the cost $8,000. From this, however, is to be deducted $1,000, guaranteed outside the funds of the Society, to which Mr. Cox donates $ 00, Mr. Hilliard, M.P., $100; Mr. Hazlitt, $30; and Mr. T. E. Bell guarantees $150, and the balance is otherwise secured. This will reduce the total cost for land and buildings to $7,00) as against $12,500 for the site selected—a clean saving, or squandering, as you may choose to put it, of $5,5.0!

Now, Mr. Editor, I should like to know what mysterious influence was brought to bear to secure the selection of a site in the southern part of the town, in amalgamation with horse racing, when a site five thousand and a half dollars cheaper, and better situated, is rejected, and that, too, when nine-tenths of the exhibitors live north and west of the town! The rejected site is better situated, the Midland Railway running so close that exhibitors can bring their stock by rail to the very grounds, Mr. Cox offering to give free a road for entire on the west and east sides. The railway is so close proximity to the grounds is a great advantage, the ingenious Secretary to the contrary, notwithstanding. Moreover, as the thing is now the horse ring, in so close association with horse racing will induce in farmers a gambling spirit which does not agree with the honesty and dignity of their calling.

It appears strange to me that $5,500 should be sacrificed, literally thrown away, to secure an inferior site on the wrong side of the town, and it is due from the directors who favored this selection to justify their conduct to the public. Will those in the ring please explain.

Yours, etc.,
EXHIBITOR.

November 3rd, 1884.

"HAY SEED'S" REJOINDER.

To the Editor of THE EXAMINER:

DEAR SIR,—I was as much amused as astonished at the communication of Mr. Campbell, in reply to my strictures respecting his entering stock at the Lindsay Central Exhibition in a manner calculated, if not intended, to mislead the judges. Mr. Campbell, rather flippantly, it seems to me for the serious nature of the matters involved, imputes several alleged false statements to me, and then proceeds to "demolish" them. At the same time the entire tenor of his reply only seems to confirm the charges I made in my first communication. The suspiciously ingenious manner of Mr. Campbell's intended explanations only complicates the moral kinks in the transaction in question. Mr. Campbell has the reputation of being a most methodical and careful man, as shown by the reports of his farm operations as published in the Globe in connection with the prize farm competitions. When he, in the face of this fact, acknowledges to making the astounding mistake in entering his cattle in the wrong class, in a manner by which all the advantage would be on his side, there is certainly ground for grave suspicion that Mr. Campbell, who is not given to make mistakes, did not, in the matter of entering his cattle, so much make a mistake as commit a blunder. Now since Mr. Campbell asserts so confidently that my statements were "false," I have had a disinterested party write to one of the judges on cattle at the Lindsay Central Exhibition. In confirmation of my first letter, I beg leave to submit his reply, as follows:

Millbrook, Oct. 30th, 1884.

Dear Sir:—I certainly did have the honor of the appointment to the office of judge at the Lindsay Central, and remember distinctly that the animal "Macduff" entered by Grant and Campbell as a two-year-old, was over age. Same was proved by the herd book, which shows "Macduff" dropped Sept. 23rd, 1881. Book produced and shown by another exhibitor on same class, upon which evidence the directors ordered the animal thrown out. Regarding Durham calf, a protest was entered against the decision of the judges, on account of the first prize animal being over age. The protest was sustained by the President and a quorm of directors, thus throwing out the calf. These are the facts of the case, as may be easily ascertained by reference to the minutes of said meeting, recorded in the secretary's books at Lindsay, on the 3rd of October.

Yours, etc.,
W. G. Wallace.

Now Mr. Editor, in face of such undeniably strong evidence as the above letter, I think it is entirely unnecessary for me to waste words in showing the correctness of the charges contained in my first communication. I regret that it has not been shown that I was mistaken in my charges, for I have the greatest respect for Mr. Campbell as a successful farmer and breeder of stock. I wrote from no personal feelings of spite, but simply in the interest of exhibitors at the Lindsay Central, and consequently of the exhibition itself. That Mr. Campbell winces under my remarks, shows that he has been touched in a tender spot—that his reputation is dear to him, a fact, however, which he failed to bear in mind when at the Lindsay Central, he made the mistake of entering cattle a year younger than their real age required.

I also regret to observe in the appendix to Mr. Campbell's reply, that the directors showed a disposition to cover over the "mistake," and put the best face on it; though I am not surprised that Col. Deacon should be inclined to throw the veiling mantle of directorial charity over a "mistake," and to let the perpetrator down light. In conclusion Mr. Editor, I would say, that in bringing this matter before the public of the Midland district, I am but voicing the sentiments of those who were present at the exhibition, who regretted that Mr. Campbell would be guilty of perpetrating such—to put it mildly—"mistakes." Thanking you for allowing me so much of your space.

Yours truly,
"HAY SEED."

Fatal Shooting Accident.

A Hunter Fatally Shot in Mistake For a Bear.

We have received the particulars of a shooting accident near Kinmount last week, which resulted in the death of an Indian named Spaniard. John Shippagow and James Spaniard, Indians from Hiawatha, went to the back lakes to hunt for beaver. They had reached, last Tuesday, a place about six miles the other side of Kinmount, not far from the railway. Workmen on the road told them of a beaver dam near by, to which the Indians repaired. Spaniard was to break the dam while Shippagow waited below to shoot the beaver as they came down. A short time before a bear had been seen in the neighborhood, and Robert English came on the spot about the same time as the Indians, in search of Brain. There was thick undergrowth about the dam, and as Spaniard, the Indian, was climbing up the side of it, English, mistaking the dark looking object for the bear, fired with deadly aim. As Spaniard was hit, he fell, shouting, "O John, I'm shot!" Both English and Shippagow rushed to the spot and found the poor man in the agonies of death. The bullet had entered the shoulder from behind and passed through the chest near the heart. Spaniard lived only about an hour and a half. English is wild with grief and self-reproach at his fatal mistake, although he is entirely innocent of any intention of killing the Indian. The railway men notified the nearest coroner, but on his investigating the circumstances, he saw no grounds for holding an inquest. Spaniard was about 50 years of age, and leaves a wife and one son. The body was interred at Hiawatha on Wednesday.

Ladies, Turnbull's is the house to leave your orders for ulsters; a choice range of neat patterns in extra quality now in stock.

Exhibition Grounds.

For some time past the Directors of the West Riding Agricultural Society have been seeking grounds suitable for their purposes, and on Saturday they met to report their investigations and decide upon a result. Mr. John McClelland reported that he had been empowered by Mr. R. A. Morrow to say that the latter was willing to allow the Society the use of twelve acres adjoining the Driving Park on the east, just south of the Locks Road, the rental the first four years to be $100 per year, the next five years $150 per year, with the option of purchasing during the term of the lease at $500 per acre, and, if the Driving Park Association do not purchase the plot now leased by them, the Society to have the refusal of it at the same price per acre. The Driving Park Association offered to waive the right of their lease of the grounds now occupied by them to help the matter on, and offered in case the arrangement between Mr. Morrow and the Society was carried out, to allow the Society the use of the track for exhibition purposes in return for the use of the Society's stables. On motion of Mr. McClelland, seconded by Mr. Collins, the offer of Mr. Morrow was accepted, an amendment by Mr. Bell, seconded by Mr. Young, to select the Geo. A. Cox plot of ten acres east of the Communication Road, Smith, and bounded on the south by Mrs. Dixon's property, and on the north by Mr. Nicholl's, at $200 an acre, being lost. The vote in favor of the site selected and vice versa, stood as follows: Yeas—Messrs. Campbell, Walton, Rutherford, McClelland, Fitzgerald, Garbutt, Davidson, Riddell and Collins—9; Nays—Messrs. Bell, Young and Elliott—3. A committee composed of Messrs. Campbell, Carnegie and McClelland was appointed to look after giving legal effect to the resolution, and Messrs. McClelland and Campbell were appointed a deputation to wait upon the Town Council to urge upon that body the taking of proper steps to secure the holding of the Provincial Exhibition in Peterborough. The directors present at the meeting were: Messrs. Jas. Campbell, President; Wm. Rutherford and John Riddell, South Monaghan; Jos. Walton and John McClelland, Peterborough; T. E. Bell, G. W. Fitzgerald, John Garbutt, George Elliott, John Young and Hugh Davidson, Smith; Wm. Collins, North Monaghan.

Sons of England.

On Monday evening last the members of Lansdowne Lodge celebrated their first anniversary by a grand banquet in their hall, George street. At the previous meeting of the lodge in the evening, M. W. G. President, R. Croft Hulme, assisted by R. W. G. sec. Carter, organized a second degree lodge with a good membership. The banquet hall was beautifully decorated, and the spread made by Long, Bros., the well known caterers, needs little commendation, for its superior excellence and style are of course, taken for granted. About 50 guests sat down to the tables. On the removal of the cloth, Bro. William Brundrett took the chair, and Bro. E. Mannel the vice chair. After the usual loyal and patirotic toasts, which were enthusiastically honored, visiting lodges were duly remembered. The town trade of Peterborough was responded to by Messrs. Geo. A. Cox,, mayor, and A. Rutherford, councilor. "Kindred societies" was responded to by Mr. Minore, for the Oddfellows, and Mr. Rossiter, for the Foresters. After miscellaneous toasts, the company separated with "God Save the Queen," and three enthusiastic cheers, such as Englishmen only can give, for her majesty, the Queen. The success of the banquet was a fitting complement to the success of the order for the first year. We wish it even greater prosperity in the future.

If you want a First Class Suit or Overcoat made to order cheap, call at Turnbull's.

Northwest Specimen Bricks.

The Exhibition Car of the Canadian Pacific Railway is another evidence of the desire of the Company to make known the advantages of the Canadian North-West as a place of settlement for those who desire to make homes of their own. The car in question is a most practical way of accomplishing this matter. It is specially constructed for the purpose and contains a magnificent assortment, both in variety and quality, of the splendid products of the North-West, including grains, roots, grasses, woods, minerals, coals, etc., etc. This exhibition car is coming east, and will be at Cavanville November 22, in Peterborough on Monday, November 24th—all day,—and at Norwood on the 25th. Everybody is cordially invited to come and see for himself, free of charge, this splendid agricultural exhibition on wheels. At the same time there will be distributed pamphlets and other advertising matter, descriptive of the country and embodying information for intending settlers and the experience of those who have tried the country and found it a grand home for the industrious farmer. Farmers especially will be interested in visiting this exhibition car, and comparing the products of the North-West with the results of home farming operations. Cavanville, November 22nd; Peterborough, November 24th, and Norwood, November 25th.

Benefit Concert.

The concert and complimentary benefit given in honor of Mr. Orme Dixon, the celebrated ventriloquist, on Thursday evening was a grand success. Mr. Dixon, of course, was the chief figure of the programme, and those who had the pleasure of hearing him, could not but at once admit the immense improvement he has made in his art, or, cease to doubt that he had fairly earned the title of being the best, most versatile and most finished ventriloquist on the continent. He was supplemented by his brother, Mr. A.W. Dixon, who is a promising pupil. Mrs. Bowman, Miss Nettie Martin, Mr. F. Clarke and Prof. Doucet in music, and Mr. T. McNaughton in his unsurpassable club swinging, contributed greatly to the excellence of the programme.

COUNCIL OF WAR.

Officers and Delegates Deliberate in Peterborough.

On Tuesday afternoon, November 4th, the quarterly Council of War of the Saved Army met in the Opera House building. The following delegates answered the roll call:—A. S. McGibbon, Port Hope; W. Battell, Cobourg; Henry Scott, Portsmouth; W. Bick, Bobcaygeon; Wm. Bawden, Warkworth; J. Stephenson, Cobourg; George B. Sproule, Peterborough; C. H. Dorsee, Campbellford; W. G. Phillips, Peterborough; Z. Pollard, Port Perry; M. H. Riggs, Hastings; Robert Weir, Peterborough. The following officers were present:—General H. P. Lindsay, presiding; Capt. Munt, Port Hope; Capt. J. Willis, Ottawa; Lieut. J. Harry Wyatt, Warkworth; Lieut. Wm. Pengelly, Campbellford; Lieut. Jas. Munroe, Hastings Cadet Hartley, Warsaw;

After devotional exercises the Council entered upon business, and the following committees were appointed:—

FINANCE.—Delegates Weir, Stevenson and McGibbon.

STATIONING. Delegates Battel, McDonald and Dorsee.

CREDENTIALS.—Delegates Honor, Blodgitt, Flewelling, Bawden and Phillips.

PETITIONS AND APPEALS.—Magown, Hollington, Milward, Scott, Bick and Campbell.

The reports were read from the representatives of the different stations, giving a good report of the work generally. There has been much progress, and the future of the army bright. There was expressed great cause for rejoicing.

General Lindsay also addressed the meeting and outlined the forthcoming business.

The mass meeting in the Music Hall in the evening, in spite of the wet weather, was large and a good meeting was enjoyed by all present.

The Council it in session as we go to press.

NORWOOD.

(From our own Correspondent.)

MISSIONARY SERVICES.

The annual anniversary services in connection with the Norwood Methodist church were held on Sunday and Monday last. The Sabbath services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Sutherland, missionary secretary of the Toronto conference of the Methodist church, who delivered two remarkably eloquent impressive and instructive sermons on both occasions, imparting a great store of Biblical information, and during this delivery riveting the constant attention of his large congregation. On Monday evening a public missionary meeting was held in the church, which was well filled. The missionary report was read by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gee, which showed that the contributions given by the Norwood circuit were considerably in advance of former years. Addresses on behalf of the missionary cause were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Tovell, of Peterborough, and Dr. Sutherland. Mr. Tovell expressed his pleasure at meeting for the first time his friends at Norwood, and his appreciation of their liberality to the missionary cause. The address of Dr. Sutherland was a grand exposition of missionary work in the North-West, picturing in eloquent language, the trials, incidents and the work of the faithful and hard-working missionary among the Indians of that territory. The collections and subscriptions were liberal, over $300 being subscribed at the meeting. The singing by the choir of the church under the leadership of Mr. Jackman, both on Sunday and Monday evening, was all that could be desired, and well merited the praiseworthy encomiums the singers received. The solo parts taken by Mrs. Patterson, Mr. Jackman and Mr. Duffield, were well rendered. Mrs. K. Ruck, as usual, very efficiently presided at the organ.

HALLOWEEN.

This annual festival was duly observed in Norwood. Our village scavangers did ample justice to their calling, and penetrated the inmost recesses of the back yards of the village to procure rubbish to desgrade and disfigure our principal street. Where the fun was in the display, no one has as yet discovered, as the scavangers must have had really hard work to make up their collection. The young men too—for they were not boys—resorted to the usual nonsensical removal of gates, a destruction of property that should not be tolerated. The scavangers also made a raid upon the new school where they also indulged in silly pranks, and it was certainly no joke for the teacher on Monday morning to find in his sacred desk a half-starved, wild-looking black cat incarcerated therein. It is to be hoped our authorities will take steps in the future to prevent a recurrence of these mischievous and unmeaning pranks of those who ought to know better.

OMISSION.

It is to be regretted that the name of Frank Patterson, son of Mr. Wm Patterson, of Dummer, was omitted in the list of third-class candidates, in the school report published in last week's EXAMINER. This makes a total of 30 successful candidates from the Norwood high school.

THE NORWOOD ELEVATOR.

Norwood's great "stand-by," the elevator just completed by Messrs. Roxburgh & Rork, is now in full operation, and daily receiving all kinds of grain. This elevator is most complete in its construction, and every new and special feature has been adopted in this building to expedite the receiving and the dispatching of grain. It is without doubt as complete in all its plant and machinery as any building of the kind in the Dominion, and reflects the greatest credit upon its proprietors. We have reason to believe that Messrs. Roxburgh & Rork are being well rewarded for their enterprise by the extensive patronage they are receiving from farmers of all the surrounding townships, as they are paying the highest cash price for all kinds of grain.

Some very fine Sealettes now in stock, at Turnbull's; as these goods are much sought after, call and secure a mantle early.

Week of Prayer.

The second Sunday in November, and the week following has been observed for many years past as a week of prayer on behalf of young men. The season will be observed in Peterborough this year by the following services, to be held in the new rooms of the Young Men's Christian Association, over the post office:

Sunday, 9th Nov., 4 p.m. The Lord our helper—Psalms xx. Leader, J. F. Holden.

Sunday, 9th Nov., 8.30 p.m.—God's appeal to me. Jer. iii, 4; Ex. xii, 1; Jer. x, 23. Leader, G. M. Roger.

Monday, 10th Nov., 8 p.m.—The Fatal Choice. —Gen. iii, 1-6; Rom. v, 12-14, 19-21. Leader, T. G. Bone.

Tuesday, 11th Nov., 8 p.m.—Young Men's Bible Class.—Rev. A. H. Munro.

Thursday, 13th Nov., 8 p.m.—Two choices, which is mine? Mark x, 17-22; Luke v, 27-28. Leader, Rev. E. F. Torrance.

Friday, 14th Nov., 8 p.m.—The Apostle's choice and the Lord's promise.—Matt. xix, 27-29. Leader, Rev. I. Tovell.

Saturday, 15th Nov., 8 p.m.—Choose life. Deut. xxx, 15-20; Col. iii, 1-4. Leader, Rev. F. McAmmond.

On the Sunday, several of the pastors will make special reference to work for young men from their respective pulpits. The meetings on Sunday afternoon and evening will be open to all. Those on the week evening will be for young men. There should be a large attendance at these meetings.

Consumption Cured.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all throat and Lung affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. Noyes, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y. 45-26-eow.

H. B. Smith, of Westminister, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Elliott at London for sending a registered letter through the mails falsely representing that it contained money. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and $30 costs, and ordered to find securities to keep the peace to the amount of $2,000, all of which requirements he complied with.

Mr. W. Maguire, merchant, at Franklin, writes: "I was afflicted with pain in my shoulder for eight years—almost helpless at times—have tried many remedies, but with no relief, until I used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. After a few applications the pain left me entirely, and I have had no pains since. Do not take Electric or Electron Oils, but see that you get Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil."

"One Nail Drives Out Another."

is a French saying that finds exemplification in the way one disease will substitute itself for another and graver one, in very many cases. Liver disease for instance will soon induce blood disorders, throat ailments, skin affections and eventually, because of impoverished blood, consumption itself, unless, indeed, it be treated in its incipiency and early progress by Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" which acts as a specific in these ailments, accomplishing a rapid cure by its powerful alterative action upon the great organs of the body.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.
HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
139 West 126th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Dyhalia, Miss., April 8, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. P. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

LOVE FOR A DAY!

"Do you quite understand, Nellie?" asked my gentle, loving mother, "what I mean, what I want you to do? Mark is to be absent four years. I do not say that his love will change or grow less; but I beg of you to leave yourself one chance. Do not give him such entire love that, if he should die or forget you, or any circumstance should part you, your whole life would be ruined. Love with caution, Nellie."

"There is no need for caution with Mark!" cried my happy heart. To Mark, my handsome lover, I might give in superabundance the lavish love that filled my heart; and the words of my mother's warning fell on heedless ears.

I can remember a warm day in June, when Mark and I sought the shade of the tall trees that grew by the river. A refreshing breeze came over the water, and the birds were silent in the great heat. We were talking of our marriage, of that bright future which, like the June sunshine, had no shadow. Suddenly Mark asked me—

"Have you any relatives, Nellie? You and your mother seem to be quite alone in the world."

I told him that my father was an only child, my mother also, and that I was the same. The only relatives I had ever heard of were some distant ones in America; but I had none in England.

"It must have been lonely for you, my darling, before I came," he said.

I told him how my home-duties, and my love of nature, of flowers, trees, and birds, had filled my life. I had lived then in the gray of the twilight; I lived now in the light of the glorious sun.

"How little I dreamed that morning, that fair May morning, that I was to meet my fate," said Mark. "Nellie, I shall never forget how your hair gleamed in the sunshine."

I looked at him with happy eyes; his praise was sweet to me.

"We were talking about relatives, Mark," I said. "Have you many?"

"Ours is a very peculiar family," he said, laughing. "We have some relatives on my mother's side who are very poor; they live in London. On my father's side we have some distant relatives who are very rich; but we do not correspond with either. These rich people have a title too; but I shall never trouble them. If ever I have a title, it shall be through winning it, if ever I have a fortune, I shall have made it, Nellie."

My noble Mark! My whole heart bowed down before him; he was so brave, so gallant, so independent, as all true men are.

I never recalled that conversation, those few words, until I knew who Mark Upton's relatives were.

CHAPTER III.

When the corn was cut down, and the ripe fruit gathered in from the orchards; when the "free and happy barley" lay under the scythe, Mark had gone.

When the hour of parting came, I believe Mark would have given up the appointment, with all its advantages, rather than leave me. Twenty times he kissed me with despairing passion and love, left me, and returned. He could not leave me; I could not let him go. My mother said that it was useless to prolong the agony of parting.

Mark looked at her with a white, set face.

"I cannot go," he said, hoarsely.

He had to leave Gracedieu by the last train that evening, and sail from Southampton on the morrow. He had spent the whole of the previous day with us, and he was at the cottage early on this the morning of his last day. Outside the very glory of summer lay over the land. We stood watching the golden sunshine, with the chill of our parting upon us, a chill more bitter than the chill of death. Mark had loosened my hair, and had cut off a long, shining tress.

"That shall lie next my heart, Nell, even when I am dead," he said. "Promise me that no hand but mine shall touch these golden curls of yours while I am away. You are very beautiful, Nell, though you do not seem to know anything about it; and men will admire you; but you must not listen to them. You are mine, all mine—only mine!"

I told him—truthfully—that all other men were to me like shadows.

"Promise me, Nell," he said, as he kissed my lips again and again, "that no one shall kiss you while I am away."

"Dear heart, what fear!" I cried. Then in my turn I began to exact a promise. "You will love and think of me too, Mark?"

"I shall think of no one else, Nell."

"And you will not call any one else beautiful, or——"

He interrupted me with a laugh.

"Perhaps I should be happier if I could think less of you, Nellie," he said. "My life will be one unceasing longing for you."

"My dear Mark," said my mother, "if you are to catch the 6:00 train, it is time you went."

His face grew white, and a dark shadow came into his eyes.

"Nellie, come just a little way with me," he said. "Let our last farewell be spoken where we first met."

Once more we stood by the lilac-trees; every flower was dead, but the green leaves were there still.

"I shall leave you here, my darling," said my lover, in a low voice. "I shall be four years away from you, Nellie. Promise me that when I return you will meet me here, in this same place. Here, where I met the sweetest love ever given to man—here I shall return to claim my wife. Good-bye, Nellie."

"Good-bye, Mark," I whispered.

For one brief moment he put his face on mine; he kissed my brow and my lips; for one moment, sweet and bitter as death, I lay with head upon his breast; and then he was gone. There was a blinding mist all round me, a surging as of great waters in my ears. A sharp and bitter pain seemed to pierce my heart, the trees and the river were all one, and I reeled and fell upon the grass. I could not weep; I could not cry out. No word came to relieve my dumb anguish and despair.

"Oh, child, be warned," said my mother that evening, "be warned! You must not give to any creature the love that belongs to One only."

I lived through it—through the rest of the long, bright days, through the sunny evenings, the moonlit nights. For some weeks I had no companion save despair. I wept whenever I was alone, but I dared not let my mother know how sorely I grieved.

Four years, four long, dreary years I must wait; but there was hope at the end. He would come again, my brave young lover. My mother helped me by setting me to work. I could make so many beautiful things for my future home in four years she said. I could paint; I could do a hundred things that would fill the time, and I should know that I was working for him.

One whole year passed by. Every mail brought me a letter, a glowing love-letter, and I was growing happy again. Only three years to wait now until I should see Mark under the lilacs again! Then clouds began to gather. Doctor Upton, who, although he had laughed at us as young lovers, had always been very kind to me, died suddenly. He fell down in the street, and was carried home senseless. He never spoke again. He died the same evening, to the grief and distress of every one who knew him. A chill of fear crept into my heart; I could not tell why, but his father's death seemed to take me further from Mark. The lawyers managed everything. The Doctor's practice was sold, also his house, and furniture; and the sum of money realized was sent to Mark in far-off India. The good Doctor was buried at Gracedieu, a new practitioner came, and the world about us went on as of old; but whenever I passed the empty house a great pain seized me.

Mark felt his father's death keenly. He wrote to me more lovingly than ever. He said that I was all that he had in the world now, and that he must, if he could, love me even more.

It was in May that the Doctor died, and for one year afterward everything went on as of old. I had but two years more to wait. Time passed more quickly. Only two years! My mother had ceased to warn me. She said no more to me about caution in love.

Three years had passed. I reminded myself every hour in the day that I had but one more year to wait. Mark's letters were full of love, full of eagerness and hope. He had been prosperous beyond expectation. He had never missed writing to me, until a day came when the Indian mail brought me nothing from him—not one word, not one line. It was the first time such a thing had occurred, and my mother tried to comfort me. The next mail brought me a letter, but the one after that did not, and my confidence was gone—I no longer felt sure that by every mail I should have news from my lover. Like the sharp thrust of a sword, an idea came to me one day, that the letters were shorter and colder. I hated myself for my miserable fancy. How dared I think such treason of my lover Mark? Then in the month of October my mother died, and after that the Indian mail brought me no more news of Mark—not a single line.

My mother never knew that a great cloud had overshadowed me. She did not know that my heart was breaking because I had no news from Mark.

Let me tell it quickly. My dear mother was buried, and I was alone in the world, save for my lover so far away—alone, save for him; and, when July of the next year should come, the four years would be ended and he would return.

I thought deeply over my plans. It seemed useless now to leave the cottage; it was best for me to remain there until Mark came home again. Our old and faithful servant, Dorothy Clarke, was sufficient protection for me. I had money enough for one year, and I had my little income of twenty pounds per annum also. I had thought once of going away; but whither should I go—what could I do? And I must be here when Mark returned.

When Christmas came, I was still waiting, in dry-eyed, mute anguish, for the letter that I was never to receive. I wondered often that the golden hair of which my lover had been so proud had not turned gray. I was helpless in my great grief. I wrote to Mark. I told him that my mother was dead, and that I was alone in the cottage, waiting for him—that neither his silence nor his absence shook my faith. He might be ill; an accident might have happened to him—anything, everything would I believe, except that he had forgotten me. I never thought of that; it never occurred to me as a solution of the mystery of his silence. There was no one to whom I could appeal for news of Mark. His father was dead; the Rector of Gracedieu had not heard from him for many months; the lawyers who had forwarded the money realized by the sale of his father's property had not received any communication from him since he had sent the formal receipt for it. There was no one in Gracedieu who knew his present address. Mark had not seen much of Gracedieu. When the Doctor had bought his practice there, Mark was at school. He had made few acquaintances, and none of these had kept up a correspondence with him since he had left for India.

There was nothing to be done but to wait in patience as best I could. Every morning hope revived in my heart; every evening it died. Every morning I rose, praying wildly to Heaven that I might hear from Mark that day; every night I lay down to sleep with bitter tears because a letter had not come. Every morning, week after week, month after month, I went to the gate to meet the postman. He never had anything for me. He knew I wanted an Indian letter, and he would look at me with a piteous shake of the head, and pass on. But one morning, when the snow lay upon the ground and the bells were chiming, the postman came. He bade me no cheery "good-morning" as he placed a letter in my hands and hastened away. He seemed to know what had befallen me. Inside the envelope was my last letter to India, returned to me through the Dead-Letter Office, and on it was written in an official hand, "Gone away—left no address."

CHAPTER IV.

The words were ever before me in letters of fire—"Gone away—left no address!" Both by night and by day they beat upon my brain. Christmas passed; bright, lovely spring was coming. What was I to do?

Mark had gone away and left no address. No letter, no prayer from me could reach him. In all the wide world I did not know where to look for him, where to send to him. He seemed as lost to me as though he had gone into another sphere.

What could I do? In the July of this year he was to come home and marry me; I was waiting for him. I had no other future, no other home, nothing else to which I could look forward. Where was he—my handsome, brave young lover, who had loved so dearly and worshipped me so entirely? Was he living or dead? Hope, health, strength, everything failed me except my faith; that was undimmed and untouched. If he was lying ill, unable to write, I knew he was thinking of me, longing for me; if he had been suddenly sent to some distant place on business, from which perhaps he was unable to send news to me, he would be miserable, as I was. Even if he was lying dead in the depths of the sea, his last thought had been mine. Every hour of the day and night this one question met me—What must I do? There were times when the impulse was strong upon me to go out into the wide world and search for him. Then faith and patience came to my aid. They said, "Wait here for him. He will come with the lilies and ro wait in hope and patience."

The spring came and went. I avoided looking at the lilacs. Their perfume filled the air—I could not help breathing it—but I avoided looking at them. My heart was sick, half dead with pain, and the sight of them would almost have killed me. Then June came with its roses. My little store of money was all gone, and I knew that I could not remain many weeks longer at the cottage. Mark would come in July, if he were living; and, if he did not come, I should know that he was dead. So, in desolation and anguish of heart, I counted the days. I dreaded at times to look in the mirror; I was so afraid my hair had grown gray. The color had left my face, the light had died from my eyes; but July was coming.

Ah, me, can I ever forget the slow torture of that month? Every day I went to the group of trees where we had parted, to wait as I had promised. One by one the sultry days went by, and then I felt sure that he was dead. He would have come to me had he been living. My handsome, brave, true young lover was dead.

I could only pray to Heaven with weeping eyes that I might die too. During those long months of suspense I had lived through the suffering of a lifetime.

When the month of August came, I saw that part of my life was ended. I put on mourning for my lover. The sun of my life had set; I would mourn for Mark as wives sorrow for a beloved husband. I never thought of another lover, or of future comfort, or hope, or happiness. Wherever he lay dead, there my heart was buried with him. The realities of life came upon me, and I believe, saved me from going mad. I sold all my furniture and books, every thing I possessed; I gave literally to Dorothy, and bade farewell to my old home. I was twenty-one when I went to London to seek my fortune. The first post I obtained was that of teacher of English in a boarding-school in France. I did not like it, and through the influence of one of the elder pupils I obtained an engagement in England—not as governess this time, but as companion to Lady Yorke, who lived at a grand old place called Westwood, in Kent. I was glad enough to return to England. Before going to Westwood, I went to Gracedieu, with perhaps a forlorn hope that I might hear some news of Mark—of how he had died.

I went the old round—from the Rector to the lawyer, and from him to Mark's acquaintances. No one had heard one word. He was dead—Mark, my darling!—dead, and I was alone. There was but one thing before me—to live my life and pray that I might join him in Heaven.

The phase of feeling that came to me was a strange one. There were times when it seemed to me as if I hardly lived in this world. I could see very often that people looked at me as though they did not quite understand me. How could they, when my heart and my senses were always with Mark in another world?

It was whispered from one to another that my lover was dead; and then to those who cared most for me there came a gleam of pity for one who had no earthly ties.

It was in the month of July that I went to Westwood. Lady Yorke was very candid with me. She told me that the one complaint she suffered from was ennui. She was lonely; she wanted amusement; she needed a cheerful companion. She should require me to spend the greater part of my time with her. I must read to her, answer her letters, send out her invitations. She would expect me to spend my evenings in the drawing-room, to sing when needed, take a hand at whist. She wrote most unreservedly to me. The life would be tedious, she owned; but then I should have a large salary and a comfortable home. It mattered little to me how I passed the remaining years of my life; as well might it be with Lady Yorke as with any one else. If the lady were ill, were really an invalid, I could perhaps help to cheer her.

On the second of July—I shall never forget the date—I found myself at the pretty station of Woodheaton, the nearest town to Westwood. A luxurious carriage awaited me, and I enjoyed the drive. Every one knows how the sea washes the fair Kentish coast. Even amidst the odor of the flowers, the scent of the rich clover meadows, and the fragrance of the rose-covered hedges, I distinguished the sea-breeze. The park was a beautiful undulating expanse, full of fine old trees of every variety of form, and carpeted with wild flowers. The house was a grand old mansion that had been built in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The sunlight fell on the great gables and the large windows. My courage almost failed me when I saw what a magnificent home mine was to be. I felt some little curiosity as to what Lady Yorke was like. I pictured her an invalid—pale, delicate, quiet. Before long I was in her presence, and I perceived my mistake. I saw at once that her chief malady was due to having had all she wanted all her life. She had never known trouble or care. She was a slender woman, with dark blue eyes and dark hair. An expression of languid discontent marred the beauty of her face. There was a line across her white brow that betokened temper, and something in the expression of her lips told the same story. The room was beautifully decorated and furnished. The lady herself was lying on a couch, doing nothing, neither reading nor working. She looked up with a glance of relief as I entered.

"Miss Chester," she exclaimed, with something of surprise, "I am glad to see you! I was just feeling as though I did not know what to do with myself. Pray sit down."

Lady Yorke did not look like a person who was easily amused. I took a seat as requested.

"I was greatly pleased with your references, Miss Chester. Madame de Deffand tells me that you are devote. Is it true?" She did not wait for an answer. "I am glad you have come," she continued; "time hangs heavily on my hands. May I ask for whom you are in mourning?"

Oh, Mark, how little that mourning expressed my true sorrow for you. I felt my lips tremble when I answered—

"For the gentleman to whom I was engaged, Lady Yorke."

"How very sad!" she said, just in the same tone in which she would have cried, "How very pleasant!" Then she looked at me with a smile. "You did not tell me that you were a beauty, Miss Chester."

"I did not know it," I replied. The only voice that had ever called me beautiful was hushed for ever.

"People of your way of thinking do not value the gift of personal beauty, I suppose," she remarked.

It was my turn to smile.

"What do you mean by my way of thinking, Lady Yorke?"

"Madame tells me that your thoughts are more in heaven than on earth," she replied.

"The man I loved is in heaven," I said. "Where else could my thoughts be?"

"People are not often true to a dead love," said Lady Yorke, calmly. "For my part, I do not see much use in it."

"Truth to the dead and truth to the living are one and the same thing," I said, with the rash presumption of one ignorant and inexperienced. I had known only one love and one faith—how could I judge of others?

"I hope that you will like your rooms," said Lady Yorke, "I told Masham, the housekeeper, to give you the two most cheerful. They are in what we call the 'Queen's wing.' I hope you will be very comfortable, Miss Chester. I think you told me that you had no relatives?"

"No," I replied; "I am quite alone in the world."

"Ah, then," said Lady Yorke, with a pleasant smile, "you will be better able to devote all your time, thought, and attention to me."

CHAPTER V.

In a few days I was quite at home at Westwood and understood my duties. They were certainly heavy. Fortunately for me, with my great love of early rising and fresh air, they did not commence until ten in the morning. Lady Yorke did not care to be disturbed before that hour. I do not think she had ever seen the sun rise or the dew lying like diamonds on the grass. So the fresh sweet mornings were all my own. I rose almost with the sun, thinking often that if people knew how lovely the early morning was they would never waste much time in sleep, and went out into the park.

It seemed to me always that I spent those early morning hours with Mark; the only difference lay in this, that he was on one side of the blue sky and I on the other. And I was possessed with the idea that he could hear and see me. Ah, love, my love, how I loved you!

HOW TO BREED EITHER SEX IN FOWLS.

A writer in the Farming World, on the subject of breeding for sex in poultry, says: Having seen some discussion about the shape of eggs to determine the sex, I can say from experience that to obtain the desired result, or predomination of either sex, you have to mate your fowls as follows:—For cockrels, mate a one-year-old cockerel with hens not more than two years old, and you will get the desired results. For breeding pullets, mate a three-year-old cock with one-year-old hens. I have never had an exception to this rule.

THE ELECTIONS IN GERMANY.

The feature in the late elections in Germany has been the enormous increase in the socialist-democratic vote in Berlin and other cities. The strength of that party in the next German Parliament will probably be double that in the last. It shows the complete failure of the repressive measures undertaken for the splitting of the Reichstag into many sections, and renders the hope of the Government of attaining any great majority very improbable.

WHY A JUDGE DINES ALONE.

A great many people have been wondering why it is a Canadian judge on circuit always dines, etc., in his own room. The majority of people seem to think that is because he considers himself too big to feed with the common herd. This is not the reason at all but the following is:—A judge is supposed to hear no outside opinions on any case he may be trying, and as he would be sure to do duby frequenting public places, he keeps himself to himself while in the execution of his functions.

Mr. Alexander Robinson, of Exeter, in writing about one of the most popular articles, and one that has done more good to the afflicted than any other medicine has during the short time it has been in existence, says: "I have used four bottles of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure, and have been cured of Dyspepsia that troubled me for over ten years. Part of that time I had it very bad, and I was at considerable expense trying to get relief; but this excellent medicine was the first and only relief I received."

A Card.

To all who are suffering from the errors and indiscretions of youth, nervous weakness early decay, loss of manhood, &c., I will send a recipe that will cure you, FREE OF CHARGE. This great remedy was discovered by a missionary in South America. Send a self-addressed envelope to the Rev. JOSEPH T. INMAN, Station D, New York City

Itching Piles—Symptoms and Cure.

The symptoms are moisture, like perspiration, intense itching, increased by scratching very distressing, particularly at night, seems as if pin-worms were crawling in and about the rectum: the private parts are sometimes affected. If allowed to continue very serious results may follow. "SWAYNE'S OINTMENT" is a pleasant, sure cure. Also for Tetter, Itch, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Erysipelas, Barbers' Itch, Blotches, all scaly, crusty Skin Diseases. Box by mail 50 cents; three for $1.25. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Phila., Pa. Sold by Druggists. 7-52t

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentry and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Wanted.

Turkeys, Geese, Ducks and Chickens, nicely dressed. Also choice saddles of Venison, Partridges, Pigeons, Quail, Snipe, Plover, Woodcock, Wild Ducks, and fresh Bass. Will buy in small or large quantities for cash.

SMITH'S MARKET,
George Street, Peterborough.

Your Friends will Never Tell You, but perhaps somebody, who isn't your friend, will, that your presence is rendered offensive by the foul, fetid smell of your breath. Every word you utter, though it be the very echo of wisdom and poetry, disgusts your hearers, and your laugh is productive of anything but mirth to them. It is a duty you owe, not only to yourself, but to society, to remove this cause of offense. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will heal the diseased mucous membrane, will bring relief to yourself and others. Do not hesitate to employ it.

Orillia's Gain.

It is decidedly Peterborough's loss and Orillia's gain, that Mr. Wm. M. Hamilton becomes a citizen of the latter town. Mr. Hamilton having disposed of his Whisk and Broom Factory to Mr. W. S. Deacon, goes to Orillia to establish a similar business. He will manufacture fine brooms, whisks, etc, extensively. Mr. Hamilton has for eight years carried on in Peterborough the manufacture of these goods, which, by the excellence of their quality have acquired a provincial reputation, being particularly prized in the Montreal and Toronto wholesale markets. Mr. Hamilton left on Tuesday morning for Orillia, which by his advent secure an enterprising, square dealing business man. We wish him every success in his new sphere.

Prof. Ragan.

The public are under a debt of gratitude to the management of the Mechanics' Institute for the privilege of witnessing and listening to the delightful entertainments presented by Prof. Ragan in the Opera House on Friday and Saturday nights. The attendance was small, but above the average of high-class entertainments in this town. A good deal of this is perhaps due to inadequate advertising of the lectures and scenes. The first night, "Glimpses of Scotland," delighted the natives or descendants of natives of the "Land o' Cakes," and the interest in the descriptive "litter pres"—so to speak—was emphasized by the excellence of Prof. Ragan's enunciation and the fulness and aptness of the descriptions. The views themselve were excellent and elicited frequent applause. On Saturday night the Professor lectured on "Picturesque Ireland," and gave delight with magnificent views and racily recounted instruction. We are sorry that the course of lectures, by reason of light attendance, was not more successful in augmenting the funds of the Institute.

Hunter Street.

We again feel called upon to refer in terms of condemnation to the manner in which the town looks after the public interest on Hunter in connection with the building of the bridge. There has been for nearly two years no walk on the south side of the street, over the creek, and now, owing to the contractor's operations, the walk on the north side is down and there is only a narrow temporary bridge in the middle of the street, for all the foot and vehicle traffic of the second most important street in the town. The contractor is not to blame, unless his contract requires him to do otherwise; his lookout is to build the bridge with as little trouble and expense to himself as possible. If the authorities were not sharp enough to insert a provision in the contract, requiring that the street should be kept in as passable a condition as possible, they should retrieve their blunder at the public expense. Considering the condition this street has been for nearly two years (there are two suits, for damages sustained, now pending), its present condition is simply adding insult to injury.

"Fanny B" and "Indian Billy."

Last Thursday these two well known steppers met on the turf of the Driving Park. There was a fair attendance of spectators, but the track was rather heavy for speed. "Fanny B" was driven by Charley Stapleton, Jr., and Robert Reid drew the ribbons over the Indian. The first heat, the mare got under the wire first, the pony losing ground by bad breaks. The time was 2:58. The second heat resulted similarly to the first, the pony's breaks would not stand the steady trotting of Fanny, who won by about a length in 2:52. The third heat brought a change. Indian Billy pulled out gamely, and left the mare behind, winning by about two lengths in 2:51. The fourth heat was a game one. After the horse had led for the first half, the mare closed in and got even. The pony shook her and seemed to have the heat in hand, but he broke badly at the back stretch and lost the race, the mare coming in with honors easy, in 2:54, winning the heat and the race. Messrs. H. C. Winch, Geo. Woods, Port Hope, and C. Leary, were judges, and Mr. Gus. Sawers, timer.

Almost a Fire.

On Monday evening while a coal stove with the fire burning, was being shifted at Sailsbary's book store, it tumbled over, and Mr. R. J. Sailsbary, who was assisting, received a painful cut on the knee by the sharp edge of the ornamental rim which came in contact with his leg. The burning coal ignited the floor, but the fire was put out without any mentionable damage being done.

To the Pacific Slope.

On Wednesday Mr. James Tremaine, Mr. Redhead, Mr. Hugh Regan and families—fifteen in all—started from Peterborough to go by the Grand Trunk, Great Wabash, and Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railways to San Francisco, California. The tickets were sold by Mr. Menzies, and any other persons wishing to go long distances by rail, will secure the best routes with the fewest changes and best accomodations by buying there tickets from him.

New Blood in the Firm.

The numerous friends and customers of that substantial firm, A. L. Davis & Co., stationers, booksellers, etc., will be interested to know that new blood has been infused by the admission of Mr. R. J. Lee as a member of it. Mr. Lee's well known business ability, integrity and popularity in a town where he has been favorably known for years, will add a new element of strength to a firm already standing high in the public confidence and esteem. Both Mr. Lee and A. L. Davis & Co.,—under which style the business will still be known—are to be congratulated on the occasion.

Curling and Skating Rink Company.

At the meeting held on Monday evening for the purpose, the by-law was passed authorizing the increase of the capital stock of the company from $2,000 to $6,000. Stock to the amount of $4,500 has been called up and of this, all but about $350 has been subscribed. It is probable there will be no difficulty in securing the latter amount. The company will now have sufficient funds to complete the erection of the new rink. The rebuilding is progressing rapidly. The frame work except the rafters, is in position on the stone foundations, and a start has been made in laying down and laying the 100,000 brick required to enclose the structure.

Oyster Social.

The social managed by the Young People's Floral Club of the Charlotte street Methodist church on Thursday night was a "blooming" success. It was held in the school rooms, and, while the refreshments were abundant and excellent, the succeeding programme, with Mr. A. L. Davis in the chair, was equally excellent. Miss Jennie Coe and Grace Stevens, Messrs. H. Stevens, J. Miller, James Hannah and G. Schneider furnished musical solos, duets, etc. Misses May Snider and Emma Giles gave recitations. The programme, closed with "The Sweet Bye and Bye" by members of the club, followed by the benediction by Rev. Mr. Manning, brought a delightful evening's entertainment to a close.

Fine Printing.

We have added during the past week, several beautiful fonts of poster and job type to our already first-class plant. Business men wanting fine printing will find THE EXAMINER is the place to get it. Our stock of leather and book binding material is of the best, and the work turned out of this department from the smallest passbook to the finest bank journal or ledger, has no superior in the province. To enable us to push through small work with great rapidity, we have placed our order for a new improved stabbing machine, and we are arranging for a new wire stitching machine which we expect will arrive shortly. We have the finest and largest stock of fancy cards and folders between Montreal and Toronto, and our stock of papers for printing and for the manufacture of all kinds of books is complete. We do not allow our books to be bound by apprentices, but take the greatest care that every part is properly made by experienced hands. Patronage solicited.

Building Progress.

The several large building contracts in town are progressing rapidly, and the contractors are taking full advantage of the fine weather. At St. Paul's church, Mr. Rutherford has made such good time that the outside work is completed, and some idea can be formed of the grand appearance the church will present when the scaffolding and debris are cleared away. Inside the work is also well on. The plastering and plumbing of the north (new) annex is done, and the painters will soon complete their part of the work. In the main body of the building the seating is being done. St. Peter's Cathedral has, in point of progress, advanced pari passu with St. Paul's. The stone work of the new extension to the north is about finished, and the galvanized iron roofing will be largely laid by Saturday night. The nature of the work, so much dressed stone being used, was unfavorable to rapid progress, but the contractors have showed a great deal of push. The work done is solid and substantial, and, with the pointing in black, makes a very fine effect. The buttresses on the west side of the old building are about completed. When these two churches are completed according to the plans, they will be, in their respective styles, beautiful and grand additions to the public edifices of the town.

New Livery Business.

Messrs. Conners Bros. have purchased the livery business of Mr. W. J. Hopkins and removed the office and stables to George street, three doors north of Charlotte street. The new firm are active, reliable, careful and energetic business men, and we have no doubt they will be well patronized.

Parlour Social.

The parlour social at the residence of Rev. Mr. McAmmond (Ashburnham) passed off pleasantly last Thursday evening. After tea the company enjoyed themselves in conversation with one another. Miss Ida Huston and others favoured the company with music that was much appreciated. Proceeds of collection, $13.

Mark-street Church.

Quarterly meeting services will be held (D.V.) in the Mark-street Methodist Church (Ashburnham) on Sabbath next, November 9th. The general fellowship meeting will begin sharp at 10. Sermon at 11, after which the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Mr. McAmmond, will preach a sermon to the young men. All such invited.

Personal.

We learn with pleasure that Mr. W. C. J. Leonard, barrister, has opened out an office in Belleville, for the practice of his profession. Mr. Leonard has had a splendid experience as partner in one of the best business legal firms in Toronto. He is a gentleman of good ability and strict integrity, and we wish him the greatest success in his new field. In throwing up a remunerative position and striking out so early for himself, he exhibits a courage and ambition which must bring their own rewards.

Well-Deserved Recognition.

On Tuesday evening last at Court "Little John" C.O.F. No. 92, Mr. H. W. Watson, L.D.H.C.R., was presented with a complimentary address and a beautiful gold locket, in recognition of his many valuable services on behalf of the Court, among others, its organization. Mr. Watson returned thanks and replied to the address in a few appropriate words, and was greatly pleased with so elegant a token of esteem. The locket, a fine piece of workmanship, has on one side an exquisitely engraved stag's head, and on the other this inscription: "Presented to H. W. Watson, D.D.H.C.R., as a mark of esteem, by the members of Court Little John No. 92."

Change of Quarters.

The Young Men's Christian Association have secured the very pleasant room formerly occupied by the Club, and situated over the Postoffice. They will be very much more advantageous for the Association than their present premises, as they are so light and cheerful, besides being nearly twice as large. The Association expect to move in this week, though it will probably be two or three weeks before they get completely settled. The Finance Committee have been able to secure about $800 of the $1,300 required by the Association for it current expenses, and they expect to raise the balance before the end of the year. If any readers of this would like to help, their subscriptions will be gladly received by the Association.

Rev. DeWitt Talmage's Lecture.

On Wednesday evening, November 19th, Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the celebrated Brooklyn orator, will deliver his most popular lecture, "Big Blunders," in the Opera House, under the auspices of Otonabee Lodge of Oddfellows. J. Stevenson, Esq., N. G., will occupy the chair. The reverend lecturer is one of the most eloquent, trenchant, hard-hitting, truth telling and humorous platform orators in the United States, and few will care to miss this chance of hearing him. Seats may be secured at Hartley's music store. Special arrangements are being made for reduced railway fares. As only a limited number of tickets will be sold, and as there will be sure to be a big rush for seats, those wishing to hear the lecture must apply promptly. Tickets fifty cents, reserved seats seventy-five cents.

IT IS A REMARKABLE FACT that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is as good for internal as external use. For disease of the lungs and throat, and for rheumatism, neuralgia, crick in the back, wounds and sores, it is the best known remedy, and much trouble is saved by having it always on hand.

Jacob Lockman, Buffalo, says he has been using it for rheumatism. He had such a lame back that he could do nothing; but one bottle entirely cured him.
